DEER RIVER DAM MAY RAISE LAKE

People of Apsley Hear That Loon Lake Shores May Be Flooded.

APSLEY NEWS

APSLEY, Sept. 10.—It is rumored that the Hydro-electric Power Commission contemplates putting in a dam on Deer River at a point about four miles from the foot of Loon Lake. Deer River is the only outlet to Loon Lake, and it is said that if the project goes through it will have the effect of raising the level of the lake several feet and submerging many of the islands used as summer resorts and a quantity of land belonging to the farmers on the shores, besides, incidentally, depreciating the bass fishing. The rumor is supported by the activities of surveyors,w ho have also approached some of the farmers with the view of ascertaining the value of land likely to be submerged.

An exodus of young people to the States from Apsley is taking place within the next few days, nearly a round dozen leaving for Detroit, Buffalo and Rochester, most of them of the gentle sex.

A farewell dance was given at the Union Hotel on Monday evening in honor of John Coones, who is shortly accompanying Archie Wilson and his brother to Detroit where they expect to obtain work. It is reported that Wilbert Johnston will take over John Coones' barber business.

William Harvey, of Peterboro, was in the village last week in the interests of the Aladdin Lamp Co. and secured several new customers.

Under the auspices of the Canadian Forestry Association, a free motion picture display and lecture will be given in St. George's Institute on Sept. 18, on the subjects of "Re-forestation" and "Fighting Forest Fires," and will doubtless attract a full house. W. A. Higgins is billed to give the lecture.

MISSIONARIES GIVE INTERESTING TALKS

Address Meeting of St. John's W. M. Society at Campbellford.

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 10. — The ladies of the W.M.S. of St. John's United Church held their monthly meeting on Tuesday afternoon in the Sunday School rooom of the church. There was a large attendance, and the President, Mrs. Haig, had charge of the meeting.

Mrs. Turner and Mrs. Douglas gave the Treasurer's report and Mrs. T. L. Diamond gave the minutes of the last meeting, after which Mrs. Haig read the Scripture lesson.

A very interesting feature of the afternoon was two splendid addresses, given by Rev. and Mrs. Simmons, who are Presbyterian missionaries of Honan, China, now home on furlough. They spoke eloquently on their work as missionaries, contrasting the lives of the wealthy Chinese with the poorer classes and their customs.

Mrs. Haig, on behalf of the society, presented Mrs. Simmons with a handsome bouquet, after which Rev. Mr. Elliott closed the meeting with prayer.

Women Find

There is a new way. A way that multiplies protection. A way, too, that solves the old problem and embarrassment of disposal.

It is called "KOTEX." Ends the insecurity of the old-time sanitary pad. Five times as absorbent! And deodorizes—ends ALL fear of offending.

You get it at any drug or department store simply by saying "KOTEX." You ask for it without hesitancy.

Costs only a few cents. Eight in 10 better-class women employ it. Proves old ways an unnecessary risk.

No Laundry—discard like tissue

PRISONER TRIES HUNGER STRIKE

WAITING TRIAL.

GUELPH, Ont., Sept. 10. — Charles Roberts, held in the county jail on a charge of attempted murder, is reported to have gone on a hunger strike. It is said that for the last two days he has absolutely refused to touch food of any kind and is continually brooding over his confinement. He was sent to the local jail several months ago, following his committal for trial for wounding Stanley Burns, a C.N.R. yardman, in the thigh with a revolver bullet.

Roberts recently returned from a three weeks' stay at the Ontario Psychiatric Hospital, Toronto, where he has been under the personal observation of Dr. Farrar. As no report had been received from Dr. Farrar with respect to Roberts' mental condition, the authorities here have written asking for one. It is understood that this is not the first time the accused has refused to take food, that shortly after being taken to the jail following his preliminary hearing he abstained from taking nourishment for some days.

MARS VERY DRY SAYS SCIENTIST

Only Lowest Form of Plants From Earth Could Exist There.

PASADENA, Calif., Sept. 10.—(Canadian Press.)—Even a camel would shun Mars if what Dr. Walter S. Adams, director of the Mount Wilson Observatory here, says about the planet is true.

If any form of life exists on our celestial neighbor, it is probably only the lowest form of plants, such as moss and lichen for "ultra arid" conditions prevail throughout the planet, says Dr. Adams in a report to the Carnegie Institution of Washington.

Coupled with the extreme aridity is the scientifically established fact that there is a drastic daily change in temperature on Mars, from something like 75 degrees to 40 degrees below zero at midnight.

Knowledge of the desert atmosphere on the planet was established by means of spectrum lines considered together with the relative motion of the earth and Mars.

DICTATOR ALTERS SPANISH RESORT

San Sebastian, International Gaming Paradise, Now Law-Abiding.

SAN SEBASTIAN, Spain, Sept. 10.—(Canadian Press.)— General Primo de Rivera, Premier-Dictator of Spain, has changed San Sebastian from an international gambling paradise into a modest law-abiding city.

The order of the Dictator that gambling in Spain should cease has served to close the Casino and drive all the international "sports" out. They have crossed over to Biarritz, noted resort on the Bay of Biscay in France, and the bediamond women and the men who cannot live without hearing the whirl of the roulette wheel and flirting with the fickle goddess of fortune have followed them.

Thus San Sebastian has been turned back to the use of the Spaniards. It has become again a family place, and normal life has been resumed. The beautiful beach daily is used by Spanish families and children by thousands are to be seen playing in the sands and wading in the waters of the Bay of Biscay. The wealthy foreigners who previously overran the place are gone.

COMMUNISTS CAUSE RIOTS AFTER FIGHT

Greek Premier Says Royalists Also Implicated in Mob Scenes.

ATHENS, Sept. 10 (Canadian Press). — Premier Kondylis to-day declared that the mob scenes in Athens, following yesterday's mutiny by the Republican guards, were caused by Communists and a few Royalists wishing to take advantage of the situation and cause the overthrow of the Republic.

The Government has arrested ten Royalist leaders and participants. The number of dead is placed at fourteen and the wounded at 170. Some of the newspapers, however, state that the mutineers lost fifty killed and many wounded, but say the casualties among the regular troops and citizens are not known.

Tapping the keys of the typewriter to gay strains of music supplied by a phonograph is an innovation which, it is said, will teach embryo typists correct style and high speed in a minimum of time.

Bodies of British soldiers who fell in France and Flanders during the late war are still being found at the rate of ten to fifteen a week.

Electrical "pathfinders" are being installed in public places all over London to aid persons who want to know the best and quickest way to any section of the metropolis. The device consists of a large map of London, flanked on either side by a column of electric buttons, each one plainly labelled with the name of a district, and the inquirer has only to press the button indicating his destination, and the shortest and most convenient route is illuminated.

Miss Agnes McPhail

Progressive M.P. for South-East Grey, says Mr. King knew what was going on.

"Now I come to something which pains me exceedingly; I wish I could get out of saying it and I have come to the place where I almost wish I had gone to Europe the other morning; it would have been much more comfortable. I have, however, IN AGONY reached the conclusion that the late government was well aware for quite a period of time —possibly from March to November— that all was not well in the Customs Department. It is possible that they knew that Bisaillon was the head of the Montreal underworld and chief preventive officer at one and the same time. I AM AFRAID IT IS TRUE THAT IT WAS NOT UNTIL THE STEVENS MOTION WAS MOOTED that the eleven charges which had been laid against Bisaillon were investigated, and I believe it is true that Mr. Duncan was able to secure the arrest of Mr. Bisaillon four days after he was really given authority to do so."

Because her conscience would not allow her to condone the guilt of Mr. King and his ministers.

MEDICAL SCIENCE CHANGES IN WARS

U. S. Expects Chemical Wounds Will Be Met With Next.

NEW YORK, N.Y., Sept. 10.—(Canadian Press.)—Wars of the future may bring about the development of an entirely new medical science, in the opinion of a veteran army surgeon of seven campaigns.

Former Major Louis Livingston Seaman, who has served in every American campaign since the Spanish American war and in the armies of Japan and Belgium, sees in the development of chemical warfare a new enemy for the medical world to tackle. Soldiers' wounds in future wars, said the 76-year-old veteran, probably will be of a nature little known to-day.

Major Seaman who recently returned to his home in New York after a tour of Europe as president of the American Surgeons Travel Club, traced the development of army medical science as he observed it.

The greater knowledge of antisepsis to-day was cited as medical science's greatest stride in saving the lives of those brought down in battle.

"Where raw carbolic acid, available on rare occasions, formerly was the best that medical science could use on mortifying gunshot and sword wounds," he said, "today a whole gamut of antiseptics can be brought to the aid of nature in keeping a wound clean.

"Though wounds are worse now than formerly, they are in many ways more merciful. Unless a man is torn to pieces by the cruel new inventions of war and killed instantly, the newer knowledge of medical treatment may hope to save him."

Better feeding of modern soldiers has been a principal factor in reducing mortality among armies, he said.

"Good rationing has cut down the deaths from preventable wartime diseases almost to nothing," he said.

"In the war with Spain, he said, twenty American soldiers died of preventable diseases to one of wounds. It was a bloodless war, an opera bouffe, except for the hideous tragedy of these diseased losses," he said.

"I was surgeon in the Japanese army," said Major Seaman, "and distinctly remember that the Japanese soldiers besieging Port Arthur, fed on an insufficient diet of polished rice alone, were dying in the most horrible torment of beri-beri. Within the town the besieged Russians, living on canned salt meats and dried foods, starved and died of scurvy. Almost over-night the lesson was brought home, when the siege at an end, the two armies exchanged food-stuffs, and the death rate dropped to a negligible point."

To-day, he said, the body's need of the mysterious vitamins contained in different sorts of foods has been learned and the soldier's greatest enemy in wartime has been conquered.

SEVERE 'QUAKE NOTED.

Shock Lasting Three Hours, Probably in Southern Pacific.

NEW YORK, Sept. 10 (Canadian Press).—An unusually severe earthquake was recorded by the seismograph at Fordham University today. The shock began at 6.54 a.m., reached its greatest force at 8 o'clock, and continued until 10 o'clock. The distance was estimated at 5,000 miles from New York, probably in the Southern Pacific.

Evening Examiner "IDEAL Fashions" by Jean Belle Hamilton

A Graceful Model

The becoming one-piece frock in jumper effect never loses out in favor and allows a wide choice in materials. The model pictured is of plain tub-silk with a striking border design, but would also develop smartly in linen, jersey, flat crêpe, rep or charmeen. The modified sailor collar is eminently suitable as are also the kimono-shoulder sleeve tops. The up-in-the-front line of the blouse breaks the plain line at the hips, and inverted plaits in the front and back of the skirt allow fullness. The long sleeves are gathered into narrow wrist-bands, and inset pockets follow the curved line of the bodice. NO. 1406 is for misses and small women, and is in sizes 16, 18 and 20 years. Size 18 years (36 bust) requires 2¾ yards 54-inch bordered material; or 3¾ yards 36-inch plain. 20 cents.

Our new Fall Fashion Book, illustrating the newest and most practical styles, will be of interest to every home dressmaker. Price of the book 10 cents the copy.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, but do not Compel.

(Copyright, McClure Syndicate.)
FOR SATURDAY SEPTEMBER 11 1926.

It is a time to act wisely and to trust only the most careful decisions. Good and evil aspects appear to contend today, according to astrology.

The Moon is in a sign making for success through enterprises that require foresight and imagination.

This is a favorable time for signing contracts and leases, for there should be satisfaction for both parties to the agreements.

Writers and editors should benefit, for the people will turn to reading with more seriousness than has been manifested recently.

Libraries are to flourish and to attract great numbers of people, for world affairs will awaken extraordinary interest.

This should be a fairly fortunate day for women and their public interests. Clubs and societies of every sort are to attain added popularity.

Fair luck attends those who are married under this rule of the stars. Constancy and lasting understanding appear to be presaged.

Theaters should benefit from this position of the stars, which indicates many novel ventures and a few remarkable successes.

The seers issue stern warnings against mental obliquities of many sorts which will be prevalent. Insanity may increase and many strange vagaries will manifest themselves.

After the reign of thought fixed on material things much degeneracy is likely to develop and all persons should shut out all that is not wholesome for there are said to be world vibrations that disturb even the most normal minds.

Astrologers remind the world that the eclipse of July is supposed to be largely responsible for military movements and international misunderstandings.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a quiet year in which prosperity will add to the number of friends.

Children born on this day probably will be endowed with minds which are brilliant but slothful. It is well to train these subjects of Virgo into habits of industry.

YOUR JEWEL COLOR FLOWER

By Mildred Marshall

(Copyright, McClure Syndicate.)

The gem which presides over mortal destiny today—the sapphire—has double power, since it is both the natal and talismanic gem. As a talisman it protects its wearer from contagion, permitting him to pass through an epidemic absolutely unharmed. It has also believed to attract material wealth.

For those whose birth anniversary this is the amethyst holds much promise. Their domestic lives will be happy and serene. Furthermore, they will have the ability to find happiness in simple things. They will never know regret, because those who wear an amethyst are protected from rash, ill-considered acts.

All shades of red will bring good luck on this day.

The beautiful little white violet is the flower which is advocated for wear on this day.

Condition— Strained, or tired eyes.

Diagnosis—This may come from working in insufficient or unaccustomed light.

Treatment—An eyewash is excellent for cleansing and resting the eyes. Diluted boracic acid occasionally, or merely plain water may be used. It is well not to do much for your eyes without consulting an oculist, since they are so very delicate. After a ride in the dust, always wash your eyes thoroughly, with the lids closed, and remove the dust from the eyelashes, and cleanse the eyeball with water or boracic acid in an eyecup. For a cinder or any foreign matter in the eye, an eyecup bath is also advised.

A Fashion Model's Diary

By Grace Thorncliff

She Describes a Velvet and Chiffon Evening Frock.

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE.

The originality of Madame's designs are what have earned for her a name in the fashion world. And her clients are always enthusiastic over everything she creates for them.

The reason for this is quite simple, because, as everyone knows, Madame always studies her clients as to type and coloring before designing a garment.

Yesterday a slim young debutante came in and breathlessly demanded of Madame an evening gown which she wanted to take away on a week-end trip. She informed Madame that she had just lots of gowns, but she wanted something new and different, and please to help her out.

Madame smiled and agreed. Drawing her sketching pad to her, she rapidly drew a few strokes while Miss Allison hung over her shoulder and watched every line.

"Oh, I know I'll just adore a frock like that, and I haven't seen anything like it anywhere," she cried. "Please, Madame, what is the material to be?"

"With your lovely coloring," Madame replied, "I think you should have pale pink. The skirt and top of the gown are to be of chiffon, but the yoke and girdle will be chiffon velvet."

"That will be perfectly gorgeous, and I know that I shall be the belle of the party," the slim young thing enthusiastically cried.

The gown really is a perfect dear, and I am saving a sketch of it myself.

The long-wasted bodice is of the palest pink chiffon with a V-shaped yoke front and back of chiffon velvet in the same shade. A jaunty little cape hangs from the back yoke and gives an adorable butterfly appearance to the gown. The skirt is cut in points around the bottom, which are picotted, and the crush girdle is of velvet to match the yoke.

This Pale Pink Chiffon Frock Has Yoke and Girdle of Velvet.

The slip is of satin in a matching shade, and the slippers are of metal cloth in silver and pink, which added an adorable touch to the costume.

I do love pretty things, and I think this is one of the loveliest gowns that Madame has made this summer. I am going to make one of yellow, which is becoming to me as I am so dark.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

ANGELICA

Angelica, a name of much more substance than the pallid Angela is still one of the "angelic names" which feminine fancy delights to bestow upon its girl children. It means, of course, "angelic," and seems difficult to reconcile with the behavior of the small daughters whom one finds bearing the name.

Angelos was a Greek word meaning "heavenly messenger," hence "angel." It first became a name in the Byzantium Empire when it was bestowed as an epithet upon persons of surpassing beauty. It was applied most often as a masculine name, and there was a Carmellite saint called Angelo, who established it as a baptismal name. In his honor the feminine also became popular, and Italian history records many instances of its use.

Angelica sprang to fame since it named the faithless lady of romance for whose sake Orlando lost his heart and his senses. Though she was the invention of Boiardo and Ariosto, the romantic flavor which the story gave her name, brought Angelica to instant favor. England liked the name and adopted it. In France it became Angelique, and produced the other forms of Angioletta and Anzioleta, though Angelica continued the reigning favorite.

Angelica's talismanic gem is the pearl. It guards the purity and sweetness of her, brings her friends and much charm. Sunday is her lucky day and 2 her lucky number. The wild rose is her flower.

FASHIONS

NEW YORK, Sept. 10 — (United Press).—Belts are still being used on frocks of semi-sports type, the width of the belt never exceeding one inch. They are made of suede, leather or cloth and many of them have unusual fastenings of metal or wood.

Fur, dyed to match the color of the dress or coat, is being used on many new models. Rabbit and mole are the furs usually dyed in fabric colors. Long-napped plush is used occasionally to replace dyed fur. We find this colored fur idea used mostly on dresses or coats of sports type.

Valencia blue, a brilliant new shade, is artistically combined with black for the afternoon dress, the blue being introduced as inverted panels in the skirt, pipings or embroidery.

Slave bracelets combining huge stones with gold or silver links of half-inch length are among the present jewelry fads. Stones in imitation of green jade or carnelian are those frequently worn together. Real stones or circles of jade and carnelian combined with dull silver links or with green gold are chosen by those who can afford to indulge in novelties.

Small turbans or tams with high rear-sloping crowns are the hats of the moment. Women have suddenly discarded wide-brimmed straw shapes in favor of these close-fitting fall models.

Huge leather pocket-books with zipper clasps are recent accessory additions. Flat envelope shapes still continue prominent, although it is thought that the large shopping bag will meet with even greater favor. Bright colored leathers are not considered quite as smart as staple shades. New, indeed, are the envelope purses of velvet with pipings of metallic kid. These must be matched exactly with the velvet gown with which they are carried.

WHAT JERRY THOUGHT

With a bow I left John's archaeologist friend and disappeared within the house. I rather admired him after all, for I could not tell either from his face or his conversation whether or not he was pleased with the turn of affairs in regard to his employer and friend, John Meredith.

As for myself I was completely up in the air. I could not decide what I was going to do about anything and wished with all my heart that Joan hadn't changed her mind about leaving for Europe right away.

I saw no one in the hall and went directly to my room where I called up Jerry Hathaway. I confess I did feel a little conscience-stricken about Jerry, for I had promised to dine with him and knew he was perfectly right in being angry. I tried to make myself believe this was why I was calling him, instead of to cancel steamer reservations for Joan and myself.

Fortunately I caught Jerry at the club.

From the eagerness in his voice I had a hunch he had been waiting for me to telephone him.

"Don't you think you were very disagreeable this morning, Jerry?" I asked in my most pleasant voice.

"Perhaps I was, Judy, but you can't deny that you have an engagement with me."

"What do you mean 'have?' I told you that Joan wants me to go to the theater and when your employer wants you to do something, it must be done, mustn't it? Surely you can concede that without hurting your dignity."

"Oh, I suppose so, Judy, but why keep me dangling? You know how it is with me. You know as long as I have the slightest hope of you I can't look at another woman."

'Do you want to?" was my quick question.

"Judy, you know better than that, why do you torture me?"

"I'm not trying to torture you, Jerry, but just called you to ask you to cancel the steamer reservations. Joan has decided that she must stay here until her brother leaves on the African expedition."

"Then Meredith is really going, is he?"

"Of course he is. What made you think differently?"

"Because, Judy, my dear, I could see the moment he met you, he was just like the rest of us, a worshiper at your feet."

LOVE-LETTERS THAT MADE HISTORY

(By Joseph Kaye.)

(Copyright, McClure Syndicate.)

MOZART AND CONSTANCE WEBER

In the Mozart Museum in Salzburg, there is preserved a little book containing minuets and trios, in manuscript, by various composers. At the end of one of these pieces there is written by Mozart's father: "The preceding minuets were learned by my little Wolfgang in his fourth year." To another further on, there is inscribed: "This minuet and trio Wolfgang learned in half an hour on the day before his fifth birthday." A few pages further, there is a complete composition, written in finished style, against which is the notation: "By Wolfgang Mozart, 11th May, 1763." On the 11th of May, 1762, Mozart was six years old.

Johannes Chrysostum Wolfgangus Adadeus Mozart was the first great musical prodigy we have on record and the greatest of them all. When he was a child, his father took him and his little sister through all the capitals of Europe where he gave concerts playing the harpsichord; (the precursor of the piano) and violin, using his own compositions to a large extent. The remarkable fact about Mozart was that the promise he gave as a child was more than fulfilled in manhood. His name today is among the immortals, the most inspired, the most charming composer the world was known.

Mozart fell in love with a young singer, Aloysia Weber. She returned his love until fame came her way and turned her head to the clouds and chilled her heart. When Mozart saw in her manner one day that she no longer cared for him, he sat down at the harpsichord in her room and strummed off with well-stimulated light-heartedness a little song improvised on the moment: "I give up the girl who does not want me." Strangely, the void left by Aloysia's fickleness was soon filled by none other than her sister, Constance. Constance was of more substantial character and could better understand and appreciate Mozart. The couple grew to love one another greatly and were happily married.

Great however, as Mozart's fame had been as a child and still was in maturer years, he was desperately poor and this letter of his to Constance, from Frankfort, wither he had gone to raise money, masks his misery under his assumed cloak of light gaiety:

" .. .. .. I am as happy as a child at the thought of returning to you. If the people here could see into my heart, I should be almost ashamed. I am cold to everything, cold as ice. Were you with me, indeed then, the kind attentions I receive might perhaps give me more pleasure; but now they are lost.

"P.S.—In writing the foregoing page many tears fell on the paper. Now let us be merry. Prepare yourself: the kisses begin to fly about amazingly. Teufel! here's a crowd of them! Ah, ah! I just caught three that were delicious."

So poor were the Mozarts that it is related one winter's day the young husband and wife waltzed about in their room to keep warm, there being no fuel in the house.

Mozart's death occurred under eerie circumstances. In the summer of 1791, when he was thirty-five, he received a commission from a mysterious and dour looking stranger to write a requiem, with the condition attached that he make no attempt to discover for whom it was intended. Mozart never saw the stranger again. He suddenly felt a presentiment that this requiem was to be for himself. He set to work upon it in low spirits and before the composition was finished he was dead. The coincidence was further extended: his young life was snuffed out in the last month of that year.

The sad epilogue to the life of this genius was that his wife had not enough money to give her husband the poorest ceremony of a funeral, and he was laid to rest in a pauper's grave.

UNCLE WIGGILY

Todays' Bedtime Story

By Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY FOOLS THE FOX

(Copyright, McClure Syndicate.)

You look," said the wife of the Fox, as if you had made up your mind to do something."

I have!" barked the Fox, for in some ways he was like a dog. I have made up my mind to catch Uncle Wiggily today, and I am not coming home without him. So build a good fire, have plenty of hot water ready and we shall have nibbled rabbit ears for supper."

Mrs. Fox seemed to say something, thought her husband was not sure about it, so he inquired:

What was that about hot water?"

I said be careful you don't get in hot water instead of putting Uncle Wiggily in," answered the lady Fox. He is a very clever rabbit."

But I am smarter than he is," snarled the Fox. You don't know what a smart husband you have. If you like, you may invite Mr. and Mrs. Woozie Wolf to supper. They like rabbits. I am very smart!"

Mrs. Fox said something that sounded like: You are if I let you tell it," but, being of a sensitive nature, Mr. Fox did not stop to inquire. Off he hurried, over the fields and through the woods toward the hollow stump bungalow of the rabbit gentleman.

Hiding in the bushes, and watching his chance, the Fox saw the forty'leven little bunny boys and girls go to school. He saw Mrs. Longears start for the six and seven cent store to buy herself a new pair of diamond earrings.

Then out came Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy, the muskrat lady housekeeper. Half way down the front steps she turned back to call:

I am just going to the grocery to get a cake of soap, Uncle Wiggily. When I come back I ma going to wash the clothes, wring them in the wringer and hang them out to dry."

Hurray!" softly snarled the Fox. That means Uncle Wiggily is at home alone. Nothing could be better for my plans! I'll slink in and get him!"

So the Fox slunk in the hollow stump bungalow. That is he went on his tip toes very softly, and before Uncle Wiggily knew it, there was the bad chap standing in front of him.

Oh!" gasped the bunny gentleman. Oh, dear!"

Ha! Ha!" laughed the Fox. Yo didn't expect me; did you?"

No, I did not," truthfully answer Mr. Longears.

Well, here I am!" snapped the Fox. I'm an adventure, coming to yo instead of you having to go look for it. Ha! Ha!' And the Fox was so excited, thinking how smart he was, and how he was going to carry the bunny o to his den, that the Fox breathed hard as if he had run far.

You are quite out of breath!" politely said Uncle Wiggily. Let m get you a glass of water.

I don't mind," snickered the Fox, but I'll go to the kitchen with you t see that you don't run away."

Uncle Wiggily held out the glass of water, but before giving it to the Fox, the rabbit spilled a lot of it on the big, bushy tail of the bad chap.

Oh, I am so sorry!" cried Uncle Wiggily. I have wet your tail. But I will soon fix that."

How?" asked the Fox, who was very proud of his tail.

I will wring all the water out of it in Nurse Jane's wringer," said the wise rabbit. Here's back up and put your tail in between the rubber rollers." Which the Fox, knowing no better, did.

And as soon as his tail was between the rollers, that Fox was caught fast. For Uncle Wiggily turned the handle and the wringer went around and the Fox was as tightly held as if he was in a trap.

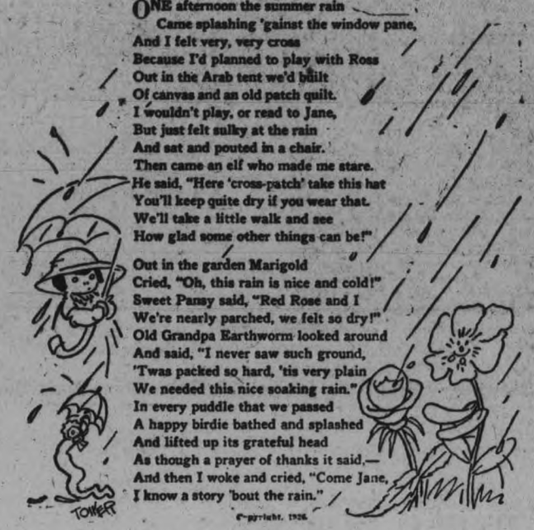
Wow! Wow! Oh, my tail! Let me go!" he howled. But, do you think Uncle Wiggily let that Fox go? No, indeed! He held his there until the Police Dog came and took the Fox to jail. The bad chap wasn't as smart as he thought, was he?

Anyhow, there were no bunny ears for supper that night, and if the spelling book isn't late for school when the blackboard eraser tries to swim in the geography ocean, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily's memory bells.

The Rain

By SHIRLEY RODMAN WILLIAMS

SO many adverse reactions we experience are the result of just not understanding, or of not having proper information about the subject. Many times I've been converted, and so have you, by education to liking things I was dead against or indifferent to. Children are much more open minded than grown-ups, so that often explanations and information about things dispell crossness and irritation. Too often we're prone to punish when it's enlightenment and a change of viewpoint a child needs.



ONE afternoon the summer rain
Came splashing 'gainst the window pane,
And I felt very, very cross
Because I'd planned to play with Ross
Out in the Arab tent we'd built
Of canvas and an old patch quilt.
I wouldn't play, or read to Jane,
But just felt sulky at the rain
And sat and pouted in a chair.
Then came an elf who made me stare.
He said, "Here 'cross-patch' take this hat
You'll keep quite dry if you wear that.
We'll take a little walk and see How glad some other things can be!"

Out in the garden Marigold
Cried, "Oh, this rain is nice and cold!"
Sweet Pansy said, "Red Rose and I
We're nearly parched, we felt so dry!"
Old Grandpa Earthworm looked around
And said, "I never saw such ground,
'Twas packed so hard, 'tis very plain
We needed this nice soaking rain."
In every puddle that we passed
A happy birdie bathed and splashed
And lifted up its grateful head
As though a prayer of thanks it said.—
And then I woke and cried, "Come Jane,
I know a story 'bout the rain."

HUFF RE-UNION AT BELLEVILLE

Descendants of United Empire Loyalists Hold Gathering.

BELLEVILLE, Ont., Sept. 10.—(Canadian Press.)—The re-union of Paul and Soloman Huff, two United Empire Loyalists, who leanded in what is now Adolphustown, Ontario, on the Bay of Quinte after the War of Independence in 1784, was held at that place a few days ago. The old church built on the Huff farm in 1792, still standing, was filled with members of the Huff family, who attended from various parts of Canada, the United States and Australia.

W. C. Mikel, K.C., former mayor of Belleville, addressed those present in the old church on the coming U.E.L. celebration to be held in 1929. This would be in pursuance of the resolution by the U.E.L. to hold a celebration every five years, to focus attention on the services and sacrifices of the United Empire Loyalists. The last re-union was in 1924, in Belleville. Picton, Napanee, Kingston, Brockville, Ottawa, Toronto, Niagara Falls, St. Catharies and Windsor, Ont., have already been mentioned as possible locations for the 1926 event.

Daily Short Story

A WIFE FOR ASA

Miss Lucy Leavitt touched her sister's shoulder. "Susan, did you notice that Asa John walked home with Mrs. Wilson's Olive tonight?"

"Yes," nodded Susan Leavitt heavily.

"Olive Wilson is only twenty, Susan."

"And Asa John is thirty-nine."

"May and December."

"Hardly that, Lucy—May and September, I should say."

"And Asa John is a confirmed old bachelor."

"Doesn't look like it if he is beauing Olive Wilson around," said Susan, and dropped off into the nap from which Lucy's gossip had aroused her.

When Asa John locked the store door that night, he looked wistfully across the village street toward the post office where a group of young people made merry over the coming of the evening mail. He did not hear Olive Wilson's laugh for she was a quiet little thing and very ladylike, so thought Asa John with the weighty judgment of his thirty-nine years.

By this time Asa John was walking slowly toward the river road and just as he stepped into the cool shadows, three women joined him with apologetic jokes and laughter—his twin sisters, Lucy and Susan, and their bosom friend, Amelia Baxter.

"You and Amelia go on ahead, Asa John, Lucy and I will come along after," said Susan. "The river certainly looks lovely tonight."

"I adore it," gushed Amelia, with an arch upward flash at Asa John's tall form. "Don't you think the river road is romantic, Asa John?"

"It has that reputation," replied Asa ponderously.

"Remember when we all went to school together?" chirped Amelia brightly. "When we came and went by this road because there was always something doing? Remember, Asa John, how you saved Mamie Wilson's life that winter when she fell through the ice and she said she was going to marry you when she grew up?"

"And Asa John told her not if he knew it," supplied Lucy.

"Humph!" said Asa John.

Susan sighed. "Well, we're all middle aged and Mamie Wilson married Ben Jones Wilson and there's Olive, their only child going to marry—a pretty creature but only twenty!"

"Olive going to be married?" shrieked Lucy. "You didn't tell me, sister."

"I want to know!" gasped Amelia Baxter.

"Who is she going to marry? Harry Lyons?" asked Lucy.

"Mamie hinted so herself—said Olive told her yesterday—that she was going to marry the nicest man in town if he'd have her!"

"That might be most anybody," commented Amelia her quick eyes on Asa John's disturbed countenance.

"I guess Mamie knows who Olive means— you know that handsome young fellow that works for Asa John?"

"Not William Norton!"

"Yes," panted Susan as she hastened to keep up with Asa John's long strides. "Don't hurry so, Asa, William is a nice boy, isn't he?"

"No one better in the whole town," said Asa John slowly and emphatically.

"There, who should know better than Asa John, when William has worked for him for two years?"

Amelia patted Asa John's gray coat sleeve. "Asa John, you know very well that William isn't the nicest man in town, don't you?"

"Humph!" grunted Asa John impolitely, while Miss Lucy and her sister clung excitedly to each other. Amelia had long cast a predatory eye upon their goodlooking bachelor brother, but she had never "pounced" on him like that before.

At the corner, where the river road swerved to join the village street, they parted, Amelia disappointedly walking on with Lucy and Susan while Asa John returned along the river road for a quiet pipe, he said.

Strolling back along the river road, Asa John Leavitt did not notice the white gleam of moonlight on the river, nor heard a whippoorwill singing heavily in some near wood. His thoughts were unhappily brooding over the absurdity of a man of his years falling in love with the brightness and youth of Olive Wilson, the daughter of his old schoolmate.

As he neared home again, people were coming out of the church. Wednesday evening prayer meeting was over and as he threaded the little groups giving greeting here and there, he saw Olive Wilson dismissing William Norton. "No, thank you, William," she was saying, "I can get home quite all right—I see Mr. Leavitt coming and he lives next door."

"So you are going to be married to William," observed Asa John at last, and he told her what he had heard. Olive burst into a trill of happy laughter.

"Of course not—I never dreamed of such a thing, William is entirely too young!"

"Too young—for you?" gasped Asa giddily.

"I was joking with mother and told her I was going to marry the nicest man in the village," Olive hesitated, "but it was a joke. The nicest man would think I was young and foolish."

Nonsense! I wish I was the nicest man!" said Asa John, boldly.

Why," stammered Olive, of course you are!"

FAMOUS DOGS FOR LOCAL SHOW

Doberman-Pinschers Have Reputation For Loyalty To Masters.

A year ago last April over two hundred armed men searched the woods and hills around Brookfield, Vermont, for an ex-convict who had escaped. Not being successful in their quest a local advertising man, who had an exceptionally well trained dog, offered his services. In less than thirty minutes the dog found the man. The criminal turned over his loaded revolver without any argument when the three men who had followed the dog took possession of him.

This dog was "Deeka," a fine specimen of that splendid breed, the Doberman-Pinscher. They are noted on the continent as being the last word in dogs. They are fine big fellows coming in two colors—dark brown and a very glossy black. Although they will fight to the death for their masters and are incorruptible as to their loyalty they are kind and gentle and are noted as the finest guardian for the home and family.

In the Dog Show which is being held next week there will be on exhibition three specimens of this noble breed. One of these dogs, "Niko von Nibelungenhort," is an imported dog from Europe and comes to Canada with a great reputation. He is one of the rare brown species. The other two are beautiful black females, one of them being a very exceptionally well trained house dog. Their names are "Mitzi von Thueringen" and "Nita von Nibelungenhort."

Mrs. J. R. Kennedy, 1673 Kingston Road, Toronto, Ontario, is the proud possessor of these rare animals. No doubt a great many dog fanciers will make up their minds to see this new breed.

SOME FINE RACES AT WOODBINE MEET

Fall Programme Full of High-Class Feature Events.

TORONTO, Sept. 10 (Canadian Press).—Packed with rich and long-established feature races is the programme for the Autumn Meeting of the Ontario Jockey Club at Woodbine Park, Toronto, from September 15 to 22 next. The Toronto Autumn Cup, $10,000 added; Hendrie Steeplechase, $7,500 added, and the Grey Stakes for two-year-olds, will provide exceptionally fine fields to attract thoroughbred lovers from all parts of the eastern half of the continent.

The Grey Stakes is one of the most attractive races on the card. The field will comprise the best juvenile of the eastern turf, among them perhaps the winner of the 1927 King's Plate. The race is a mile, with $5,000 added. The victor will generally be acclaimed the juvenile champion of 1926. Comander J. K. L. Ross, who has won the race the last five years, has only one entry this Fall—Lactamus, a brown colt by Cudgel-Milkmaid. Mrs. Livingstone will start Ever More, who has performed well this season. The Seagram Stable's colt, Sir Harry, and filly Upsetta; and the Tetratema colt, Tetra Glass, are likely to be contenders. Other notables among the 57 nominated are O. F. Burkhart's Heart Ache, and J. P. White's speedy Listerine.

A high class field is assured in the Toronto Autumn Cup, topped by Princess Doreen, "Queen of the American turf," who is entered by the Audley Farm stable. The race is a mile and a quarter. Single Foot and Canter, from J. L. Griffith; Display, Preakness winner; Harrovian, Sewickley stable; and R. L. Gerry's Peanuts are among the 33 entrants. E. F. Whitney's Joy Smoke, with a fine record this season, and Commander Ross' Wheatstick are also entered.

The 29 entrants in the Hendrie Steeplechase, which will feature the last day of the meeting, include three former winners—Thorndale, 1925; Dunk's Green, 1924, and Minata, 1922. Herriard, Jolly Roger and Rip are other good "leapers" among the entry list, which shows much quality. The race is three miles.

The Woodbine Autumn Steeplechase, $5,000 added, two miles, is on the opening day card along with the Toronto Autumn Cup. The Maple Leaf Stakes, $3,000 added, a mile and a sixteenth, is one of the features on September 16. This race is for three- and four-year-old fillies foaled in Canada, and includes such well-known racers as Jean Crest from the Cedar Crest stable; Brookdale stable's Heretrix, and J. C. Fletcher's Fairbank. The favorite will likely be Commander Ross' great, filly Tattling.

Other outstanding races to be run during the meeting are the Seagram Handicap, $3,000 added; Stanley Produce Stakes, $4,000 added, which has attracted a remarkably fine field of three-year-olds; the Ontario Jockey Club Cup, and the Durham Cup Handicap.

Flappers Ruled Out In First Trial In Big Beauty Contest Next "Miss America" To Be Girl With Brains, Say Judges

NEW YORK, Sept. 10 (Canadian Press).—Of the fifty-three girls, the contribution of as many cities to the Atlantic City contest for the selection of a new "Miss America," but fifteen remained last night in the race.

The entire fifty-three posed and pirouetted in bathing suits yesterday during the preliminary judging by a board composed of fifteen artists, sculptors and painters.

Nine of the fifteen who still remained last night were brunettes and six were blondes.

Today the judges will sit privately for the final elimination, until but two girls are left. Then they will vote upon the two and Miss Fay Lamphier, "Miss America of 1925," will count the votes as they are taken from the "Golden Apple of Paris," at a celebration in the evening.

The judging indicated that flappers will be ruled out in selecting "Miss America," and that the crown will go to the girl "who combines beauty with brains and has domestic life in view."

"Miss America," said William C. Kreitoff, one of the judges, "will be a girl of pose and mentality who is ambitious to marry and have a flock of kids."

"Faith will move mountains," M. Briand affirmed during his address. Both he and Dr. Stresemann admitted that many problems still awaited solution, but voiced the conviction that by exercise of good will and by realizing the world has had enough war, solutions could always be found.

The Germans, headed by Dr. Gustav Stresemann, Reiech Foreign Minister, solemnly walked to their seats amidst the applause of all the other delegates, many of whom were standing. Cameras clicked furiously for a minute and then M. Ninchitch began his address of welcome, which was heartily applauded.

He said the entrance of Germany marked a new stage in the universality of the League and it was a happy augury for a pacific future for the continent so terribly afflicted by war.

Speech In German.

Dr. Stresemann began his speech in slow but distinct German. It was the first time any Assembly orator had used that language.

Realizing that the disarmament of Germany stipulated in the Treaty of Versailles was proclaimed there as the precursos of general disarmament, Dr. Stresemann voiced the hope that an advance would be made in that direction, thus affording evidence of positive constructive elements in the League.

He appealed to Spain not to leave the League.

Foreign Minister Briand, of France, said a real tangible step had been taken toward a new International understanding.

"Peace is the significance of this day," he added, "particularly for Germany and France. To-day it is finished between us—no more war—no more seeking brutal bloody solutions. Away with the machine gun, cannon and rifles. The time has come for understanding and peaceful arbitration."

A FITTING ACTION.

PARIS, Sept. 10. — (Canadian Press.)—Almost at the same time that Germany was being welcomed into the League of Nations at Geneva by Briand and other Allied statesmen, plans were announced in Paris to-day for economies which will bring about a reduction in the size of the French army.

The Ministerial Council, meeting at the Elysee Palace with plenary powers, decided to reduce the number of army officers by 2,700, to cut the number of cardres (skeleton regiments) from 35,000, the 19914 figures, to 28,000, the 1904 figure, and immeditately to reduce the cavalry ranks by 7,000 horses and ultimately by 10,000, not counting 2,000 gendarmerie mounts.

Other military economies decided upon include the gradual return to the conscription of youths only upon their reaching the age of twenty-one.

SPAIN WITHDRAWS.

GENEVA, Sept. 10.—(Canadian Press.)— Official announcement of Spain's withdrawal from the League of Nations was made here to-night.

Wheat Market Firm But Gains Are Small

CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 10 (Canadian Press).—Pressure on wheat was light during early dealings today and with little commission house buying the wheat market soon developed a firm undertone with September delivery showing most strength.

After opening unchanged to a half cent higher, wheat scored moderate additional gains all around. With weather conditions improved over the belt, in that there has been an absence of rain, corn ruled steady. Starting unchanged to 3-8c up, the market later hardened. Oats followed in the wake of the other grains. Provisions strengthened in line with an upturn in hog values.

The clearing of rain clouds from the Canadian Northwest offset the strength in the Liverpool market here. Many farmers were said to be holding back their grain until after the issuance of the American and Canadian Government crop reports. One prediction was that the Canadian Government report would show a yield of not less than 350 million bushels for the three Prairie Provinces and that the report of the Winnipeg Free Press would be about 20 million bushels over that total.

Royal Bank Reports Business Satisfactory

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 10—The monthly letter of the Royal Bank of Canada for September says:

"The general course of business so far this year has been very satisfactory in practically all branches and gives much assurance as to the substantial soundness of its foundations. The tangible figures of trade and transportation as they have come in have shown general gains over the previous year. Freight car loadings between the first of January and the 14th of August, the latest available date, total 1,840,721 against 1,629,371 for the same period in 1925, increases over last year being in grain, coal, forest products, merchandise and miscellaneous freight. Bank debits to individual accounts, which constitute a good index to the volume of current business, are running well above the totals of 1925, and for the first six months of the year show a gain of more than 13 per cent.

"The major manufacturing industries have been generally on a more satisfactory level of operations. The iron and steel industry is holding up much better than last year, as the result of a renewal of railroad equipment buying and the greater activities of the agricultural implement and automobile manufacturers. The cotton textile industry has been well sustained with orders, although the volume of placing business has been affected by unsettled price conditions.

"The influence of the better agricultural purchasing power which has been felt throughout the industries has been augmented by the heavy expenditures that have been made in building and construction work, especially industrial and hydro electric developments.

"The most important factor in the business outlook at this time of the year is, of course, the agricultural situation. The grain crops in the west made a good start, but as summer advanced deficient rainfall and high temperatures inflicted some damage in parts of Saskatchewan and Alberta. The mid-August report of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics placed the probable yield of wheat at 319,960,000 bushels, which compares with last year's final estimate of 411,375,750 bushels. Since that date, however, heavy rains have been experienced practically throughout the prairie provinces, with the result that yields will be considerably in excess of the August estimate."

Industrial and Rail Stocks Weakened By Steel Report

NEW YORK, Sept. 10 (Canadian Press).—Backing and filling movements continued to characterize today's stock market, with standard industrials and rails inclined to heaviness after mid-day on the announcement of a drop of over 60,000 tons in the unfilled orders of the United States Steel Corporation last month.

After a strong opening with early gains running from 2 to 5 points, heavy liquidation of Mack Trucks caused that issue to break nearly 5 points, bringing about sympathetic reactions in low priced motors which gradually spread to other sections of the list.

Colorado Fuel was lifted to a new high, but other steels were backward. Warner Pictures soared over 7 points to a new record high.

Great Northern Preferred as added to the list of new railroad highs, but Chesapeake and Ohio and other recent favorites reacted with industrials.

NASH DEALERS MET.

Speakers Enthuse Over the Growing Popularity of Nash Car.

"The growth of the Canadian National Exhibition during recent years is another tribute to the important place that the automobile occupies in our lives to-day," says Mr. F. H. Johnston, of Dawson & Johnston, Peterborough, who has just returned from Toronto, where he attended a meeting of Nash automobile dealers.

"The streets surrounding the Exhibition grounds and every vacant lot for possibly a mile radius were pressed into service as parking space for cars. One could look for acres of cars parked just as closely together as their drivers could get them. These cars bore license marks from every province in Canada and from every state in the United States. It was no infrequent thing to see a Manitoba car parked next to a car from Texas.

"In the autmobile building alone," says Mr. Johnston, "the new cars on exhibition represented possibly $300,000. And, as usual, the automobile show was one of the most popular of all the exhibits.

"The new cars," Mr. Johnston adds, 'do not show radical changes, but the growing popularity of four-wheel brakes were everywhere apparent. Changes were more in the nature of refinements, the better cars being equipped with such mechanical improvements as oil purifiers, gasoline filters and air cleaners.

"The Nash dealers' meeting was a remarkable demonstration of the growing popularity of this quality car. There were fully three times as many in attendance as attended the Nash dealers' meeting last year.—(Advt).

Mr. Peck's Vote

Mr. Peck's vote on the 18th day of May in the House of Commons was a vote to impose $100,000.00 more of taxation per year on the people of the City of Peterborough.

Mr. Peck's vote was a vote against penny postage and in favour of the 3c rate.

Mr. Peck's vote was against the reduction of automobile duties, which means a saving of $51.00 on a Ford touring car, $65.00 on a Ford truck and other cars in proportion.

Mr. Peck's vote was against relieving one half the federal income taxpayers in this City of all their taxation.

Mr. Peck has not protested against the Conservative majority in the Senate destroying the Old Age Pension Act, which would have relieved this City and County of hundreds of thousands of dollars of taxation.

URNLEY LEADS IN STRUGGLE FOR ENGLISH SOCCER LEAGUE HONORS

Expected Matches Will Be Hardest Fought in Many Years.

LEICESTER SECOND

Indifferent Resistance of Former League Leaders Feature Present Encounters.

LONDON, Sept. 10 (Canadian Press). — The somewhat unusual picture presented by the First Division of the English Soccer League, which sees the hitherto lowly Burnley leading all-comers, followed closely by Leicester City, has invested these encounters with a curious interest thus early in the season, and the expectation is that the battle for league honors will be one of the most intense that has been carried on for many years. At the moment, one of the features of the current battle is the indifferent resistance staged by teams that were in former years veritable pillars of strength. Everton, who were a powerful aggregation prior to the war and who won the league title in 1915, have fallen away badly and this year finds them nursing four straight defeats out of four games. Aston Villa in the olden days had almost a lien on the championship, but now they also have fallen on evil times and the best they have done so far is to extract a couple of draws out of their quartette of encounters. The Wednesday, who came up from the Second Division, scrambled into the win column on Monday, when they secured a bare one-goal victory over West Ham at Sheffield. The old favorites are finding it hard to get into their stride, but their supporters console themselves with the reflection that the league has still a long way to go and that the turning point in the fortunes of their clubs is sure to come.

Huddersfield Town, the present champions, have done nothing spectacular up to now. Their sole victory was at the expense of West Bromwich, and against that they dropped a game to Birmingham and have split the points with Bury and Sunderland. On Saturday they travel to London to meet the 'Spurs at White Hart Lane. An excellent tussel is in prospect for the 'Spurs have to get back into favor with their fans on account of losing to Blackburn Rovers last Saturday and emerging with a draw to Leicester City on Monday. Tottenham started off as if they meant business, crushing both Everton and The Wednesday, but they slumped afterwards and have not yet retrieved themselves. Whether they can do so against Huddersfield or not is problematical, but they certainly owe it to their supporters to try hard.

All three London clubs are at home on Saturday, Arsenal entertaining Leicester City at Highbury and West Ham acting host to Blackburn Rovers at Upton Park. Arsenal have scarcely filled expectations, for since they were fielding practically the same eleven that brought them so well forward last season it was anticipated that they would overcome all resistance. Such has not been the case. They began the season with a rush, taking the points in turn from Derby County and Bolton Wanderers. But at Bramall Lane they ran into a snag and were completely whitewashed by Sheffield United. A return game with Bolton saw them divide the issue. Their only position tomorrow is particularly strong. Leicester City have yet to lose a game, and it is noted that they have the strongest attack in the division, having scored 15 goals in their four games as against six by Arsenal. The City, however, have not yet won away from home, their two visiting games having resulted in draws. On the other hand, Arsenal have not yet been defeated at Highbury.

West Ham should furnish an even game for Blackburn Rovers. The Hammers are never brilliant, but it is only rarely that they fail to take advantage of their home ground.

Other scheduled contests are:

Sunderland at Birmingham; Bolton Wanderers at Burnley; West Bromwich at Bury; Aston Villa at Cardiff; Derby County at Leeds; Sheffield United at Liverpool; Manchester United at Newcastle; and Everton at Sheffield (The Wednesday).

In the Second Division the early prospects are for a stout battle between Chelsea and Manchester City. The former were demoted three years ago with Middlesborough, and the later went down from the first string last season. While suffering relegation, Manchester City, however, managed to get into the finals of the English Cup. Swansea Town and Preston North End are likely to furnish strong opposition to any aspirants this season, and in Wales the eventual progress of Swansea to the First Division is confidently looked for.

The performance of Middlesborough, who have dropped three straight games, is causing alarm in the Yorkshire club's camp, for this exhibition was not expected of them. Whether they will be able to make a star at point-gathering on Saturday is quetionable. They play South Shield away from home. The latters only home game was won by 5 to 0 over Notts County, and their two others were dropped to Hull and Clapton Orient by 2 to 0 and 1 to 0 respectively. It is not thought that Middlesborough will extract much comfort at Shields.

TORONTO LOST TO ROCHESTER

Karpp Yields Seven Hits Against the Leaf Moundman's Eleven.

GAME CALLED

NEW YORK, Sept. 10 (Canadian Press).—The Toronto Leafs lost a home game to Rochester yesterday, 5 to 3. Karpp had the better of Stewart in a pitching duel, yielding seven hits against the Leaf moundsman's eleven. The first of two scheduled games was postponed because of rain.

Rain played havoc with the rest of the International schedule, causing the postponement of one game at Baltimore and the Newark-Reading contest. Jersey City won the first scheduled game from Baltimore, 6-4.

CHAMP ASSURED OF SQUARE DEAL

Involving Selection of Referee and Judges for Championship Bout.

LAST REST DAY

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 10 (Canadian Press).—Jack Dempsey has been assured of a square deal in the question involving the selection of a referee and two judges to decide his championship battle against Gene Tunney here two weeks from yesterday.

The world's heavyweight champion, it is learned, has submitted a list of six officials to Frank Wiener, chairman of the Pennsylvania State Athletic Commission, any one of whom Dempsey considers will be qualified.

The names Dempsey is reported to have submitted include Frank McCracken, Pop O'Brien, Tommy Reilly, Arthur Nolan and two others.

Chairman Weiner has informed Dempsey that the selections will be made in advance of the contest, but the choices will be kept secret until a few moments before the contestants step into the ring. Also that neither Dempsey nor Tunney will be granted any favors, and both will get a square deal.

Dempsey particularly wants the referee to be physically capable of handling a heavyweight fight, that is, he wants the third man in the ring to be nearly the size of himself and Tunney.

Another day of rest and relaxation was enjoyed by Dempsey yesterday. Just before resumption of the training grind to-day, the champion eased off more than ever. He took a little walk early in the morning, returned to camp and sunned himself on the roof of his cottage for a couple of hours. These sun baths would be quite an ordeal for the average individual. The champion steps into bathing trunks, smears himself from head to foot in pinkling brine, then lets the sun do its worst. As a result his brown skin is getting as tough as an alligator's neck.

With more of the rough and tumble element injected than has been the case in recent workouts, Gene Tunney and his sparring partners worked in six rounds between showers at Stroudsburg yesterday.

Bryan Downey, Cleveland middleweight, made his first appearance, leading off the first two rounds of the afternoon. He started in from the jump to throw hard rights at the challenger, and Tunney was kept busy rebuffing the Clevelander's fierce attack. Vidabeck boxed two more or less crafty rounds and the entertainment closed with more of tackle plays and split bucks by Mays.

YANKS BLANKET RED SOX WHILE CARDS LOOK ON

Play Last Game at Home in Championship Series.

CUBS WIN DOUBLE

St. Louis Pitching Staff Again Witness Style of Yankees.

NEW YORK, Sept. 10 (Canadian Press). — The New York Yankees ended their home stay in the championship series yesterday by blanking the Boston Red Sox, 10 to 0. The veteran, Bob Shawkey, let the tailenders of the League down with four hits. Manager Rogers Hornsby and his Cardinal pitching staff again looked over the style of the home club.

Cleveland dropped another full game behind New York when the Tigers won their second straight victory over the Indians, 3 to 1. Two bad throws by Lutzke in the first inning, combined with singles by Blue and Heilmann and a triple by Fothergill, produced all the Tiger runs. Gibson mastered the visiting Indians at every stage except in the sixth, when three singles were bunched to produce Cleveland's only run.

Chicago at home ran its winning streak to six straight by taking both games of a double-header from St. Louis by scores of 3 to 1 and 5 to 1. Both games were won by opportune hitting. Cedric Durst was spiked by Miller of the Browns during the first game and had to have three stitches put in his leg. The Browns were handicapped in the outfield. Williams was left at home because of a three-day suspension, and Rice was summoned home because of illness in his family. Pitcher Wingard played in the outer garden for the Browns.

SOCCER GAME AT NICHOLLS OVAL

Holloway Semi-final, Quakers Vs. De Laval, at Three O'clock.

The semi-final game between the Quaker Oats and the De Laval takes place on Saturday afternoon at Nicholls Oval. Kick-off at three o'clock. Referee, Alex. McKinley, who will be assisted by Charlie Fenner and Tom Stewart as neutral linesmen.

It is two weeks ago since any team played, and the soccer fans are anxious to witness the usual activity after the players' vacations that will be a great benefit to them in the ensuing games that have to be played.

The Quaker Oats eleven are anxious to get into the game so as to be fit for the Gordon Cup final in the near future, while the De Laval will trot out some new blood that will make the tussel more interesting.

A committee will collect on behalf of the players' benefit fund, and it is to be expected that a liberal response will be given.

AMERICAN WINS FIRST DAVIS CUP TENNISMATCH

Two "Bills" Beat Invaders Decisively in Opening Singles Matches.

NEED ONE VICTORY

Give United States Commanding Edge in Championship Series.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 10 (Canadian Press). — The hold of the United States on the Davis Cup, emblem of world tennis supremacy, seems secure for at least another year in the hands of her famous veterans, "Big Bill" Tilden and "Little Bill" Johnston. Holding the ramparts yesterday against the challenge of France, on the courts of the Germantown Cricket Club, the two "Bills" beat back the invaders decisively in the opening two singles matches of the challenge round.

Tilden, in one of his rampant moods, overwhelmed the "bounding Basque," Jean Borotra, ace of the French forces, in straight sets, 6-2, 6-3, 6-3, in the concluding match after Johnston, overcoming more spirited resistance, had taken the measure of the methodical stroking Rene Lacoste at 6-0, 6-4, 0-6, 6-0.

These two convincing triumphs, witnessed by a crowd of 9,000 spectators, gave the United States a commanding edge in the championship series. With only one victory out of the three remaining matches needed to clinch possession of the cup for the seventh year in a row, the United States will pin its faith in the doubles to-day upon the team captain, Richard N. Williams and Vincent Richards. Their opponents will be Henri Cochet and Jacques Brugnon, holders of the Wimbledon doubles title.

Yesterday neither Frenchman was a match for his more experienced and resourceful rival. Lacoste furnished the challengers their only ray of hope when he staged a rally that gave him the third set of his match against Johnston at love. "Little Bill" was obvibously tiring and losing the fine edge of his control at this stage of the match, but the refreshing influence of the rest between sets gave him the zest he needed to race through the fourth set and clinch the match.

Except for the third set, Johnston's powerful driving off his forehand, his skillful tactics and volleying enabled him to pierce Lacoste's defensive armor with little difficulty. The sombre-visaged French stylist called on all his versatility of stroke in an attempt to turn the tide, but he was seldom able to sustain his attack in the face of Johnston's blistering counter drives.

Tilden's devastating defeat of Borotra seemed prompted by a desire to wipe out the memory of his torrid struggle with the Basque in the Davis Cup play last year as well as to offset the defeat administered by the French ace indoors last winter. The tall titleholder smothered his opponent with an onslaught of such baffling versatility and ferocity that the French ace stood helpless and bewildered in his tracks as Tilden's drives whistled past.

Except for a brief flash or two, Borotra never scaled the brilliant heights which mark his usually colorful game. He tired rapidly in his efforts to check the American's attack, his resistance apparently being broken completely when he fell head long to the turf in the sixth game of the final set in an attempt to reach a cross-court shot.

PIRATES DIVIDE DOUBLE-HEADER WITH THE CUBS

Pirates Make Good Showing First—Lose Out in Second.

PITCHERS' DUEL

Cubs Score Four Runs in the Seventh of the Second Game.

NEW YORK, Sept. 10 (Canadian Press).—Pittsburgh and Chicago, dividing a double-header yesterday, both received slight set-backs in their efforts to catch up with the National League leaders, St. Louis and Cincinnati, who were idle. The Pirates won the first game, 2 to 1, but made a poor showing in the second contest, which they dropped to the visitors, 10 to 1.

The opening fray was a pitchers' duel, in which Bush bested Percy Jones. Three walks and an error gave Chicago their lone tally, which was driven in by Jones in the second set. In the same round the Pirates put the game in the winning column when Bush doubled down the right foul line, sending Traynor and Cronin across the plate.

Osborn finished the game, going in after Jones had been relieved by a pinch hitter in the eighth.

The champion's defence collapsed in the final game, and the Cubs had things pretty much their own way. They pounded Koupal, Yde and Mahaffey for twelve hits, while Kaufmann held the Pittsburghers to seven. Five errors were also chalked up against the Pirates.

The Cubs had their big inning in the seventh, when they scored four runs. Scott hammered out a three-baser, sending in Adams and Heathcote, and then added another run when he scored on Yde's wild pitch. Wilson accounted for the fourth marker when he singled and registered on errors by Cronin and Wright.

The hitting of Kaufmann and Wilson, each of whom made three hits and one run, featured the second game.

The Phillies at home closed their season's series with Brooklyn by losing yesterday's game by 12 to 6, after the Robins put on a nine-run rally in the final inning. Cy Williams hit successive home runs off Grimes in his first two times at bat, which gave him a feat of three consecutive homers that started with his last time at the plate in Wednesday's contest.

Runner-up to Babe Ruth for lifetime circuit swats, Williams now has a total of 292 homers to his credit. In four consecutive games in the series with the Robins, Williams banged five home runs that accounted for 11 tallies.

Five pinch hitters delivered hits for the Robins yesterday.

After tying the count with a one-run brace in the ninth, the Giants at Boston nosed out the Braves in the 11th inning, to 2, in the final game of the series. Frisch inserted a triple that scored Mueller with the winning run. Jackson hurt his leg sliding to second base in the eighth and had to be relieved by Farrell at short.

COUPLE CONFESS HEARING SHOTS

Were Near Scene of Hall-Wheeler Murder Four Years Ago.

HEARD SCREAMS.

SOMERVILLE, N.J., Sept. 10.—(Canadian Press.)—Ralph V. Gorsline and Miss Katherine Rastall, both of New Brunswick, N.J., have admitted, after a grilling of 21 1-2 hours, that they were within 300 yards of the spot at which the Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall and Mrs. Eleanor Mills were killed four years ago. Detectives announced to-day they had confessed hearing shots, voices, and a woman's screams.

Through their confessions the State is expected to secure important corroboration of the testimony of Mrs. Jane Gibson, woman pig raiser, as to what she saw on the night of the murder. Mrs. Gibson recently testified that Mrs. Hall, widow of the pastor, Willie Stevens, her brother, and Henry Carpender, their cousin, all charged with the murders, were at the scene of the murder. The trio have not yet been indicted by the Grand Jury.

WOMAN CHAMPION

Miss Joan Lacosta, woman champion driver, who, racing a mile against time, lowered her own previous mark of 1.09 3-5 by a mile in 1.05 at the auto races on the Exhibition track, Toronto, last week. She says the thrills of the track are "all in the game." She started her own career learning to navigate an airplane.

Ireland possesses the largest lake in the British Isles—Lough Neagh, with an area of 153 square miles.

For more than two years Iris Stuart posed as a magazine cover girl. Then she attracted the notice of movie people, and now she has signed a two-year contract.

FRENCH SWIMMER HAD GOOD CROSSING

George Michel, who swam across the English Channel in record time during the night, felt none the worse for his exertion except for a remaining touch of cramps. During much of the swim he suffered from sea sickness and was unable to take any food except a few pieces of sugar and some coffee and cognac.

About one hundred and fifty people gave the plucky Frenchman a warm welcome when he landed. One girl swam out some distance and accompanied him to shore.

Michel is the ninth person and the seventh man to swim the channel.

Swimming conditions were certainly good, said Michel, as he vigorously attacked a breakfast of bacon and eggs.

"When I left Gris-nez there was hardly a wind and the sea was calm. I made up my mind that I would win this time. I used an over arm stroke alternately but had a nasty jar about three o'clock in the morning when I was seized with cramp. The pain was excruciating, and I wondered whether I would have to give up, but I kept my limbs moving vigorously and the attack gradually passed. I did not feel very tired when I landed. I am glad to have beaten the German's time so handsomely."

ISSUES BEFORE THE ELECTORATE IN PETERBOROUGH

This space is contributed daily by The Examiner for discussing of the election issues by representatives of the candidates of both parties for this riding. The articles are to be kept free from personalities and will be the opinions of their respective authors, not those of The Examiner.

The Conservative Viewpoint

Prepared by the Liberal-Conservative Association of Peterborough, on behalf of E. A. Peck, the Conservative candidate.

The first is the duty of Canadians, if they want honest government, to punish a government that has been dishonest.

The second is vote for a return to straight party government, to get away from the groups that have palsied and paralysed Parliament during the past five years.

There is but one way to do these things. It is to vote against the return of Mr. Mackenzie King.

The attempts of Liberal speakers in this riding to minimize the damaging effects to their cause of the Customs scandal have been both lame and anaemic.

Yet the record of the King Government in regard to its maladministration of the Customs Department has been condemned in quarters that are, to say the least, unfriendly to the Conservative party and condemned as vigorously as ever a Conservative speaker arraigned that record.

The Toronto Globe, surely not a Conservative newspaper, says:

"The Customs scandal will live in history as one of the country's bitterest experiences. It was the failure of the Government to meet it promptly and courageously which called forth condemnation. It was this which caused the Government lack of support and it is this which gives it a foremost place in an election issue."

The Grain Growers' Guide, official organ of the Grain Growers' Association, and bitterly opposed to the Conservative tariff policy, says:

"But along came the Customs scandal. It was one of the grossest cases of maladministration ever disclosed. Mr. King lacked the backbone and courage to deal with the situation in an honorable and business-like way. He sought to whitewash the record of his colleagues. The Liberal members stood by him manfully; even the Liberal members from the prairies obeyed the party whip instead of declaring for clean, honest administration. Of course, Mr. King tells us that he will clean up the whole dirty mess, but that he proposes to go about it in his own way. But Mr. King is the type of leader who doesn't know what he is going to do to-day, to-morrow or the next day. He is the biggest load the Liberal party has to carry."

The Farmers' Sun, Mr. Duffus' friends would surely not describe as a newspaper supporter of the Conservative party. It is in fact the official organ of the United Farmers of Ontario and it says:

"Because the U.F.O. has always stood four square for clean and honest government, the U.F.O. vote will not put its sanction upon a Ministry which has been responsible for the scandals of the King Government."

The charges the Conservative party are making in this campaign are not slander, not propaganda, but fact, sworn evidence.

The plain truth is that Mr. King and his associates deserve to be punished for their recreancy to trust while in power.

For if recreancy to honesty is to go unchastised, if the public is to permit fraud to go unrebuked, then what hope is there for honest government?

Desperate effort is being made to confuse these plain facts.

There is a babel of voices and issues deliberately raised to blur the public mind.

But the times are too grave, the future too charged with solemnity for this country for the people to forget.

1. That the King Government has been proven guilty of neglect of its trust and absolute incapacity in administration.

2. That the King Government was censured by a Parliamentary committee which contained a majority of its own friends and then condemned by Parliament for conduct declared to be indefensible.

3. That that conduct took the form of a member of the King Government associating in public dealings with crooks and criminals.

4. That according to sworn uncontradicted evidence a member of the King Ministry debauched and demoralized the greatest financial department of the Government of this country.

5. That this condition of affairs was repeatedly brought to the attention of Mr. Mackenzie King, who took no effective action to remedy it.

6. That finally Mr. King dealt with his Minister most responsible by promoting him to the Senate.

7. That in consequence of this condition which Mr. King either permitted to go on or was impotent to prevent, the treasury of Canada lost tens of millions of dollars.

8. The good people of West Peterborough who wish to condemn that record will vote on Tuesday for E. A. Peck and a clean administration of public affairs.

The Conservative Victory Committee

The Liberal Viewpoint.

Prepared by the Liberal Association of Peterborough on behalf of J. J. Duffus, the Liberal candidate.

This election campaign has marked for Mr. Meighen the greatest disappointment in his public career. It is well known that he is one of those curious individuals met with occasionally who are never happy unless they are miserable. He never sees the doughnut, he always sees the hole. His disappointment in this campaign is the growing prosperity of the Dominion as a result of Liberal policies. A year ago Mr. Meighen prophesied without any equivocation the most absolute desolation for Canadian trade and commerce and blue ruin for our industries if Mackenzie King were returned to power. The result has been that Meighen stands now a discredited prophet certainly without honor in his own country.

The truth is that trade and business generally has been on the upgrade ever since Mr. King first took office, in spite of the mountain of debt he inherited from the Meighen Government in 1921. Mr. Meighen first became Prime Minister in July, 1920, and that year Canada had a favorable trade balance of $222,130,588. After one year of Mr. Meighen's rule Canada had an adverse trade balance of $29,730,763, the first time Canada showed an adverse trade balance since 1914.

Mr. King became Prime Minister in December, 1921, and in just three months Canada had a favorable trade balance of $6,122,677. In 1922 this had gone up to $142,000,000, in 1924 to $165,000,000, in 1925 to $284,000,000, and in 1926 to the huge total of $401,134,504, a record for the Dominion. In the meantime the United States' favorable balance of trade has come steadily down and Canada is far ahead of her big neighbor at the present time. In his Budget speech delivered in May, 1920, Mr. Meighen tried to demonstrate that the prosperity of the United States was due to a favorable trade balance, and he said: "Their people have become richer year by year in that they bought less than they sold to the outside world." This is the situation of Canada today due to Liberal Government. Further the Canadian dollar has most of the summer been above par in the American market, and is so today. From the standpoint of election material for Mr. Meighen, this state of things is enough to make angels weep.

The enormous increase in Canadian trade belies all the gloomy prognostications made by Mr. Meighen a year ago. No country in the world, not even the United States can show the wonderful increase in trade shown by our own Dominion. Glance over the following comparative statement for one moment:

Canada's Trade with	Exports to	Imports from
Belgium, 1926	22,706,945	6,957,668
France, 1914	3,632,444	14,276,535
France, 1926	13,952,262	19,162,420
Italy, 1914	514,660	2,090,387
Italy, 1926	12,788,653	2,596,469
Japan, 1914	1,587,467	2,604,216
Japan, 1926	34,694,862	9,564,074
China, 1914	473,074	913,262

In 1922 Canadian exports were $753,00,000. In 1926 after four years of Liberal government the exports were $1,328,000,000 (both years ending March 31st). The favorable balance of trade (i.e. net excess of exports over imports) was $6,000,000 at the end of March, 1922, and $401,000,000 at the end of March, 1926. Will Mr. Meighen explain how this could possibly take place with Mackenzie King as Prime Minister?

As might be expected, the wonderful increase in Canadian trade is reflected in the increasing prosperity of the country generally. When Meighen went out of power in 1921 business men all over the country were in the slough of despond and many were headed for the abyss of bankruptcy. Note the steady improvement shown by the official record of business failures:

Year ending March 31, 1923..... 1,725
Year ending March 31, 1924..... 1,133
Year ending, March 31, 1926..... 715

Unfortunately there is nothing in these figures to alleviate Mr. Meighen's disappointment.

The same marked improvement is shown in the position of the Canadian National Railways: Today the policy against which Mr. Meighen railed last year—the policy of Sir Henry Thornton, supported loyally by the King Government—has been triumphantly vindicated. Last year Mr. Meighen pictured the Canadian National System in a bog from which it could not be rescued while the King Government remained in office. The System was not in a bog at all. It had steadily risen out of the bog on to solid ground and a secure footing. Today Mr. Meighen's description last year is so completely falsified that he dare not repeat his jeremiads. Instead, he pretends to be the friend and guardian of the great undertaking which a year ago he would have deprived of all possibility of expansion by cutting off the supply of capital which has nourished it into health and prosperity. Does any sane man believe that the alliance of Meighen with Patenaude, the champion of the Montreal Big Interests and the sworn enemy of the C.N.R., will bring anything but disaster to the Canadian National Railways if Mr. Meighen is returned to power.

Mr. J. J. Duffus, a successful business man himself, has an abiding faith in the ultimate destiny of this country. He sees Canada now on the rising tide of prosperity and believes he can assist in her future development. "Joe" has the right vision: give him a chance.

THEATRE

AT THE CAPITOL.

If she can act as well as she can dance—oh boy!

Those were the thoughts which raced through the minds of a capacity audience at the Capitol Theatre last night when Gilda Gray's first Paramount starring vehicle, "Aloma of the South Seas" was unfolded on the screen. If you must have the truth, the only answer that can be passed along is—"And how!" Gilda made the most sophisticated film fan sit up and take notice. Every minute she was on the screen was one of keen delight. Yes sir, she's there!

"Aloma of the South Seas" was adapted by James Creeman from a play by John Hymer and LeRoy Clemens which is reputed to have had a mighty successful run. After seeing the film, one can easily understand the causes for any success it might have won.

The picture is just chuck full of all those sort of things which audiences ask for and beg to see. Firstly—it has Gilda doing the hula-hula as only Gilda can do it. That alone is worth the price of admission. But when you add a stirring love story, capable direction, gorgeous settings, and magnificent photography, what else could possibly want?

Starting out in life as a child of nature, Aloma remained that way for the rest of her life. She loved Nuitane, a handsome native and adored Bob Holden, an American. Holden's old sweetheart comes to the South Sea Isle and finds Bob about to marry Aloma, Nuitane ready to kill Bob, and everything else in an uproar.

Sylvia tells Bob that his old pal had lied to her, saying he had been killed in the army. Bob almost kills Van Templeton on hearing this news. They are both enticed into Nuitanes canoe. Crossing a shark-infested lagoon in a storm, Nuitane upsets the boat, but due to Van's confession, fights off the sharks, and is enable to save Bob. Result—Bob and Sylvia leave for San Francisco, while Aloma is left with her native lover.

"Aloma of the South Seas" is a corking picture and director Maurice Tourneur is to be very much complimented on his capable handling of the play. Percy Marmont, Warner Baxter, William Powell and Julanne Johnston are all seen to advantage.

AT THE REGENT

THE MOST EXCITING PICTURE OF THE YEAR

Go to it! "Below the Line," the Warner Bros. Classic of the Screen, at the Regent Theatre. It opened yesterday for a run of three days. And it has more excitement in it than any picture seen here this season.

Rin-Tin-Tin is the star, and the wonder dog is a real star; a consistent winner since he brightened the screen with "Where the North Begins."

Herman Raymaker is the director, and Raymaker is a real director. He proved it when he made Rin-Tin-Tin's last, "Tracked in the Snow Country.' And now he has gone and done it again with "Below the Line."

Chas. A. Logue is the author. "Below the Line" tells a real, fascinating, suspenseful story that works up up to a heart-pounding climax. And there are enough laughs and romance to please everybody. John Harron and June Marlowe supply the romance. Charles Conklin furnishes most of the comedy, and Pat Hartigan is there when it comes to creating the thrills. Rin-Tin-Tin trails along with them all, supplying romance, laughs and thrills.

First Boy In Toronto Fair Visiting Peterboro' Tuesday

A special feature for children's day at the Exhibition will be the presence of the boy who was the first person to enter the Toronto Exhibition this year. He achieved his objective only after a wait lasting several days and nights. He will arrive in Peterborough at noon next Tuesday and will be at the grounds to greet the children as they arrive.

End Political Chaos by a Meighen Majority

When Liberal speakers run out of any other argument against the Conservative party they invariably fall back upon the old cry "the big interests."

The one "big interest" that the Canadian people have to fear in this election is the big interest Mackenzie King has in obtaining office.

Mr. King of course wants office at any price.

He is in the position today where he knows he cannot win over all but he wants to have office no matter who has the power.

And so we find him studiously avoiding the assurance that he gave at Richmond Hill.

He is not telling in this campaign that he wants to be independent of the Progressives.

His assurances would be worthless if they were given—but they are not even being given.

On the contrary we find Mr. King working with Progressives and U.F.A.'s and U.F.O.'s and so-called Laborites and even with Mr. Bourassa.

WITH THEIR HELP—AND AT THEIR BIDDING—HE HOPES TO FORM A GOVERNMENT.

Does Canada want any more of that kind of a government?

Does any Canadian with a stake in this country want government by the Garlands, the Woodsworths, the Bourassas and the Heaps?

On the other hand does not every Canadian want to end the distressing and degrading conditions that have characterized parliament since 1921?

We have had five years of barter, five years of sectionalism and racialism, five years of compromise and of political blackmail.

There is but one way for the country to end such a menace.

It is to give Mr. Meighen a clear mandate over all.

MR. KING CANNOT WIN

Mr. King cannot possibly get a majority in this election.

To get a majority he would have to gain 24 seats and lose none in English-speaking Canada.

He cannot gain in Quebec.

Therefore and seeing that no body in his senses can possibly believe that Mr. King can gain 24 seats outside Quebec it is futile to talk of the Liberal party getting a clear majority.

Consequently, and putting the question upon a purely practical basis, the country must, if it wants stable government, turn to Mr. Meighen.

Mr. Meighen to get a clear majority over all needs but to gain nine seats.

Parliament would be brought back to straight party government.

WE WOULD HAVE A MINISTRY WITH A DEFINITE POLICY, THE COUNTRY WOULD KNOW WHAT THAT POLICY WAS AND THE MINISTRY WITH THE FORCE OF A MAJORITY BEHIND IT WOULD PUT THAT POLICY INTO FORCE.

We would be back to the tried British system.

1.—Mr. Meighen with a clear majority and a definite policy or

2.—The sectionalism and political blackmail of the past five years.

Let West Peterborough's answer be a decisive mandate for stable government by a rousing majority for E. A. PECK, Conservative candidate.

WEDDING BELLS.

HORSFIELD—DUNKIN.
The marriage of Miss Helen Irene Dunkin, a very popular young member of Cornwall's younger set, daughter of the late William H. Dunkin, and of Mrs. Dunkin, Sydney street, to Arthur Horsfield, son of the late George Horsfield, and of Mrs. Horsfield, Peterborough, took place quietly on Tuesday morning, August 24, at 9 o'clock at Trinity church, Cornwall, in the presence of a number of friends of the bride and groom. Rev. A. D. Floyde, Rector of the Church of the Good Shepherd, officiated. The bride, who was given away by her brother, Thomas R. Dunkin, looked very pretty and girlish in a gown of rosewood flat crepe, with black picture hat. She carried a bouquet of Sunset roses. William Beattie was best man. After the ceremony a buffet luncheon was served at the home of the bride's mother, after which the young couple left by motor on a trip to Peterborough and the Kawartha Lakes, being literally showered with good wishes and confetti before being allowed to leave. Among the guests present were Mrs. R. J. McCrodan, sister of the bride, and Katharine and Helen McCrodan, of Bellevills; Miss Jean Horsfield of Peterboro, sister of the groom; John Master of Montreal. During Mr. Horsfield's residence in Cornwall, where he is connected with the Supervisor's Department of the Canadian National Railways, he has made many friends, who join in wishing him and his bride a happy married life. —Cornwall Freeholder.

WELCOME GIVEN CHANNEL SWIMMER

Mrs. Corsan Is Received By Mayor On Return To New York.

NEW YORK, Sept. 10 (Canadian Press). — Mrs. Clemington Corson (Mille Gade), of this city, who recently swam the English Channel, returned home to-day and received a great welcome. She was received at the City Hall by Mayor Walker, following a triumphant march from the Battery through Lower Broadway.

She told reporters she made the second attempt to swim the Channel always with the two children in mind, because she knew that if she made the swim their lives would be filled with comfort and not hardships which she had faced most of her life.

She was delighted when told by an associate of Arch Selwyn, that more than 2,000 offers had been received for her services and that contracts amounting to $250,000 were in sight.

Mrs. Corson refused to consider any comparison with Trudy Ederle. In speaking of Miss Ederle's achievement, she said:

"It was marvelous that a girl of only twenty years should be able to do a thing like this. I did not believe that she could do it. But she did."

ST. CATHARINES, Sept. 10. — (Canadian Press).—Mrs. Meta Roediger, aged 50, formerly of Kitchener, but who has been living with her husband on a farm in Grantham Township, died suddenly here this morning.

Mrs. Roediger on Wednesday took what she believed to have been a headache pill, and became violently ill from apparent poisoning, death following in less than 48 hours.

Mass Meeting Hears Case For Liberalism From Four Speakers

Col. Andrew Thompson Defends Robb Budget and Expresses Resentment at Charge That Party is Disloyal to British Empire.

GORDON AND WILKIE RAP MEIGHEN.

The Grand Opera House was well filled last night when four Liberal stalwarts, Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C.; Colonel Andrew Thompson, ex-M.P., who has accompanied W. L. M. King on his Ontario tour; George Wikie, K.C., of Toronto; and the local Liberal candidate, J. J. Duffus, presented the Liberal case before the assembled electors. A pleasing variation was introduced by the appearance of Miss Pauline Detweiler, a contralto singer from Toronto, who rendered two fine solos, "Land of Hope and Glory," and "Annie Laurie."

After the first solo, J. A. O'Brien, with the grace of a courtier, presented Miss Detweiler and her accompanist, Miss Lillian Hurley, each with a bouquet of flowers. J. J. Hartley, President of West Peterborough Liberal Association, occupied the chair and introduced the speakers.

Hon. G. N. Gordon

Mr. Gordon, who spoke briefly, fastened on the statement of Hon. Hugh Guthrie at the Opera House on Wednesday, that the Customs question was the whole issue. No man was in a better position to discuss scandals than was Mr. Guthrie.

Mr. Guthrie on making a trip to the Old Country and Europe, drew $5000 from the treasury. How much of that did they think he returned? Not a two-cent postage stamp; not a penny was returned to the treasury.

An Old Evil.

Smuggling, said Mr. Gordon had been in existence since tariffs were instituted and arose from the greed of men and women, ready to break the law, in order to make money. He had been in Windsor and saw the costly home b by James Cooper, the millionaire smuggler, who with his partner, Cecil Smith, made a fortune during the Meighen administration. So that when Conservatives said smuggling prevailed only in recent times, they said what was not true. The men who broke their vows and degraded their offices, Bisaillon Wilson and Farrow, were all Conservatives, appointed by a Conservative Government.

Mr. Meighen sat . . a platform and listened while one of his followers defamed Mr. Lapointe, declaring he had taken part in a saturnalia on board the government steamer Margaret. The charges were investigated before Sir Francois Lemieux, and were proved to be absolutely without foundation. On the other hand it had since been disclosed that Mr. Meighen when in power took the Margaret off her work for a ten day cruise, with seventeen of his friends, the expenses of the trip being charged to the country.

Mr. Gordon declared that he felt he ought to apologize for speaking on such a small issue as the customs.

Mr. Meighen had never lifted a hand to stop smuggling. He had lifted his voice. It was eas. . . do that, and he did it often.

Re-Opening a Grave.

Mr. Meighen had degraded the public platform by accusing the late George Boivin of trafficking in liquor. If ever Meighen did a mean thing he did it when he attempted to defame George Boivin, who sacrificed his life on the altar of public service. Mr. Gordon called upon the electors, particularly those who were fathers and mothers, to show their resentment against the imputations of a man greedy for office, who was willing to re-open the grave of the dead man for a political advantage.

Col. Thompson.

Col. Thompson brought greetings from Hon. Mackenzie King who, he said, regretted that previously arranged engagements prevented him from coming in person to Peterborough.

In Ottawa, where he lived, he walked past the Conservative committee rooms, on which was displayed a sign bearing the words, "Bring our boys and girls home to work in Canada." That, claimed the speaker, was exactly what the Liberals were doing. The statistics at the International frontier showed that in 26 months 102,000 Canadian boys and girls had come back convinced of what they might have known before, that Canada was the fairest land on earth and offered the greatest opportunities.

No Spare Labor.

In the Ottawa Evening Journal, he read, in the news columns, not in the editorial columns, he read headlines which stated that emergency measures were being adopted to aid in the harvesting of the crops in Western Canada, and arrangements were being made to secure help from the United States, for Eastern Canada was too busy to help. For the first time, the East was too busy to help to garner the crop. Business was good under the King Government, and the Conservatives had said so many were going away that one would have thought only sufficient would have been left to act as guides to Yankee tourists who came here to shoot moose and catch salomn. Some were deceived by this talk and the Liberals lost some seats in good old Ontario which would be regained on Tuesday.

No longer did the weeping prophets and blue ruin Jeremiahs continue their doleful cry. The report of business on the C.P.R. for the first six months of the year was the best in the history of that old company. The first six months were the best the National Railways ever had. There could be no better evidence of Dominion prosperity than the returns from the railways.

The bank statements were issued not by Grits or Tories, but by the banks under the Bank Acts. The statements showed that the savings deposited were rapidly increasing.

Immigration Figures.

The immigration figures showed that more people were coming to Canada from other countries than for many years back.

When Mr. Meighen left office in 1921 the balance of trade was against Canada. Now, the favorable trade balance was 401 million dollars, the greatest favorable trade balance in the world. Meighen and his henchmen, hardly demagogues, though they were, could talk blue ruin no more in the face of these facts.

Conservatives declared the favorable trade balance was brought about by the sale of the country's natural resources. But the policy of the government in power was what made profitable the national resources. What was the good of natural resources, if they were not exploited? What was the good of mineral wealth if it remained in the bowels of the earth? What was the good of forests if the timber remained uncut?

Four Basic Industries.

The Liberal policy was to encourage the four basic industries, Agriculture, Fishing, Mining and Lumbering. These industries produced a surplus that had to be marketed in the open markets of the world in competition with the products of other countries. The costs of producing this surplus had to be low enough to enable it to be sold in the face of competition as for example the farm produce had to compete with Argentine on the European market. When the King government reduced the duties on agricultural implements a howl was raised that the Liberals were ruining the manufacturers. Industries would be closed. The government were called wreckers and economists who knew not what they did. And what happened? There were now eight thousand men employed where five thousand were employed before the duties were taken off. The financial columns of the Mail and Empire recorded the fact that the stocks of the Massey-Harris Company had taken a jump, and stocks did not jump if the company was not prospering.

The Liberal policy was good for the farmer, because it lowered his costs of production; it was good for the manufacturer for the lowered prices increased consumption; it was good for the workmen, for it did away with half time and unemployment.

"Malodorous Budget."

Mr. Meighen was a master of phrases, but sometime his love for a sonorous sentence led him into foolish utterances. In a speech recently he had spoken of the 'malodorous budget' of Mr. Robb. "Malodorous' was the equivalent of two words—bad-smelling. But to the person who found himself effecting a saving when he paid his income tax, the budget smelled well. It had the fragrance of a flower—he would name it—the forget-me-not. When a man bought his automobile at a cheaper price, the budget smelled well. Similarly when he put a two-cent stamp on a letter instead of a three-cent stamp. True, it was only one cent. But it was a sweet scent.

Refutes Disloyalty Charge

Dealing with the charge of disloyalty to the British Empire, Col. Thompson declared that as one coming from a United Empire Loyalist stock, as one who had done his little bit in the war, as a Canadian of four generations, whose heart beat warmly to Great Britain, he resented the implication that Liberals were disloyal. The British Preference instituted by W. S. Fielding in 1897 and kept and extended by Liberals down to the Robb budget, and the treaties with sister Dominions were contrasted by the speaker with what he described as the lip service to Empire of Mr. Meighen. NEW MINISTER IS INDUCTED AT TRINITY CHURCH

Rev. David Wren Is Formally Installed as Pastor at Impressive Service.

INSPIRING SERMON.

Rev. F. E. Malott Preaches —Rev. F. H. McIntosh Presides at Service.

Rev. David Wren, M.A., B.D., was inducted last night as pastor of Trinity United Church, in a ceremony that impressed upon minister and congregation the solemn nature of their relationship. Although Mr. Wren is the twenty-fourth pastor of Trinity Church, it was the first induction service held there.

The Rev. F. H. McIntosh of Lindsay, chairman of Lindsay Presbytery, was the presiding minister and conducted the induction ceremony. The Rev. J. E. Todd of George Street United Church, addressed the minister, and the Rev. J. W. Gordon of St. Andrew's United Church addressed the congregation. The sermon was preached by the Rev. F. E. Malott, D.D., of Belleville.

Mr. Malott chose as his text, 1st Cor. iii., 21-23: "Therefore let no man glory in men. For all things are yours. Whether Paul, or Apollos, or Cephas, or the world, or life, or death, or things present, or things to come; all are yours; and ye are Christ's; and Christ is God's."

The prevailingly popular conception of religion, said the speaker, is that it is something that substracts from life all that leads to joy or happiness, but the apostle indicates that it adds everything worth while. The passage quoted was not written in a very happy moment. The Corinthians, a people prone to following different philosophers, had divided even in the church on the particular preacher that they would follow, and Paul wrote to tell them that they should follow them all and get some good from each of them. One, Paul himself, was noted for his great intellectual attainments and his organizing power. Apollos was a gifted orator, very eloquent, and Cephas, or Peter, was a great emotional preacher.

"This reminds us," said Dr. Malott, "of all who have made a contribution to the Christian life. We are the heirs of the ages; of that marvellous succession of great preachers and teachers which has come down from the earliest days. Time would fail to tell of all the great men who have thrilled audiences, fired hearts, or organized church work.

"The itinerant system of the Methodist church brought twenty-three ministers to this church and each made his contribution to the church," said the speaker, expressing the hope that the pastor being inducted might have his own life and those of the congregation enriched through their association and offered freely as consecrated to God.

The wealth that Paul spoke of was not limited to the ministry, said the speaker. The world, something that could be valued, was the possession of the Christian. Appreciation of the value was not confined to the person who had the legal ownership. Appreciation of the beauty of music or art, or of the fine character of a person made them possessions. "The world is ours," he continued, "to minister to us and for us to lift up to God by sacrifice and service."

The Master came to give life, and life at its highest and fullest value was the possession of the Christian, said the speaker. Trials and sufferings were given to improve it the same as ore is tempered by fire and by working. Christianity conquers death too, making it a possession of the believer, and changing it from the end of life to the day a person becomes of age and enters into his full inheritance.

The Induction.

In conducting the induction service, the chairman of Presbytery, Rev. F. H. McIntosh of Lindsay, said that it signified that the minister belonged to the United Church as well as to the congregation to which he would minister, and the ceremony gave visibility to something already known. He said that not only was good leadership necessary but good fellowship, and wish-

Life Underwriters Make Presentation To W. G. Henderson

Banquet in Empress Hotel Honors President and Secretary of Association and Local Utilities Accountant —Inspiring Addresses On Insurance Topics.

INSURANCE COMPANIES GAIN RESPECT THROUGH ADOPTING CODE OF ETHICS

A. L. Petty of Winnipeg and E. V. Chown of Toronto, Dominion President and Secretary respectively of the Life Underwriters' Association of Canada, were the guests of honor at a banquet given by the members of the local association in the Empress Hotel last night. W.H. Boulton, President of the Peterborough Association officiated as chairman for the occasion.

The gathering was featured by a presentation made on behalf of the members by I. P. McNabb to W. George Henderson, Accountant to the Peterborough Utilities Commission, who is shortly leaving the city. Mr. Henderson's popularity with the members was demonstrated when at the conclusion of Mr. McNabb's speech, the entire party rose to its feet and sang "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow," which was followed by hearty applause.

A. L. Petty

Mr. Petty congratulated the members on the beautiful city in which they resided. He had, he said, travelled all over the Dominion and had never seen a more beautiful place.

He took his listeners back for a period of twenty years, when the Association was formed for the purpose of educating and teaching men the principles of co-operation and compromise. Twenty years ago, he declared, the insurance business was in a chaotic state. There were no ethics, rebating was rampant, misrepresentation was running wild. Conditions were so bad that even the insurance companies had no respect for their own agents. Mackenzie King At Cobourg Points To Liberal Record As Reason For Re-Election

ACCUSES MR. MEIGHEN OF TAKING $54,000,000 FROM PUBLIC TREASURY

Charges Against Members Of His Government Are Denied By Ex-Premier—Cobourg Harbor Suffered By Holding Up of Estimates, He Says.

(Examiner Correspondence.)

Ex-Premier Right Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King was accorded an enthusiastic reception during his visit to the Counties' town yesterday, speaking in the interests of W. A. Fraser, Independent-Liberal nominee, who is opposing Milton E. Maybee, Conservative candidate in the riding of Northumberland.

Some 8,000 people heard Mr. King at the meeting, held in Horse Show Park yesterday afternoon, hundreds of these standing throughout the entire time of the addresses.

A rousing ovation was the response to the introduction of Honorable Mr. King, who opened his address with words of appreciation of the very warm welcome extended to him.

Speaking in terms of the highest regard for the Liberal candidate in this campaign, he said, "I have heard Mr. Fraser described as a 'go-getter'—one who goes after something and doesn't come back empty-handed," and went on to mention the action of the Progressives, Labor party, and Independents in promising support to his administration." And I believe that measure of support will continue to be given when the House meets again."

Predicting a Liberal victory on Tuesday next, the speaker said, "Mr. Meighen can hope for no following from anyone who comes into Parliament from any one of these parties," alleging lack of confidence as the reason.

Discussing the issues of the day, the ex-Premier stated that the Liberal party is appealing to the country on its record. Coming into power at a most difficult time his administration had yet been able to bring Canada to a happy, contented, and prosperous condition.

Additions to the national debt under Mr. Meighen were referred to, "and still in three years out of four and a half we gave to the country a surplus rather than a deficit." (Applause).

Speaking of the Canadian National Railways, and the condition in which they had been when the Liberal administration came into power, Mr. King emphatically said, "Today our great national system is an asset rather than a liability."

Devoting considerable time to a discussion of the fiscal policy of his government, the favorable trade balance of $4,000,000 was emphasized, "the largest trade balance in the history of any country in the world. And I say a government which can do this should be returned to power."

Tax reductions made by the Liberal administration were given attention in detail. "We had no desire to do injury to any industry by reducing any duties, but we felt that in some cases advantage was being taken to create a monopoly, and that this was unfair. Never were our industries more prosperous than they are today." The flourishing condition of the automobile manufactures was a particular instance.

Dealing with the income tax, reductions, Mr. King created some laughter by saying, "Unfortunately our own income has not yet reached the point where I can tell whether the tax reduction has been a benefit or not, but I am quite sure that a number in your community have profited by the changes made."

"All these questions bear upon the happiness of the home," the speaker stated as he mentioned specific instances of reductions on incomes up to a certain figure thus having a direct bearing upon the establishment of new homes, and the raising of families. Reduction of the excise tax, the tax on receipts,—("It's bad enough to have to pay for a thing without having to pay for the receipt too")—and the return to penny postage, all came in for a share of attention, and appeared to command a large share of the sympathy and approval of the audience.

"Every dollar thus set free from the public treasury is usable for other expenditures, and that's how prosperity has returned to Canada."

The promise of further tax reductions at the very first session of Parliament, should the Liberal government be returned to office, brought an enthusiastic response from the listeners.

"Industry viewed in its true light is social service of the highest order," the speaker intimated as he referred in detail to the varying industries of the Dominion. "The pace at which industry is carried on to-day makes it more and more difficult to keep up with the demands of the times, and very few people of mature years are to be found employed in our factories and other industrial establishments, in this age. They cannot keep up with the pace demanded by present conditions."

Old Age Pensions.

"Yet the nation surely owes something to the men and women who have done their share of the world's work," Mr. King insisted, as he referred to the Old Age Pensions Bill, which had been lost through opposition tactics, and ridiculed Mr. Meighen's promise to call a conference and get agreement of all the provinces on this question. "If he waits to have all the provinces agree on anything, he will wait till doomsday."

Speaking scathingly of the "whisperings of scandal" being propagated throughout Canada by the Conservative leader and others of his party, the statement was made, "I venture to say that never in the history of the Dominion has there been such a campaign of slander as during the last few weeks."

The customs probe came in for a considerable share of attention, and "the difficulties incident to coping with the smuggling evil were detailed, and particularly in respect to rum-running. "That began long before the Liberals came into office, Billy," was a remark interjected from the crowd. "You're right, it did," the speaker emphatically responded.

Co-operation with the Merchants' Protective Association had been the policy of the Liberal administration, and expert detectives were hired to assist in carrying out this programme. Smuggling had been made a criminal offence by the late government, and the dismissal of Mr. Basillon, of Montreal, "a Conservative appointee to his office, and a Tory" followed immediately the needed evidence of his guilt had been secured. "The information we collected ourselves was smuggled to Mr. Stevens, and forms the basis of the charges now being made against us by our Conservative opponents."

No minority report was ever brought in, Mr. King said, and in the report that was submitted "there is not a line that reflects against the late Hon George Boivin, Minister of Customs in my government, neither is there a single charge against the administration of which I had the honor to be the head."

Some laxness in Hon. Mr. Bureau's Department was admitted, but dismissal had ensued. "Nine out of ten of those found guilty were Tories, appointees of a Tory administration and we have been blamed for all the wrong-doing."

The charges made against Hon. Ernest LaPointe were characterized as "disgraceful," as were also those of Mr. Nicholson, of debauchery in the civil service, and the recent utterances of Mr. Meighen asserting that the late Mr. Boivin was connected with liquor smuggling were condemned in scathing terms. "There is not a shadow of evidence to support what Mr. Meighen has said," and with withering scorn the speaker referred to the action of "this so-called gentleman, the Premier of the Dominion, who prefers such charges over a grave but recently closed."

"In every public school of this country, and of the Old Land, in every college and every seat of learning, there is a teaching that is fundamental, and that has come down through the centuries, "Of the dead we speak nothing but good." "I would ask Mr. Meighen to stop slandering the dead, if he can say nothing that is good, let him keep silent."

The request for dissolution and the Governor-General's refusal came in for brief reference, as did also Mr. Meighen's usurpation of power which is unparalleled in the history of this or any other country under the British Crown. Mr. King made it clear that the relation between the government and the Governor-General in Canada should be identical with the relation between the Crown and the Prime Minister in the Old Country. "Mr. King you have had your chance to carry on the government and Mr. Meighen has not. I think Mr. Meighen should also have a chance," Lord Byng had said, and "the latter seemed to think he was an umpire to decide between the two parties and say who should carry on."

"Was I wrong when I said Mr. Meighen couldn't carry on?"

(Cries of "No, No.")

A high tribute was paid to His Excellency's ideal of chivalry, but that he was mistaken in his action the speaker was convinced. "A new Governor-General is soon to be resident in Canada, and might find that a dangerous precedent has been established."

Mr. Meighen had made the Crown a party to his acts when he took six or eight of his followers, had them to sit on certain seats in the House and "told them to look like Ministers whether they were Ministers or not."

"Parliament is higher than any Prime Minister, or any party. The authority to disburse money from the national treasury without the sanction of Parliament is distinctly to be questioned."

Says Cobourg Suffered.

The estimates being thrown out because of the way Parliament was ended led Mr. King to mention that $36,000 was one item for improvements to Cobourg harbour, and this was held up, perhaps lost, through the present Prime Minister's action.

Mr. Meighen's usurpation of power for two weeks came in for severe criticism. "How much do you suppose he has taken out of the public treasury up to twelve days ago? Over $54,000,000, from the time Parliament said he should not have a single cent."

"Are you going to endorse that kind of thing? Our constitution is the safeguard of our liberties and the source of our loyalty to the British Crown." In concluding his address Hon. Mr. King asked for support of the candidate who would stand for the policy in the best interests of the Dominion at large.

Candidate Applauded.

W. A. Fraser, the Independent-Liberal candidate was greeted with prolonged applause, and cries of "Good old Bill," the band playing, "How do you do, Billy Fraser, How are you?" with apparently everyone joining in the singing. Mr. Fraser spoke briefly, outlining his proposed line of conduct if the honor of representing the riding came his way.

Sam Clarke, M.P.P., who was introduced as "the dean of the Provincial House," was also given an ovation. He remarked on the absence of the blue ruin cry in this campaign, and spoke of his recent visit to the West and the prosperity which was evident there. Predicting that Conservatives would not get eight seats in Alberta, Mr. Clarke spoke emphatically in support of the Old Age Pensions Act and added, "My objection to Mr. Meighen is that he is in the hands of the capitalists, and when my friend, Hon. Mr. Mackenzie King goes back to Ottawa as Prime Minister, as I believe he will, for God's sake remember the needs of all the people."

Colonel A. T. Thompson, K.C., of Ottawa, devoted most of his time to discussing the tax reductions of the King administration, saying that when he went to pay his income tax and found it lessened by $200 it had to him not an 'evil smell,' though Mr. Meighen had characterized the Robb budget as 'malodorous.'

The soldiers' Civil Re-Establishment and the proved loyalty of the Liberal party, notwithstanding the constant Conservative propaganda to the contrary, with some reference to the Prime Minister's Hamilton speech, were given considerable attention in the concluding portion of his address.

Progressive Support.

Mr. McCracken, President of the Progressive Association, also made a brief address advocating support of Mr. Fraser, his leader, Hon. Mr. King, and the policy which is in the best interests of the country.

Mayor McArthur, of Cobourg, delivered the address of welcome to Right Hon. William Lyon Mackenzie King immediately after the formal opening of the meeting, and the Kilties' Band headed the procession from the station to the Horse Show Park, and furnished music as required throughout the afternoon.

Dr. Robertson, of Colborne, president of the Liberal Association, was chairman.

COAL OIL STOVE STARTS BIG FIRE

Home of Aged Man Was Completely Gutted Yesterday Afternoon.

AT CAMPBELLFORD.

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 11.—A disastrous fire occurred here yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock when the house of Henry Labrush, on Nasby Street, was completely gutted. The fire originated from a coal oil stove in the pantry at the rear of the house, burning a hole in the wall near the floor and continuing on between the partitions. The whole house was a mass of fire when the firemen arrived.

Mr. Labrash, who is a very old man, was alone at the time, and the fire had gained considerable headway before it was discovered. Neighbors helped him remove some furniture from the ground floor, but everything upstairs is a total loss.

Mr. Labrash's loss is only partly covered by insurance.

Deloro defeated Barrie, 14 to 0, in the latter town yesterday. Ralph pitched high-class ball from start to finish and received perfect support. Boudreau had the longest hit of the day, a three-bagger. The Deloro infield contributed three double plays.

Burton pitched very good ball for the Westerners, but his team-mates didn't help him any, so he gave place to Dunn, a left-hander, who didn't fare much better.

Barrie plays the return game in Deloro on Wednesday.

SHOW YOUR COLOURS ALL NEXT WEEK

The Exhibition Opens Monday—Thousands of Visitors Will Be Here.

Nothing brightens up the city like a display of flags and bunting, and it is hoped that both the business and residential sections of the city will display their colors in honor of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition that opens on Monday and continues throughout the week.

The grounds, the number of exhibits, the grand stand attractions, and the midway, are better organized for this year's show than ever has been the case. All citizens in the city should be proud of the fair, and boost it whenever and wherever they can.

It is surprising how well the town looks if the flags and bunting are displayed.

Next week should be a happy and profitable one for citizens of the city, and visitors that are coming to see the Fair; and every resident should make an endeavor to see that strangers get a cordial reception and have a good time.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

GIVING ENRICHES THE SOUL

Bringing Gifts for The Tabernacle.

And they came, every one whose heart stirred him up, and every one whom his spirit made willing, and they brought the Lord's offering to the work of the tabernacle of the congregation, and for all his service, and for the holy garments.

And they came, both men and women, as many as were willing hearted, and brought bracelets, and earrings, and rings, and tablets, all jewels of gold: and every man that offered, offered an offering of gold unto the Lord.

And every man with whom was found blue, and purple, and scarlet, and fine linen, and goats' hair, and red skins of rams, and badgers' skins, brought them.

Every one that did offer an offering of silver and brass, brought the Lord's offering: and every man with whom was found shittim wood, for any work of the service brought it.

And all the women that were wise hearted did spin with their hands, and brought that which they had spun, both of blue, and of purple, and of scarlet, and of fine linen.

And still all the women whose heart stirred them up in wisdom spun goats' hair.

And the rulers brought onyx stones, and stones to be set, for the ephod, and for the breastplate:

And spice, and oil for the light, and for the anointing oil, and for the sweet incense.

The children of Israel brought a willing offering unto the Lord, every man and woman, whose heart made them willing to bring, for all manner of work, which the Lord had commanded to be made by the hand of Moses.

GIVING ENRICHES THE SOUL

The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for Sept. 12. Gifts for the Tabernacle.—Exodus 35:20-29.

By WM. E. GILROY, D. D.
Editor of The Congregationalist

We have written of the place of the tabernacle in the religion of Israel during the period of wandering and change in the quest of the promised land, and we have emphasized the need of a tabernacle in the life of every nation that would be in the way of progress and truth.

Sincere religion must always find expression and devotion to God and to the commonweal, and inevitably creates in people the impulses to give and to serve. Moses had called for an offering for the tabernacle. The list of things required are enumerated in the verses preceding our lesson, and the verses of our lesson record the response of the people to Moses' appeal. Note that the giving of the people was not perfunctory. It arose from heartfelt devotion. It was not in the nature of an unpleasant duty.

The description of the spirit in which the people gave is splendid. "And they came, every one whose heart stirred him up, and every one whom his spirit made willing, and brought Jehovah's offering, for the work of the tent of meeting, and for all the service thereof, and for the holy garments."

Willing Offerings.

We note also the emphasis upon the gifts of women as well as men. It is not always that women have had their place properly recognized in society and in the church.

The variety of the gifts is interesting. It means, apparently, that each gave the things that he or she had to give, or that were most properly associated with their resources or occupations. Not the least interesting feature of this offering is the suggestion of its relationship to the ordinary lives and services of the people. Men brought wood who were apparently skilled in working it up into the materials required for the service of worship. Women spun with their hands and made linen cloth and fabric of goats' hair. Precious stones were not neglected.

Note how many times in the few verses of the lesson is emphasized the fact that it was a willing offering and that the gifts came from the heart. Notice the references to work. These offerings were symbols of an earnest attitude on the part of the people; an evidence that their lives were touched by the largeness of the occasion and the greatness of the opportunity.

Gifts Enrich the Soul.

We are disposed too often in our gifts to the church or to great causes to assume the attitude that we are conferring a favor upon the church or upon these causes. As a matter of fact the favor is all the other way. The church has done far more for any individual than he can do for the church. We speak of giving to Christ where Christ has given unsearchable riches to us. The man or woman who has never found the joy of giving has never found the truest outlet from the narrow and sordid limits of life.

It is in giving that the soul becomes rich. It is in the devotion that is expressed by the offerings and the sanctified spirit in which they are given that makes our lives large and free.

This lesson tells of a glorious day in Israel. The people might be a wandering people in the wilderness with no settled place of abode, but they were journeying with vision in their hearts. If they had always kept the vision, how different the history of Israel might have been! It is strange that we can read of these glorious things in the past, and we can read of the failure they were associated, even with times of triumph, without finding always either the inspiration that we should have from the one or the warning that we should have from the other.

FIVE YEARS OF SERVICE.

The retirement of Col. Cockshutt after five years' tenure of the office of Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario will be regretted generally throughout the Province.

Col. Cockshutt leaves a record that will keep his successors busy.

Under his wise and democratic discharge of the duties of his office a new conception of the role of Lieutenant-Governor has been set up.

Col. Cockshutt was not satisfied with the old standards; he determined at the onset to make his office mean something to the people of this Province, and he has admirably suceeded.

At Government House—once held up to scorn as a costly white elephant—many representative people from all walks of life and from all parts of the Province have been brought into contact with each other, resulting in many cases in the ironing out of misunderstanding and distrust and in the establishment of a new basis of co-operation.

Always have Col. Cockshutt's services been at the command of the people, and the thanks of the whole Province are his as he retires from the office he has so usefully filled and so gracefully adorned.

JOINT MEETINGS.

In a number of ridings during the present campaign joint meetings have been arranged, and a noticeable increase of interest in the election has followed as a result.

There is much to be said of this form of conducting a campaign, although it has not been in vogue in this riding, where even the usual nomination day meeting is avoided.

Certainly the opportunity to hear both sides of the story told at the one meeting is a good thing for the electors.

At the same time the candidates gain through the chance it gives them to direct their arguments toward those who are usually opposed to them politically.

The average party meeting really affords little scope for missionary work; the audience is usually composed of those of the same political belief as the speakers.

Joint meetings would add spice to the campaign, and would be welcomed at least in this district as an appreciated novelty.

MAKE YOUR OWN GUESSES.

As the election campaign draws to a close the rival headquarters send out the usual optimistic stories of complete success for their respective parties.

The Liberals claim they will hold their Quebec bloc, gain substantially in Ontario, do better in the West, win a number of seats in the Maritimes, and have a majority.

The Conservative headquarters, on the other hand, delare they will make an even better showing in Ontario than in 1925, hold their Maritime seats, gain in British Columbia, add to their slender Quebec holdings, and register gains in the three Prairie Provinces, thus setting up a majority over all.

The Examiner's advice to the electors is to do your own prophesying.

You are as likely to be as right as the party prophets, inasmuch as the general apathy among the voters and the maze of propaganda and the multitude of issues that are being issued make it peculiarly difficult to size up the general situation.

Probably Canada has never seen such a quiet election, particularly when it is considered that it follows months of hectic battling in Parliament.

THE EXHIBITION.

On the eve of the Peterboro Industrial Exhibition may The Examiner be permitted once more to urge the citizens of Peterboro and district to do everything in their power to help the directors set up a new record in achievement?

This is your Exhibition; it can be made just as big as you make it.

A steady increase in the attendance figures each year will be followed by just as steady an increase in the Exhibition itself.

After all, the gate receipts are the barometer that supplies the real test of the success or otherwise of the big annual event.

No institution can carry on without financial support, and upon the extent of its support depends the growth and expansion of the Peterboro Industrial Exhibition.

This year the Exhibition has been extended to cover a whole week, more money has been expended on the prize lists, more costly attractions have been secured.

Last year's attendance was accepted as a mandate to expand the Exhibition in all directions, and the directors have acted upon that mandate, with results that will be apparent to next week's visitors.

We appeal now for community support for the Exhibition, support that will be shown in flag-adorned streets, that will be revealed unmistakably in record crowds filing through the gates.

40,000 people is the objective.

Let us put the Exhibition over the top.

Make that everybody's business next week.

SOMETHING REALLY FUNNY.

The British post-office is in hot water. A few weeks ago it was decided, in order to increase postal revenue, to give an advertising agency the right to design advertisements to be printed as stamp cancellations. An ad printed millions of times a day on envelopes, and sent to practically every home and office in the country, ought to be worth a good deal, it was figured.

But difficulties have arisen. There was an immediate roar from the public, which has not objected very strenuously to reading the slogan, "Buy British goods," across their stamps, but considers that the advertising of a private company ought to find some other medium of circulation. There was a loud yell from concerns who wanted to know if the Government intended printing on their letters the ads of their competitors. "Do your own cancelling, then," replied the post-office to these complainants. "That's your work; why should we be compelled to do it?" was their immediate reply.

Then the law yers came into the field with the argument that an envelope is the rivate property of him who mails it, and that the post-office has no right to print anything on it without the permission of the sender. To which the postal authorities replied that if they had the right to cancel stamps, they could do it in any way they pleased. And they prepared to let the contract.

There the matter rests. It looks like a pretty problem, with the House of Lords as the final arbiter. —Detroit News.

MARITIME CLAIMS.

The Maritime Provinces have been most diligent in preparing the statement of their claims and grievances before the Duncan Commission. The causes of the discontent are largely economic, consequent upon their geographical isolation from the markets of Central Canada, and their exclusion from the neighboring markets of the New England States by the high tariff wall of the United States. These causes were not created by Confederation, hence the talk of secession is irrelevant to the case. There are several things which the Maritime Provinces insist upon if their grievances are to be remedied. These are an increase of population, the development of the natural resources, ample markets for the products of the farms, the factories and the sea, a system of cheap transportation that will link them with the markets of Central Canada, and the utilization of their ports for the eastern seaborne traffic of the Dominion.

These are weighty problems. Because of these straitened conditions the population of the Maritimes has been depleted continually for more than half a century, by migration to the United States, and the exodus is still going on. Just why the stream of immigrants has passed through the Maritime Provinces and on to Western Canada, when there are splendid farm lands available on the Atlantic seaboard, has not been satisfactorily explained. It is perhaps due to the marvelous stories of progress reported from the Great Golden West, with its almost illimitable wheat fields.

Possibly also the Maritime Provinces have not been as aggressive in their efforts at colonization as the newer Provinces. However it is to be brought about, there must be such a development of these old Provinces by the sea as will retain the native population, attract new settlers, provide ample markets for all their products, and furnish a system of transportation that will remedy the present geographical and economic isolation. These are some of the problems with which the Commission on Maritime Claims has to deal, and it is to be hoped that satisfactory solutions will be found.—Brantford Expositor.

A DANGEROUS PRACTICE.

A London paper, just to hand, contains a news item that illustrates the commonness of a modern traffic condition with which Canada, Great Britain and other countries have to cope. In the London case a young man is charged with manslaughter following the death of another youth who was knocked down and killed by the accused's motor car. The defendant stated that he dimmed his headlights in deference to an approaching machine and did not see a pedestrian in the road. Suddenly something black appeared across his near-side light. It was too late to avoid a collision.

Almost every motorist has had an experience resembling this one. In most of them, fortunately, the man on the road leaps out of the way just in time, or the motorist is able to swerve his car to one side and avoid hitting the one on foot. In others, however, the impact comes, and with it the death or injury of the pedestrian and shattered nerves for the driver.

How can this type of accident be avoided? Several solutions suggest themselves. Chief among them is the desirability of pedestrians, walking on the roads at night and in the daytime, also, taking greater precaution for their own safety. Every pedestrian who must use motor roadways should walk AGAINST traffic rather than AWAY FROM it. In this way he will be continually reminded of the dangers of the road and be able to step aside when a car comes along and there is no opportunity for the driver to turn out—as is often the case when motors are passing one another. Also, no person should walk on a roadway if it is possible for him to walk anywhere else, that is if a sidewalk or footpath exists or if firm footing can be secured on the grass alongside. No matter how careful everyone may be, walking on highways is a dangerous business—for all concerned.

Another solution of the problem revealed in the English accident that has been referred to, lies in a type of headlight that will not blind oncoming drivers and that never needs to be dimmed. Ask the average motorist and he will tell you that after dimming his lights on the road, he is practically blinded for fifty or sixty seconds. It takes that long to adjust one's eyes to the comparative darkness that follows the extinguishing of bright lights and the substitution of dim ones. In that brief period much may happen—as, sad to relate, happened in the case above. Many drivers, indeed, would rather face any amount of oncoming glare than be compelled to turn off their own strong lights and blunder along for some distance until their eyes become accustomed to the change.

Night driving, even with the great strides that have been made in highway construction, refinement of motor cars, etc., is as hazardous as ever—probably more so, owing to the ever increasing number of cars on the road. The man who plays safe, therefore, is the one who avoids, as much as possible, walking on highways at night.—Border Cities Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The campaign is almost over, and you'd have to listen very attentively to hear any sighs of regret at that fact.

Put the Peterboro Exhibition over the top next week. Make it an expansion year in attendance as well as in programme.

Three Liberals and one Conservative are running in Prescott. But, as The Ottawa Journal points out, there are enough votes in the constituency to give everyone some.

Beyond a statement from Miss MacPhail that her defeat would be the people's loss, there is not much coming from the riding of South-east Grey.

CATTLE, GRAIN AND PRODUCE

Peterboro—Toronto—Montreal
Winnipeg

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, Sept. 11.—Although the total run of cattle this week was light, there was no evidence of demand exceeding supply. Packing houses were evidently well provided for the wholesale beef trade, and to carry them well over the Exhibition weeks. The market opened slow on Tuesday, following the Monday's holiday, and at no time during the week was there any rush for cattle.

Export requirements were lighter than for some weeks past, buyers taking about 500 cattle. Export heavysteers were going about 10c lower than the week before, but held steady at that decline for the balance of the week. Prices ranged from $7.50 to $7.90, with a few at $8 to $8.10. About 700 cattle will be required for the export trade next week.

Choice butcher steers and heifers held fairly steady from $7 to $7.50. Unfinished stock inclined a little easier with carry-over of from 200 to 300. In the closing market everything was cleared with slight concessions on the commonest offerings.

Fat butcher cows have held steady to a little higher at $4.50 to $5.50.

Stockers and feeders are coming in from the west daily, and there is a steady outward movement to the Ontario farms. Good feeders from $6 to $6.50 and light stockers from $4.50 to $5.50.

Calves steady, $12 to $13 for tops. Grassers, $5.50 to $6.

Hogs firm, $12.75 off cars; $11.75 f.o.b., with a premium of $2.42 per head for selects.

Lambs choice, $13 tops. Buck lambs, $10.50 to $11. Culled lambs, $9 to $10.

Sheep are steady at $3 to $8 a cwt.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Sept. 11 (Canadian Press).—The volume of export business transacted on the Montreal grain market yesterday was again very small. There was some business worked in wheat and barley. A feature of the trade was the strong undertone to the market for ocean freights owing to the good demand and somewhat limited supply available in position that are mostly sought after. Rates to the Continent were advanced 1 cent per hundred pounds to 20 1-2c per hundred pounds for heavy grain to Hamburg, and 19 1-2c per hundred pounds to Antwerp and Rotterdam, and the rates to most United Kingdom ports are also 3d. per quarter higher.

The only business of importance in the domestic market was the sale of a round lot of No. 1 Northern wheat on spot at 24c to 24 1-2c per bushel over the Winnipeg October option, c.i.f. Montreal. A moderate trade was done in car lots of oats and the tone of the market was stronger at an advance of 1-2 cent per bushel.

Owing to the weakness in the Winnipeg market for wheat, an easier feeling developed in the local market for Spring wheat grades of flour and prices were reduced 10 cents per barrel and they are now 80 cents per barrel below this date a year ago. The market was fairly active.

In sympathy with the above there was a weaker feeling in the market for winter wheat grades, but no actual change in prices was announced The volume of business was fair.

Prices for all lines of millfeed were well maintained under a good demand. The market for standard grades of rolled oats was steady with a fair trade passing.

A fairly active business was done in all grades of eggs and prices were firm. Higher prices are predicted for fresh stocks owing to the increasing scarcity of supplies. The receipts were 1,438 cases.

There was a slight improvement in the demand for butter and values were unchanged. The receipts were 2,546 packages.

An easier feeling developed in the cheese market, and prices were reduced 1-4c to 1-2c per pound. The receipts were 12,229 boxes.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Sept. 11 (Canadian Press).—Covering by shorts and a general evening up in anticipation of the American Government crop report, not due till after the close yesterday, brought a firm undertone in the wheat market. Business was quiet, however, the market moving within narrow limits. Light receipts of all grains tended to check selling. At the finish wheat was unchanged to 3-8c higher; corn was unchanged to 1 5-8c up; oats advanced 1-8 to 7-8c, and provisions rose 5 to 30c.

There was a little export business underway at the seaboard with buying of futures here by houses with eastern connection that looked like removal of hedges. Advance in ocean freight rates was said to be causing a curtailment in seaboard transactions.

Late reports from Winnipeg said that although there was an impsovement in the northwest weather, the forecast was for more rain on both sides of the line, especially in the extreme west, where, in many sections, only abont 50 per cent of wheat has been cut. Foreign news was more or less bullish, while in the northwest farmers were said to be holting back their grain with the expectation that the government reports will show a substantial falling off in the expected yield.

There was little pressure in corn and the market averaged higher with September advancing on the buying of commission houses.

There was better weather conditions over the belt with little or no rains, but temperatures were low and acting as a hindrance to maturity of the crop.

Oats held within narrow limits and averaged slightly higher with corn.

Provisions although dull were firm in sympathy with grain and an upturn in hog values.

CHICAGO CATTLE

CHICAGO, Sept. 11 (Canadian Press).—Cattle 4,000; steer trade active on meagre supplies; steady to strong; best yearlings $11; top heavy $10.90; steer run, mostly southwestern, selling at $10.15 downward to $8, with Montana grassers at $7.25 to $8.25; vealers and bulls active; most veal calves $13 to $14.

Hogs 15,000; top $14.40; bulk desirable 210 pounds downward $13.90 to $14.35; bulk 220 to 250 pound butchers $13.25 to $14.15; most 260 to 300 pound butchers $12 to $13.15; better grades packing sows under 350 pounds mostly $10.50 to $11.25; few heavies downward to $9.75 and below; bulk strong weight slaughter pigs $13 to $13.65.

Sheep 25,000; early trading fat lambs steady with Thursday; bulk western $15 to $15.25; bulk native $14 to $14.50; top to smal killers $14.90; culls strong, $10 to $11; fat ewes strong $6 to $7.25; feeder lambs steady; mostly sales $14 to $15; deck feeding ewes $5.75.

A THOUGHT FOR TODAY

THE ANSWER TO ACHIEVEMENT.

The man who makes mistakes, corrects them—the man who stumbles, then gets up again—the fellow who comes short again and again, but keeps right on trying—this man will some day win his way for the law of averages is always working.

The man who is always fearful and always too timid to try will eventually die without daring defeat or enjoying victory.

At times we reach a point when we do not know which way to turn, but we must keep moving, keep turning, keep trying.

Stop trying and you will certainly fail. Keep on trying and you will surely succeed.

Try, try again, then keep on trying, is the answer to achievement.

"NEITHER WERE"

(By The McClure Syndicate.)

In a recent newspaper report of a trial which attracted wide attention, a lawyer was quoted as saying to the jury:

"And were you not surprised that neither the complainant's brother nor her husband, both of whom must have known of this alleged arrangement between the plaintiff and the defendant, were called to testify?"

The lawyer, being presumably a man of education, should not have used "were" with "neither." He should have said: "Neither the complainant's brother nor her husband, both of whom must have known of this arrangement between the plaintiff and the defendant, was called to testify."

"Neither" means "not either, not the singula wo d and must take the singula singular word and must take the singular verb. "Were" is a plural verb.

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Sir: The whisperer is at work. I expected that. It is being stated that I offered my services to Mr. Peck for $25.00 a week, and that it is because he did not accept my offer that I turned against him. I have not turned against him. If he will denounce the Nationalist-Meighen alliance I will be only too glad to support him. It was on the supposition that he of course was a supporter of the Empire that before his nomination by the Convention I wrote him a whole-hearted letter, offering for a sum to cover my expenses, to conduct a spa r in his defence in The Examiner—a by no means easy task. I thought I was doing him a good turn. I have stated this already in my first letter in The Examiner. It is nothing new. But when Mr. Peck at the convention let the Empire take care of itself, and agreed to support the Meighen-Nationalist alliance, I withdrew my offer and began the series of letters in The Examiner.

J. H. BURNHAM.

RE J. J. DUFFUS, LIBERAL CADIDATE.

Peterborough, Ont., Sept. 9, 1926.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—We are supporting the Liberal candidate, Joe Duffus, in this campaign for the reason that we know by experience that what he goes after he gets.

Back in 1916 we had a tender into the Government for 5,000 ammunition boxes and having the stock on hand and also the employees and equipment for manufacturing we were extremely anxious that our tender be accepted by the Government, but after both of us spent about a week in Ottawa doing everything we could to land the contract, we came home on a Saturday morning and we met J. J. Duffus, who was then Mayor, and asked him if he thought he could do anything to help us land this contract. He said, I" don't know but I can try." Will you go to Ottawa? "Yes." When To-morrow, Sunday, night, on the midnight.

We both went to Ottawa with him and after spending three or four days we gave up the task and came home, but Joe said, "I am going to stick till I get it," and after we left Mr. Duffus got in touch with Sir Joseph Flavelle and explained to him how anxious he was to do something in the capacity of Mayor for the industries of Peterborough, and after explaining the matter to him, whom he believed had kind remembrances of Peterborough, he succeeded in obtaining the assistance of Sir Joseph, who told him to go on home.

Mr. Duffus returned on Saturday morning, and the happy and satisfactory result was that the Peterborough Planing Mill Co., instead of receiving an order for 5,000 boxes, it was increased to 50,000 boxes.

This is just one instance of what a man can do when he applies himself and has the determination to "put things over."

We believe if Joe Duffus is elected that he will not only do his utmost but that he will do more for Peterborough riding than any other man in this riding, and we believe it will be very much in the interests of all the people of this city and community if he is our representative during the next Parliamentary term.

Yours truly,
W. H. Baker,
W. G. Menzies,
Peterboro Planing Mill Company.

Lyrics Of Life

(By Douglas Malloch.)

MOTHER'S MAN

Mother's man is shorter than
The great, big, ordinary man,
But I am sure, if short or tall,
That doesn't matter, after all.
For Mother's man can pick up strings,
And run on errands after things,
And rake the lawn, and sweep the stairs,
And lift a lot of Mother's cares.

Mother's man can make her glad
That such a little man she had
In other ways than doing tasks:
Because, you see, a mother asks
A boy to be as good and kind
To other folks, a boy will find
In school and play a lot of ways
To gladden Mother's nights and days.

Mother's man grows year by year,
And yet his mother need not fear,
For manly boys make manly men,
And noble now are noble then.
A fellow's mother soon will be
As gray as others that you see,
And yet she knows, because she can,
Her boy will still be Mother's man.

FURTHER BONDS OF GOOD WILL PLEDGED BY LEAGUE MEMBERS

PLEDGES SUPPORT.

Pray Destiny of League Be Filled on Its Conception Basis.

GENEVA, Sept. 11 (Canadian Press).—Faith that loyal co-operation will keep Europe far from war and safe in the path of permanent peace and happiness continued last night to be the dominating note of this memorable day when Germany was received into the League of Nations with the applause of thousands.

Dr. Gustav Stresemann, the German Foreign Minister, in a striking address before the assembly, prayed that the destiny of the League of Nations be filled on the basis of its lofty conception of peace, freedom and unity, and Foreign Minister Briand of France, in moving language, pledged the support of France to policies that would thrust war aside forever.

The one outstanding feature of the day was the rather gingerly way with which both Dr. Stresemann and M. Briand approached the problem of disarmament, giving the impression that both statesmen realized that this is the most difficult problem of all confronting Europe.

Dr. Stresemann counselled "tactful work" in achieving disarmament while M. Briand practically gave notice that Europe could not shake off her heavy burden of armaments until equilibrium was restored both economically and morally and until people were convinced of their security.

Last night the statesmen of various nations are conferring on how best to treat problems still outstanding which might prove to be possible menaces to complete concord. Dr. Stresemann told newspapermen at a banquet in honor of the Council, at which he clinked glasses with M. Briand, M. Vandervelde and Sir Austen Chamberlain, that all must bear in mind that every day is not a Sunday or a holiday and that "daily effort is necessary to make peace secure."

Dr. Stresemann said that nothing in M. Briand's speech before the assembly had touched him more than the assertion that the people who had shown such heroism on the battlefield should now seek other and constructive outlets for their energy.

Sir Austen Chamberlain, warning against excessive optimism, told the German journalists last night not to forget that the path ahead is long for suspicions must be allayed and wounds of the past more fully healed.

VANCOUVER, B.C., Sept. 11.—(Canadian Press). — Replying to what he termed "personal bitter attacks directed against him by a local newspaper and imported individuals," in connection with the franking of personal mail and his connection with an oil company, Hon. H. W. Stevens, Minister of Customs, in addressing a political gathering here yesterday, declared:

"They accuse me of franking personal mail as though it were a heinous offence."

He explained that franking was a privilege extended to and enjoyed by all members of the Parliament, and "his traducers knew this as a fact," he added.

He declared that the charge of using Government stationery was equally baseless. Every member uses House of Commons' notepaper, he said.

Mr. Stevens again explained the so-called oil scandal. This was merely a bad investment such as many business men or private individual was likely to make. He did not promote the company, having started in it merely as a shareholder and afterward accepting office as a director.

CITY INCLUDED IN TRENT FILM

Party Stopped Here Long Enough To Film Beauty Spots.

TRIP COMPLETED.

Frank G. Stinson, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, gave the following statement to the Examiner to-day:

The cabin cruiser "Oriental' property of the Engineers' Department, Trent Canal Office Post Office Building, Peterborough, paused at the Government wharf, George Street, Peterborough, long enough to fuel up and to enable the filming party on board to "shoot" many pictures of the most interesting sections of this city.

A deputation, composed of Mayor Holloway, Alderman Denne, George A. Gillespie, President, Chamber of Commerce, and W. H. Bradburn, M. P.P., were on hand, and expressed interest and appreciation of the filming project along with a desire to cooperate in so far as Peterborough was concerned.

V. J. Bach, Superintendent of the Provincial Government Motion Picture Studio, Trenton, stated that the municipalities along the waterway had shown very great interest in the filming and had taken great pains to facilitate the taking of pictures.

Mr. Bach further stated that 4,000 feet of film would be taken by the time the party reached Trenton which should enable the Provincial Government and the Trent Waterway Development Association to give all due publicity to the Trent Waterway. He explained that the film would be rearranged and censored, and placed in various motion picture exchanges, thereby being made available for all of the United States and Canada.

Frank G. Stinson, secretary, Trent Waterway Development Association, in charge of the party, praised very highly the efficiency of the Trent Canal employees along the route. No unwarranted delays had been experienced and lock-keepers, bridge-tenders, had been uniformly courteous and desirous of giving good service, he said. The boat "Oriental" he characterized as a sturdy, reliable craft which would have proceeded throughout the route on schedule had it not been for unfavorable weather. Filming was impossible during rainy or cloudy weather, Mr. Bach explained. The "Oriental," like many other fine boats, originated in Peterborough, having been built some years ago by H. B. Rye proprietor of the Otonabee boat house.

Mr. Stinson regretted the fact that the only district now where fish are the "Oriental" at Swift Rapids she would be unable to proceed past Hastings, at which point W. M. Fowlds, president of the Trent Waterway Development Association, had generously offered to transport the filming party from there to Trenton, enabling them to film such places as Trent River, Healy Falls, Frankford, and others.

In the opinion of the officers of the Trent Waterway, Central Ontario may look forward to a decided increase in tourist traffic, attributable to the screen portrayal now made possible for the first time. As a matter of fact the officials pointed out that the majority of tourists like to fish, and the Trent district is about stocking our lakes and rivers. Part to be found in any quantity. Too little attention has been paid to restocking our laeks and rivers. Part of our stock in trade, the scenery, is unsurpassed, and cannot be depleted, but everyone agrees that fishing is not what it used to be.

Close to 680,000,000 fish fry have been distributed this season from the hatcheries operated by the Dominion Government. The species included pickerel salmon, trout, bass and maskinonge.

THIEVES ENTER GENERAL STORE

AT BURNBRAE.

BURNBRAE, Sept. 11.—Considerable excitement prevailed here when it was discovered that robbers had invaded Mr. Alex. Milne's general store at Menie during the early hours of Thursday morning, and escaped with over $200 worth of merchandise. Clothing, cigarettes and tobacco were among the articles taken. The thieves had broken in a window at the rear of the store and carried the loot to a car parked by the roadside. Their route could be easily discovered by a plain trail of bootlaces which they had dropped in the rush. While no trace of the culprits or no clue to their identity could be found, the local police are working on the job and the matter will undoubtedly be soon cleared up.

Better than Ever-

Following their traditional policy of constant improvement with no yearly models, Dodge Brothers, during the past eight months, have vastly bettered their motor cars in many vital respects.

Indeed, there has never been an equal period in Dodge Brothers history when so many refinements of a popular and fundamental nature have been made.

The public is registering its appreciation of this progressive industrial service by purchasing every motor car Dodge Brothers can build—in spite of the fact that Dodge Brothers production, during these months, has broken all previous records by an impressive margin.

REASONS WHY

ALL LIBERALS SHOULD VOTE FOR J. J. DUFFUS

1. Because for years he has loyally supported behind every Liberal candidate in this and neighbouring ridings.
2. Because he has been a tower of strength to the Central Executive and has freely given of his time and means to promote Liberal principles.
3. Because he was the unanimous choice of the Liberal Convention, his nomination being moved by Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C. and R. R. Hall, ex-M.P.
4. Because his election is assured if every Liberal in the riding goes to the poll and votes J. J. Duffus.
5. Because Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King will be the next Premier and it is important to have a Liberal represent this riding.
6. Because people all over Canada want the winning party to have a good working majority to ensure staple government.

And Reasons Why All Independents and many former Conservatives should Vote for J. J. DUFFUS at This Election.

1. Because the Robb Budget has already done more to lighten the burden of taxation than any legislation since Confederation.
2. Because Duffus pledges himself to bend every effort to place The Old Age Pensions Bill on the Statute Books at the very first opportunity.
3. Because Mr. Duffus believes that the Canadian National Railways should be controlled by the Railway Commission without political interference.
4. Because he is definitely in favour of giving every support to the Tariff Board that tariff matters may be adjusted up or down wherever the necessity demands in the interests of manufacturing concerns and their employees.
5. Because J. J. Duffus has shown by his record as Alderman, Mayor, President of Chamber of Commerce, President of Ontario Ploughman's Association and many other important public offices that he has the ability, energy, vision, and public spirit necessary in the important office as Federal Member of Parliament.
6. Because "Joe" is known to practically every man and woman in the riding; because he is in business which makes him familiar with both rural and urban problems; and because he is a young, clean cut, successful man who stands four square for the best elements in public life.

Mr. Roland Denne said at the Directors' Luncheon at Peterborough Industrial Exhibition, last year:

Our mail this morning brought one handsome response, an application for membership from Joe Duffus for the year 1926, with his fee of $2.00 attached and besides a cheque for $25.00 to assist the Peterborough Exhibition in a general way.

Co-operation like that is a stimulant to the Directors and a guarantee that the people are with us and want us to keep on pushing ahead from year to year."

DUFFUS IS A MAN OF ACTION

Mr. T. A. Crerar said, writing to a Peterborough citizen, Aug. 27.

Winnipeg, 27th Aug., 1926.

"I cannot see where Meighen will make any gains in the West, and I think he may well lose a few of the ten seats he now holds in the Prairies. Reports I get from Eastern Canada would seem to indicate that the Liberals will make some gains in Ontario and Maritimes, and lose none in Quebec. Personally, I think the tide is running against Meighen, and I should ot be surprised if he came back with twelve or fifteen seats less."

With kind regards and best personal good wishes, I am,

Yours sincerely,

T. A. CRERAR.

THE CONSERVATIVES CAN'T WIN

Mr. Joe Traynor Pays Tribute To Mr. J. J. Duffus.

Peterborough, Ontario,
September 11, 1926

To the Editor of The Examiner
Peterboro, Ont.

Dear Sir,—

As a ratepayer of the township of Harvey I like nearly all others in this neighborhood am supporting J. J. Duffus, the Liberal candidate, in this Election, for the reason that we know from experience that he is a man who "does things."

One day about three years ago he was out here doing business in the vicinity of Hall's Bridge or Buckhorn. The water in the lake having been raised by work carried on by the Government had flooded over the road leading north from Buckhorn, a condition which made it extremely difficult and dangerous to negotiate with either a horse drawn vehicle or motor car.

Mr. Duffus secured a photograph of an automobile coming through the water and measured the depth of it which was exactly 33 inches and immediately took the trair for Ottawa with the photograph and measurements, went into the Parliament Buildings, showed Mr. Gordon and the others interested in the Department of Public Works and succeeded in getting an appropriation sufficient to raise the road high enough that the water would not flood over it and now we have a first-class road, which before was in a very dangerous condition. No one but those who use this road know of just what value it is to us.

Our contention is that if Mr. Duffus could accomplish things like this when only a private citizen he will be able to do many such splendd turns for the people of this constituency if he is armed with the authority of the people's representative.

I unhesitatingly say that we are supporting him and will continue to support him while he is effective as the representative of this riding.

Yours very truly,

(Signed) JOE TRAYNOR.

Mr. J. Wells Fraser, President of Peterboro Chamber of Commerce, at Annual Meeting and Dinner held in Empress Hotel, April 7, 1926, said:

"I want to refer to the efforts of Mr. J. J. Duffus, now Vice-President of the Ontario Associated Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce in the Province of Ontario, who has been our representative at the Annual Conventions of the Associated Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce for a number of years past, which Conventions he attended almost entirely at his own expense.

When Joe Duffus represents Peterborough Chamber of Commerce at these Conventions we always know that he is on the job and that Peterborough is kept on the map and that our interests are looked after. Peterborough Chamber of Commerce owes a great deal to Mr. Duffus and we hope that he will always continue to use his energy assisting our Organization."

DUFFUS IS A MAN OF ACTION

Mr. J. J. DUFFUS himself promises:

I will continue to keep in touch with industrial, agricultural and business conditions and use my utmost endeavours, to further their interests, as well as the interests of all those connected with these, by making a thorough study of all tariff matters and giving the Tariff Board all the help I may be able from time to time to adjust the tariff in a way that will foster manufacturing and at the same time lighten taxation upon the necessities of life, which is so essential to the welfare of the great masses of the people.

W. H. Baker and W. G. Menzies citizens and manufacturers of Peterborough, say:

Peterborough, Ont.,
Sept. 9, 1926.

To the Editor of The Examiner,
Peterborough, Ont.

Dear Sir:—

RE: JOE DUFFUS.

We are supporting the Liberal candidate, Joe Duffus, in this campaign for the reason that we know by experience that what he goes after he gets.

Back in 1916 we had a tender into the Government for 5,000 ammunition boxes, and having the stock on hand and also the employees and equipment for manufacturing, we were extremely anxious that our tender be accepted by the Government, but after both of us spent about a week in Ottawa doing everything we could to land the contract, we came home on a Saturday morning, and we met J. J. Duffus, who was then Mayor, and asked him if he thought he could do anything to help us land this contract. He said, "I don't know, but I can try." Will you go to Ottawa? "Yes." When? Tomorrow, Sunday, night on the midnight.

We both went to Ottawa with him, and after spending three or four days, we gave up the task and came home, but Joe stayed. "I am going to stick till I get it," and after we left Mr. Duffus got in touch with Sir Joseph Flavelle and explained to him how anxious he was to do something in the capacity of Mayor for the industries of Peterborough, and after explaining the matter to him, whom he believed had kind remembrances of Peterborough, he succeeded in obtaining the assistance of Sir Joseph, who told him to go on home.

Mr. Duffus returned on Saturday morning, and the happy and satisfactory result was that the Peterborough Planing Mill Co., instead of receiving an order for 5,000 boxes, it was increased to 50,000 boxes.

This is just one instance of what a man can do when he applies himself and has the determination to "put things over."

We believe if Joe Duffus is elected that he will not only do his utmost but that he will do more for Peterborough riding than any other man in this riding, and we believe it will be very much in the interests of all the people of this city and community if he is our representative during the next Parliamentary term.

Yours truly,

(Signed) W. H. BAKER, W. G. MENZIES.

PLANE BUILDING GAINS IN FRANCE

Many of Airships Constructed Being Sold to Foreign Countries.

ARMY USES MANY

PARIS, Sept. 11.—French airplane manufacturers delivered 1,622 machines during 1925, according to their statements. Of this number, 954 went to the French army, 461 to foreign Governments, 189 to the French navy, and 18 to the colonies.

This represents an increase in business over 1924 of 180 machines. In that year total production was 1,442 planes, distributed 1,196 to the army, 169 to the navy, 59 to foreign Governments, and 18 to the colonies.

This increase in foreign business was the most significant development during the year. Sales were made to 28 foreign Governments. Receipts from this source exceeded 265,000,000 francs during 1925, compared to 4,710,000 francs in 1922, which reveals the extraordinary growth in foreign sales.

It is impossible to translate these sums into dollars accurately because of the wide fluctuation of the franc over the period. The buying power of the franc is also greater than its value expressed in gold currency. But even considering that the sum is an understatement, foreign sales of French airplanes last year amounted to approximately $13,500,000, which is not an inconsiderable figure.

Hold Most of Records.

The season for the prosperous foreign business, according to the French themselves, is the increasing prestige enjoyed by French airplanes as result of the fact that they hold practically all of the world's records, except those for seaplanes and dirigibles. French airplanes are in the air constantly attempting to beat existing marks or making spectacular flights in all parts of the world. No airplanes are so well advertised.

The fact remains that they are probably the best machines in the world in their classes. At least no other machines match their performances. This probably can be attributed to the intense manner in which the French pursue research. Planes are not built by rule of thumb, but are worked out in detail in the laboratories at Issy, Saint-Cyr and Eiffel, where special apparatus permits designing under scientific conditions.

There might be a lesson in this for American builders. Much has been heard lately of airplane factory promotion and cross country tours, but little of projects to provide the technical equipment and staffs to build better planes. And after all the whole success or failure of commercial aviation rest on the performance of airplanes. American builders will never be able to produce airplanes to match those manufactured in Germany, France, Holland and England until they begin to work as hard as these builders to master principles of the new science of aviation.

Turn To All-Metal.

French engineers are now devoting most of their efforts to perfecting all-metal construction. They are working to overcome the problems presented in stamping, welding and riveting the thin sheets of alloy used in such machines, in addition to studying design. All-metal planes have been built by Breguet, Dewoitine, Latecoere, S. I. M. B., Schneider and others. Effort is also being made to obtain alloys which will remain unaffected by the salts in seawater, so that metal construction will be more practicable for seaplanes.

An interesting series of experiments is being carried on relative to the behavior of cylinders revolving in currents of air. These are based on the Magnus theory of physics which states that under certain conditions of rotation a vacuum is established beside the cylinder which can be utilized for propulsion. The Flettner rotorship which crossed the Atlantic operated under this principle. Whether the French hope to be able to drive airplanes by such force, or whether they plan merely to use it in design of wings or fuselages is not known. No results have been announced.

Much work is also being done on aerial photography, metals for motors, fabrics for balloons and wing coverings, streamlined forms for radiators, struts, braces, and the like, and engine fuels.

While most attention is being devoted to metal construction, wood has not been abandoned. French builders have many customers who prefer wood because repairs can be made easier.

When a new machine is ready, its trials are held at Villacoublay, if it is a land plane, and at Saint-Raphael, if a seaplane. Apparatus exists at both places for testing speed, lifting capacity, power and endurance of motors.

During the middle of last year the Government tested out 13 different types of single-seater pursuit planes, submitted by six different builders. One of the qualities sought was interchangeability among Hispano, Lorraine, Rhone and Jupiter motors of from 400 to 500-horsepower, to make the air service more flexible than is possible when only one type of motor can be used in a plane. The results have not been announced, and probably will not be as it was a contest of military planes.

Best Scout Plane.

Tests during the year revealed the Bregfiuet Model 19 as the best available scout plane. Attempts are being made to adapt it to take more than one type of motor. Potez, Caudron and Decamps also have scout models under consideration.

The Government is now trying out several types of bombers, namely, Farman, Liore, Potez, Latecoere and S. E. C. M. They are of one, two and three-motor types, ranging in total horsepower from 600 to 900. A 1,600-horsepower Farman is also under test and 800-horsepower machines built by S. E. C. M. and Dyle and Bacalan will soon be ready for trials.

Most of the Government's effort during this year is being concentrated on bombers and multi-place machines, last year being devoted principally to pursuit planes.

The French navy is testing many types of seaplanes. The 1925 competition resulted in purchases of Villiers and Levasseur two-seater pursuit planes, which were the makes most successful. Biche single-seaters are standard for 1926. Eleven models of observation and scouting planes are now under test or construction. Latham and Romano planes, each of 230-horsepower, designed to be launched by catapults, are receiving the most attention.

Aid Submarines.

The Besson machine for service with submarines passed in tests successfully and several are expected to be built for service with the fleet. Farman-Jupiter and Levasseur are now standard as light bombarders, each powered with 600-horsepower Renault engines. In the heavier class, 1,600-horsepower Lathams are being used, with a new type of Dyle and Bacalan under construction. Most of these types have detachable floats so that the machines can be used with the army as well as the navy.

Several new types of commercial planes were brought out during the last year, among which might be mentioned the following:

Latecoere, Dewoitine and Breguet mail planes; Schreck, Liore, C. A. M. S., Meteore, Liore, Penhoet and Besson seaplanes. These range in size from single-motored planes to the huge Penhoet with five motors each of 420-horsepower. Results of the trials of the latter plane have not been published.

The most important new motors brought out this last year were the Farman, 600-horsepower; Lorraine, 600; and Renault, 230. Improvements were made during the year on others. The Renault 480-horsepower was raised to 530; Hispano 450 to 500; and the compression increased on the Rhone 420, and Hispano 400.

Not Prosperous.

Despite the large foreign and domestic business, French airplane manufacturers have not been too prosperous. The chief cause seems to be the instability of the business. Machines are being constantly improved, and it is impossible to put a model in production and turn out many of the same type. No settled business is possible under such conditions.

The Government has been urging the airplane manufacturers to take on sidelines of some kind to help make their business pay, but so far few of them have followed the advice. The Government has succeeded in persuading some of the weaker conditions to combine and pool their assets.

Attempt has been made to scatter the plants through the Provinces, but without success, due it is alleged, to the impossibility of obtaining in the Provinces the special skilled labor necessary to airplane manufacture. It is desired to remove the plants from the Paris area because in event of a surprise attack it might be possible to put all of the French aviation industry out of business with one blow.

WOMEN'S INSTITUTE DISPLAYS ITS WORK

Most of Provinces Show Their Arts at Toronto Exhibition.

TORONTO, Sept. 11 (Canadian Prtss).—One of the exhibits which attracted visitors from every part of Canada, at the Canadian National Exhibition, was that of the Federated Women's Institutes of Canada. This exhibit was assembled from all provinces, with the exception, this year, of Saskatchewan and Prince Edward Island. It consisted of booths in charge of speakers and demonstrators, who had brought with them many displays of flowers, vegetables, canned goods, dairy and poultry products, also photographs, etc., depicting the resources, industries and life in their various provinces.

There was also an exhibit from the English and Scotch Institute, showing such handicraft work as furs made from rabbit skins, smocking, toys and needlework of all kinds.

A feature of the exhibit was a daily luncheon when the food served was provided by the individual provinces, but prepared and served by the Department of Agriculture, Ontario, on the balcony of the Women's Building, overlooking the sparkling waters of Lake Ontario. Each day the products of the province featured that day, were used in demonstration by Mrs. H. M. Aitken, director of the Women's Institutes section of the Women's Building, in "Canada's Kitchen."

Another feature was a booth depicting by posters the practical community work. The first prize in this connection went to Lumley, B.C.; the second to Roblin, Man., while there were three third prizes awarded to eBaver Mines, Hardisty, Alta., and Barrie, Ont.

British Columbia booth, in charge of Mrs. William Rutherford, of Nelson, was a bower of beauty, its chief display being eight varieties of everlasting flowers arranged in baskets. Other exhibits included many kinds of jelly, preserves, jams, etc., made from B.C. cherries. There were vegetable and flower seeds with slides showing how they are grown for commercial use.

Alberta, the "Land of Plenty," was depicted by exhibits of canned meats, pickles, vegetables, fruit sent by the Women's Institutes all over the province, set up with a background of sheaves of grain. Alberta eggs, butter, sugar, etc., were used every day in the demonstrations of egg cookery given by Mrs. J. MacGregor Smith of Edmonton, who was in charge of this booth.

Manitoba's exhibit was in charge of N. Y. Mackay and had as a background miniature elevators filled with wheat, boxes of poultry products, and pictures of fine farm homes. The demonstration work was in charge of Mrs. W. H. Beachell of Rosser, Man., who had a team of three girls, Pearl Mulligan, Marig Winther and Frances Steeves as assistants. These girls told of the rich resources of the province; the fur, fisheries, mining, water-power, manufacturing and agricultural industries. They also gave illustrated talks on the socializing influence of the Women's Institutes, the welcoming of a new settler with a hamper, matters of health, education, child welfare, etc.

Ontario's part in this exhibit was a very large one, directed by Mrs. H. M. Aitken of Beaton. Each morning there were demonstrations in sewing out under the trees, each class being complete in itself and material of workmanship being supplied. Other features were a demonstration of setting up a simple playground equipment by two larger boys for the younger children; an illustrated talk by Miss MacDonald on "What Women Buy"; a parade of the best 20 dresses that "Anne wears to school," by living models, the dresses having been made by Women Institute members; a competition among the Jumor W.I.'s for the preparation and serving of afternoon refreshments for 20 people, and a pageant of pioneering days of '37, by the Islington, Port Credit and Meadowvale W.I's.

Quebec sent an excellent exhibit of work of girls from 6 to 18 years of age. This included dresses, lingerie, aprons, household linens, quilts, mats, knitted goods, etc. Other products of this province shown were well known Quebec cheeses, asbestos in its natural state on to the various stages of manufacture. Demonstration of maple sugar recipes were given. Miss Hazel McCain was in charge of this.

New Brunswick sent an exhibit portraying the game and products of her forests. This showed how the Indians got their living from the forest and how this could be done today. There were displayed varieties of woods, maple products, baskets, furs, etc. There were also game heads—moose and bear, representing the animal life of New Brunswick forests. This booth was in charge of Mrs. Alexander Ogilvie, of Woodstock, N.B.

Nova Scotias exhibit was a very artistic one. In consisted of a model ship "W.I.N.S.' which interpreted is Women's Institute of Nova Scotia. The ship was one of the old-fashioned square-rigged types and its sails were labelled with the activities of the women's institutes' standing committees, such as home economics, health, legislation, agriculture, home industries, school lunches, child welfare, community work, charity, etc. Miss H. MacDougall of Truro was in charge.

FIRE DANGER GREAT WHEN RANGERS OFF

Spring and Fall, When Service Disorganized, Worst Times.

OTTAWA, Ont., Sept. 11 (Canadian Press) — Experienced foresters declare that the period of greatest danger to Canadian forests from fire in in the spring before the fire-fighting forces are effectively organized and in the fall after the ranging staff has been taken off, says an announcement by the Canadian Forestry Association. A short time ago rangers were placed on only in the spring and taken off in the fall, by the calender, regardless of the weather conditions prevailing. This unfortunate practice resulted from a misconception of the value of young growth, a mistaken idea of "limitless forests," when only the burn- of mature timber was cause for concern.

Fall fire hazards include, along with increasingly dangerous ground conditions due to dead leaves and bracken, the clearing of his land by the settler and the coming of the hunter into the woods for his annual sport. Until such time as all danger from these sources is over the field staff of the ranging service cry out for "emergency forces." A co-operative arrangement with the weather bureau and field staff augmented by data from weather stations distributed over the entire field, whereby the relatives fire hazard at any given time for each fire district is forecasted, "forewarned is fore-armed."

The Wonderful Story of the Whippet

How the Vision of One Man revolutionized the entire trend of Motor Car Design

JUST two months ago the Whippet—combining the most advanced European and American engineering thought—made its first appearance on the streets and highways of Canada. Its instantaneous success—and the remarkable interest shown in the new engineering era it forecasts—is the greatest single tribute ever paid to the vision of any one man in automobile history. The international ovation given the Whippet marks the climaxing achievement of a modern engineering program laid out by John N. Willys in 1922.

An Engineering Triumph

In one complete line of cars, covering the buying needs of every family, he has now incorporated the most advanced principles of European design—the highest standard of quality—the final word in modern efficiency.

For the benefit of the automobile buying public, he has incorporated in these new-type cars all of the great accomplishments which European engineers have brought about unhampered by mass production.

John N. Willys was the first great American automobile manufacturer to recognize why most of the outstanding developments in automobile design, year after year, were coming from Europe.

The New Trend

He saw that the absence of mass production, coupled with a highly developed apprenticeship system, made possible constant experiment and constant improvement. He saw that the high cost of gasoline and high taxes were forcing European development along lines of intense economy, while American manufacturers were struggling with huge volume of standardized models whose design has been little changed since the war.

Four years ago he set out with a definite plan to revolutionize Willys-Overland automobiles along these modern lines.

And now the introduction of the Whippet is a matter of history.

Spurred on by its great success other manufacturers will doubtless attempt to come out with Whippet-type cars.

But remember this one important fact we pointed out to you in our first announcement 2 months ago.

It took the Willys-Overland engineers, in Europe and America, four years to design and build the Whippet.

A big car with little wheels is still a big car. It lacks those things which make the Whippet the most economical of all cars to own—the safest and by far the most thrilling of all light cars to drive.

So do not expect Whippet advantages in any other light car.

Today the Whippet—and the Whippet alone—offers you these unique engineering attainments

35 miles on a gallon of gasoline—55 miles an hour. Acceleration, 5 to 30 miles in 13 seconds. Four-wheel brakes (for the first time national standard equipment on any light car)—stops in 2 car lengths from 25 miles an hour.

Easiest of all cars to park—turns in a 34 foot circle. Only 5 feet 8 inches high—lower gravity centre—greater safety.

European-type body—smaller external dimensions with more leg room than any other Four-Cylinder light car.

Complete symmetry of design has been achieved with compact external dimensions.

Compared with contemporary, big, bulky cars the Overland Whippet appears smarter and much more graceful. That's because height and length are in true artistic proportion.

A Notable Difference

In the Overland Whippet you have the feeling of riding closer to the ground—with the resultant sense of solidity and absence of that sidesway so noticeable in the conventional type of car. That high-up-in-the-air feeling is gone—here is a new kind of riding comfort. Step into this car and you will be surprised to find so much spacious room.

In every respect it is entirely different from all other light cars being built to-day.

In Europe, people are accustomed to paying $1,500 to $1,800 for a car of this size and quality. Yet today, because of the tremendous manufacturing facilities of Willys-Overland, it sells in Canada for practically half this price. The Whippet is available in Coach, Coupe, and Touring Models.

You owe it to yourself to see this amazing, new-type car before buying an automobile today.

DID MACKENZIE KING FULFIL PROMISES OF 1921 ELECTION

ERAL SPEAKERS.

E. A. Peck Discussed Migration To States and Old Age Pensions.

A most enthusiastic rally was held by the Conservative candidate, E. A. Peck at Stewart's Hall last night. L. Stewart acted as chairman and the speakers of the evening were the candidate, Lt.-Col. C. H. Ackerman, G. F. Strickland and V. J. McElderry.

C. H. Ackerman, the first speaker, dwelt with the question of whether the Hon. Mackenzie King had fulfilled the promises which he made during the election of 1921. "It is little wonder that the situation today is chaotic as there are five parties seeking to be represented in the house ,each has its propaganda but on reading the leaders' speeches you will find that the policy preached by Hon. Arthur Meighen in the campaign of 1921 were the same as the policy advocated today by the Prime Minister of Canada. He has no change, for he has not found it necessary to adopt a policy for each section of Canada," said the speaker.

The two qualities that are admired in a man are courage and honesty and those present were asked, especially the Progressives, if in their opinion in the last session Mackenzie King did justice to all parts of Canada. In the customs department Mr. King knew what was going on and he did not do anything to remedy it for two years; in acting thus he brought the responsibility upon himself. In the matter of courage Mr. Meighen is found running in the constituency of Portage La Prairie, but Mr. King goes to Prince Albert, fearing to stand in North York. In closing the speaker said that the Conservative party could not be called unreasonable when it is afraid of the manner in which Mr. King is leading the country towards the United States for one has only to read the comments in the American press.

G. F. Strickland.

The speaker dwelt at some length with the attitude taken by Hon. G. N. Gordon when he was up in Western Ontario lately criticizing Dr. Morand for not having a portfolio. The issue of this election was the record of the King Government and that record includes the administration of the customs department so every Liberal candidate takes upon himself the odium of the Liberal party. It makes no difference what they say they will do if they are elected, the whole question is whether the people of Canada are willing to entrust to a party the task of cleaning up such a scandal as arose when they were administering the affairs of the country.

E. A. Peck.

The issues that the candidate dwelt with were the protection to industry, emigration to the States, Customs scandal, and old age pensions.

In the last election the speaker had advocated the great need of a remedy to help the slacking up in factories and to keep the large numbers of young people in Canada who were flocking to the States and the same issues are before the people to-day. In the last house Mr. King was able to form some arrangement with the Progressive party so as to carry on most of the session, but this group who with the exception of two came from the West were not able to support Mr. King when the report of the Custom. scandal was made in the house and they were dividing on a motion of want of confidence. The Hudson Bay railway was promised to be completed and a rural credit bill was also introduced along with the old age pension bill which the Liberal party has been charging the Conservatives with preventing," the facts are said the speaker. "I am in favor of relief for the old people who need it and there was no opposition on the part of the Conservative members in the house but when it reached the senate it was thrown out because the provinces had not been consulted." In discussing the budget the speaker was unable to see where it could be called a budget for the masses for only one in forty used to pay income taxes and now the reduction cuts off half that number, the taking off of the sales tax on autos only effects those who want to buy cars, for those who have cars to turn in find that the second hand cars have dropped proportionately. The only real benefit concluded the speaker, was the reduction in postage and this again benefitted the business man more than anyone else.

V. J. McElderry.

Mackenzie King was criticized for his leanings towards the United States and towards an amalgamation with that country but the speaker made it plain that it was not the majority of the Liberal party that favored such but there was an element at the top of the party and that element was the leader man who has lived in the States and attended universities there. This country needs, continued the speaker, a party which stands for Canada and for Canadians and which will do its best to have this land a country for ourselves. The constitutoinal question was referred to as a dead issue in the campaign now, for the people are not hearing about it and in most places it is not being mentioned on the platform.

WORST BLOW EVER STRUCK AT EMPIRE UNITY DECLARE LIBERAL SOLDIER CANDIDATES OF MR. MEIGHEN'S BID-FOR-BAGOT SPEECH

LIEUT. COL. A. T. HUNTER. CAPT. FRED. H. JOHNSTON M.C. and bar. CAPT. (DR.) A. SMIRLE LAWSON.

No British Subject Who Has Made or Is Willing to Make Sacrifices for the Empire Can Palliate or Ignore the Continuing Evil That Must Arise From the Entirely Mischievous Proposal in That Hamilton Speech, Says Soldier Manifesto

"Doubt as to what action the People and Parliament of Canada would take in any emergency threatening the Empire's safety was never imagined until the calculated Hamilton speech of the Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen on the eve of a bye-election in Bagot. The undersigned feel that no British subject who has made or is willing to make sacrifices for the Empire can palliate or ignore the continuing evil that must arise from the entirely mischievous proposal contained in that Hamilton speech. That speech deliberately uttered by an aspirant for the premiership, is the worst blow ever struck in a British Dominion by a public man against the solidarity of the Empire.

a. T. Hunter

Smirle Lawson

Fred G. Johnston

SIGNED,
Toronto, the 30th day of August,
1926.

In the Hamilton speech, condemned in the foregoing statement, Mr. Meighen, as reported by the Mail and Empire, said:

"If ever the time should come when the spectre of 1914 should again appear I believe it would be best not only that parliament should be called, but that the decision of the government, which, of course, would have to be given promptly, should be submitted to the judgment of the people at a general election before troops should leave our shores."

Later on he added:

"Let me make clear what I mean. The government would have to decide, and decide quickly, what was best in the interests of Canada. The government would have to act on its judgment, but before there was anything in the way of participation involving the despatch of troops the will of the people of Canada should first be obtained."

This announcement of policy came on November 16th, less than three weeks after the elections. It will be recalled that in the meantime the member for Bagot had died, thereby creating a vacancy. To win Bagot at that juncture would have improved Mr. Meighen's political fortunes. And after enunciating his war policy at Hamilton he visited Bagot where he repeated substantially the same formula. The Conservative candidate was Hon. G. A. Fauteux, now a member of Mr. Meighen's cabinet, and again candidate for Bagot.

Hon. R. L. Patenaude, the Nationalist leader, who headed the anti-King forces in Quebec last year but "free of Meighen," but now in Mr. Meighen's cabinet, and first lieutenant in Quebec, is able to boast, no doubt, because of the "election-before-war" policy that he has converted Mr Meighen to his views.

Resentment aroused in many quarters by Mr. Meighen's Hamilton-Bagot speech finds expression in the foregoing statement published to-day by Liberal soldier candidates in the city of Toronto.

The signatories are: Lieut. Col. A. T. Hunter, L.L.B., who went overseas with original 4th battalion in 1914, was wounded April 23, 1915, at Pilkem road, was present at Vimy Ridge; former commander of 12th York Rangers; Liberal candidate in West York.

Capt. Frederick G. Johnston, M.C. and bar, overseas 1914-1917, gunner with 9th Canadian Field Artillery, given M.C. by the King at Buckingham Palace; given bar to M.C. by Prince of Wales for services at battle of Lens; Liberal candidate in Toronto West Centre.

Another candidate is about to be chosen in Parkdale to represent the Liberal interest. It is anticipated that he also will be an ex-soldier, and will associate himself with the protest.

CROP REPORT

MANITOBA, Sept. 11 (Canadian Press).—On the whole, this year's grain crops are turning out well. This is especially the case with spring wheat, which, sown earlier, escaped the effects of drought to a greater degree than did the coarse grains. Harvesting, both cutting and threshing, was to some extent delayed by heavy rains at the end of August; but threshing, so far as it had proceeded, was giving excellent yields of wheat. In many cases yields of from 40 to over 50 bushels per acre were being realized. Many correspondents speak of wheat yields being the "best since 1915" or the "best for years," and others report that the results are better than expected.

Oats, and in some cases barley, are not so good, the straw being short and more affected by rust. Wheat crops on summer fallow are generally better than those on fall or spring ploughing. The rains which fell during August were particularly beneficial to the later crops and to pastures. Only in the north of the province, especially in Crop District No. 12 (Mid Lake) was drought severely felt. Here the average wheat yields run only from about 12 to 15 bushels per acre instead of 20 bushels and upwards as in most of the other districts. There is very little evidence of damage to wheat from rust.

Saskatchewan.— The damage resulting from the hot dry weather of July was arrested by cool, showery weather in Aug., which proved beneficial to later maturing crops. Crops in the southeast are uniformly good; but in many other parts they are patchy and it is evident that quite a difference exists in the estimated yields in the same districts. Frosts are reported in the north and northwest, but the full extent of the damage will not be known until after threshing. Only 75 per cent of the crop was cut at the end of the month, but very little threshing was done.

Alberta. — Frequent rains during August have materially benefitted all crops. In many cases the yields of early sown wheat were increased by the rains at the beginning of the month, but in general later sown wheat and all coarse grains received the principal benefit. Harvesting operations were being considerably delayed by frequent rains, but on the whole the outlook at the end of August was very favorable.

The average condition on August 31, 1926, of late-sown crops for Canada, expressed numerically in percentage of the average yields per acre for the ten years 1916-25, is reported as follows, the figures within brackets representing, in the order given, the condition on July 31, 1926, and on August 31, 1925:

Peas 97 (98; 99); beans 95 (97; 99); buckwheat 98 (95; 98); mixed grains 95 (99; 62); corn for husking 87 (89; 94); potatoes 96 (97; 96) turnips, etc., 92 (96; 97); fodder corn 90 (89; 97); sugar beets 98 (94; 98).

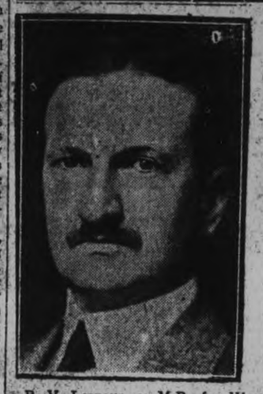
The figures of condition for August 31, 1926, represent the following forecast of total yields for all Canada, as compared with last year's final estimates in brackets; bushels: Peas, 2,880,100 (3,410,700); beans, 7,067,000 (1,500,700); buckwheat, 9,498,000 (10,448,900); mixed grains, 33,622,000 (34,301,000; corn for husking 8,492,000 (10,564,300). Potatoes, 43,130,000 cwt.

LEAGUE MEETING.

PETHERICK'S CORNERS, Sept. 11.—In spite of the attractions of political meetings, over forty attended the League service on Thursday evening. The programme was in charge of the second vice-president, Miss Hazel Brown, convenor of the Missionary committee. Voal selections were given by Miss Helen Barnum and Mr. Fred Barnum. Mr. George Brunton gave a splendid missionary reading and Miss Brown, the missionary topic for the evening. In the absence of Rev. Daniel, Mr. Fred Barnum gave the devotional talk on witnessing for Christ. He pointed out that each and every one should by their daily lives be living witnesses for the Master. The meeting was led by Mr. Earl Fairman.

Orange Meeting.

A meeting was held in the Orange Hall on Wednesday evening, in the interests of Mr. W. A. Fraser, Independent Liberal-Progressive candidate in the coming Federal election. Interesting addresses were given by Mr. David McDonald, president of the Trenton Farmers' Club, Mrs. Richards, of Warkworth, Mr. Fred Slade of Fenella, the candidate in the last election, and Mr. Fraser himself. The same speakers also addressed a meeting at Menie, the same evening. Good crowds attended at both services.



R. V. Lesueur, ex-M.P., for West Lambton, and director of Imperial Oil, who played a large part in the enterprise which has secured the second largest oil fields in the empire for Canadia interest.

DIES IN STATION WHILE WAITING TO TAKE TRAIN

W. J. Bentley, of Blenheim, Had Just Bought a Ticket To Lindsay.

VISITING CITY.

Had Spent Week Here Going Out To See Friends in District.

Death came with startling suddeness to W. J. Bentley of Blenheim, this morning, in the Canadian National Railway station. He purchased a ticket for Lindsay, walked over a bench in the waiting room and sat down, expiring almost immediately. Dr. A. Moir was called in, but the deceased had passed beyond human aid.

W. Fisher, proprietor of the Grand Hotel, told The Examiner that the deceased had been spending a holiday with him, they being old time friends. He had been in the city for a week, and had been visiting places in the district every day since his arrival. This morning he intended leaving for Lindsay to visit his niece, who is in training at the hospital there, after which he was going to Nestleton to visit friends. He arose and had breakfast with Mr. Fisher and apparently was feeling in the best of health when he left for the station.

The Rev. Harold Bentley of Charing Cross, a son of the deceased, was notified, and is expected to arrive in the city tonight.

GARDEN STUFF VERY PLENTIFUL

BUTTER SCARCE.

There was an abundance of vegetables and fruit on the farmers' market this morning. The number of people upstairs was smaller than usual, but the great crowd of vendors outside more than made up for any deficiency in number upstairs. Butter and eggs were scarce, butter going at 38 cents and eggs at 35 cents. Chickens and hens were plentiful, the former sold for 30 cents a pound and the latter 25 cents.

The crop of plums seems to be very plentiful this year according to the amount of that variety of fruit which was on the market this mornning. They were sold at 3 quarts for 25 cents, and a better variety at 45 cents a peck. Potatoes were plentiful and the fine large Cobblers were sold at $2.00 a bag or 40 cents a peck. Celery was two bunches for 25 cents, or 10 cents a single small bunch. Fine large red peppers went at 50 cents a dozen, green ones 40 cents a dozen, pickling onions two quarts for 25 cents or 35 cents according to the size, the larger ones being the cheaper; squash 25 cents; pumpkins 10 and 20 cents; Duchess apples were 30 cents a peck, and Golden Bantam corn 20 cents a dozen.

There was also a great variety of flowers, all out in splendid bloom.

OTTAWA, Sept. 11 (Canadian Press).—R. P. Sparks, president of the Commercial Protective Association, denies, in a statement issued yesterday, that his organization was reimbursed for expenses incurred by Inspector Walter Duncan from November 3, 1924, to March 14, 1925.

Mr. Sparks says: "During the period mentioned by Hon. James Robb all expenses of Inspector Duncan were paid by the Commercial Protective Association, and were never reimbursed. The total amount paid to Inspector Duncan by the Commercial Protective Association during this period by way of salary and expenses was $2,402, none of which was ever refunded."

FOREIGN CONCESSION POLICY OF RUSSIA GAINS IN STATUS

Shortage of Manufactured Goods and Need of Capital Reason.

SEEKING BUSINESS.

Russia's famine in manufactured goods and her crying want of foreign capital with which to rehabilitate her out-of-date and worn industries has in recent months given new status and significance to the Soviet's foreign concessions policy.

Under Leon Trotzky and Adolphe Ioffe, the former one of the world's greatest organizing brains, the latter a keen observer of international affairs, Russia's Chief Concession Committee has become an economic counterpart to the Soviet's Commissariat for Foreign Affairs. It is the function of this recently galvanized body to attract to Russia as "masked loans" that foreign capital from abroad which the Foreign Office is unable to attract by means of political negotiations.

From a passive policy of waiting for the foreign concessionaire to come knocking at its door, the Soviet government is now taking on itself the role of the initiator. It has, in recent weeks, established branches of the Chief Concession Committee in the principal capitals of the world. In Rome, in London, in Tokio and—unofficially—in New York, Soviet "go-getters," trained in excellent manners and in a quiet sort of persuasion, are to-day talking to men of large financial means of world-wide industrial outlook something after this fashion:

"Our land is vast, rich and undeveloped; come and trade with us. We need your skill and experience. We wish your machines, tractors and locomotives and we have some of the most exclusive and worthwhile concessions in the world with which to pay for them. As for the difference in our laws—the devil isn't as black as he is painted. Laws always limber up when they are put in practice."

Rules Accommodating.

Soviet regulations with regard to foreign concessions have been made more accommodating in recent months. The Council of People's Commissars has approved some supplementary legislation calculated to ease up the pressure of Soviet laws on the foreign investor. It is only in fairness, however, to the Soviet government on the one hand and to the American business man, who would invest his money in Russia, on the other, to make clear that such changes concern minor details and externals only and that the basic, the constitutional provisions of the Soviet law with regard to concessions, have not been changed.

The essence of this law is that the Soviet government cannot grant to foreign investors property rights in Russia which the Soviet citizen, under the Soviet constitution, is denied. Russia is willing to pay liberally, pay big, if necessary, for the use of foreign capital. But it can pay only with cash, with profits—not with property or property rights.

Foreign capital interested in the Russian market must know that it may never hope for anything more than temporary exploitation of Russia's resources. Concessions are granted for varying periods calculated to give the concessionaire a good profit on his investment. After a stated length of time, the maximum of which is thirty years, the buildings which the concessionaire has constructed, the mines, mills or factories he has equipped, the oil wells he has drilled, all revert back to the government as they stand, having during these years become amortized by a mutually agreed arrangement.

Capt. Frederick Y. Johnston, M.C. and Bar, who will attempt to annex a Liberal seat in Tory Toronto. He was nominated as the Liberal candidate for Toronto West Centre. He served overseas in the trench mortar battery and received the Military Cross in 1917 and later the bar. He is president of G. A. Stinson and Co., brokers.

It is the plan of the Soviet government ultimately to make Russia as independent of other countries or continents industrially as it is agriculturally. "From a land which is importing machinery and industrial equipment the Soviet Union is to be changed into a land which produces its own machinery and all of its own industrial accessories." Such was the program adopted by the last Communist Congress. It is planned to accomplish this by means of a combiantion of Russia's natural resources with foreign capital and skill. The Chief Concession Committee is to act as the intermediary, as the go-between.

The main weakness of Russia's economic life at present, Trotzky recently said, lay in the fact that "while the head of Russia's industry was soaring to the eagle heights of American technique and experience its body was still stuck in the mud of medieval production." This is true, but, is a part of the picture only. The other part is supplied by Stalin, the all-powerful secretary of the Communist Party.

Just before the World War, Stalin figured out recently, Russia owed 6,000,000,000,000 rubles to foreign countries. Since 50 per cent of Russian industry, of her banks, her foreign trade under the Czars were in the hands of foreign investors, a large part of the six-billion debt was circulating through industry, giving it life and vitality, despite ancient methods and the general lack of efficiency and attention on the part of the Russian worker. The situation is greatly different now.

1,500 Concessions Inquiries

Since the definite authorization of the concession policy by Lenin at the close of 1921, a total of 1,500 inquiries with regard to concession had come in. The total number of contracts signed during the last five years was 110. Twenty-two concessions had either expired or were cancelled by one side or the other. In all, therefore, eighty-eight concessions are at the moment operating in Russia.

The absence of foreign capital from Russia since the revolution was not due altogether to the Soviet government's repudiation of foreign debts and to the nationalization of property owned by foreigners in Russia. The Soviet government in the first years of its existence had fear of the consequence which the intrusion of foreign capital might have on the faith of the socialistic order it was trying to establish in the country and did not encourage foreign investors. But this apprehension is passed.

"We are on safer ground now," Trotzky said recently, "and no longer fear for our institutions from contact with capitalism. We have reached a stage when we can afford to pay foreign capitalists large sums for the privilege of acquiring their superior technique and their co-operation in our production with a view to improving its quality and increasing our national turnover in goods and money."

In spite of the 6,000,000,000 rubles in loans from abroad, Russia under the Czars was the most backward country in Europe. It is the plan of the Soviet government to put Russia industrially on a par with the most developed countries in the world. A high order of industrial development is declared essential to the country's maintaining and developing its socialistic order. Russia's resources, according to the latest surveys by Soviet scientists, justify such far-reaching industrialization plans and are amply able to pay whatever exactions both foreign and domestic, may be laid upon them.

Something of the wider scope and significance of this proposed industrial rapprochement between Soviet Russia and the rest of the world is contained in a confidential set of instructions sent out recently by the Chief Concession Committee to its agents abroad. A precise plan is outlined for fostering those concessions which are of immedate desirability and for sidetracking or definitely discouraging such concession proposals as are less workable or desirable.

The Soviet govenment, the chief concessions committee's statement points out, is today the owner of the country's large industries and of its transport and foreign trade. It regulates the country's economic needs, making one industry help another. These industries are operated as government owned monopolies through the medium of trusts and syndicates. Russia's natural resources are measured by the same monopolistic scale.

There are a number of prospective concessions in Russia, the statement continues, notably in oil, coal, ore and graphite which would give the companies to whom they were awarded a complete monopoly in their respective fields. The coal supply in the Donets Basin alone, which is only one of a number of coal sources in Russia, is, according to latest scientific disclosures, sufficient to keep the country with all its industries and transport in fuel for the next 2,000 years. The country's forest lands, containing enormous quantities of lumber and pulp fit for export, according to the latest survey, cover an area of 700,000,000 dessiatins, or very nearly 200 billion acres. Its mines, beginning with iron ore and ending with platinum and radium, are among the richest the world has known. They have scarcely been tapped.

Large Corporations Wanted

Only such companies and individuals, therefore, the statement concludes, as are in a position to undertake operations in Russia on a large financial scale and to extend these operations over a period of years, will be able to swing these concessions and to operate them profitably. Only such prospective concesionaries are the agents of the Chief Concession Committee instructed to contract with Moscow. Men or corporations of smaller calibre, though of excellent intentions, are, in the main, to be dissuaded as being unfit for the large, wholesale enterprises the Soviet plans call for.

The three varieties of concessions in whose disposal to foreign firms the Soviet government is especially interested at the moment are the so-called "commercial," "productive" and "technical aid" concessions. The first of these, the commercial group, is designed to relieve the shortage of manufactured articles of everyday use. Russian industry, it has been shown recently, will for years to come be unable to meet the ever-growing demands of the Russian peasantry for such articles. It was disclosed that wicks, which the peasant uses in his oil lamp, have become a luxury. The Russian factories making wicks can produce only about 15,00,000 of them within the next 12 months while the demand for them has risen to a minimum of 20,000,000.

The government plans, therefore, to permit foreign firms to establish commercial enterprises all over the Soviet Union. A firm which receives this concession has the right to open offices, stores and warehouses anywhere in Russia, advertise its goods and engage in export and import.

Under "productive" concessions, the Soviet government has in mind the re-equipping of Russia's old factories, mines and mills and the building of new ones by foreign capitalists. Russia's vast stocks of raw materials are to be hauled out of their natural layers and to be thrown on the market of both Russia and the world. The government realizes that it is imposing a rather unusual condition when it demands that at the expiration of the concession period all of the machinery, equipment and technical improvements which the concessionaire has put into the enterprise become its property. But it is "willing to pay for it." It is willing to assure the investor such an income on an investment as will more than make good to him the cost of the machinery and equipment which is to be nationalized ultimately.

The concessions of the third, or techincal aid group, are, in effect, an offer to exchange Russian markets for foreign patents. The Soviet government will grant a foreign company the privilege of manufacturing and selling in Russia certain articles to which it has the exclusive rights. At the expiration of the period of the concession, however, the foreign company is to surrender to the Soviet government not only the patent rights but also all drawings, maps, and technical information necessary for the Soviet government to take over the plant and to run it as a nationalized industry.

The business relations between the foreign concessions company and the Soviet government may take any one of three forms. In one of these the company is usually given what is known as a "clear concession." In that case, it pays the government a certain tax on its profits. This arrangement is generally employed in commercial concessions.

In concessions of the second group, where production is involved, the foreign concern usualy organizes itself along the lines of a joint stock company with the Soviet government receiving a specified amount of stock. Or else a direct partnership with the Soviet government is established.

In the matter of employment, wages, strikes and labor matters generaly the foreign concessionaires are governed by Soviet laws, the same as Russian employers.

In the Interest of the Liberal Party Itself It Is Time for a Change

If Sir Wilfrid Laurier had led the Liberal Party from 1921 to 1926

1. Would he have played the coward, afraid during a period of two years to act upon the friendly warnings of gross corruption in the Customs Department of his Government?
2. Would he have tolerated the retention of the Department's arch-corruptor as Chief Preventive Officer at Montreal, after that man's shameless record had been definitely placed before him by an association of business men?
3. Would he have appointed the Minister whom he knew had by connivance and collusion been a party to an intolerable scandal to the Senate at a salary of $4,000 a year for life?
4. Would he have refused even a hearing to a Conservative candidate who presented to the House of Commons the judgment of a judge of the Supreme Court of Alberta, reporting that his seat had been stolen? Would he have clung to power by a majority of one and by virtue of a stolen seat, while the malefactor who did the trick was an inmate of an Alberta penitentiary?
5. Would he have demeaned the high traditions of his office by asking for dissolution solely to escape a vote of censure thereby arrogating to himself the right to muzzle Parliament?

Not one word of criticism has been heard from the Investigation Committee on the Customs Administration of the Laurier Government, nor of the Borden Government, nor of the Meighen Government. All the Customs Department's records were before the Committee during their five months of sittings when the Liberal-Progressive majority delved and sweated, and failed to find even one charge against the Borden-Meighen Administrations of 1911 to 1921.

SPAIN RESIGNS FROM LEAGUE

Official Notification Received To-day By Secretary-General.

EFFECTIVE IN 1928.

GENEVA, Sept. 11 (Canadian Press).—Spain today resigned from the League of Nations. The resignation follows rejection of Spain's demand for a permanent seat on the League Council.

With Germany finally in full membership in the League and confirmation of Spain's withdrawal from the international body officially announced, six component commissions of the Assembly on which Germans sat for the first time in the brief session yesterday evening, have begun their work.

The official communique announcing the withdrawal of Spain, said the Secretary-General of the League had received through the Spanish Consul at Geneva, a note from the Spanish Government "giving formal notice according to Article 1 of the League Covenant that Spain will withdraw from the League on the expiration of two years from the date of receipt of the note by the Secretary-General."

The document has been circulated to all members of the League. The Spanish note is said to be couched in a most friendly tone and it wishes all success to the League.

CONGRESS EXPERTS WET AND DRY FIGHT

Prohibition Tread Will Have Stricter Legislation Introduced.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Sept. 11. By John Snure, Canadian Press Correspondent).—All signs point to a bitter battle in Congress the coming session over the wet and dry issues. The feeling on this subject was intense enough in Congress in the last session but it promises to grow worse instead of better.

One reason is that the wet and dry question is at the front in the present campaign in a number of states. New York is an illustration. There, the controversy over a referendum on liquor is hot; also the drys are out to try to beat Senator Wadsworth.

Similar illustrations might be given as to a number of other states, as well as various congressional districts. The Ohio fight between Senator Willis, dry, and Former Senator Atlere Pomerene, wet, is conspicuous.

Whether the wets or the drys will gain in the elections in the different states in November is anybody's guess. Probabilities are both sides will claim gain, just as they did two years ago.

In any event, the feeling over the prohibition question will not be assuaged by the controversies of the campaign but will be accentuated.

Moreover, General Lincoln C. Andrews has given notice he will remain at the head of the prohibition organization for the present instead of resigning, as expected. Politicians say this is because the Republican chiefs do not want him to embarrass the administration and the party by quitting in the midst of the campaign. General Andrews is going to urge stricter dry legislation next session. He will ask the passage of the Goff bill and other legislation. This will cause controversy, as the wets are not disposed to allow the dry to rush stricter legislation through a three-month's session next winter. They will invite the dry to wait until the new Congress—the Seventieth—meets.

This is the congress to be elected in November which does not begin to serve until March 4, 1927.

Signs point to a sharp clash between wets and drys next winter over the Goff bill. The wets may kill it by delaying tactics. They do not like the bill and hold it goes to unwarranted lengths in searches and seizures and in other respects.

There are other reasons why the wet and dry issue looms up as a subject of increasing controversy both in the coming session and outside of the operations of Congress. Among them is the fact that the president campaign is coming on and some of the aspirants for nomination are wet and some are dry. This fact is the more conspicuous on the Democratic side because of the prominence of Governor Alfred Smith of New York.

WOODSTOCK, Sept. 11 (Canadian Press).—A serious accident occurred at the C. N. R. crossing at Creditville to-day when an auto in which Mr. and Mrs. Henry Morris, of Springfield, Ohio, was struck by the engine of a west-bound passenger train. Their car, with its occupants, was carried some sixty feet before being tossed to one side. Mr. and Mrs. Morris were seriously injured and are now in Woodstock hospital. The car was smashed beyond repair.

Daily Short Story

THE HOUSE THAT LARRY BUILT.

Nearly all the other teachers in Polly's school had gone abroad for the summer vacation, but Polly had bought a little roadster instead. And now it was nearly the first of September and she felt somehow as if she hadn't had quite such a satisfactory vacation as she had hoped.

Now she stood in Larry Blair's garage while a mechanic crept under her trim little car to see just why it was that the engine had begun to pound so hard that she had stopped here for help. An idle looking young man waiting for his car was talking to the six-foot gray-eyed man in overalls whom the others referred to as "boss."

"Nice house you're building next door," observed the waiting young man. "What's your idea?"

Polly's eyes suddenly met those of the gray-eyed young man. He smiled in a most friendly manner and Polly smiled back. "I don't know just what I shall do," said he. "If my girl'll have me, then I'll marry and settle down. But if my girl won't have me, then I'll sell it."

"Asked her?" queried the other.

"Not in so many words," returned Larry, the boss, "but—oh, she won't want me, so I won't need the house. What you want to offer me for it?"

The idling one made no offer and the subject of conversation was changed. Just then the mechanic got out from under Polly's car and told her he thought everything was all right and she could pay the boss. She started to pay Larry.

"Wait," said Larry, handing back the money. "Maybe I'd better try that car myself. Never can tell with trouble like that. May go for a few feet and then stop. May need more attention." Larry was in the car and had driven it a few feet out of the garage when the car stopped and appeared to jump. With difficulty Larry backed it into the garage. "There's something special that car needs," he said. "It won't cost any more—but it needs a new part."

Polly was distressed. "Dear me," she said, "I'm ten miles away from home."

"It happens that I am going along that way," said Larry. "Maybe you'd let me drive you home. Now, which way did you say you came from?"

So it was that Polly drove ten miles over the highway with Larry. Larry never spent so much time on ten miles before in his life. He apologized, saying that there was something the matter with his car. "I don't mind in the least," said Polly. "I have been enjoying the scenery."

"So have I," said the bold Larry looking right into Polly's pretty face.

"How are you going to get back?" Polly asked and Larry told her that he'd stand on the highway and get a lift from some truck or other. That is why she felt it was her real duty to take Larry back again to his garage.

"The scenery is even more good to look at today than it was yesterday," said Larry. Then said Polly: "It will be very convenient for you, living there right beside your garage. The house is nearly done—you'll soon be moving in, I suppose."

"That depends on the girl," said Larry wistfully.

"I'm sure you and she ought to be very happy," sighed Polly. "That is to say—the house looks so convenient, and I am sure it would be very nice living so near one's place of business. I cannot imagine a girl changing her mind after she had once given you her word, or at least made you think she'd marry you. You see I overheard what you were telling that man in the garage yesterday."

"Is that so!" exclaimed Larry. "Well, I oughtn't to be so careless about how I tell secrets." They had reached the garage and Larry could think of no excuse to detain the little school teacher. But the teacher detained herself.

"You don't mind my looking through the house," she asked. "I'm so fond of new houses."

Larry insisted on accompanying her. "It is a neat little place, isn't it?" he said, looking down at Polly as they stood in the middle of the perfectly equipped little kitchen. "But I'm not going to let the girl I marry wear herself out working. I'm going to keep a cook for her."

"If she really loved you she wouldn't mind cooking for you," said Polly.

"If she didn't really love me!" repeated Larry looking sadly about. "How I wish I knew!"

"Why don't you ask her?" ventured Polly, and then the realization that this big man, Larry, was trying to make love to her came rushing upon her. She didn't have time to think it all out—whether it would be possible for her—well-bred school teacher—to marry a man who begrimed his hands with the grease of automobiles. But when Larry went foward her with pleading outstretched arms she met him halfway.

"But, Larry," she said, looking up to him as he held her, "I don't like to feel that I've taken some other girl's place."

"You don't suppose there ever was any other girl," accused Larry. "I liked—liked you a lot—first time I saw you. I was building this house for speculation—but when I saw you standing there and the question came up, I felt possessed to say what I did—and you know there wasn't anything more the matter with your car. I just said there was to get an excuse to take you home."

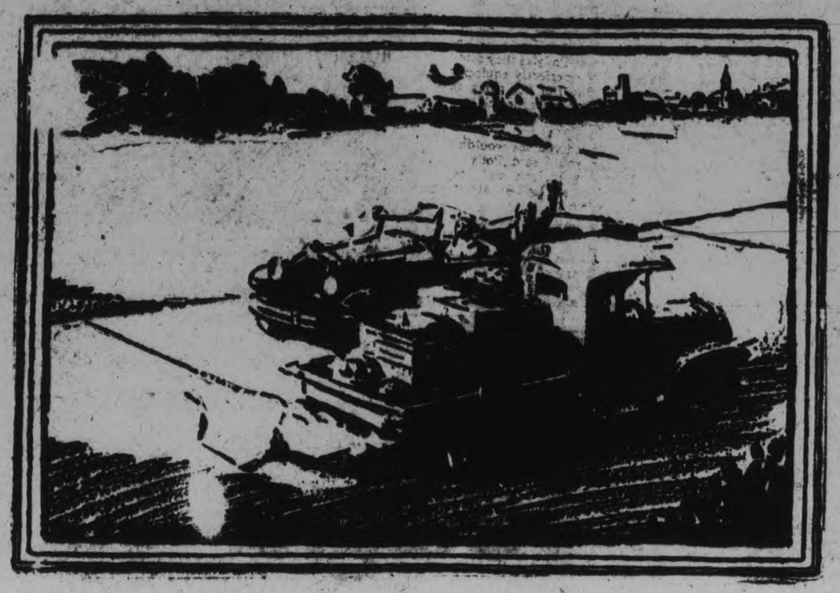
THE SPIRIT OF NEIGHBORLINESS



Another Little Message

About that cup of Sugar

RECENTLY we suggested that the essentials of the true spirit of neighborliness were exemplified in the borrowing of a cup of sugar.

Over the back-yard fence is a short cut indeed, to neighborliness. Miles so often are the fences that divide the comman ground of mutual understanding and good will. The less the distance, the lower the fence.

That's one reason why we've always worked so earnestly and faithfully for better roads. The road that brings you nearer to us is the same broad highway that brings us nearer to you. Literally and figuratively it increases efficiency in the delivery of the goods. Another essential to the true spirit of neighborliness.

You'll find the same spirit at this end of the road—in our stores and places of business. Courtesy, desire to please, eagerness to rectify error, sincerity in quality, fairness in price—these are the elements of neighborly dealing which we are constantly striving to improve.

Just call across the fence. We're neighbors you know.

ARE YOU AFRAID OF YOUR MEALS?

Proof That the Stomach is Weak and Needs Toning Up.

Are you one of the many sufferers who dread meal time? Hungry, and yet afraid to eat, because of the pains and discomforts that follow. When the stomach is out of order the whole system sufferers, and as the blood becomes thin and waters it becomes increasingly difficult to correct the digestive disorder. There is no tonic for the stomach that is not a tonic for the whole body; thus a blood-building tonic such as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, not only relieves indigestion, but adds to the general strength. Mr. D. J. Shaw, Selkirk Road, P.E.I., has proved the value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in a severe case of indigestion and relates his experience for the benefit of other sufferers. He says:—"I suffered from indigestion for a number of years. My case was so bad that words fail to describe it. My appetite was gone, constipation was present, and my nerves were all on edge. I could not sleep well at night, and the world was a dark spot for me. I tried a number of remedies, but without any benefit. Then Dr. Williams' Pink Pills were recommended, but without much faith, after so many failures, I decided to try them. After taking three boxes I noticed a change for the better. Then I got three boxes more and found I had a genuine remedy. I continued the treatment, took moderate exercise, could take plain food without suffering as formerly, and proved that these pills make good blood, and that this blood will restore the stomach and nerves. Anyone suffering from stomach or nerve troubles will make no mistake in giving Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a fair trial."

YOUR JEWEL COLOR FLOWER

By Mildred Marshall

Born to adventure and destined to a life of tempestuous experience are those whose birth anniversary this is. The sapphore is both the talismanic and natal gem. Its accompanying prophecy is: "Thou hast far to go." But the promise of the sapphire is generous. Wealth and happiness wait at the end of the trail. Marriage to a woman of great beauty was the gift of the man who wore a flawless sapphire.

Coral is the color prescribed for wear today. It represents health and vigor and the wearing of it is believed to attract those qualities.

The scarlet geranium brings with it high hope and a healthy body for those who wear it.

C.N.R. EARNINGS.

MONTREAL, Sept. 11. Canadian Press. — The gross earnings of the Canadian National Railways for the week ended September 7, 1926, were $4,894,117, as compared with $4,450,379 for the same period of 1925, an increase of $443,736, or ten per cent.

Miss Raquel Mellor, who now receives as much as $5,000 a week for her singing, was earning a modest living only a few years ago by needlework in a poor quarter of a Spanish town.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, but do not Compel.

SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 12, 1926.

Even though this is Sunday it is read as an unfortunate day in which human nature may manifest itself in many ways not consistent with old-fashioned church standards.

Under this sway the mind may be subject to discontent and the spirit of criticism may be strongly evident.

The clergy may find the planetary government apparently opposed to what is traditional in religion and religious observances, owing to secret influences which will be active all through the autumn.

While there is to be a strong revival of interest in all that pertains to the spiritual existence of man, dissensions among various sects may be widespread.

The seers counsel charity and point out the need of brotherly love in the adjustment of national and international affairs.

Mercury is in an aspect which augurs ill for written messages or sermons. Preachers may feel lack of response under this rule of the stars.

There is promise, however, of good results from the rise of wise leaders of church and state who will guide the progressive thought of the people.

Astrologers point out that since the World War there has been a tendency to avoid reflection or serious thought. Men and women have lived in the objective world, but they are now to be interested in the subjective.

Despite many dire predictions for the end of the year when there may be terrible storms, earthquakes and other calamities, the next few months are to bring to humanity many extraordinary blessings.

In the eastern states there will be many upheavals of nature, it is foretold, and Canada also will suffer.

Oil and shipping industries are to thrive and the Pacific coast is to experience a period of prosperity, astrologers forecast.

Law enforcement is to be more and more discussed as the end of 1926 approaches and there are to be acrimonious debates on many topics of national interest.

Persons whose birthdate it is should seek to make the coming year as calm and uneventful as possible. Danger of fires or robberies is indicated.

Children born on this day may be of strong character and inclined to rule all within their circle. These subjects of Virgo become harsh and even cruel, if not wisely trained.

MONDAY, SEPTEMBER 13, 1926.

Although this is the thirteenth of the month it is not an unlucky day for men, according to astrology. Women are subject to sinister influences, however.

Sad may be the end of the summer romance under this rule of the stars which makes for quick forgetfulness of vacation flirtations.

It is well for women to postpone any sort of important initiative. Both business and domestic affairs appear to be subject to threatening aspects.

Because women are soon to assume new public responsibilities in reform lines they must first go through a period of apparent difficulty.

Much unpopular work is to be accomplished by clubs and other organizations of women, the seers prophesy, for they are to undertake to break up political rings and to establish business methods for matters in which the people are concerned.

To the United States is to be delegated great responsibility in world affairs, the seers prophesy.

Because extremes express human achievement, years in which the United States attains luxury and extravagance are to bring it service.

China is to command unusual attention within the next few weeks, it is foretold, and trade conditions may be affected.

Women are to seek a new type of beauty which will be quite different from that now in vogue, it is predicted.

Character training is now to be stressed as never before, if the stars are read aright.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a prosperous year with possible change or traveling. Love affairs may be unduly alluring.

Children born on this day may be exceedingly artistic in their tastes and talents. They probably will be eager to acquire knowledge.

CONDITION—Enlarged veins and hands that are too red.

DIAGNOSIS—This is often a sign of age and indicates that the walls of the veins are breaking down.

TREATMENT—The gentlest of massage is the only local remedy. Use simple, rotary movements, kneading and molding the backs of the hands with nourishing cream. Before you begin this, hold the hands upward. This draws the blood from the hands, and temporarily relieves the pressure from the walls of the veins.

HER OWN WAY

by a Girl of Today

A DUEL

"I wish you would not say such flattering things to me, Jerry," I remonstrated, when he told me all men were attracted to me. "You know as well as I do that it is not true. I wager if you talked to Mr. Robinson now, he would tell you he disliked me more than any other woman he ever knew."

"No, he wouldn't. He admires you because you are the only woman who ever told him the truth and as far as I am concerned, my dear Judy, I have yet to see a man, young or old, whom you couldn't bind to your chariot wheels if you wanted it.

"I've tried my best to analyze your charm but I can't do it. You're just one of those girls who radiate an aura which spells come hither. Even my father, hard boiled as he is, could not resist you."

"Your father, Jerry, if you will forgive me for saying it, has reached the age when he cannot resist any young girl, but it is his lost youth he is trying to snare, instead of the girl herself. It flatters his vanity to be seen with women younger than he is."

I heard Jerry chuckle at the other end of the wire. "That's a good one on Dad, anyway Judy, don't encourage John Meredith. It wouldn't be fair. I think he would take it too seriously. He is evidently not used to a girl like you."

"Nor any other kind of a girl for that matter, Jerry," I interrupted.

"I don't know about that, dear, but it takes a man with a lot of practice to play the game as you play it."

"Well, that's interesting, to say the least. It tells me many things that you don't say. It tells me that you have had long practice, for I know you think you are playing the game, as you call it, just as well as I do. However, I cannot stand here and jolly you over the telephone. I am on duty, you know."

"I still think, Judy, that you should keep your appointment with me tonight and commence your duties tomorrow. I give you fair warning that if you don't go, I'll ask Susan Kirtley, and she is very beautiful and I once thought I loved her. I might think so again."

"Is that a threat or a promise, Jerry? Whichever it is, I'll take it as part of the game." I hung up the receiver.

LOVE LETTERS THAT MADE HISTORY

(By Joseph Kaye.)

GUSTAVE FLAUBERT AND MME. DUDEVANT.

(Joseph Kaye.—Syndicate.)

That sinner of the French literary salons, George Sand, or Mme. Dudevant, as was her real name, counted Gustave Flaubert, the author of "Salambo," among her numerous conquests. Flaubert was a young man at the time and he was infatuated with the fascinating love mistress. He wrote to her:

"... Here is the program I propose to you: My house will be full and uncomfortable for a month but towards the end of October or the beginning of November nothing will prevent you I hope from returning with me, not for a day, as you say, but for a week at least. You shall have your little table and everything necessary for writing.' Is it agreed?"

It was. George Sand answered:

"It is agreed, dear comrade and good friend. I shall ... go to your house and I shall stay there a week, but on condition that you do not put yourself out of your room. To be an inconvenience distresses me and I don't need so much bother in order to sleep. I sleep everywhere, in the ashes, or under the kitchen bench, like a stable dog. ..."

To which Flaubert replied rapturously:

"Good, I have it! That dear and beautiful face! I am going to have a large frame made and hang it on my wall, being able to say, as did M. de Talleyrand to Louis Philippe, 'It is the greatest honor my house has received'."

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

(By Mildred Marshall.)

Facts about your name, its history; its meaning; whence it was derived; its significance; your lucky day, and lucky jewel.

SADIE

The quaint name of Sadie—lately spelt Sadye—has its origin with Sarah. It comes from a Hebrew verb meaning to fight or rule, and hence came to signify 'princess.' The first record of the use of Sarai or Sara belongs to Bible history where the wife of Abraham was so-called.

Sadie came into existence through the Irish—unless one care to believe that she is only an Americanization of one of Sarah's many diminutives. But for the sake of etymological exactness, it is nicer to believe that the Irish Sadah was the real forerunner of Sadie.

But between the time of Abraham's wife and the appearance of the Irish version of her name, Sarah had been adopted by other countries and had won great popularity. In England Sara Beauchamp gave it vogue in the reign of Edward I. and Sarotta de Moulton, who lived in a former reign, was also supposed to possess a name which was another and favorite form of Sarah.

The French preferred Sara without the "h" and it still continues in great vogue there. They have another form, Sarotte, which is also popular. Ireland's Sadhbh and America's Sadie are apparently the only other existing forms.

Sadie has a curious talismanic gem—malachite. If it is engraved with an image of the sun, it will bring her peace, freedom from danger and disease, and sound sleep. It is particularly lucky for children, and it is said that a piece of malachite tied to a child's cradle will protect it from dangers throughout later life.

FASHIONS

By HEDDA HOYT

(Written for the United Press.)

NEW YORK, Sept. 11 (United Press).—Women's ankles are growing larger from year to year and although we see numerous shapely legs upon our streets, a tape measure would prove that most of them are "over-ankled."

Even slender little sixteen-year-old misses will find that their ankles are not in proportion to the rest of the leg. The woman who prided herself upon her slender ankle a decade ago will find that her ankle has grown from half an inch to an inch in circumferenec. Why? Because we are wearink low shoes with high heels from morning until night. The ankle has no support and has a tendency to grow pudgy.

Years ago when women wore laced shoes, slender ankles were the invariable result. If we would again resort to wearing high shoes about the home we would find that the ankle would very soon resume its slenderness. Rubber ankle reducers also reduce the size of the ankle and these can be worn in bed while one sleeps. In some cases, the pudgy ankle can be reduced by massage. The easiest and simplest way to take off fat that has enlarged the ankle is to wear high shoes or ankle supports about the house. A high shoe acts upon the ankle just as a corset acts upon the body and we all know what the corsetless seasons have done to our waistlines.

Since short skirts seem to be here to stay—for some time at least—it is well to give a thought to the nether portions which we inflict upon the public. A certain stocking manufacturer, realizing that ankles are becoming enlarged, has introduced a shaded stocking which makes the leg look more shapely than it actually is. The shading is blended so gradually that it is not discernible. The darker portion of the stocking acts as a shadow over the fleshy portion of the ankle and leg. These shaded stockings are already being sold in some of the smart shops which are first to sponsor a new style. Needless to say, the sheerer the stocking the less noticeable is the shading. All popular neutral tones of grays and tans are those most popular.

About one-half of our globe, it is estimated, consists of iron.

SYNOPSIS

Don Juan's disillusioned fatherwarns him: "Destroy women or they will destroy you. Take their love scornfully —and forget!" This advice has made Don Juan the greatest lover of all time in Rome, the gay Spaniard risks the displeasure of infamous, all-powerful Lucretia Borgia, who loves him, to protect Duke Varanese, whose death the Borgias seek so that Donati, their kinsman, can seize the Duke's lovely daughter, Adriana. Adriana innocently dreams of Juan, her protector—though to him she is just another woman.

Had he thought her fair? Critically she tried to judge her own loveliness and sighed, not realizing that in all Juan's travels his eyes had rested on no one as beautiful as she.

She could not understand the emotion that swept through her when she thought of him.

"Don Juan," she whispered to herself, and felt as if wine flowed through her veins, exhilarating her, making her want to sing, to laugh, and then, oddly enough, to cry a little. How wonderful he had been fighting there in the moonlight with Donati! How handsome he was!

"Later," he had said when she asked if she could not do something to show her gratitude. Later—that might mean that she would see him again quite soon, in a few days perhaps; perhaps—why, it might even be tomorrow!

Dreaming there before her mirror, she planned what she would wear the next day when she went to church in order to look her best just on the chance that she might meet him. Again she studied herself in the candle lighted mirror. Like nine girls out of every ten, she approved of her eyes, rather liked her mouth, but felt quite dissatisfied with her nose, not knowing what a pretty little nose it was.

"Don Juan," she whispered to herself again, and again that exquisite, warm, buoyant feeling surged up through all her being.

A slight noise made her turn.

There in the door opening onto the balcony stood Juan.

"If I am late a thousand pardons," he drawled.

For a moment she could not realize what had happened. She thought that she must be imagining his presence. But he moved a little, smiled. At last she found her voice.

"Why are you here—at this hour?" she demanded. And her hands, like frightened birds, flew to her bare throat, tried to cover her scantily clad body.

Annoyed, Juan frowned. Then he lifted his eyebrows inquiringly. Just why was she making all this pretense of surprise at his being here? Was she the sort of girl who turned coy at such a moment? Or could it be that she was unlike the others?

Turning, he closed and barred the windows and door leading to the balcony. Then he crossed the room swiftly to the girl's side. She drew away from him, crying, "Please go!" But he only caught her hand and kissed it, murmuring, "Your little hand is like a trembling dove!"

Adriana was too frightened in that moment even to move. She stood staring at him as his eyes traveled up her bare arm to her shoulder, down over her body, back to her face. Then suddenly he caught her to him and pressed his lips hard against hers.

Wildly she wrenched herself from his grasp and backed away from him to the door. Breathlessly she cried over and over, "Please go—please go!" But Juan, smiling, followed her.

"You promised to reward me," he told her. "Are you trying to break that promise because you fear your swordsman friend?"

At first she did not know what he meant. Then, realizing that he thought she was Donati's mistress, she cried frantically: "No! No!" Juan took her in his arms again despite her protests.

"You'll keep your word to me, do you hear?" he exclaimed. "I'm not afraid of your lover."

Adriana felt as if he had torn the heart from her body. He was smiling cruelly now, bending down to kiss her. His lips stilled the protests hers were murmuring. Amusement mingled with the ardor of his love making. Twice in this one night he had foiled Donati!

Adriana's body stiffened in his arms. He relaxed his grasp, interested to see just what she would do next. What a little actress she was!

Adriana's knees shook beneath her, but, stumbling, she reached a table on which lay some trinkets her father had brought her from Venice. Among them was a dagger, a slender, marvelously wrought thing with a jeweled hilt. She caught it up and faced him again.

"Go now or I shall kill myself!" she told him.

Wearily he replied:

"A good piece of acting! You may have rehearsed it many times, but you are too young to make it convincing," he murmured.

And then with a swift, cat-like movement, and even as she raised the dagger and pressed its point against her breast, he had his arms around her. The dagger clattered to the stone floor, and her slender body went limp in his arms.

For a moment he held her, a sardonic smile twisting his lips. Still acting! Well, he would help her to play the farce out. Picking her up he carried her over to a wide divan and laid her on it. The vivid colors of its embroideries madeher face seem paler and more ethereal than ever.

Juan bent down and kissed her, then as she did not move he kissed her again. Puzzled, he straightened up andshook his head, bewildered. Why did she not admit that the golden moment had come and cease this absurd pretense?

CHAPTER VI

Juan stood staring down at Adriana, completely at a loss for the first time that he could remember. Was she pretending to faint or was she really unconscious? How exquisite she was, with the colorful embroidery of the wide divan making her lovely face look more than ever like a bit of beautifully carved ivory!

On the low table that stood near by was a marvelously wrought cup from Cellini's studio, a golden shell, resting on the back of a dragon made of gold and colored enamels. He picked it up, thinking to find wine somewhere and force her to drink it. Straightening up to glance about the room, he found himself looking directly at a figure of the Virgin that stood in a little niche in the wall above the diyan. Before it burned a taper.

For a moment Juan stood entranced. He felt as if someone had spoken to him, had come between him and his determination to make Adriana carry out her promise as he had understood it. He still believed that she had meant it in that way.

Involuntarily he moved back a step from the divan. He tore his gaze from the Virgin and looked down at Adriana, for suddenly as he looked at the statue he knew that he had been wrong about the girl. Slowly she opened her eyes; it was clear at first she did not remember his coming to her room; then, as memory returned, her eyes grew wide with fear. Wildly she looked around the room as if in search of some means of escaping him; then, fascinated, her eyes came back to him.

Humbly, pleadingly Juan bowed his head before her. He wanted to beg her to forgive him, but his voice failed him. He knew no words that would tell her of his despair at having so completely misunderstood her.

PERHAPS IT'S TRUE.

From Paris comes the information that the higher waistline and lengthened skirt are on the way.

NEW MINISTER

ed that the people of the church might combine devoutness and service.

At this point R. F. Downey, recording steward of the church, said that it was the desire of the officials of the church that their minister, at his induction, should receive a proper gown for wear during the services, and on behalf of the church he asked the chairman to robe the new minister with the official gown of the United Church.

Rev. J. E. Todd addressed the minister. He spoke of the privilege that is his, the opportunities that are given to provide a new outlook and a new hope for his people. He impressed upon him the necessity of giving a clear message of manifest frankness rather than platitude to soothe.

"Paul speaks of 'My Gospel'," he said, "and in a real sense it will be your Gospel that you will preach for this congregation. One who takes on himself such a high office must keep all the doors and windows of the soul open so that God may enter in."

Rev. J. W. Gordon delivered the address to the congregation. He said that a minister was always a busy man. Pastoral work would keep him going all the time, while he could also devote his whole time to preparing his sermons for the preaching part of his duties. As a leading citizen he would be required to give some of his time to the concerns of the whole city, and he would want part of his time with his family. Mr. Gordon stressed the great importance of the preaching, saying that the visits during the week would be worth nothing if the sermon delivered to the same people on Sunday had been full of trivialities, and urged the congregation not to criticize if some things were left undone.

Mr. Gordon also spoke of the value of public worship. He said that many things went to make up a fitting service; good preaching, with minister and congregation alert physically, mentally and physically, a good building, good music. He urged preparation by the congregation as well as by the minister, so that there would be no trivialities in their minds to make the sermon hard.

A number of clergymen of other denominations were in the congregation.

Hymns sung were "Spirit Divine, attend our prayers," "Glorious things of thee are spoken," "Come, let us use the grace divine," and "The church is one foundation." M. H. Park rendered a solo.

LIFE UNDERWRITERS

o ask prospective borrowers how much life insurance they carried.

He declared that the matter of advertising life insurance had been ungled, but this condition was being rapidly rectified by the association.

Telling of the benefits that the association had brought to the underwriter, he stated that the business of being a life underwriter is rapidly becoming a profession. To-day a man must know his business and be able to advise men skilfully as to their affairs. The day was not far distant when the public would come to the life underwriter for aid, just the same as a lawyer or a doctor. To be a successful underwriter a man had to have right ideas and in addition be mentally bright, he said in conclusion.

Receives Presentation.

I. P. McNabb, a past president of the Peterborough association, in making the presentation to Mr. Henderson, declared that the duty he had been asked to perform was a pleasant one, and at the same time very unpleasant. The members, he said had always looked upon 'George' as one of their own. He had always been cordial and gracious and had never failed them when called upon for duty at the piano, and the city of Peterboro was losing a real citizen by his going. "The token is small, compared with our appreciation," declared Mr. McNabb, "and the Life Underwriters Association of Peterboro wishes you every success in your new sphere."

Mr. Henderson made a suitable reply, telling, too, his regret in leaving the city.,

E. V. Chown.

Mr. Chown, editor of the Life Underwriters' News, explained the organization of the Life Underwriters' Association in detail. He also stressed the importance of the necessity of combined action in order that the association would meet with its full measure of success.

Already, he declared, wonderful work had been accomplished largely by the aid of the newspapers who had given invaluable service. Sales resistance had been considerably lessened by the campaign of advertising that had been conducted by the association.

Comparing the Life Underwriters' Association with the Rotary and Kiwanis Clubs, he stated that it also was a service club founded upon the some high ideals. The only difference, he declared, is "that the underwriters have a chance of doing in business hours what the other clubs have to do in their own time."

L. W. Scott and N. Tobin in brief speeches, expressed the thanks of the local branch to the speakers for the inspiring addresses that they delivered.

PROHIBITION TALK GIVEN AT MILLBROOK

Australian Lady Tells of Work Among Cities of Her Native Lands.

MILLBROOK, Sept. 11 — Miss Isabel McCorkindale, of Brisbane, Australia, who has been making an extended tour through Great Britain and Canada delivering addresses in most of the large centres in the interests of temperance and hygiene, spoke on this subject in the United Church, Millbrook, on Friday afternoon. Mrs. (Rev.) F. H. Howard presiding.

A gifted author and lecturer, working indefatigably in the temperance cause in her own land, Miss McCorkindale began her tour under doctor's orders to take a complete rest from public life, but had been drawn into the fight both across the ocean and here through repeated invitations from various leaders, and her own intense interest in this great work. She has come to Ontario after a year and a half in the Canadian West.

"The opportunity of being in Canada has been a rare one, and I feel I am getting to know your country very well," the speaker said, and went on to mention that she did not come here as a teacher but rather as a learner, and that she expects to sail from San Francisco in December for her home on the other side of the world.

"Canada is leading our Empire in that changing over from the old, antiquated customs in connection with the use of alcohol. In Ontario your young people do not see the social results of this abuse, and they do not know what lessons made the pioneers give up what they did in the interests of reform."

Education as well as legislation was emphasized as an absolute necessity, and the dislike of teachers for dealing with a temperance lesson in the Sunday Schools was attributed to lack of a proper grasp of the subject, and the right manner of imparting the necessary instruction. "The old pictures and charts are of no use today, and the lesson must be a positive, rather than a negative one. We now teach the wonderful laws of health, and the effect of alcohol poison on the system presented from this angle."

Repeatedly Miss McCorkindale has met with statements in regard to drinking among the young people since coming to Canada, and found herself heartsick over the thought of such a thing; but after addressing over 40,000 students at different times through the Dominion could emphatically state that she found the youth of Canada the finest possible type of developing boyhood and girlhood. "If the young people of today are not carrying hip flasks it is not because they have not been challenged to do so by practically every newspaper in the land. My wonder is that ninety-nine per cent of them pay no attention to the printed suggestion."

"We in Australia have been watching you in Canada as you lead the Empire in breaking down the old custom, with a prayer in our hearts that you would not go back. We have 6,000,000 of a population and an area equal to the United States, and two of our cities, Sidney and Melbourne, are larger than any you have in Canada, and each has its slum area. The sick in our hospitals are enormously increased because of the alcohol habit for we have no large centres under prohibition, though some sections are under no license. We are seeking to raise the school age from 14 to 16 years, and cannot do so because so much money is spent on this evil and boys and girls are robbed of educational privileges. An ultra British feeling prevails in Australia and the liquor people insist that the drinking habit is a British institution."

The keen disappointment of many of the temperance workers when province after province in Canada went back to government control was mentioned by the speaker, leading the liquor people to use Canada's defection to strengthen their arguments. 'But we still cling to the hope that Ontario will never go back."

'Drink, poverty, slums, the cycle goes on and caught in the whirl very rarely does anyone get out," was the speaker's verdict after seeing hundreds of men, and women, in their dirt and degradation, fed in some of the charitable institutions of London.

Conditions in Ontario were contrasted with what was seen in the Old Land, no evidence of drink being seen on the surface "as a stranger goes through your city streets." "Every time anyone in Ontario says anything to me about the drinking among the boys and girls, or indeed older people, I ask for concrete facts, not just 'they say so,; and in ninety-nine cases I have found no such definite information can be given."

"It's so easy for that kind of a whispering campaign to lead to going back on the legislation you already have. You have stopped the sale in Ontario, now finish your task and shut up shop for the distilleries."

In concluding her address Miss McCorkindale gave interesting facts of differences between Canada and Australia, such as the tariff being entirely out of party politics; the election machinery entirely apart from either party; compulsory registration, and, in certain sections, compulsory voting on the statute books; the differing climatic conditions so that Christmas comes in their midsummer and people pack their fishing-rods, bathing suits, and parasols, and go to the seaside to celebrate Yuletide.

"So I appeal to all womanhood to stand for the highest ideals in the national and political life of your Dominion, for in Ontario you control fifty-four per cent of the voting strength. From personal experience this last eighteen months in the West I know that government control is really government sale, and bootlegging has greatly increased. The evil of alcholism is not to be cured by that method.

SUMMER HEAT HARD ON BABY

No season of the year is so dangerous to the life of little ones as is the summer. The excessive heat throws the little stomach out of order so quickly that unless prompt aid is at hand, the baby may be found beyond all human help before the mother realizes he is ill. Summer is the season when diarrhoea, cholera infantum, dysentry and colic are most prevalent. Any of these troubles may prove deadly if not promptly treated. During the summer the mothers' best friend is Baby's Own Tablets. They regulate the bowels, sweeten the stomach and keep baby healthy. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

FIDDLES ON KEG.

PORTLAND, Ore., Sept. 11.—A fiddle made from a beer keg is being used by John Schreiner, an old-time fiddler here, to provide music for square dances. There are two slits in the hoops and strings are stretched across these, making the instrument somewhat bigger than a violin-'cello.

Value Means More than Price Alone!

CF-539

THE price of a car is what you pay—the value is what you get. Value is the combination of Quality and Price.

Notwithstanding the recent remarkable reductions in Chevrolet prices, Chevrolet does not aim to be the cheapest car in its class. It does aim —and is justly considered—the greatest value in its class.

The smooth Chevrolet is outstanding value, not only because it costs you less—but because it gives you more —more smoothness of performance —more power and speed—more instant acceleration—more striking beauty of line and finish—more richness of upholstery—more completeness of appointments.

To pay less than the price of the smooth Chevrolet is to sacrifice quality. To pay more, for a car in the Chevrolet class, is needless extravagance.

The Smoothest Chevrolet in Chevrolet history is selling at the Lowest Price for which Chevrolet has ever been sold in Canada.

Government Reports Have Bearish Effect On Market

CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 11 (Canadian Press).—Wheat values took an early swing down grade to-day, following the publication of the United States and Canadian Government crop reports, which were construed as bearish. After starting 7-8c to 1¼c lower, wheat underwent a slight recovery all around. Corn displayed a firm undertone. Starting 1-8c to 5-8c off, the market later scored a slight general rise.

Sugar Sets New High Price Heavy Trading In Steels

NEW YORK, Sept. 11 (Canadian Press). — Price movements in today's stock market were inconclusive with the general body of stocks inclined to drift lower in the absence of public support.

Sugars gave one of the best demonstrations of group strength with buying influenced by improved trade reports and the establishment of a new high price for the season by the raw commodity. American beet sugar was up nearly four points.

Despite the fact that the ten leading chain store systems broke all earnings records in the first eight months of the year. Heavy liquidation took place in the G. R. Kinney issues, which broke to new low levels for the years. Steels were heavy. United States Steel Common touched a new low on the current movement at 147, while United States Cast-Iron Pipe broke four points. Most of the oils and motors were sluggish.

Industrial Alcohol and International Nickel were active former gaining one to 73 and latter losing seven eighth to 36 1-2. Maple Leaf common showed strength with jump of 1 3-8 to 68 3-8.

FOX ORCHESTRA SCORES BIG HIT

Radio Organization Heard To Advantage at Chemong.

When Bud Fox and his Presqu'ile Hotel Orchestra, of Pittsburgh, Pa., appeared at Chemong last night a very large crowd of dancers and music lovers enjoyed music such as is seldom heard in Peterborough. The dancers were very enthusiastic and at times refused to leave the floor until the orchestra pacified them with encores. The programme consisted of some of the very fine old-time home songs and the very newest jazz dance hits.

Bud Fox's organization is composed of seven young, clean-looking and versatile musicians, playing 14 instruments, under the management and direction of Bud Fox and Fred Jamison. During the 1925 season the band was featured every night from WJAS, Pittsburgh, from Raybrook Inn, one of Pittsburgh's finest hotels, as well as from Duquesne Gardens, where Canada's representative hockey teams played in the new professional league.

Featuring in the band is Fred Jamison, who directs and plays five different instruments. Bud Fox is an entertaining drummer, whose novelties and acrobatic playing caught the fancy of the dancers. The many instruments used by the band make it possible to use the best arrangements on every number, including "The Girl Friend," "Bye-bye Blackbird," "Barcelona," "Valencia" and the best "Blues" numbers and "Jamison's Ensemble," a small town band selection with every member of the band taking a solo part, was the hit of the evening.

It is understood that the management of the Chemong pavilion has made arrangements to keep the orchestra over for another dance next week.

WOMEN SWIMMERS' CLOTHING CREDITED

LONDON, Sept. 11 (United Press)—Modern fashions in women's clothes are partly responsible for the remarkable channel success of Gertrude Ederle and Mrs. Clemington Corson according to Sir Herbert Barker the famous bone setter and England's leading exponent of sun bathing.

"I have sent my warm congratulations to these intrepid swimmers." said Sir Herbert. The more freely because they illustrate the correctness of my views on modern clothes. Everyone must have noticed that when groups of men and women are bathing it is always the men who leave the water first. While I believe that woman have some inherent power to combat cold which is likely to retain their superior possession, it is clear that their sensible clothing tends to preserve and even enhance that power.

"The sooner we men dispense with our throttling collars our evening shirts like breast plates and our heavy airproof garments the better it will be for us and our offspring."

WOMEN SMUGGLERS DISGUISED AS NUNS

Caught at Richford With Lace Concealed in Clothing.

ST. ALBANS, Vt., Sept. 1. Canadian Press. — Four women dressed as nuns were taken from a Canadian Pacific train at Richford this morning, when a customs inspector found that they had yards of valuable French lace concealed beneath their clothing.

Word was received at the office of the Collector of Customs here that the suspicions of the inspector on the train were aroused when he saw a bit of lace protruding from the garb of one of the women. When the train stopped at Richford they were taken off by customs officers there and were sent over the road by auto to St. Albans to be examined by the wife of the jailer there. The women were said to have boarded the train in Montreal. The first message received here did not disclose their names or destination. Inspectors said, however, that it appeared that they had lace wound around their bodies.

To The Electors:

To my friends who have supported me on different occasions, I ask them to give a better and stronger support to Joe Duffus.

We should not forget that Joe Duffus has supported every worthy local activity and has been a strong and faithful supporter for the last twenty-five years of every candidate who believed in the principles of Liberalism.

I do urge everyone to support a man whose activity, energy, and driving-power mark him as one of the outstanding men of the country.

Joe Duffus has helped not only with his money, but also has been generous with his time in assisting organizations and movements which were beneficial to all classes and groups of people.

This constituency, including this growing City, is entitled to and should have the energetic and faithful service of Joe Duffus, whose sound judgment and tremendous energy have brought success to every movement in which he has participated.

He has pledged himself to insist upon Old Age Pensions being passed at an early date, and has promised to vote for reducing taxation and making it easier for people to live.

I ask all my friends to, not only support Joe Duffus by their votes, but to actively urge others to vote for him and make his selection, as our Member of the House of Commons, absolutely certain.

Yours faithfully,

G. N. GORDON

Some Things Mr. Duffus Forgot to Mention

Mr. Duffus, in his speech at the Grand Opera House, last night was loud in his admiration for what he termed the backbone displayed by the King Government in connection with the visit of the Oshawa deputation last Spring.

According to his version of the incident, Mr. King stuck to his guns, the deputation went home and everything has been lovely in the automobile industry ever since.

But Mr. Duffus forgot to mention one thing—and the most important of all.

As an automotive dealer, he should have known it, too.

He forgot to tell his audience that Mr. King took a back alley way of restoring to the Canadian Automobile Manufacturers the protection the original Robb Budget had taken away from them.

The King Government didn't stick to its guns—it weakened; but to save its face, it followed its usual tactics by setting up a screen of smoke.

It allowed the tariff cut to remain, but here's the thing Mr. Duffus forgot to explain—it made up the difference to the Canadian Manufacturer by remitting the luxury tax on cheaper automobiles made in Canada and keeping it on the American-made cars, and by remitting customs duties on raw materials, parts, etc.

The original Robb Budget, which Mr. Duffus apparently sought to have his audience believe had been maintained by Mr. King despite the Oshawa deputation, would have seriously menaced the greatest of Canadian industrial undertakings.

But the King Government, fortunately for the hundred thousand people whose livelihood depended upon the Canadian automobile plants lost its nerve and by turning the luxury tax into a protective duty, restored the protection it had taken off in a different form, the six per cent being taken out of the Dominion Treasury.

Mr. Duffus forgot some other things, too.

He forgot to tell his audience that the Old Age Pensions Bill that he praised so highly was nothing but a sham. Just so much waste paper, because it could only have been put into effect with the consent of the provinces, who were to have paid half of the cost and whose approval had never been sought by Mr. King.

As a matter of fact, it is said that at least seven provinces would have refused to enter into the plan.

Voters who want to see Old Age Pensions in force in Canada had better vote for Mr. Meighen, who has promised to bring in a real pensions bill, and West Peterborough Electors can help bring the plan closer by supporting E. A. PECK, THE MEIGHEN CANDIDATE.

UNCLE WIGGILY

Todays' Bedtime Story

By Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE WOGGLEJIGS

(Copyright, McClure Syndicate.)

Once upon a time, as Uncle Wiggily Longears was hopping through the woods, he chanced to see a cute little house that looked somewhat like his own.

Hello!" exclaimed the rabbit gentleman to himself, what have we here? Some one is building a house so nearly like mine I might make a mistake, some night, and go in. Perhaps that is why they did it—to humbug me. I had better be careful!"

So Uncle Wiggily was carefully hopping past the queer little house, thinking perhaps the Fuzzy Fox or the Woozie Wolf had made it to play a trick on him

Once I went in there by mistake, they'd have me!" thought the bunny rabbit gentleman.

But as he passed the cute little place, all of a sudden he heard tiny voices coming from it—voices he knew did not belong to the Fox, Wolf or Bob Cat.

Where's my head?" one voice called.

Well, I'm sure," cried a third voice, that I put my right leg on the mantel, but it isn't here now."

Mother, please make Meezie give me my tail! He's got it on and he says it's his!"

It is my tail, too!" cried a boy's voice. Gazie's tail is under the piano!"

Goodness me!" gasped Uncle Wiggily, leaning against a sassafras bush in his surprise. This is the strangest thing I ever heard of. Some creatures mislaying their heads and legs, and getting mixed up about their tails! I wonder who they are?"

And then, out of the queer little house there rolled a fat, round little man made of wood. His head was wooden, as was his body and he had short little arms of wooden pegs. He could not seem to walk, having no legs, so he just rolled his fat little body on its round edge, for he was round like a barrel.

Oh, hello! Who are you?" asked Uncle Wiggily. And why have you built a bungalow so nearly like mine? I might be humbugged and go in by mistake."

You are quite welcome to come in," said the little man with a smile on his painted, wooden face, but you would not be humbugged. In fact, this is not exactly a bungalow."

It is made of a stump as mine is said the bunny rabbit.

Yes I know said the little man smiling more than ever. But I call it a bungleump. You see it is part bungalow and part stump so of course it's a bungle ump!

Oh of course yes! agreed Uncle Wiggily. But who lives in it?

The Wogglejigs was the answer. Wogglejigs?

Yes Wogglejigs. Ho little boy and girl Wogglejigs come out and let Uncle Wiggily see you called the man whose name was Boppy. He was the keeper of the Wogglejigs, who were queer little animals made of wood.

Their legs are of wood and so are their heads and tails, said Boppy.

Each night when they go to bed they take off their hedds, tails and legs. But in the morning there is always such a rush that things get scrambled and mixed up, and——

Just then a voice cried:

I want to come out and see Uncle Wiggily, but I can t find my tail!

That's Dazie Wogglejig explained

Bopp. She never can seem to find her tail. You don t happen to have a spare wooden tail with you, I suppose? he asked Uncle Wiggily.

No, but here s a short, stumpy lead pencil, offered the bunny.

The very thing! cried Boppy, and into the bungleump he rolled, and a minute later out came stiffly walking on her wooden legs Dazie Wogglejig, with Uncle Wiggily s lead pencil for a tail. And then out came all the other queer Wogglejig animals from the bungleump, having unscrambled themselves and gotten their right tails, legs and heads at last. And very glad they were to see Uncle Wiggily, who was also glad to have such a jolly crowd of happy little creatures living near him.

Later on I may tell you another story of the bunny and the Wogglejigs. But for Monday the story will be about Uncle Wiggily and Boppy—that is, if the pussy willow doesn t purr so loudly in the night that it wakes up the canary bird.

PLANING . BUILDING . FINANCING

The Entrance Hall

(By W. S. Limbery.)

If you were to make a call at your own house, what impressions would the entrance hall give you? Would you not hope to find it inviting and hospitable, and expressing the home life and tastes of the occupants.

First impressions are always important, and it is necessary that the entrance hall, being the first part of the house seen upon entering, should be indicative of what to expect in the rest of the house.

As regards the plan of the entrance hall, the type most frequently used for the moderate-size house is that in which the hall is in the centre of the house, the rooms opening off on either side. On entering the front door all the living rooms on the main floor are open to view, and the stairs are often so near to the entrance, that one feels as if invited to go upstairs and into the sleeping quarters.

Such a disregard of privacy should be guarded against, and some endeavor made in planning to show a decent reticence in regard to that which concerns only ourselves and our family life.

The dining-room door should not be so close to the entrance door as one often sees it, and the stairs should be set well back in the hall in order to give free access to the rooms first used by the visitor.

The hall must be well lighted, and not made to depend solely on the light coming in through the glass panel of the front door. There should be one window at least giving direct light; if it cannot be in the main hall, it may be located on the stair landing where it will give light to the hall on both of the floors.

The stairs being the main feature of the hall, have a great influence in determining its character, and care should be taken to allow ample space for them, so that an easy rise and open head room may be provided, as well as to permit of effective design.

The decorating of the entrance hall should receive the same careful consideration as the plan. As a rule too little thought is given to this important question; the rooms absorbing all of our care, and consequently most of our money.

The entrance hall walls can be rough plastered and painted in oil or water paints, or covered with a fine-grained canvas and then painted; or they may be papered.

The wall tone depends upon the amount of light, the size of the hall, and the colors of the nearby rooms. Tan or buff are always safe colors to use, but either pale gray or putty color will give a more dignified and formal effect; some shades of rose may be used with good results. But only neutral colors should be used in the entrance hall. If the hall is dark use warm ivory, and if too light, gray or tan can be used.

The most suitable papers for the walls are grass-cloths, the vellum finishes, and the stipple tones. Dull gold or silver grass-cloth may be use dwith good effect if it is decided to paint the woodwork in a decided color.

The hall wall should be in one tone reaching from the base to the ceiling, unbroken by bands or borders. In order to make a finish at the top of the wall, a small moulding should be placed on the wall close to the ceiling and painted the same tone as the wall.

The woodwork as a rule should be painted the same tint as the walls, but slightly darker, and dull finish whether paint or enamel. White or ivory always looks well for the woodwork and adds great charm and dignity to the hall.

Colors, such as soft apple green, dull blue or greenish buff may also be used for the woodwork, giving more originality of effect; but care must be taken to see that the wall colors harmonize with the color chosen. Copyright 1926, MacLean Building Reports Limited.

Question: My cellar is too low to be drained by the storm sewer. There is no difficulty excepting in the spring when I have an annual flood. Water backs in through the pipes and comes through the walls. What shall I do?

Install a valve at the sewer line so that when water backs up in the sewer the line may be closed. Then waterproof your foundation floors by applying two coats of hot tar with felt between. Run this up the walls as well. Cover floor and wall with three inches of concrete

DOG SHOW NOTES.

The committee in charge of the Dog Show have been very fortunate in securing a large number of the prize-winning dogs from the Toronto Exhibition. Among these is a miniature Pekingese which caused considerable interest in the Toronto show, it being the smallest dog entered there. This small dog is owned by Mrs. Scott of Toronto, and all lovers of dogs are urged to be sure to see this tiny dog. Amongst the other entries are some famous imported dogs, including Alsatian shepherd dogs and some fine English bull dogs. Dogs have also been entered in large numbers from Detroit and Buffalo.

Peterborough people are also reminded that some of the local dogs are considered equal to any in the country, and are all well worth seeing.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK?

By Edson R. Waite, Shwanee, Okla.

THAT individuality sticks out all over advertised merchandise.

THAT far seeing, careful thinking people read the ads. They know the best is advertised.

THAT it is a well-known fact that stores that advertise handle the highest quality only, and the goods they sell give the greatest amount of satisfaction.

THAT careless acceptance of non-advertised goods on the part of buyers often causes them much grief.

THAT retailers who sell advertised merchandise can easily testify to the ease with which they sell them.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Sir.—The Conservative party was put in a desperate plight when its leader bowed to the will of the Nationalists. Who are these "Nationalists?" What do they want? They want an independent or "National" French-Canadian Republic separate from the rest of Canada, on the banks of the St. Lawrence. Their province occupies the whole Atlantic coast of Canada north of the Maritimes and the U. S. boundary. It is more than twice the size of Ontario and in addition to the mineral riches of Ontario has the sea-fisheries and sea control. Encourage that body of separatists and you ruin Canada. They cannot be bought but control Meighen with the hope of their support at Ottawa. The Empire they hate. In fact they represent just what threatened to ruin Ireland, but Ireland had strong straight men who love their country and would not sell it at any price. Otherwise a desperate body of rebels and robbers would have triumphed. It was because Laurier fought the Nationalists that he was beaten by them in 1911. He had a difficult task and one word of disloyalty would have saved him. But he refused the bait and lies in an honoured grave. Have we no patriots like him in the Conservative party? Time and Tuesday will tell. Remember what the Grand Master of Ulster tells us. Remember what the Grand Master of the Royal Black Knights tells us. Remember the soldiers of the Great War. Remember what Great Britain has said: "If Canada does not wish to share in defence of the Empire we shall have to get along without her."

It p be a proud day for the Conse. arty wouldn't it when it had d itself, its country and its traditions for a mess of power.

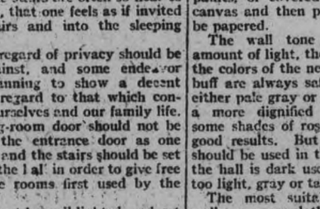
The secret of the success of Helen Wills, the great tennis star, is said to lie in the fact that she plays a man's game. When learning the game on the courts of the Berkeley Tennis Club she played mostly with boys, and she soon found that if she wanted to beat them she would have to play a man's game and not a woman's.

Standardized Quality

Assures Chrysler Superiority of Performance and Value in the Lighter Six

CHRYSLER "60"



CHRYSLER Standardized Quality is a fixed and inflexible quality standard which enforces the same scrupulously close limits—the same rigid rule of engineering exactness—the same absolute accuracy and precision of alignment and assemblage—in the measurement, the machining and the manufacturing of every part, practice and process in four lines of Chrysler Cars—"50", "60", "70" and Imperial "80".

It is because of this standardization of quality that the Chrysler "60" gives its sixty miles, and more, per hour; unprecedented get-away; gas economy of 26 miles and more per gallon; the smartness of Chrysler beauty; astonishing riding ease and roadability; the safety of Chrysler four-wheel hydraulic brakes; oil-filter and air-cleaner; full pressure lubrication; seven-bearing crankshaft; impulse neutralizer; road levelizers front and rear; roomy, luxurious bodies.

Never before has the motoring public been offered such supreme quality and value—in the field of the lower-priced six. For no other manufacturer has been able to achieve Quality Standardization with its inescapable advantages which enable even the inexperienced motorist to buy the highest-priced or lowest-priced Chrysler with the assurance that the value in each is unquestionable.

See the lighter six, Chrysler "60". Drive it. Convince yourself that nowhere will you find a six in the lower-priced field that can begin to compare with this great Chrysler achievement.

"Now I come to something which pains me exceedingly; I wish I could get out of saying it and I have come to the place where I almost wish I had gone to Europe the other morning; it would have been much more comfortable. I have, however, IN AGONY reached the conclusion that the late government was well aware for quite a period of time—possibly from March to November— that all was not well in the Customs Department. It is possible that they knew that Bisaillon was the head of the Montreal underworld and chief preventive officer at one and the same time. I AM AFRAID IT IS TRUE THAT IT WAS NOT UNTIL THE STEVENS MOTION WAS MOOTED that the eleven charges which had been laid against Bisaillon were investigated, and I believe it is true that Mr. Duncan was able to secure the arrest of Mr. Bisaillon four days after he was really given authority to do so."

Sir Robert Muir Mackenzie, above, is somewhat disturbed at the signs of international discord he has observed in his American travels. The Americans don't seem to like the Canadians, and the Canadians don't seem to like the Americans. The Americans call the Canadians 'Blue-noses' and say they are mean," he announced in an interview in Montreal this week. He is the sixth baronet of his line. A baronet since the age of 18 months, he is now nine years old.

Much attention has been attracted to this portrait of the King, which was one of the art exhibits at the National Exhibition. It has excited much comment, and for one thing, brings out most strikingly the resemblance between His Majesty, and his first cousin, the late Tsar of Russia.

The German battle cruiser, Hindenburg, scuttled by its own crew to prevent surrender at the close of the great war, is being salvaged by British engineers. The picture shows the vessel raised almost to normal floating position, with guns and armor rusted and coated with barnacles.

"Trudie" in Gotham. Gertrude Ederle, flowers and all, arrives home to be greeted by thousands in a typical New York flourish. Of all the rumors surrounding the famous swimmer, one thing at least seems certain: her offers, theatrical and otherwise, run into the millions. There was a report from Germany that she might wed Ernst Vierkotter, who bettered her record, but Vierkotter's wife, a good swimmer herself, spiked this rumor.

An interesting incident during the Canadian trip of the Marquis of Salisbury, lord privy seal and leader of the House of Lords in the Baldwin cabinet, and the Marchioness was the visit of the distinguished statesman to the Toronto House of 'Toc H. His lordship lighted for the first time the lamp presented to the house by Lord "Tubby" Clayton, guiding spirit of the organization. Lady Salisbury and Mrs. Cockshutt, wife of the lieutenant-governor of Ontario, were guests of the house, and the photo shows, left to right, Lady Salisbury, Mrs. H. H. Langton, president of the League of Lady Helpers, and Mrs. Cockshutt.

His lordship thinks drastic reform of the British House of Lords is necessary. He says that leaders on both sides were responsible for the recent coal strike.

Explosion of a bomb carried by a holdup man, who is believed to have been demented, wrecked the interior of the Farmer's Bank building at Pittsburgh, Pa., and killed the holdup man and a bank employee. The man had the bomb in a suitcase, and it exploded when the employee grappled with him after he had demanded $2000. Damage to the bank is estimated at $150,000. The large photo shows the interior of the bank after the blast; inset shows police carrying out the bodies of the dead.

Sir Thomas Lipton, the great yachting knight, is here shown in his favorite role. The Cowes regatta opened with a great splurge at Calshot, England, recently, when many wonderful yachts and old-time enthusiasts gathered for the racing events. His Majesty the King was at the scene, on board the Britannia, as was also Sir Thomas Lipton at the wheel of his Shamrock, taking part during regatta week.

While on the job she wears overalls. She is remarkably agile, as may be seen in the picture, which shows her returning to work from lunch across a three-inch beam as if it were a sidewalk.

Peterborough bids you welcome to its Exhibition—the largest between Toronto and Ottawa. This is not a small undertaking sponsored by a few men, but is a big enterprize in which all the people of Peterborough city and county and many in other counties are vitally interested. It has been climbing year by year until last year the attendance in four days was 36,212 paid admissions. Contrary to the practice in other places, Peterborough Exhibition does not count passes or membership tickets, but only actual paid admissions, which are checked up automatically and accurately by turnstiles at the gates, which count and add the number passing in.

The objective for 1925 was set at 30,000. The previous high record was 27,040, made in 1924. It was thought that 30,000 would be a conservative figure, and one satisfactory to the directors in view of several new features attempted for the first time. But the people of Peterborough county were not held down by the objective. They passed it on the third day, and when the directors set a new mark at which to aim on the fourth day the people broke that too.

Last Year's Record

(Paid Admissions Only, No Passes Counted)

First day—Children	4,149
Adults	5,642
Second day	8,191
Third day	9,300
Fourth day	8,930

MAKE IT 40,000 IN 1926!

An endeavour will be made this year to reach the 40,000 mark. For the first time in 1926 there will be a full week of the Exhibition. It will open on Monday and close late on Saturday night. There are special features for every day, and no person can expect to see the whole exhibition in one day, or even in two. The midway alone demands a day and an evening, as those who attended the last fair will admit. Boyd and Linderman's Mighty Midway has added several new rides and many new features to those carried last year.

The children are again being catered to. They will be admitted for five cents on Tuesday and Friday afternoons, and on Tuesday they may occupy the grand stand free for the vaudeville performance and sports. On that day, too, there will be races in which they may compete for valuable prizes, followed by a grand display of daylight fireworks.

This is expansion year, and Peterborough is glad to welcome its visitors to help in pushing Peterborough Exhibition to a new record. It's a great Exhibition; one that must be seen to be appreciated.

Let's all go!

A Criticism Of The Dog Show Catalogue - - By Herold

The catalog of the dog show does not do justice to its subject. (Catalog of the Third Annual Dog Show at Peterborough Exhibition.)

The show itself is an affair of the heart. Multiply your own dog by two thousand and you will have some idea of its emotional dimensions. (There is not a dull moment in it from start to finish; it is full of pep from the first bark to the final howl; clean, wholesome, refreshing; we need more of this sort of entertainment.)

But I had not read two pages of the catalog of the show until I realized that it is dull and dry, almost statistical, cold where it should be warm, curt and cutting where it should be sympathetic-all-o comprehensive, unanimated where it should be lively, a completely inadequate and trivial treatment of a magnificent theme—in short, a flop.

Let me select a paragraph at random:

818. Chappaqua Kennels. Champion Chappaqua Diety, 416,380. By Ch Point Magic Artist—the Wild Woman. December 27, 1922. Breeder, Leonard Brumby.

I personally inspected No. 818 and I will say that never has an author so neglected his opportunities. Here was a vibrant little soul of a dog, eager for the caresses forbidden by the frequent warning signs, inviting, beguiling, eyes sparkling, entire body aflame, tail going thousands of wags a minute, and see how our author has dismissed the whole phenomenon with a lifeless paragraph—the paragraph I have quoted.

There may be a hint of romance in the brief mention of Diety's parentage. Who was this Wild Woman, the mother of our subject? There in itself was a matter into which our author might have gone for several pages, but he is inhumanly persistent in his neglect of heart-interest possibilities. It is a book depressing in its repeated disappointments. It is a bum book.

416,380' It is as degraded a profanation as calling a divine piece of music Opus 927-495-421—a practice that I have repeatedly denounced in my musical essays for that famous magazine of the arts, 'Ukulele and Zither.'

Imagine calling your dog: "Here, 416,380!"

That sort of thing is all right for Fords—but not for music or dogs.

I was at the dog show last year and the show itself made me a boy again—but there was no such resuscitating power in the book. I have a dog, but the show made me look forward to the day when I can have at least nine more. I want som wire-haired terriers, which have more kilowags per ounce of dog than any other species, I believe. I want some Irish terriers which are something like wire-hairs except that they do not soil the first five minutes after their bath. I want some sealyhams to break my heart when it needs it, with those large appealing eyes. I want some scotties, with their funny horizontality. I want a $500 beagle hound because even a $500 beagle hound looks like a $5 dog. I want a St. Bernard to lend grandeur to my estate (though I understand that at meal time they are as expensive as chorus girls). And to round out my collection I want a Springer spaniel, or two.

Or what have you got to offer?

Of course this dream can not come true until I strike alcohol on my farm, for it will require a retinue of servants to herd these hounds. Our one dog, "Chowser," requires a retinue.

I don't know whether I want an English sheep dog or not. They are the weeping willow dog, and you can not see their eyes unless you gouge around with a comb and brush, and after all it is the eyes and tail of a dog that are the dog.

The only dog that I do not want (as I see it now) is a police dog. They do not seem to me yet to have got the dog idea—that is, of increasing the world's supply of amiability. I have never been eaten by a police dog, either in whole or in part, but I thought I saw several at the show who were looking knives and forks at me. Are they as sinister as they seem?

Of course, police dogs may be good watchdogs, but I have never thought much of the watchdog idea. I would rather decide for myself (beforehand and not afterwards) which of my guests shall be torn limb from limb. In some cases it would be quite the proper thing.

For my part, I would just as soon have my dog greet even a burglar with cordiality. I think it might have a good effect on a burglar to have a dog wag into the room jovially with a sort of "Are you Santa Claus?" look in his eyes. There are two ways of handling hard men.

Indeed I see no harm in putting up a "Beware the Dogs" sign, even if it is only a pomeranian that you possess. Intruders may get the impression, when they see your two-pound pomeranian, that you have a bevy of bloodhounds in the background. That is fair enough. Your friends will know better.

Some day I hope to attend a great show of mutt dogs and will chip in and help hire Peterborough Exhibition for it.

I am through with all dog show catalogs until one is written by some body who can put some dog soul into it. But I can be found in the dog tent any day of the show next week.

PASTORAL.

Your limpid eyes gaze into mine;
I stroke your soft and shining hair.
Ah, soon, my dear, we two shall dine
Together on some hillside fair.
Aloof from toil and maddened mob
On nature's breast we'll rest alone—
Where I shall lunch on duck and squab,
And you, my dog, shall have a bone.

But—she thinks I should stay in there, too. —Edwin Rutt.

Second Laborer—I'd sooner be up there with it than without it, anyway. —Toronto Goblin.

USELESS, OF COURSE

Lace pockets are a novel touch on the new chiffon frocks—usually dyed to match the exact shade of the frock.

VERY YOUTHFUL

ENGLISH FASHION

The knitted topcoat is very much liked for sport wear, and often accompanies a silk frock of exactly the same shade.

VELVET BAND

FRENCH INSPIRATION

Diamond shoulder straps give a formal air to a very simple evening frock of layers of rose colored chiffon.

SPARKLING EARS

Since black chiffon and black lace have become so popular for evening, the diamond earring has been re-established in the mode.

BOOST THE EXHIBITION!

Make It 40,000

What It Means To Peterboro

By C.J.Beauclerc.

An organization which brings together thousands of citizens of a city and the surrounding country, enabling them to exhibit their products, is one of great benefit to the city where it is held. This is what the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition does. Its effects are many.

First there is the matter of mutual harmony and respect. The farmer comes in to attend the fair, bringing, it may be, his cattle, or some grain to exhibit. He finds that the city man, even though engaged all day in operating a machine or selling goods, is not scornful of his rural brother's efforts, but has a hearty respect for the brains and energy required to produce good grain or animals, and more than a superficial knowledge of what they mean to him. Consequently he realizes that the urban dweller is genuinely interested and his respect for him is increased.

The farmer and his city cousin both go to the midway. They laugh at the same sideshows, try the same games of skill. They discover that, all joke books to the contrary notwithstanding, the farmer is not a rube to be stung or laughed at, and the city man is not looking for opportunities to do either of these. Friendship and genuine affection are increased.

In the grandstand, watching the horse races and vaudeville performances, there is little difference discernible, and the bonds are still further cemented.

When the farmer visits the exhibits made by the manufacturers of the city he discovers that they are striving to make things of benefit to him and are always willing to help him. The demonstrators explain to him how he can improve the tillage of his lands, care better for his animals, make his chores easier, and lessen his wife's household cares. They show him how he can have all the conveniences in his home that he finds in the finest urban dwelling.

All these things promote harmony, respect, and affection between the dwellers of the city and the surrounding district, which makes for more enjoyment, not only at the fair, but at all gatherings where city and country people meet.

The greater knowledge of each other's work and amusements which is gained through the fair has many advantages to the city. The farmer finds the city man a fine fellow to deal with and comes in to do his trading here instead of using the mail order catalogue. This means increased prosperity to the merchants and manufacturers, and as a result to their employees and all who have dealings with them.

The farmer, in his increased friendship, thinks over the proposals, municipal, provincial, or Dominion, put forward by the city dweller and views them from another standpoint. He sees that they are not always purely selfish in motive and may see his way clear to assist in gaining these ends or may modify his own wishes to effect a compromise.

There are more direct ways in which the city benefits financially by the fair. There are exhibitors who come from long distances and have to board here. There are supplies for the performers and entertainers, including both the Midway people and the grandstand performers. The fair board itself buys a great many things in the city, besides giving employment to many men as watchmen, ticket takers, and others in other occupations.

The people who come to the city do not spend all their time at the fair grounds. To many families living many miles from the city it gives an opportunity to do some shopping, maybe to buy clothing and other supplies for the whole winter. Those who are more frequently in town will look over the store windows and stroll around inside, and the coffers of the merchants will take their share of the financial gain to the city.

The manufacturers who have exhibits on the grounds will share in the prosperity. Farmers who never see an implement salesman from one year's end to the next will see the latest fittings and appliances and when they decide to purchase will remember those they saw demonstrated at the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition. The automobile salesmen have a chance to greet their prospective clients when they are in a receptive mood and many a sale will result.

Peterborough's merchants also have their displays at the grounds and the man who would not go into a department store with his wife sees the clothing or appliances on display at the grounds and their advantages can be pointed out to him. As a result friend wife gets what she wants and the dealer and his salesman have their profit. The factory sells more and the employees all along the line benefit.

Then there is the mental gain from the fair. Forgotten for a few hours are the turmoil of the factory, the toil of the harvest, the bickering and excitement of the election. Recreation and entertainment take their places. The money earned so hardly during past days changes hands for side show stands, the patter of hoofs on the race tracks and the cries of farm stock far from their familiar stalls and fields. Perhaps it is not peaceful, as relief from the toil and sounds of every day existance should be, but it is change, and a change is as good as a rest. Even the man who does not gain financially is at peace with all the world and who shall say whether his gain is not better than any o her?

ELECTION RETURNS AT THE FAIR

The Exhibition Board has arranged to announce all election returns at the Grandstand on Tuesday evening. The returns will be flashed on a large screen so that everyone in the Grandstand can see.

The service will be the complete Canadian Press service by special telegraph wire to the Exhibition Grounds.

The Examiner will have an army of newsboys at the Fair Grounds, selling extras as they are issued. These will give complete returns from West Peterborough, Hastings-Peterborough, Victoria, South Hastings, Northumberland, Durham, and from all of Canada. The extras will be numbered 1, 2, 3, etc., as they are issued and will be sold at the usual price, three cents each.

HAIRDRESSING

There seems no trend in favor of long hair, and the most smartly dressed women are closely shingled. Occasionally part of the hair is allowed to be long enough to be worn in biscuits over the ears.

VERY DASHING

The new military cape that fastens cavalier fashion on the shoulder, is to be seen in chiffon and brocade as well as in more serious fabrics.

UNPUBLISHED INTERVIEWS

The Plumber s Helper.

I found the Plumber's Helper comfortably ensconced in an armchair on the secoid floor of the Gasfitters' Literary Society. Always a diffident person, I shyly approached this resplendent personage. Just then he looked up. "Glad to see you," he heartily greeted me. "Have a cigar. What can I do for you?"

"Ah, that's a sad story," he answered as a tear dropped on his immaculate shirt bosom. "The first union plumber was Lemuel Hedges, who took out his union card in London back in King Arthur's time. Just as soon as Lem started his first union job, a suit of armour fell on his head, causing contusion of the brain and later complete loss of memory.

"Lem soon discovered that his unfortunate accident was really a blessing in disguise, for he had to quit a job seven or eight times a day to go back to his castle for tools, thereby increasing his earnings.

"The Medieval Plumber's Local Number Three soon recognized the value of a good crack on the bean and from that day on, every plumber, upon receiving his union card, is hit a resounding whack on the left temple with a baseball bat or sledge hammer. Complete loss of memory results, but financial independence is assured. Tell your readers that there is no malice or premeditation in the breast of the simple plumber. His poor memory is a physiological heritage. Have another cigar?"

"No, thanks," I gasped, turning a pale, sickly green as I dashed for the fresh air, "I'm going to have somebody rap me on the bean and then join the union."

—Arthur L. Lippmann.

I KNOW A GIRL——

She thinks a stage is merely an old-fashioned vehicle, that klieg lights are officers in the Ku Klux Klan, that the box-office is a carpenter shop and proscenium a new kind of floor covering, but she loves the theater—everything about it.

She was talking about "The Miracle." She hasn't seen it yet, but she says she wouldn't miss it for the world, because she hasn't missed a thing so far that Houdini has done.

She thinks Ibsen is a kind of medicinal salts, Gilbert and Sullivan a couple of prize fighters and that Maeterlinck's a golf course.

She also informed me that she liked opera. Carmen, she said, was her favorite because some of her best friends were conductors and motormen. They would be. She thinks Pagliacci is a kind of candy and that Caruso is what the rooster out on the farm did every morning before a flivver ran over it.

tickets, hot dogs, chances in games, grandstand seats, souvenirs, and many other commodities dealt in on the grounds. Parents are children in fancy once again as they pilot the little ones around, show them the farm exhibits, the factory exhibits, the fine clothes, the horse races, and all the sights of the fair. The rattle and roar of the machinery of production are blotted from the mind by the shouts of the barkers, the sizzle of fat in the hot dog

What The Fair Does For The Country

By WILLIAM EDGAR.

The industrial exhibition and agricultural fair has always had a value to the community, county or province, in exact proportion to the support given it and the interest taken in it by the community. It is the old story of getting out of a thing what one puts into it. This stands true for all exhibitions, but Ontario in general and Peterborough in particular can view exhibition history with a certain complacency, for the tale on the whole is one of steady progress built upon the keen support of city and country both as exhibitor and steady patron.

The strong country fair has been the foundation upon which all other agricultural exhibitions have been built, but the structure that has been raised upon it has, in several centres, through natural growth and expansion, added new types of exhibits, a much widened prize-list, a varied educational display taking in all the multitudinous manufacturing interests, displays of natural resources development, and amusement attractions beyond the most widely stretched imagination of the old-time fair director. It is at this type of big exhibition that the knitting together of country and city folk makes the greatest headway. No visitor to the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition can fail to see there the interchange of ideas regarding the life and work of city dweller and farmer.

For it is not the amusement to be found at the exhibition that makes it the big event in the civic year. It is not the gay spectacle of thronged flag-draped avenues; the music of the bands; the well-filled buildings; none of these things tells the whole story. The big idea is to gather citizens of all walks of life in order that the achievements of every productive class of worker may be seen and appreciated; and incidentally to furnish the show room for those who desire to market the product of their hand and brain.

The manufacturer, the live-stock breeder, the retailer of every description of goods are all given excellent opportunities of advertising their wares.

Canada is so vast that the dweller in Ontario without the aid of this greatest of technical schools, this lecture hall for the masses, is unable to comprehend even the great work of production and construction that is going on within the confines of his province alone. The average farmer, held to his acres throughout the greater part of the twelve months by the nature of his occupation, is one to whom the services of the big exhibition come as a special boon. There he sees his country in miniature. Each building and show-ring is a living, talking text-book, and he may tarry as long as he pleases at a page, with an instructor in the form of an exhibit attendant ready at hand to expand the theme. When farmers flock to the great exhibition in their tens of thousands who can deny that the enterprise is worth its place in the programme of the year for its value from this aspect alone?

As a show-room for the products of the farm, the fair is unique. It is a great centre for the bringing together of all that is best from the farm; a place where the buyer can compare quality and buy on that basis, and the grower can establish his reputation as a producer of high-quality goods. There is a place for everything—grains, live stock, vegetables, fruits, dairy products; the whole gamut of the offspring of the soil. There are many great markets for agricultural produce in these days of mass-marketing, stock yards, specially organized live stock sales, and co-operative organizations of many types; but it is to be questioned whether these have as yet out-pointed the big fairs of the province as a means of establishing markets or of disposing to the best advantage of the high-class products of the farm. The successful competitor at a fair has seldom need to wait long for a buyer. His advertising has been accomplished through the prize-taking, and has made its impression on the watchful men who are there to gather up quality goods.

But it is its educational value that has made the fair a big factor in developing the agriculture of the province. This side of the fair's activities far outweighs its actual money-making worth; and this most decidedly is as it should be. The small fair is not behind in this regard. No one who has had a hand in the planning and actual direction of a country fair will deny that the often strenuous, committee work needed to bring the affair to a successful conclusion is a valuable training in executive ability and managership. Throughout the province, there are scores of men holding high positions of trust whose first training in public administration, whose first start towards wider executive work, has been secured in the local fair committee. The book of education is not opened only to the busy executive. The activities of the healthy fair touch all classes of the community down to the boy or girl exhibitor who has spent months planning and working to attain a good showing in the prize taking.

It is a well established principle of education that lessons learned by sight or feel are more readily retained than those learned in more abstract form, and for this reason the fair, whether large or small, can be made a powerful influence toward agricultural improvement in its district. The large fair undoubtedly will bring out products of higher type than will the smaller, but to offset this the small local fairs will secure a larger attendance, in the aggregate, than the larger fairs can command. Moreover, friendly competition is of even greater value in teaching improvement in product than is mere observation, and it is readily understood that many people will compete at their own local fair who would not think of taking their entries to a larger fair—at least until they had had some experience in showing. In these ways the fairs of Ontario are doing a vast amount of good.

To increase one's general knowledge there is nothing like travelling, but to most of us, the privilege of extensive trips by land or sea is denied. For such, frequent visits to the various exhibitions are good substitutes.

Mr. H. S. Arkell, Dominion Live Stock Commissioner, has the following to say regarding the part the fair has played in developing the agriculture of the province, particularly from the educational standpoint.

"In past years," says Mr. Arkell, "our agriculture was not well organized. We were following pioneer days, and our people, after hewing their business out of the forest, turned to the fairs as the great illustrator of the development of live stock. The county fair and the larger provincial fair represented the basis of education as regards live stock problems the basis of distribution of knowledge regarding live stock work. Our young men, our boys, and our old men came together at the show-ring and learned what they could regarding animal form, regarding the points of a good beast, and regarding methods of feeding. If I am not mistaken, the reputation of the Peterboro Industrial Exhibition and its success can largely be attributed to the service it has given the country from this point of view, and it is to-day a real factor in providing a get-together movement among the farmers, and a distributing centre for all the best stock the men have to sell."

There have been great changes in the make-up of our fairs since their pioneer days. The farm is no longer the self-contained unit it once was. The rapid growth of cities and expansion of markets; the problems of production and marketing brought largely through the open competition between country and country made possible by the growth of railways and ocean traffic have put upon the fairs new and greater demands for assistance. Upon whether they find these demands or lag behind depends the measure of their success or failure. The livest are now fulfilling their established work of educator. The prize-lists are carefully arranged to include commercial classes so defined as to exhibit the market demands. Winnings in the live stock arena are no longer made solely from the fancy standpoint or the viewpoint of the pure-bred breeder. The stock yard administrator, wholesaler, dealer, and marketing arranging the prize-lists. Displays are arranged for from government experimental agencies; and to complete its work, the fair more and more is developing its show-window side wherein lies the possibilities for advertising the country's development for establishing new channels of trade, and for demonstrating to the farm how the current of consumer-demand is sweeping.

Those Federal and Provincial departments which have to do with the administration of the country's agriculture find in the fairs an ideal location for demonstrating to the farmer new and improved methods of production and of marketing. Many thousands of dollars are spent annually in arranging exhibits for this purpose, and the money is well spent. Taking as an example of this government extension work a year's programme carried out in 1923 by the Division of Extension and Publicity of the Dominion Experimental Farms, we find that this one branch of the Federal Department of Agriculture exhibited at 134 fall and winter fairs and special agricultural shows throughout the Dominion; many of these were in the Province of Ontario. Back of this big project is the firm conviction that the fairs offer the best medium for reaching and teaching the great non-reading public, and those too occupied to search through bulletins, some little idea of the best practices for increasing the money-making power of the Ontario farm.

Did fairs do nothing else than provide a place where healthy recreation and rousing competitive sports could be had, they would, perhaps for this alone have deserved the support that has been theirs throughout a hundred years. Country folk have all too few opportunities for gathering together for a full day's holiday. We have dwelt upon the educational value of the fair at perhaps undue length. This for two reasons: one, that statistics and concrete examples are ready at hand, and the other, because education in its broadest sense is of the greatest importance. But take away the fair and the fun of the fair, with its family picnic side, and you will have left a gap that will take a nimbler brain to fill than amusement planners have yet displayed. The substitute would need be some activity that would provide a holiday, sport, education, and general get-together, all built around the spirit of pride in occupation. The substitute will be hard to find; and the fair seems destined to be in the future as in the past, one of the most potent of all influences upon the agricultural and industrial life of the province.

A CHARADE

I am found in great numbers in cities and hamlets throughout this grand and glorious country.

I am not a student of zoology, yet I am familiar with the names, haunts and habits of many strange and rare bird and beasts, such as the zebu, the gnu, the osprey, the okapi, the guagga, the ruff, the emu, and others too numerous and hard to spell to mention, which are found only in uncivilized localities, in well-stocked zoos and in unabridged dictionaries (and then with difficulty).

The female of my species may be discovered of a Sunday afternoon in the library with pencils and erasers attempting to squeeze a word of eight letters into a space meant for five—but never in the kitchen helping with the dishes after the Sunday dinner.

I am the citizen who used to consume on an average of four and two-thirds Eskimo pies daily (rain or snine).

The perplexities of the income tax blank are as nothing to me.

If nothing else worth mentioning, I am at least persistent.

What am I?

To get attractions each year so that every person who visits the Industrial Exhibition will find the thing he or she delights in is the big problem that faces the board of directors of the great fair. This year, being expansion year, the directors have a program of amusements that will be hard to surpass anywhere in this country for a fair of its class. Some people enjoy watching the horse races, others spend their whole time in the midway trying out their prowess in the various rendezvous of the "speculators," others attend the shows, many go to see the vaudeville, and still others enjoy most looking at the various exhibits. But this year everyone will find just what he or she loves most and there they can spend their whole time if they so desire.

Lovers of thrills always get plenty of joy when they visit the midway, and this year is going to be no exception for the Boyd and Linderman's Mighty Midway Shows are coming again, with the addition of several new acts and rides, including a Water Circus and a new Hey-Dey Ride. The entire program is going to be on a bigger scale than ever before attempted. The board of directors has always endeavoured to keep faith with its patrons in providing those amusements which can give the least offence, and the Boyd and Linderman collective amusements will be found to conform to this standard. These shows stood the test of last year and gave enjoyment to large crowds with their enlivening and colorful acts and strangers may be assured that they may enter any one of the many shows with an assurance that they will find their joy-producing capabilities more than worth while. The thrills of other years will be lost in the visit to the biggest midway that has ever visited this city, and it is going to be without parallel in the history of the Exhibition. The popular rides, including the ferris wheel, an old favourite with all ages, the merry-go-round, the caterpillar, the most entertaining of the newer rides, the merry mix-up and the whip and many other joy-making rides.

One show that has ever been popular in Canada is the wild west show, for it depicts scenes which are near to every Canadian out-door lover. But the show for real thrills will be found in the motor-drome when you see riders demonstrating their skill coming within inches of the top of the bowl, going at least sixty miles an hour. The circus freaks and the funny playhouse for children which is known as Figg's Bungalow will also be along, and scores of other games and wheels of fortune.

In front of the grand stand many acts of splendid vaudeville are on the program, including the Lampham's Band, one of the finest musical organizations in North America. The band is going to be assisted by Miss Elizabeth Roderick, a favourite in vaudeville, who will introduce her original "Saxovola," an instrument played like a violin but with greater tonal qualities. Then there is the famous old family buzz-wagon, for it is a great comedy act; also there is always that which gives you real thrills when you see athletes of unusual ability balancing themselves on lofty perches and ladders and performing dizzy human whirlwind evolutions.

The Flying Floyds, who are wonderful aerial artists will perform the most amazing somersaults, twisters, cutaways and pirouettes with ease. The last act is the Sir Franz Troupe of comedy cyclists which consists of two men and two girls who will ride on various types of bicycles, unicycles and giraffs.

Fireworks.

This year the board is putting on five grand displays of fireworks, when people will be able to see all kinds of rockets, giant windmills, aerial bombs, and many other displays.

The horse racing is divided into five classes and the races are to be run on the last three days of the fair, with five heats in each race. The best of horses in the province are to be present for there are classes for all speeds.

With all these forms of amusement, the people of Peterborough and surrounding district who attend the Industrial Exhibition on expansion year, will be assured of seeing the best Exhibition ever, and to feel that it is the greatest and biggest in the history of this city.

YEP!

My roommate looked over at me and said he knew why I looked so seedy.

"Why?" I asked.

"Because you don't take a cold shower every morning," he replied. "You ought to."

"Yeah, and be late for chapel."

"Get up earlier."

"Huh."

"No, kid," he went on, "a cold shower puts hair on your chest."

"I don't want to be reminded of my simian ancestry," I responded, in my most Bryanesque manner.

"I admit it's kind of hard at first," continued my roommate inexorably. "But after the first week or so you feel like a new man. Gosh, you go around glowing with health, all pepped up: you eat more, you sleep better, and you can study like a fool. It makes a man of you, it gives you a new feeling, a new spring in your step, a new clearness in your eyes: it will make . . ."

"How long," I interrupted, "have you been taking cold showers?"

"I start tomorrow."
—Bowdoin Bear Skin.

WAXED FLOORS.

I like waxed floors.

After I rewaxed and polished ours the other week, a neighbor who "just ran in to see if I could use your phone for a moment" for the fifteen thousand nine hundred and seventeenth time slipped on the glassy surface and had to be carried home unconscious.

The plumber who came to replace a section of leaky water pipe, and grossly overcharged me, lost his footing at the head of the cellar stairs. I don't think I ever saw a man fall harder. They say he will be able to leave the hospital in two weeks.

A woman, who was collecting funds with which to establish free beauty parlors for Hottentot girls, sat down unexpectedly in the hall and slid halfway to the kitchen door. She left at once, laughing hysterically.

Uncle Harry, who regularly invites himself to visit us for an indefinite period every year, forgot to be careful on the landing and descended the remaining stairs in a very unconventional fashion. He hid not miss a single tread. I know because I counted thirteen distinct thumps. Next morning I helped him out to the taxi that was to take him to the station.

As I said before, I like waxed floors.

HOW TO REMOVE THINGS FROM THE EYE.

First, blink the eye rapidly.

When this fails, pull the lid down over the eye, roll the eye upwards and wait for a minute or so. Then remove fingers from eyelid. Repeat.

When this fails, hold the nose and cough. After three coughs, sneeze, still holding the nose.

If this fails, close the other eye—not the one which hurts—and rub the lid gently toward the nose. This will set up a sympathetic motion in the other eye and automatically remove the offending cinder or horseshoe or whatever is in the eye.

When this fails, try rolling the eye rapidly around in circles, saying "Ah," at the same time. This is very interesting to all who may happen to be watching you.

—California Pelican.

BLACK AND PINK

Black chiffon and pink satin or pink chiffon is one of the most dependable combinations of this season. Pink is also used very effectively with navy blue.

FLOWER AT WRIST

One of the very feminine conceits of the mode is the use of the flower bracelet—a flower the color of one's frock, is slipped into one's bracelet or a ribbon band allowed to fall over the hand. Needless to state, this style is only for evening.

GIVE COLOR CONTRAST

An attractive new overblouse in horizontal stripes has square armholes and is worn over a straightline sport frock.

MORE CONVENIENT

The square handkerchief which ties on the shoulder is preferred to the long printed scarf by the athletic girl. It gives the touch and color to the sport costume without the long ends which are often in the way when one is engaged in golf or tennis.

NEWER STYLE

CONTRAST EMPHASIZED

The printed chiffon frock for this summer has many fluttering points and is usually outlined with bands of plain color, or trimmed with lace inserts.

STRIKING EFFECT

YOUTHFUL STYLE

Second in popularity only to the white polka dot on the blue ground is the red polka dot on white. It is a most youthful and dashing combination, excellent for the country.

Men Who Make The Peterboro Exhibition

By James Turnbull

The magnificent success that has attended the operating of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition during the past decade, resulting in it occupying the premier place in Central Ontario as the largest exhibition between Toronto and Ottawa, and the fourth largest in the Province of Ontario, has by no means been due to ordinary efforts.

This success has undoubtedly been due to the arduous labors of some sixty-four directors who are representative of practically every business that is carried on in the county and city of Peterborough. On this board are farmers and merchants, all of whom have made successes of their own businesses, and who are giving their time and effort in this great work of placing the county and the city of Peterborough with that of the most progressive in the Dominion. These men, during the year, when most people have either forgotten all about the exhibition, or are at least not giving it any consideration, are planning for the future. As a result every year as Fall approaches around comes the Peterborough Exhibition, in the parlance of the circus barker, "bigger, better and stronger than ever."

A notweworthy feature of the directorate is the fact that incorporated with it is a representation of the youth of the district which is being trained for active work in the exhibition world. All of the young men on the board find work on committees which gives them an insight into the managerial responsibilities entailed. Some idea of the organization necessary toward making the Peterborough Exhibition may be realized when a person considers that there are nineteen committees, each consisting of from three to eight men, who are in turn responsible to the executive committee for their particular phase of the work.

While the Directors as a whole have been indefatigeable in their labors, as in every other organization, there are outstanding men who have by their example inspired the remainder to keep time with them, the net result being a unified body working in harmony. That success has attended their efforts is apparent when one visits the grounds as they stand today. Among those who have distinguished themselves in this connection are Roland Denne, F. J. A. Hall, Thomas Brown and W. F. Turner. To these four gentlemen can be attributed, in great measure, the success of the Exhibition, for they have by their unbounded optimism and determined spirit, managed to maintain that feeling of enthusiasm that is a decided feature of the various committees, and which goes a long way in attaining the goal each year.

Roland Denne, who is now serving his eighth successive term as President, has seen the Exhibition rise from practically a country fair to the eminent place it occupies today. He is known to everyone, farmer and city dweller alike as "Rolly." He has what has been called an exhibition bug which never leaves him from one year's end until the next. Often, during the Winter, when everything is snowbound and business is lethargic and the city as a whole is quiet, a person walking down George street may notice a little group of men assembled in "Rolly's" store. He may wonder what they are doing, and if his curiosity gets the better of him and he walks inside he will find, to his amazement, that it is a group of the directors planning some new feature in connection with next year's exhibition. The store has be come practically the board room of the directors; in fact, any person wanting to know anything about the exhibition, usually ends his quest right there, as the desired information is at hand.

F. J. A. Hall, Sheriff of Peterborough County, is known to all and sundry in his capacity as Secretary. To this gentleman fall the multifarious duties of organizing prize lists, paying the winners, looking after entrants and keeping them in a n amiable frame of mind; arranging the hundred and one details in connection with the forms required by the railroads that have to do with the special rates that prevail for exhibitors. He is always on the job, as many of those who have been tempted to backslide will testify, and his unfailing geniality never fails no matter how black the outlook.

Thomas Brown, the superintendent, is one of the standbys who has done a great deal of work in an unobtrusive fashion. On his shoulders lies the responsibility for the care and the upkeep of the entire grounds, making the necessary alterations and additions to the buildings that become necessary each year as the Exhibition becomes larger. No better tribute to his work can be paid than by actually seeing the transformation that has taken place during recent years.

W. F. Turner, chairman of the amusements and advertising committee is better known to the majority of the citizens as "Webber." His part in the Exhibition is perhaps the most appreciated of all, as despite some views to the contrary, the midway and the grand stand performances mean a great deal to the general success. Every year sees an improvement and as a result Peterborough is privileged to see acts of a kind that were formerly kept for the larger cities. His work in connection with the advertising makes the Exhibition known far and wide as travellers to the city will testify.

To these men, and to their fellow directors who assist them on the various committees, the county and the city of Peterborough are indebted to no small extent. Until nine years ago, prior to the re-organization, the Peterborough Exhibition was in the same class as many others. It was simply an annual occurrence that was thought only to interest people in this locality, but today it has grown to such an extent that the people of the county are getting behind it, realizing that it means a great deal to the community. Its value has been recognized by both the Dominion and the Provincial Governments and government exhibits are no wan annual feature.

Due to the efforts of these men the Exhibition has grown until last year over 36,000 paid admissions were registered durng the time it was open. This year it will run for a full week for the first time in the history of the organization. Some idea of its almost phenomenal growth may be obtained when it is known that nine years ago there was only one building on the grounds where today there are seven, representing in all a value of some $50,000 to the credit of the residents of the county and the city of Peterborough. Poultry that in former days were housed in boxes set along the fence are now exhibited in a permanent building devoted solely to that purpose. For the first two years after the re-organization the directors had to bring in their own cattle to fill the stalls; last year all the entries could not be accommodated. Due to the increasing attendance at the grand stand performances two additions to the stand have been necessary, a stand with a seating capacity for 5,000 people now gracing the grounds.

The prize list has kept pace with the remainder of the Exhibition and now amounts to $10,000. In this connection there are forty-five different classes for competitors embracing live stock, agricultural products, poultry, dairy products, vegetables, fine art and ladies' work.

A new feature last year which will be continued on an even larger scale this year was the dog show. The entries to this show proved to be one of the greatest attractions as dogs were received from all over the country and parts of the United States, for competition in the various classes.

The grounds, kept in condition and leveled from time to time, are the result of work done by the former members of the board of directors, who give their time and their equipment free that this important part of the scheme may complete the general appearance of the entire Exhibition. As a result today these grounds stand second to none in the province in the service that they render the community and the visitor within our gates. Accommodation for every sport that is played may be found within its gates. Football, baseball and cricket can all be indulged in. For the stranger there is an absolutely modern auto camp that is fitted with all modern conveniences even to running water.

Thus has success crowned the efforts of the hard-working directors who have labored in the hope that some day the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition would rank with the best in the country.

The following are the directors:—

In England nowadays almost every large industrial concern has a well-organized sports club, usually under the direction of one or more trained sport secretaries, most of whom are men or women who have had the benefit of a university training in sports and athletics.

There are no bookmakers on the French race course, or "hippodrome" as it is called, all betting being carried on through the offices of the Pari-Mutuel or Totalizer system. So much of the amount wagered is deducted for management so much for charities and so much for the local municipality, the remainder being divided mathematically among the successful backers. The French laws also prohibit the publication of "selections" and similar advance information on the races.

What Some People Say About Peterborough Industrial Exhibition

The Peterborough Industrial Exhibition, judging from the comments of prominent men who were interviewed by The Examiner, is to be commended to the public on various grounds. A number of men were interviewed and without exception they declared themselves as supporters, and expressed opinions that the public in general should get behind the Directors and help to further their efforts.

W. H. Bradburn, M.P.P. claimed that it was a wonderful exhibition for the size of the county. The men who handle it should have the backing of all.

In addition it brings the people of the city and the country together.

W. H. Boulton declared the Exhibition to be the finest between Toronto and Ottawa. "It merits the support of every resident of the county," he said.

S. A. Lowe was of the opinion that the best way the citizens could show their appreciation of the Director's efforts was by seeing that flags were prominently displayed during the whole of next week. All of the merchants, he said, had flags and their use would undoubtedly have the effect of giving the city a gala appearance.

Jack McNabb declared that every citizen should get behind the Exhibition Board and lend their support in attaining a new record.

J. J. Duffus stated that one of the most outstanding advantages of the Exhibition was the friendly rivalry existing among the exhibitors. This spirit, he said, found its inception at the school fairs and it was at these that the boys and girls first caught the spirit which enabled them to compete at the larger fairs. In addition the breeding and raising of high grade horses, cattle, hogs and fowl has bee n greatly stimulated. The same applies to the raising of flowers, vegetables, fruits, grain and seed, he said, and has the effect of raising the standard. The Exhibition also gives an opportunity to the people to meet each other under the most favorable circumstances.

E. A. Peck said the Exhibition was the great leveller between the country and the city. Here, more than in any other organization there was a spirit of co-operation displayed that was most commendable.

The Letter Of The Contract By Basil King

A NEW WEEKLY SERIAL

CHAPTER XIII.
A Liking for Kids.

She met Ordway suddenly at one of the many turnings in the hotel at Cap d'Ail. She had never come abruptly face to face with him before. She knew she colored and betrayed a ridiculous self-consciousness. He was unruffled and sedate.

"Mrs. Chipman Walker, I think."

She acknowledged her identity and he mentioned his own name.

"I've just been seeing some friends of yours," he went on, "at Cannes. I've been lunching with the Misses Partridge."

"Oh, they're there? They're friends of my aunt's."

"I too, have the pleasure of knowing Miss Winfield, which will perhaps excuse my self-introduction. The Misses Partridge asked me to say that they would be glad to see you, if you could ever make it convenient to go over. They wished me to add that they'd come to see you, but that, unfortunately, neither is quite well enough. You'd find them at the Villa Victorie, on the Route de Frejus."

She was murmuring something to the effect that she would go if ever when he said in a tone that struck her as significant:

She didn't resent this, perhaps because her seed was too great. Besides, there was something about him—it might have been the tenderness of a man who himself knew what suffering was—that put him outside the region of resentments. She only said: "Indeed? Why?"

"You'll see that when you go. For one thing, it's further removed from the atmosphere that comes up to us from—down there." He pointed toward Monte Carlo. "In that way it's healthier."

She knew that as she thanked him and passed on she smiled, and that she did so from lightness of heart. Certainly her heart was less heavy. It was less heavy because of his kindness, because of this indication that someone cared what became of her.

She felt so forsaken that almost anybody's kindness would have had the same effect, almost anybody's care for her welfare; and so she came to respond to the appeal of Noel Ordway and went to Cannes.

Between him and her the friendship ripened rapidly and unexpectedly. It was so unexpectedly that it took her off her guard. It was beyond all the possibilities her imagination could foresee that he should fall in love with her—a woman who had had her tragic experience, of no great beauty, the mother of two children.

It was, in fact, through the children that he made his approaches, in as far as he made them intentionally. She judged that he didn't do that, that he was caught unawares, like herself.

He had merely expressed a "liking for kids," and offered to take the youngsters for an outing in his motor-car on the following day. The kids were to go with their governess; but when he drove up to the door, and Edith had come out to see them off, it seemed ridiculous that she shouldn't accompany them. Besides, the governess was young and pretty, necessitating an elderly person for purposes of propriety.

It was partly, too, in thoughtlessness that Edith yielded to his persuasion and, putting on a thick coat, jumped in with the rest.

CHAPTER XIV.
People in Particular.

Longer excursions came after that—to St. Raphael, to Valescure, and as far away as Mentone and the Gorges du Loup. Edith couldn't help liking the young man, first for his kindness to the children, and then for himself.

For himself she liked him because he was so simple, straight-forward, and sincere. He grew confidential as time went on, telling her of his home, his mother, his sisters, his duties as squire and lord of the manor, and the bore it was to be keep out of a profession and away from England at the very moment of the hunting.

He formed the habit of dropping in so frequently to tea with her, in the little sun-pavilion of the hotel, that she fancied the Misses Partridge, who were friends of Lady Ordway's, began to ook uneasy. She wondered if they had given the young man all the information concerning her that was his due.

She made up her mind to ask. Once the fact was recognized it would be a safeguard, in that any possibilities of their being other than friends would be out of the way.

He gave her the opportunity one afternoon in March by asking where she thought of going after she left Cannes.

"I don't know," she said at last. "It's so hard for me to make plans. You see, there's nothing to hinder me from going to Sweden, Switzerland, or Spain; and when that's the case you're indifferent about going anywhere." She waited a few seconds before saying, "You know about me, don't you?"

"Rather," he said, promptly. "I've known that all along."

"I'm glad of that. I hoped Miss Partridge would tell you."

He startled her by saying with the bluntness that was curiously, but characteristically, at variance with the hesitations of his general manner:

"You could get married again, couldn't you?"

"Oh, no." She blushed helplessly.

"Oh, but you could."

"Oh, but you could."

She struggled to keep to the ground of mere discussion. "I could—legally; but I never should."

"Why?"

"Oh, for a lot of reasons I can't talk about."

"Oh, but I say, you're not serious in thinking you wouldn't, are you?"

"Perfectly serious! I should never look on the matter as admitting discussion."

"Oh, but it does, you know."

"Not for me!"

"Well, it might not for you, and yet might for—for other people."

She still forced an unsteady smile. "That's something I don't have to worry about, at any rate. I've given up thinking of other people's opinions."

"I don't mean other people in general—only in particular."

"I don't know any other people—in particular."

"Yes, you do. You know me."

"I only know you—like that." She snapped her fingers so as to give him an idea of the entirely transitory nature of their acquaintance.

"That isn't the way I know you, Mrs. Walker, I want you to marry me."

CHAPTER XV.
The Question of the Family.

The statement was so startling that in spite of all her preparatory discussion with herself, she turned on him tragically. "For God's sake, why?"

"Well—because I'm awfully fond of you, you know!"

His expression touched her. There was no mistaking the kindliness in his eyes, or the look of rather wan beseeching in his thin, pinched face. In his golfing suit of tweed he was not an unattractive figure, even if he wasn't handsome.

Again her words had little relation to the things she had thought of beforehand. Her heart was so much with him that she spoke with an emotion she had never shown to him before.

"Even if you are, don't you see, dear friend, that you can't marry me?"

"Oh, but I can, you know."

"If you married a divorced woman wouldn't your whole position in England be—be different?"

"I shouldn't care anything about that."

"That's not what I'm asking you. I'm asking you if there wouldn't be ways in which it would be hard for you?"

The honesty in his eyes pierced her like a pain. "I shouldn't be thinking about that, you know. I should be thinking about you."

"Well, then, aren't there ways in which it would be hard for me?"

"Not any harder than it is now. It's pretty hard, isn't it?"

The tears sprang into her eyes, but she knew she must control herself. "Yes; but it's in the way of the ills I know. The ills I know not of might be worse!"

"Oh, well, they wouldn't be that, you know."

"What about your people?"

"They'd be all right—in time."

The qualification was like a stab. She spoke proudly. "I'm afraid I couldn't wait for that."

"You wouldn't have to wait for anything. They'd jolly well have to put up with what I decided to do. I've got all the say, you know. I'm the head of the family. And then, you're an American."

"Aren't a divorced Englishwoman and a divorced American in very much the same position?"

He hastened to reassure her. "Oh, Lord, no. Not in England they wouldn't be. A divorced Englishwoman—well, she's in rather a hole, you know; whereas a divorced American woman—that's natural."

"I see," she responded slowly. "It's not considered quite so bad."

"Oh, not half so bad. One expects an American woman to be divorced—or something."

She couldn't be annoyed with him because he was so honest and ingenuous.

CHAPTER XVI.
Wine, Women and Song.

Chipman Walker had never really noticed Lily until on that Sunday morning in June it suddenly struck him that she was trying to get a word with him alone.

He had seen her, of course. She had been at Mountain Brook, Emery Bland's place in New Hampshire, every time he had gone there; but, her quality being unobtrusive, he had paid her no attention.

Perhaps the fact that the girl was not really the niece of either Mr. or Mrs. Bland had something to do with his tendency to treat her as a negligible quantity. Mrs. Bland had explained the situation to him during his first visit to Mountain Brook.

"Lily isn't our niece at all," she had said, in inadvertance. "She's no relation to us whatever. We don't know who she is. We got her out of an orphanage, the year we built this house. Mr. Bland seemed to think the house ought to have something young in it. It wasn't my desire to adopt a child. I simply yielded. The only stipulation I made was that she should call us uncle and aunt. I couldn't bear to be called mother by a child who wasn't my own."

Chipman came to consider Bland a friend by accident—the accident of a club, where they stumbled on a common hobby in Victorian English politics. There was no subject on which Emery Bland was better informed and Chip who had been brought up in England, took an interesting listener. It was Bland himself who took the first step in the direction of closer friendship.

"Well, how are you getting on?"

He asked the question while slipping into the seat opposite Chip as the latter lunched at the club one day.

"Oh, so so."

"H'm. So so. That's what you call it."

The tone implied expostulation.

"Well, what do you call it?"

"Oh, I'm not obliged to give it a name. I hear other people do that."

"And what do other people say?" asked Chip.

"I do. I think you ought to know. They say it's a pity."

Chip took on the defiant air of a bad boy. "They can say it—and go to blazes."

"They'll say it, all right! But I rather think that you'll do the going to blazes—at this rate."

"Oh, rot, Walker! I'm ashamed of you. I can imagine a man of your type doing almost anything else but taking to drink."

Chipman shrugged his shoulders "I had three resources left to me—wine, women, and song. For song I've no ear; for woman—well, that's all over, so it came down to Hobson's choice."

"Hobson's choice be blowed! Walker's choice! And you've just time enough left to cast about for a set of alternatives. Why, I've seen scores of men in your fix; and of some of them it was the salvation."

"And what was it of the others?"

"Hell! But it was a hell of their own making."

"All right. I'm willing to accept the word. It's a hell of my own making—but it's hell, just the same."

"But, good Lord! man, even if it is hell, you don't want to wallow in it. See here, Walker, why don't you come up and spend the week-end with me in New Hampshire?"

CHAPTER XVII.
Lily.

Chip went to Mountain Brook thrice during that summer, and in June of the following year. It was during this last visit that Lily gave him the impression that she was seeking an opportunity to speak to him.

Throughout Saturday it had been an impression almost too faint to be recorded; but it was significant to him that on Sunday morning she didn't go to church.

She shared the house with him, therefore, a fact of which he was scarcely aware till he saw her in possession of the pergola. With a book in her hand she had established herself in a chair not far from that which by preference he had made his own. She didn't keep him in suspense. She closed her novel as he approached, looking up at him with simple directness. "I've something to tell you."

Behind the attention he gave to these words he registered the observation that when you looked at her—which he had rarely done—you saw she was pretty. She was dressed simply in white linen, with a belt of "watered" blue silk.

Instinctively he knew that what she had to tell him must be important, but taking a casual tone, said, "Have you?"

"It's about some one you used to know. You won't mind my speaking right out, will you?"

"Of course not. Say anything you like."

"Well, I know Miss Maggie Clare."

"Good Lord!" He seemed to shrink away.

The shy serenity of her bearing was undisturbed.

"She's very ill. I think she's going to die. She thinks so herself. She wants to know if—if you'd go and see her."

It was long before he spoke. When he did so the tone of resentment was bitter. "Does she realize what she's done to me?"

"I think she does. In fact, it's the only thing she does realize very clearly now. She talks of it continually, in her dreamy way—but a way that's quite heartbreaking. I really think that if you were to see her—"

He looked up under his lids and brows as she hesitated. "Well?" The tone was as savage as courtesy would let him make it.

"That you'd forgive her."

"I shall never forgive her. The woman deliberately wrecked my life."

"The poor thing didn't do it deliberately, Mr. Walker. She did it because she couldn't help it—because she loved you so."

He shook himself impatiently. "Ah; what kind of love is that?"

The audacity of her response—the curious audacity of shyness—seemed to him extraordinary only when, later, he thought it over. "I dare say it isn't a very high kind of love—but there was no question of its being that—from the first. Was there?"

"The woman ruined me," he cried.

"And must she bear all the responsibility of that?"

Before Chip could begin to stammer out an explanation that would give his point of view Lily was passing rapidly up the pathway.

CHAPTER XVIII.
"Old Piper."

When he returned to town he went to see Maggie. The wasted face and the sunken, burning eyes brought him in a kind of terror. Luckily he was not obliged to talk, since her mind couldn't follow coherent sentences. It was enough for her to have him sit by the bed while she worked her hands gropingly toward him, saying, "Oh, Chip!" and murmuring broken things in Swedish. He was glad when she died and could be buried, so that he might consider the episode as ended—if there was ever an end to anything in this cursed life!

And yet the occurrence brought him another kind of shock. In the death of one who for years had been so closely associated with his thoughts it was as if his own death had begun.

He grew uneasy, morbid. He came to hate the clubs, the restaurants, the theaters, and such social gatherings as he was now invited to. There was an evening when from sheer boredom he went home to his rooms as early as eight o'clock—and a bottle of Old Piper came out of its hiding place.

Going to the bad had the more to recommend it since he had heard that Edith was in New York. His downfall might bring her back to him, in some such way, from some such motive of saving or pity, as that by which he himself had been brought to Maggie Clare.

The argument being in favor of Old Piper, Old Piper supported it. Chip never forgot an evening when, as he staggered down the steps of the club toward the taxi that had been called for him, he met Emery Bland, who was coming up. He would have dodged the lawyer without recognition had it not been for the latter's kindly touch on his arm, while a voice of distress said: "Ah, poor old chap, what's this?"

With that he staggered on, knowing that he almost fell into the waiting vehicle.

Worse days ensued—for nearly a week. Worse still might have followed had they not been cut short suddenly.

They were cut short by a note which bore the signature, Lily Bland. It was a simple note, containing nothing but the request that he should come and see her.

(To be continued next week.)

MODERN FAIRY TALES.

"The treasurer is in conference—please call tomorrow."

"We've had a lovely evening—I wouldn't have missed it for anything!"

"I wouldn't care to have a great deal of money—I wouldn't know what to do with it!"

"Sorry, my dear, had to see a man on business!"

"It's the best article of its kind on the market!"

"I never knew a girl as pretty as you are!"

"We regret that we cannot use your manuscript."

Mr. Gordon and the Campaign

The voice and the advertisements of Mr. Gordon are being added as an eleventh hour contribution to Mr. Duffus' Campaign.

The former has not been heard as often as in other campaigns, probably because of a realization that anything Mr. Gordon might have to say on the political issues would be discounted in advance by the fact that Mr. Gordon had declined to defend the record of the King Government in the only way that would command respect, that is by facing the electorate as a candidate in this election and standing or falling in accordance with the verdict of the people as expressed by their ballots.

Not much weight can be attached to arguments from a politician who retires to his tent when there is fighting to be done.

GENERAL WU NOT TO BLAME

Chinese Commander Ordered His Subordinate To Settle Dispute.

OVER SEIZED SHIPS.

LONDON, Sept. 11 (Canadian Press)—Wu Fei Fu is not to blame for trouble on the Yangtse river, according to an announcement by the British Foreign Office this morning. It is said the Chinese General twice telegraphed instructions to his subordinate, General Yan Sen, to settle amicably the dispute over the seizure of British merchant ships, but the only result was that Yang Sen imprisoned the messengers.

Further Troubles

LONDON, Sept. 11 (United News)—The Daily Mail's Shanghai correspondent has reported further outrages to British warships and merchant men. A British gunboat has been reported hit while every foreign ship entering Hankow has been fired upon, according to the despatch.

The 10,000 ton flagship, H.M.S. Hawkins, is expected momentarily in Hankow, and it is understood its commander will formulate plans for action to be put in force if necessary.

SCOUT CHAPLAIN IS GIVEN PENCIL

Salvation Army Life-Saving Troop Makes Presentation.

The Scouts had a good parade last night of about forty scouts.

Scout parade was called at seven-thirty and the chaplain opened up with a paragraph of the Declaration, after which there was prayer.

At seven forty-five the scouts went to their classes in patrol order. Many things went on in those classes such as first aid, pyramid building, physical exercises, etc.

As it was the scout chaplain's farewell parade, the troop was called up in patrol order and the scout leader made a speech, voicing the appreciation of the scouts for the way in which the scout chaplain had played his part so well in the third part of the pledge, and one of the most important parts, "the salvation of the soul."

The scout chaplain was then asked to give a speech and which he did, thanking them for the beautiful present and saying how glad he had been to be associated with such a good troop of boys. He impressed the boys that it was not only necessary to be good scouts physically, but to be good scouts spiritually and live up to what was good and right.

The parade was then changed to a feed of corn all round in which the life-saving guards participated.

The scout chaplain closed with a song and prayer, after which the big boys had a game of basketball and went home about nine-thirty.

FRANCE LOSES TO UNITED STATES IN DAVIS CUP TENNIS COMPETITION

Establish World Supremacy Record For Seventh Consecutive Year.

THIRD VICTORY.

French Gain Lead in First, But Crumpled Before Americans.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 11 (Canadian Press)—For the seventh consecutive year and the tenth time in the history of Davis Cup competition the United States has established her world's supremacy at tennis.

The defence of the historic trophy was settled yesterday as decisively as it was begun when the United States doubles combination of Richard N. Williams and Vincent Richards smashed their way to triumph over France's pair, Jacques Grugnon and Henri Cochet, in a sparkling three set tussel, decided by scores of 6-4, 6-4, 6-2.

This was the third straight victory for the United States over France, whose bright hopes, as the survivor of 24 original national challengers, have been blasted for the second year in a row. Coupled with the convincing triumphs of "Big Bill" Tilden over Jean Borotra and "Little Bill" Johnston over Rene Lacoste Thursday, yesterday's decision gave the United States the three points necessary to settle the challenge round series on the courts of the Germantown Cricket Club.

Although the outcome cannot effect the team result, the final two scheduled singles matches will be played this afternoon, starting at 2:30 p.m. with Johnston opposing Borotra and Tilden meeting Lacosta.

Plucky as was France's fight to stave off defeat yesterday, it came to naught against the superior team play tactics and volleying of the United States combination.

Cochet and Brugnon, attacking with sparkling dash, gained leads of 4-2 in each of the first two sets but their defense crumpled each time as the Americans, with Williams leading the charge, unleashed an attack that overwhelmed all opposition.

The last set saw the Yankee offensive at its high water mark and the Frenchmen were brushed aside quickly, except for a brief spurt in the seventh game which they won on Brugnon's service after three times being within a point of defeat.

Such brief advantages as the Frenchmen enjoyed, however, were due more to lapses of their opponents than to any sustained effectiveness in their own attack. Richards particularly was erratic, he lost his own service twice in the first set and it was only Williams' magnificent sharpshooting that pulled the Yankee pair through. The United States captain, his racquet fleshing brightest in nearly every rally, also dominated the last two sets although Richards rallied at times to volley with his greatest skill.

KIWANIS TOURNEY AT BOWLING ALLEY

New Academy Given Official Opening Under Popular Auspices.

Kiwanis Club dance and bowling tournament was well patronized last night, and the new academy opened by J. J. Duffus received favorable comment from the scores who attended. Hooper's five-piece orchestra provided music of a quality unsurpassed by any organization that has visited Peterborough, and the dance floor, though unfinished, attracted many feet.

Ladies' high single—Miss Eagleson.

Ladies' high three—Miss Coon.

Ladies' team, playing Kiwanians—Business Girls' Club.

Men's high single—Bailey.

Men's high three—Chadwick.

Men's team, playing Kiwanians—Ballard's team.

In the blind score competition, completed at 12:30, President Jack Craig and Secretary Jack Heron tied in a field of seven with 102 each, the point being 100. The prize was ultimately won by Jack Craig.

Winners may obtain the prizes on calling at Dr. Craig's office, corner of Hunter and George Streets.

MAORIS STILL SLING TO OLD ISLAND MYTH

LONDON, Sept. 11.—Old legends still prevail among the Maoris of New Zealand. One of the earliest of these stories tells of the formation of the north island of New Zealand, which resembles a fish in shape.

A great warrior named Maui brought up from the depths of the ocean a giant fish, the tale runs. The fish did not sink again, but in course of time it died and the body petrified and became land.

About 40,000 of New Zealand's 1,000,000 population are descendants of the original native Maoris.

STARS VANISH BISONS IN TENTH INNING RALLY

Heavy Hitting and Errors Contributed Towards Syracuse's Victory.

RECORD FOR LOSSES.

Ogden Allows One Hit in Orioles-Skeeters Tussle.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11 (Canadian Press) — The Baltimore Orioles playing at home defeated Jersey City yesterday, 3 to 1. Ogden allowed the Skeeters only one hit.

Staging a terrific tenth inning rally in which long home runs by Layne and Hurst, a triple by Roettger and a couple of errors figured, the Syracuse Stars tallied six runs and vanquished the Bisons, 8 to 4, in the opening of the series at Buffalo. Harry Layne, twin brother of the Leaf star, made his first appearance with the Stars, contributing a single besides his homer.

Reading equalled the International League record for losses in a season yesterday when the Keys lost to Newark, 4 to 2, for a 116th defeat.

ELEANOR SURE TO WIN TROPHY

Elyria Leading, But Canadian Entry There In Second.

WIND WAS SLIGHT.

TOLEDO, Sept. 11 (Canadian Press). — The Elyria, Cleveland yacht, representing Lake Erie, in the Richardson cup races here, took the lead in yesterday's final event of the series, despite the slight wind.

The Eleanor, Canadian entry, took the lead at the start with the Elyria second and the Fantome, Chicago Yach Club boat, third. When the slight north-west wind shifted to the north-east and freshened the Elyria took the lead, with the Eleanor second. The sea was smooth.

The Elyria would have to win and the Eleanor be last before the Cleveland entry could get a tie for the cup. As it stands, with the Eleanor running a good second, Canada is almost certain to take the cup to foreign soil.

English professional cricketers playing in a championship match are paid $135 for the match, while amateurs are allowed up to ten dollars a day for their expenses. Both are, in addition, allowed their railway fares.

Since then McGraw has converted him into an outfielder, and is playing on the left side of the diamond.

Inside Sporting Dope

By A Wise Cracker

Mister Sporting Editor:

Locally they ain't been any more sporting talk this week than they has been election excitement.

The 1 item of interest was the clash between the Deloro Smelters and the antiques of Port Hope in the intermediate O.b.A.A. serious. Mister Elliott's boys from the mines had no respect for old age, and they smeared the gang from the "prettiest town in Canada"—if you ain't seen none of the rest—8 to 0. Mister Elliott has a real snappy ball club, a infield that can dig 'em up and throw and an outfield which don't merely carry their bats out to the plate because the rule sez they gotta have 'em. Some ghosts of the past was with Port Hope, including Mister Hills, Mister Bob Chalk, Mister Guy and Mister Friar. Mister Hills no longer possesses the svelt figger of his young days, but he ain't lost the keeness of his batting eye, and he leaned into Mister Shea's slants twice for hits. Mister Chalk broadcasted from behind the plate with splendid volume in the early stages, but 5 runs for Deloro in the 3rd caused too much static and reception from station B.O.B. was poor after that.

Mister Joe Daley's Ponies hadn't much trouble in beating the Goodyears. The Toronto crew only got 2 hits off Mister Cairns' slants, and while ball games has been win on 2 blows, it don't happen very often—and it didn't Wed. The score was 6 to 1, and a home run by the husky Mister Del Cherry was a feature of the pastime. The Ponies play the 2nd game in Toronto Sat. and should win the serious 2 straight. Then'll come the serious with Oslers, and all Eastern Ont.'ll be pulling for the Ponies to spill the much-tooted Toronto gang out of the running. The Oslers didn't fatten their batting averages very much last year against Mister Cairns' southpaw delivery, and Central Ont. League fans will be pulling for Lefty to have all his stuff when he unlimbers against the chesty Toronto crew.

Well, vote as you like, Mac, but vote, and in the meanwhile, bye-bye, black bird.

Sportfully yours,
A. WISE CRACKER.

PIRATES LEAD OVER REDS FOR SECOND PLACE

Gain Upon Cardinals For Honors in National Pennant Race.

PITCHERS' BATTLE.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11 (Canadian Press) — Cincinnati retained its three point lead over Pittsburgh for second in the National League pennant race by holding the Pirates to an even break in a doubleheader at Pittsburgh yesterday. The champions, behind the steady twirling of Ray Kremer, captured the opener, 5 to 2, and the Reds turned the tables by the same score in the nightcap. Both clubs, however, gained ground on the league leading St. Louis Cardinals, whose defeat at the hands of Boston yesterday left them two and a half games ahead of the Reds and three in front of the Corsairs.

The first game at Pittsburgh was a pitchers' battle between Kremer and Eppa Rixey until the Reds' star lefthander collapsed in the eighth. The Pirates scored one in the second inning when Cronin's double drove in Grantham. A pass to Cuyler, his steal of second and Grantham's single, accounted for another in the sixth. The Reds rallied in the seventh and tied the count, Hargrave scoring behind Pipp on a home run into the right field stands. Rixey collapsed in the next inning and Pittsburgh bunched four hits with two errors to register three runs.

The pitching of Red Lucas was the outstanding feature of the closing contest, the champions gathering only four hits off him, while the Reds were pounding Morrison at opportune moments. After scoring a run in the first inning the Reds went to the front with two more in the second and thereafter were never headed. The Pirates scored their two runs in the first and third, Cuyler's sacrifice sending Brickell over the plate with the first run, while Earl Smith's home run accounted for the other. The Reds knocked Morrison out of the box in the seventh when they scored their last two runs. He was followed by Yde, Aldridge and Songer.

The championship hopes of the Cardinals were slightly bruised at Boston yesterday, where they were defeated, 11 to 3. The Braves made 18 hits off Alexander and Reinhart and three erorrs by Thevenow also aided in the visitors' downfall. Ed Brown of the Braves hit safely four times in five trips to the plate.

The Phillies broke Guy Bush's record of eight straight victories by taking the Chicago Cubs into camp by a score of 8 to 4. Dennis Sothoron, Philly recruit, from the Middle Atlantic League, made his first appearance with a two bagger and a home run, the circuit blow coming with two on in the fifth inning.

ST. LOUIS WINS LAST OF SERIES

BUNCH HITS.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11 (Canadian Press).—Chicago's winning streak of six straight was halted by St. Louis yesterday when the Browns took the final game of the Chicago series, 5 to 4, in ten innings. After Purdy and Clancy had put the White Sox in front in the seventh inning, Lyons weakened, the visitors bunching a double, triple and single to tie the count in the ninth and putting over the winning run in the tenth by bunching two more hits, with a sacrifice in between.

McCurdy's string of consecutive hits was halted after he had knocked out ten consecutive drives in ten times at bat, within one of tying the world's record.

This was the only American League game scheduled.

Austin, the first-half winner in the Texas League, evidently will have to fight it out with Palestine for the pennant. The latter appears to have a commanding lead in the race for second-half honors.

MASS MEETING

Take Four—Mass meeting .... quoting Kipling, declared "We have proved our right to the heritage by more than word of mouth."

G. Wilkie

The country under Mr. Meighen's government was split into three sections, declared Mr. Wilkie. The West was so tired of conditions as to be almost ready to break away from the Confederation. Ontario was aloof from Quebec, which felt itself subject to unfair usage. The best financiers were alarmed at the financial position, and Mr. Meighen in the last years of his regime was adding one hundred millions annually to the debt. No wonder in 1921 the people spewed him out of their mouths. The heavy load in 1921 seemed almost unbearable. Thanks to five years of Liberal administration the load had been carried easily.

In the West, where there had been open talk of secession, there was not now a whisper. The murmur had ceased because the West had got a fair deal. All the West wanted: all the West needed was a fair deal.

Crowe's Nest Pass Rates.

In 1897 the C.P.R. wanted to build a line through the Crow's Nest Pass and approached the Government for a subsidy. The subsidy was granted on condition that the C.P.R. would haul wheat through the Pass at a rate fixed by the Government. The road was built and people settled on the vacant lands. In course of time, the C.P.R. asked to be released from the bargain, and the Government allowed an increase of 25 per cent. on rates of freight through the Pass. Finding the Government such an easy mark, the C.P.R. made another application and got the rates increased by 35 per cent. And the poor settler, depending for his life on the lower rates, had to pay the higher price. Mr. Forke had stated that 20 million dollars were lost to the West through the action of the Meighen Government. Many had to give up and go away with wife and children to other places. King was the man who put this wrong right, and on Tuesday he would get some, if not all, of the gratitude to which he was entitled from the West.

Who Was Right?

Mr. Meighen had shown in several instances that he did not know what was good for the country. He was wrong when he said the reduction of tariff on agricultural implements would ruin the manufacturers; he was wrong when he said lowering the price of automobiles would close down the factories and turn the workers out to starve: and he was wrong when he called the Robb budget which had removed the burden of 25 millions of dollars of taxation, a "malodorous sham."

The Candidate.

Mr. Duffus declared that a kind gentleman from Toronto, speaking for the Conservatives, had stated that J. J. Duffus was being made the scapegoat of the Liberals. On being challenged, this speaker had declared that what he meant was that if G. N. Gordon or R. R. Hall had believed a Liberal victory was possible, one of them would have secured the nomination rather than Mr. Duffus. He asked them to give him credit for vision to see that a Liberal victory was coming.

At Lakefield a new cement work was being built which would employ 108 men. Last year Lakefield people were told the work would be closed if the Conservatives were not returned. Men who ten months ago had no vision and no faith in the future of Canada were not the men to be entrusted with the government of the country.

Local Tariff Questions.

He had learned that pamphlets had been distributed among the employees of firms in the district with advice on the election. He wanted to tell the woollen industries that if the tariff proved to interfere with any industry, it would be his duty and determination to lay the matter before the Tariff Board and to press for adjustment either up or down, as required to assist the manufacturing industries.

ROSENEATH HEAR LIBERAL CANDIDA

W. A. Fraser Is Supported By Several Speakers at Large Gathering.

ROSENEATH, Sept. 11.—There was a large gathering in Roseneath hall last night at a meeting held in the interests of W. A. Fraser, Liberal-Progressive candidate in North-umberland. The candidate and several others addressed the meeting, which was presided over by Arthur Tucker.

The first speaker was Mr. McCracken, who spoke on behalf of the Progressives, telling why they should support Mr. Fraser. F. J. Slade discussed the issued raised at the Conservative meeting here last Saturday.

The candidate was the next speaker and he was greeted with loud applause. He took up the Robb budget, stressing the reduction in the tax on automobiles. He said that many topics were being discussed which were not really the main issues.

Mr. O'Reilley, a Progressive, was the next speaker. He was followed by Sam Clark, M.P., who compared the election to hiring a man to work, and urged the people to hire the best man.

GEO. WHITE'S "SCANDALS"

The 1926 Edition of George White's "Scandals" will be presented at the Grand Opera House on Tuesday, September 21st. The engagement is limited to one matinee and one evening performance. The current edition of the "Scandals" is the sixth consecutive production of revues inaugurated by Mr. White in the summer of 1919.

The revue to be seen here will be offered in two acts and thirty massive scenes all of which have been staged by the youthful actor-manager. The comedy scenes are by William K. Wells and Mr. White. Bud de Sylva and Ballard Macdonald supplied the lyrics. The score is from the gifted and prolific pen of George Gorshwin. All of the costumes, stage decorations and curtains were designed by Erte and executed by Max Weldy of Paris. It requires a company of more than a hundred players to properly present this biggest and best of all Mr. White's revues. It is Mr. White's boast that he has succeeded in collecting an unusaul collection of beauties for the ensembles and dancing numbers. The organization carries its own orchestra. The entire New York production and company consisting of over one hundred will be seen here intact.

MEET BUSTER KEATON MINUS PANCAKE HAT!

Harold Lloyd minus his horn-rimmed spectacles—

Neither Charley nor Harold have announced they will doff the time-honored make-up which brought them fame, but Buster has definitely cast the die, as it were, in his latest picture and made a radical departure which the film industry, especially the comedy field, is watching with extreme interest.

For Buster has thrown away the pancake chapeau and ill-fitting clothes for this one picture at least, and observers are wondering what the public reaction to the change will be. Buster retains his Keatonesque frozen-face, but outside of that a vastly different Keaton stars in "Battling Butler," which comes to the Capitol theatre Monday.

Buster a Beau Brummel.

Although a story of love and the prize ring in which pretty girls and cauliflower-eared gents vie for the spotlight, Buster himself blossoms forth as a veritable Beau Brummel—a 1926 glass of fashion and mould of form. He is a wealthy young idler, the alpha and omega of laziness, surrounded by servants, Rolls-Royces and indulgent relatives. Fate, in the shape of Kid Cupid, makes a pugilist out of him—but even in the ring he's required to "dress like a gentleman."

In most of his previous pictures Buster hasn't had to worry about costume changes. A pancake hat, old shoes, trousers, coat and shirt—and he was all set for several weeks' work before the camera.

The comedy star's wardrobe in "Battling Butler," however, consists of more than forty suits, a dozen pair of shoes, dressing gowns, scores of hats, shirts, scarfs, spats, in fact, so much "junk," Buster explains, that he required the services of a valet to get himself rigged up each day.

In his dual capacity of star-director, Keaton made the picture under the Joseph M. Schenck banner for Metro-Goldwyn release, with a supporting cast including Sally O'Neil, one of the 1926 Wampas stars; Snitz Edwards, Francis McDonald, Tom Wilson, noted character actor, old-time prize fighters and trainer of champions, such as Bob Fitzsimmons; Eddie Borden, Mary O'Brien, Walter James and Buddy Fine.

"Battling Butler" marks the first effort of Keaton's new "gag" men—Al Boasberg, Paul Gerard Smith and Charles Smith, New York playwrights and stage figures whom Buster lured away from Broadway to put a few laughs in the pictures. Clyde Bruckman, a veteran Hollywood comedy constructionist, also was a member of Keaton's staff.

"THE DANGER GIRL" AN ENTERTAINING MYSTERY PICTURE

Priscilla Dean's New Star Film is a Most Absorbing Melodrama

All the essentials of an entertaining motion picture are presented in "The Danger Girl," a new Metropolitan feature which will be shown at the Regent Theatre next Monday. This is Priscilla Dean's first starring vehicle for Metropolitan Pictures and it is an absorbing melodramatic mystery comedy.

There is mystery and humor from the very stort of the picture—good clean wholesome humor and the mystery is not solved until the final fade-out. The story deals with a band of desperate thieves whose attempts to steal a million in precious stones are frustrated by "The Danger Girl."

The photoplay is clean, swift, humorous, and thrilling. A screen story that holds ones attention and affords an hour of keen enjoyment to all who see it.

The cast supporting Miss Dean is a splendid one and is composed of John Bowers, Cissy Fitzgerald, Arthur Hoyt, William Humphreys, Clarence Burton, Gustave Von Seyffertitz and Edwin Connelly.

Channel Swim Prosaic Diver Plans New Stunt

NORFOLK, Va., Sept. 11 (Canadian Press).—Considering English Channel swimming feats now too prosaic, K. Evarts, a deep sea diver, has announced he plans on walking across the bottom of Hampton Roads, Va., seven miles, in his 200-pound diving suit, and challenges any other diver to outwalk him.

"People are going crazy," the diver said, "about this swimming the English Channel. If they really want a thrill I'll give them one."

LOCAL SCOTS HELD SOCIAL EVENING

Nearly One Hundred Were Present at the Opening Event.

Last evening the local Scots met in the usual social capacity under the auspices of the Peterboro Caledonian Club in the S.O.E. Hall, when nearly one hundred from the Land o' Cakes gathered together to renew the customs and festivities of their native heath, in song and dance.

During the evening, George Brown sang "Scotsmen Every One," Matt Reid, "Lea Rig," John Patterson, Mrs. Robert French and Mrs. Clark assisted in the programme, while Mrs. A. Jackson and R. Ralston acted as accompanists.

A great number of new citizens from the Clyde district in Scotland were present and are well pleased with the city and conditions generally.

Throughout the coming winter months the club executive intends introducing many interesting entertainments that will be opened by a whist drive next Friday evening.

At the interval a light refreshment was served by the energetic committee that were responsible for the evening.

RUGBY STATION MOST POWERFUL

Can Send Messages To All Parts of the World.

ONE MAN STATION.

RUGBY, Eng. (United Press). — When England's next war breaks out, this new government-owned wireless station—the most powerful radio plant in the world—will flash to every British wireless station and to every British ship at sea the following message:

MM MM MM CQD CQD CQD GBR YUDX YUDX—which, translater into English, means:

CQD CQD CQD — All stations urgent; all stations urgent; all stations urgent!

GBR—Rugby calling.

That signal will reach ships as far away as Singapore and Tasmania, to send them scuttling to the nearest point of shelter.

Of course, the hostile power might attempt to "jam the air" and thus prevent Great Britain from spreading the information abroad to its nationals, but this is rather unlikely, on the whole, since the enemy would presumably be busy on a similar errand, using such wireless facilities as it has.

At any rate, Great Britain may sleep in peace for it has at last outdistanced Germany in powerful radio transmission.

This new station has threefold capacities. It is the only long-distance radio station using the tube system of transmission. Secondly, it has a novel installation for trans-Atlantic telephony, more powerful than any other in existence. And finally, it is also a short-wave transmitting station.

It places the British Admiralty in constant touch with every vessel in the Navy and the Merchant Marine. It can broadcast messages in Morse at the rate of 100 words a minute. When the necessary receiving stations are ready, it will be in touch, both ways, with Australia, South Africa and other far-off places.

Thus far it is unilateral. That is to say, there is no far distant station which can reciprocate although when the various "beam stations" being set up for the Imperial Wireless Chain are completed, this disadvantage will be overcome.

It is a one-man show. One man can control everything in the station. If anything electrical goes wrong the doors will not open and the current automatically cuts itself off. Messages filed in London reach Rugby by underground cable and are relayed through Rugby to the uttermost parts of the world without the intervention of human aid.

The valves or tubes cost $500 each and have a life of about 2,500 hours. The full complement of fifty-four can be used, if necessary.

The wave length used is 18,200 meters.

Incidentally, the cost of operating the Rugby station is $2.50 per minute.

YOUNG ITALIAN THROWS BOMB AT MUSSOLINI

Third Attempt at Assassination of Dictator During Present Year.

ASSAILANT SEIZED.

Premier Quite Uninjured, Enjoins Fascisti Against Reprisals.

ROME, September 11. — Canadian Press. — Benito Mussolini, Italy's picturesque premier and Fascist leader, to-day escaped the third attempt made on his life within a year.

Ermete Giovannini, a young Italian stonecutter, threw a bomb against his automobile shortly after ten o'clock this morning, as the premier was being driven from his residence, the Villa Torlonia, in the outskirts of the city, to the Chigi Palace, where his office is situated.

The missile struck the side window of the Limousine, but did not explode until after it had fallen to the ground.

Mussolini escaped unharmed. Four passers-by, however, were wounded by fragments of glass from the car.

Giovannini, who arrived in Rome from abroad only this morning, entered the country without a passport. He was immediately seized by agents guarding the premier's car.

A threatening crowd gathered, and several policemen were injured in protecting the assailant from mob vengeance.

Mussolini maintained his customary calm and continued to the Chigi Palace. At his order the Fascist directorate issued a manifesto to all "Black Shirts," enjoining calm and directing that there be no attempts at reprisal.

"Again God has saved Italy.

"Mussolini is unhurt. From his post of command to which he returned immediately with superb calm which no event can change, he has given us order: 'No reprisals.' Black Shirts, you must obey orders of the Chief, who alone has the right to judge and too indicate the line of conduct. We offer to him who resist intrepidly this new proof of our unlimited devotion.

"Long live Italy—Long live Mussolini."

RADIO

Stability

The radio industry is following in the footsteps of the automotive industry; it is eliminating the unfit.

Within 25 years 350 concerns have entered the automotive manufacturing field; their intentions were good—their hopes high.

Of these about ten concerns now manufacture and sell 92% of all the cars and trucks built in America.

That is why it is imperative that you purchase radio sets from a manufacturer with unlimited resources, and whose stability has been supreme since the inception of the radio industry.

The name Westinghouse will ever remain a permanent guarantee of supreme excellence in everything pertaining to radio and radio equipment.

ISSUES BEFORE THE ELECTORATE IN PETERBOROUGH

This space is contributed daily by The Examiner for discussing of the election issues by representatives of the candidates of both parties for this riding. The articles are to be kept free from personalities and will be the opinions of their respective authors, not those of The Examiner.

The Conservative Viewpoint

Prepared by the Liberal-Conservative Association of Peterborough, on behalf of E. A. Peck, the Conservative candidate.

In former articles in this series it has been shown that the Mackenzie King Ministry permitted, condoned and in some cases was associated with fraud.

It is clear that Mackenzie King and his Forke-Garland-Woodsworth-Bourassa auxiliaries cannot give Canada stable government.

These two truths—as clear as the noon-day sun — prohibit conscientious support of Mackenzie King and his candidates.

But there is something more.

There is the Mackenzie King record of impotence on nearly every major problem with which it has had to deal.

And finally there is the question of whether Canada is prepared to destroy the historic national policy.

The national policy has builded Canada.

But there are men in Canada today, mostly in her newer regions, who would uproot the national policy.

More than that they will be still more powerful if after Tuesday next Mackenzie King should find himself in office.

Already the national policy has been tampered with.

The chief aim of Sir John Macdonald—and it remained the aim of those who succeeded him, including Sir Wilfrid Laurier—was that the national policy should resist the commercial conquest of this country by the United States.

That aim has been lost sight of.

Canada's position now is that she is fighting a 45 per cent. American tariff with a tariff of about 18 per cent.

Her position is that she is the only country in the world which since the war has not heightened her tariff.

In fact she is the only country in the world that has decreased her tariff.

And with what consequence? With the consequence that Canada is being flooded with goods from other countries, that hundreds of millions of dollars of Canadian money is annually going to create development and employment and wages in other countries.

Mr. King—Liberal speakers on behalf of Mr. Duffus echo him in West Peterborough — talks about our trade, about our growing exports. What are those exports? They are largely our raw material — mostly irreplaceable.

Sixty-nine per cent. of everything we shipped out of Canada last year was unmanufactured.

The cold truth is that we are selling our estate.

Our nickel, our copper, our wood, the products of our forests and our mines, all are going to the republic.

They provide work for American labor, wages for American workingmen, development for American communities, markets for American farmers, traffic for American railways, growth for American ports.

When Americans have manufactured them, refined them, they sell them back to us at a rich profit for themselves.

And it is not only our raw material that we export. Our best life-blood goes with it. During the last five years, 600,000 Canadians crossed to the United States, crossed over there because they couldn't get work at home, because the raw materials that we should have been manufacturing over here were being manufactured over there.

And while this was going on, while the life-blood of this young nation was being transfused into the United States, while the best of our brain and brawn was rearing the prosperity of a foreign flag, Canada was spending millions of dollars to bring people to Canada from Europe.

Could anything go further in folly?

West Peterborough cannot afford to vote for a candidate who stands for a continuation of such conditions.

West Peterborough, with its industrial centre and a farming community that depends on that centre as a market, should vote for a stable tariff policy as enunciated by Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen.

West Peterborough should vote for F. A. Peck, Conservative candidate.

The Conservative Victory Committee

The Liberal Viewpoint.

Prepared by the Liberal Association of Peterborough on behalf of J. J. Duffus, the Liberal candidate.

DUFFUS,
"OUR MAN OF ACTION."

He will appreciate YOUR vote.

It is promise and determination is that if elected nothing will be "left undone" that lies within his power for all the people of Peterboro riding.

The Man and His Achievements.

A candidate has been chosen to contest his riding in the Federal Election which is upon us. That man is J. J. Duffus. Joe Duffus is no stranger to any of you. He is a well known and successful business man—a farmer's son, who still retains his interest in the farm. By hard work, persistent efforts and honesty he has worked himself up step by step. He has built up a large and successful business in the City of Peterboro. For eight years a member of the City Council, two years of which he was Mayor. An ardent member of the Chamber of Commerce, of which he was President for three years and now Chairman of its Advisory Committee. He is now Vice-President of the Ontario Associated Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce, and Vice-President of the Ontario Tourist Association, which was formed largely through his instrumentality, and which is bringing thousands of tourists to this portion of Ontario, a lucrative business for hotels, summer resorts, store keepers and the production of the farm and garden. He is a director of the Peterboro County Plowmen's Association. He has judged plowing matches all over the province of Ontario. President of the Peterboro Hockey Association, with which he remained night and day last year until the Ontario Championship was brought to the City of Peterborough. In a word a "go-getter" for everything pertaining to the welfare of the community.

Mackenzie King is sure to be the next Prime Minister. No one likes to lose their vote. The way to save it is to vote for J. J. Duffus, the Liberal candidate, "Our Man of Action." He gets what he goes after. That is why he is going to be elected. This riding is highly capable of development. Neglect means disaster.

Industry, Agriculture and Business needs the driving force of J. J. Duffus. This means prosperity for ALL.

Your franchise is a precious heritage, which you should use. Sympathy will not count unless you vote. See to it that you go to the poll and mark your ballot for Joseph James Duffus, "Our Man of Action," the next Federal Member of Parliament for West Peterboro.

THIS is just the place to keep appointments and entertain friends. Over a cup of our tea and one of our delicious menu specialties conversation will flow like music.

IN MEMORIAM.

FLEETWOOD.—In loving memory of our dear sister, Helen, who died Sept. 11, 1919:

A rose that is sweetest and fairest
In the end is killed by the frost,
And the flower that is dearest and nearest
Is the loved one we have lost.
At home in the beautiful hills of God
By the valley of rest so fair
Some day, some time, when our task is done,
With joy we shall muster there.

25 Per Cent. of All Children Need Eye Attention

No guess work about these figures. Examination of thousands of school children's eyes proves the truth of the above statement. It applies to both city and country children. TORONTO STREET CAR STRUCK BY DETACHED FREIGHT CARS

NINE INJURED.

Freights Break Loose From C.N.R. Train and Run Down Hill.

TORONTO, Sept. 13.—A number of people had a miraculous escape from death at the Riverdale level crossing, Queen Street East, about midnight Saturday, when four C.N.R. freight cars became detached from a train on the grade near Logan Avenue, back down the slope, and crashed into a westbound Beach Street car in charge of Motorman Tim Foley, 308 Logan Avenue, and Conductor W. Entwistle, 67 Edward Avenue. The force of the impact was such that the big steel street car was thrown in the air like a ball, in descending being hurled from its own rear trucks. In falling the car struck two automobiles. The first automobils, driven by Harold Inkpen, aged 23, of 133 Day Avenue, and containing Miss Frances Gordon, aged 19, of 355 Sarboro Road, was hurled with terrific violence across the railroad tracks. The second machine was in charge of Jack Baynes, aged 26, of 11 Eastwood Avenue, Birch Cliff. Miss Gordon was thrown out of the motor car, and alighted on her head on the tracks, but her companion managed to hold on to the wheel and so resisted the force

PULSING WIRES BRING RETURNS

Complete Service Will Be Given in Examiner Extras Tomorrow.

CITY'S CENTRE

The Examiner will tomorrow night be the centre of a pulsing network of wires covering all of Canada. From eastward in the Maritime provinces and from the faraway western coast will come news of the election, translated into dots and dashes that will chase one another over thousands of miles of wires, to be read into words and sentences by the telegraph operators working in The Examiner office. From sixty correspondents of The Examiner in strategic points in West Peterborough, Hastings-Peteroborough, Victoria, South Hastings, Northumberland and Durham, will come in by telegraph and long distance telephone report of election results in these neighboring ridings. And from reporters in the city will come by messenger and telephone the tale that the returns of the city polls tell.

At The Examiner office a large staff will compile these reports into an orderly series of articles, and by linotype and press they will be distributed to the public in a number of extra editions.

These extras will be numbered consecutively as they are issued, 1, 2, 3, and upward, as the news warrants. No extra will be issued until there is something definite to announce, and each succeeding extra will carry later news of definite value in pointing out the trend of the election, the fate of cabinet ministers and gains and defeats of all parties. The numbers will be in the top corner of the front page, and readers should not purchase two with the same number. The price will be the same as usual, three cents.

Arrangements have been made, through the courtesy of Roland Denne, President of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition, to have a large number of boys stationed at the Exhibition Grounds to distribute these extras as they are issued. A splendid election service is being carried direct to the Exhibition Grounds by telegraph, and this will be annouced at the grand stand, but The Examiner extras will give in more detail the complete results up to a few minutes before the papers are issued.

In addition to this, of course, The Examiner will give by bulletin and by telephone to inquiring citizens, the general results of the election.

FLOODS SWEEP KANSAS TOWNS

Three Drowned and Hundreds Homeless From Inundation.

DAMAGE HEAVY.

EMPORIA, Kansas, Sept. 13. —(Canadian Press).—Three persons were known to have lost their lives, huadreds were homeless or marooned in their houses, and damage to live stock and buildings was mounting steadily to-day as the flood waters of the Neosho, Cottonwood and Verdigris Rivers swept southeastern Kansas, following rains yesterday and last night, which in some sections approached cloudburst proportions.

Starting at the headwaters of Three Rivers, the flood swept southeast through Emporia, Madison, Burlington and intermediate points, swelling in volume as it came. Water threatened householders fled for their lives. Many, taken unawares, were saved in rowboats from the second stories of their homes.

A large section of the town of Neosho Falls, about 35 miles southeast of here, was reported as virtually inundated at midnight, with some residents forced to the roofs of the houses.

FAIR GROUNDS TRANSFORMED

Tents Placed in Preparation for This Week's Big Exhibition.

PLEASING SCENE

Saturday was a busy day at the Exhibition Grounds, when the enclosure rapidly underwent its annual transformation into a miniature city of tents and booths, gay with bunting, and providing a fruitful source of wonder and delight to the little knots of urchins who wandered up and down the avenues, and followed every movement of the workers. According to usual custom at this time, the horse of the Exhibition Memorial was placed on its usual position. The white tents and the white booths lent a pleasing effect to the entire scene as viewed from the main entrance.

The wiremen were busy in fixing up the last of the colored lights.

Many of the local firms had representatives who busied themselves in arranging the exhibits.

A large number of cases containing exhibits from the Ottawa Experimental Farm arrived early on Saturday. The nature of the contents were not divulged.

Judging from the size of the tent which they have had erected, the St. John's Ladies, who are running a luncheon tent, expect a record crowd. A similar optimism was manifested in all sections of the advance guard of the Exhibition.

Mr. Stabler was born in the Township of Smith, near Selwyn, on the homestead of his father, where he farmed, and on which his son Roland lives to-day Mr. Stabler's wife died some years ago.

PLAN ADVOCATED FOR SIXTY YEARS PUT INTO FORCE

French Premier Throws Bomb Into Archaic Administrative Machinery.

MAKES IMPRESSION.

Many Minor Offices Abolished in Fight For Economy.

PARIS, Sept. 13 (Canadian Press).—Premier Poincare, in search of economies, has thrown dynamite into the archaic French administrative machinery, which has remained much as it was when the first Napoleon created it. With the exception of the military economies, which form part of a comprehensive plan to recast and modernize the army, initiated two years ago, the reforms —for they are reforms rather than economies—which the Premier Saturday put in force by the stroke of his pen, had been advocated for the last 60 years as indispensable. No government, however, has had the courage to bring them into force by terms of law emplowering the government to take these steps.

Saturday's decrees, which call for a gradual cutting down in the number of men in the army, the abolition of 106 sub-prefectures and 70 departmental secretariats and other economies in the Premier's plan to reduce the budget, are subject to ratification by parliament. They cannot be amended and must be accepted or rejected as a whole, and political circles doubt whether individual deputies dare oppose them in the interests of their own particular baillwicks.

Opposition Certain

The measures are certain to raise considerable opposition in all the parties—from powerful local interests, indignant at seeing small centres deprived of their importance as county seats, from the nationalists, aggrieved at the suppression of officers, and from socialists and communists on behalf of workmen employed in arsenals to be abolished. There already is much criticism of the measures as petty economies, but supporters of the government maintain that if they are taken individually they may be petty, yet in mass they are considerable, and with time will yield most important results.

Deep Impression

M. Poincare's action has made a deep impression on the country, and whatever may be the individual reaction, there is admiration everywhere for what is termed the courage of the cabinet in disregarding alike criticisms and protests by affected interests. The cabinets is going ahead preparing to apply the axe to other departments, and when the work is completed it is asserted it will have accomplished the greatest administrative reform in France within half a century.

MR. PECK'S MESSAGE

TO THE ELECTORS OF WEST PETERBORO:

On the eve of the election I earnestly appeal to you to renew the mandate you so emphatically gave me last October.

It is my sincere and conscientious belief that a victory for the Conservative party will mean stable responsible government for this country, a clean up of the customs irregularities, and the establishment on such a firm basis of the principle of protection that industry will be encouraged to expand on every side.

Canada is ready for an era of unbounded prosperity and the election of a strong Conservative government with a tariff policy in which investors and manufacturers can have confidence will undoubtedly be the dawn of that era.

To the hundreds of loyal workers who have so enthusiastically laboured on my behalf during the campaign, to the many independent and Liberal electors who have assured me of their support, to the people everywhere who have given me attentive and courteous hearings, my thanks are heartily extended.

The issues as I see them have been discussed on my behalf and by myself in all parts of the riding and through the press.

I now leave them in your hands.

CORDOVA MINES HEARS SPEAKERS

J. Kinnaird and S. S. Joyce, of Havelock, Speak For Dr. Embury.

HAVELOCK, Sept. 13.—The first political meeting of the campaign in this district was held at Cordova Mines on Thursday evening in the interests of Dr. A. T. Embury, Conservative candidate in Hastings-Peterborough.

Owing to the bad roads, the result of the heavy downpour of rain earlier in the day, the audience was not large, but the speakers, Messrs. J. Kinnaird and S. S. Joyce of Havelock were well received and given generous applause.

In opening his address, Mr. Kinnaird said he was not the least surprised to see a small audience, as the people were disgusted with the way the politicians were governing Canada and did not consider the whole thing worth bothering about. "We are in a position now," he said, "that we have the politicians in our grip. The Government is in our grip, and now is the time to exercise the British liberty, which has been handed down to us." Mr. Kinnaird spoke at some length of the shortcomings of the Mackenzie King government for the past five years and laid great stress on the Customs scandal. "I never expected," he continued, "that the Customs scandal would go to the depth it has done and it is not through yet. The Hon. H. H. Stevens deserves credit for the way he has brought out these disclosures. As the Scriptures say, 'Be sure your sins will find you out.' The sins of the King Government are coming out."

He made a strong plea for clean, stable government and asked the electors to use their vote and influence to return Dr. Embury as their representative at Ottawa and thus help enforce the national policy of the Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, the kind the country needs, and if put in power will bring prosperity once more to Canada.

S. S. Joyce

"About a year ago I came back here to present a few facts to you," said Mr. Joyce. "I am here for the same reason tonight. I am a Canadian and I believe we should protect Canada, and I believe the policy of Mr. Meighen is the one for this country. I do not believe a country can live without protection. Protection has made the United States the great country it is and it does not matter which party is in power, they have high protection."

In speaking of the Robb budget, Mr. Joyce said. "The Liberals say that it was a great thing for the poor man. But the only thing they have taken the tax off is cars, and cars are not bought every day in the week.

"The large business concerns and rich men were the only ones benefitted to any great extent by the reduction in postage. The average man if he writes three letters a week is doing well; thus penny postage is a saving for him of 3 cent a week or $1.56 in a year."

In closing, the speaker gave an outline of the last ten days of the closing session of parliament. It was never known, he said, for a Prime Minister to get dissolution with a vote of censure hanging over his party. Had it been granted, it would have been beyond precedent either in English or Canadian history. He made an appeal to vote for men who will go to Ottawa and stand by Canada, and drew attention to the fact that Sir Wilfred Laurier did not do away with protection. "There cannot be work without manufacturers, and Canada will have prosperity only so long as she protects her industries," he concluded.

Announcing
IMPERIAL ETHYL GASOLINE
A new Motor Fuel

IN keeping with that policy which has always guided this Company toward an ever-alert seeking for the latest and best, we will place on the market, on September 18th, a new and revolutionizing motor fuel.

Leading automotive scientists—after 7 years of research—have developed in the laboratories of the General Motors Corporation, a product called Ethyl Brand of Anti-Knock Compound.

This great discovery is now offered to the motorists of Canada in Imperial Ethyl Gasoline; which is a special grade of Gasoline--with the new and wonderful Ethyl ingredient added.

This Ethyl ingredient endows gasoline with miracle-working qualities. You will notice these qualities immediately you try your first tank-full of Imperial Ethyl Gasoline.

You'll feel the difference in your motor on the first hill or when you try a quick get-away in traffic, for this new motor fuel is more powerful than any you have ever used--powerful with a smooth, sure rhythm that gives a new thrill to driving. And no matter how badly your motor has "knocked" before--either on hills or when you tried a fast "pick-up"--Imperial Ethyl Gasoline makes it absolutely knockless.

The Ethyl ingredient brings about these amazing results by maintaining the rate of combustion. Every time the spark flashes, a powerful, sustained explosion results. Power waste --as indicated by engine "knocks"--is eliminated.

No other gasoline ingredient compares with Ethyl Brand of Anti-Knock Compound. Manufactured by the Ethyl Gasoline Corporation, this remarkable product cannot be successfully imitated. It cannot be duplicated. It is absolutely unique and it stands alone as a new discovery.

The introduction of Imperial Ethyl Gasoline at this season is particularly timely. Nights are getting cool--Winter will soon be here. Imperial Ethyl gives the motorist entire freedom from those troubles which he has formerly encountered with the approach of cold weather.

To those who want "knockless" engine performance, coupled with a new wealth of engine power and quick starting we recommend a trial of Imperial Ethyl Gasoline--truly the most important and amazing motor fuel discovery of the past twenty years.

The price of Imperial Ethyl Gasoline is 4 cents per gallon above the regular Premier price—and well worth it.

CAUTION!

Do not confuse this wonderful new fuel with the many so-called "Anti-Knock" Gasolines on the market. And do not be misled by other gasolines purposely colored red to resemble Ethyl.

Our well-known Premier Gasoline has as much "Anti-Knock" quality as any gasoline made or sold in Canada with the sole exception of Imperial Ethyl Gasoline. The latter is more than a gasoline—it's a motor fuel of super-efficient qualities.

For your protection, no dealer or service station will be permitted to sell Imperial Ethyl Gasoline through any pump that does not conspicuously display the official Imperial Ethyl Trade-Mark as reproduced in this advertisement.

For Sale September 18th only at Pumps displaying this Sign ➤

LOSING A GOOD CITIZEN.

Peterboro is losing a good citizen in the departure on September 15th of Mr. George Henderson, for nearly twelve years accountant of the Peterboro Utilities Commission.

During his tenure of that office Mr. Henderson has been a most valuable public servant, introducing modern methods in the Commission's office and being responsible for a number of radical and important changes that have facilitated the rapid, smooth and accurate handling of the business of this branch of the public service.

Mr. Henderson as a private citizen has always been eager to help any worthy cause.

Particularly has he been of great service in connection with the Peterboro Kiwanis Club, of which organization he is a charter member.

He was Secretary of the club during the period of its organization, and has since given useful service both to Kiwanis and the community as a member of the Board of Directors.

Peterboro citizens will wish him every success in his new position, which necessitates his removal to Montreal.

THE END OF THE CAMPAIGN.

One of the quietest election campaigns in the history of West Peterboro comes to a close this evening, and tomorrow the voters will give their verdict.

The contest has been most happily free from personalities or rancor; the candidates and their workers deserve credit for this clean campaign and for the manner in which the amenities have been observed throughout.

As for the general public, it must be admitted that its attitude toward the campaign has been apathetic to the point of absolute indifference.

If this merely means that the electors had long ago made up their minds as to how their ballots were to be marked, the quietness with which the campaign has been greeted will not matter much.

On the other hand, if the indifference is carried through to the stage of a refusal even to vote, that condition can certainly not be described as symptomatic of a healthy public spirit.

It is to be hoped that the first theory is correct, and that in spite of the absence of excitement in the contest, a large proportion of the 21,000 odd votes on the West Peterboro lists will be used tomorrow.

WE WANT YOUR HELP.

The Examiner's election night service tomorrow night will be as complete as possible, both in connection with local and district returns and in receiving the results of the battle of the ballots in all parts of the Dominion.

Information will be cheerfully given over the telephone, but in this regard we ask the co-operation of the citizens generally.

The public can do much to help if the inquiries are definite and to the point.

Please don't ring up and merely say, "How's the election."

The operator at our end of the phone won't know whether you want to know about the local situation or the general outlook.

If you want the West Peterboro returns, say so; if you are inquiring about the standing in the country, make that clear at once.

There will be thousands of inquiries, so that our friends will realize that it will be impossible for our staff to give over the telephone details about any particular polling place or tell the majority somebody had somewhere in 1921.

Extras will be issued frequently giving up-to-the-minute news of the situation, and the information you may want will be found in these editions.

Make your inquiry definite and clear and you will earn the gratitude of The Examiner ensemble, for which election night is by no means a sinecure.

THE GRAIN CROP AND ITS EFFECTS.

The immediate effects of the grain crops of the past two years have not been so apparent as some merchants and distributors would like. But it does not follow that because a farmer makes profits he proceeds at once to spend them. The interests of the farmer are more varied than are those of other workers. In fact, the farmer is a land-owner and a capitalist in a small way, as is the average merchant, whereas the average worker is a wage earner and perhaps the proprietor of a house to live in. In his capacity of capitalist the farmer always has an outlet for surplus profits, and when he is a borrower this outlet becomes an insistent demand. City dwellers have become so accustomed to mortgaged properties that they regard surplus earnings as available for additional comforts and luxuries. Not so the farmer, now as in the past. He aims to clear his farm, so that he may own not only his dwelling but also his land and instruments of production. Then when he reached this fortunate stage he develops an ambition to save more and retire, for however the comforts of farm life have improved, there is no doubt but that town life is still the more attractive. The only difference between now and twenty-five years ago is that the farmer of the present day is willing and is generally able to spend a little more on comforts.

A good yield and a fair price is the normal result of farm operations, and the farmer's plans are laid on that basis. Therefore, when a bad year comes many of them fall behind, either in their payments on borrowings or on estimated profits. He has also added to his obligations by taking on life insurance. The good crops of the past two years have enabled thousands of farmers in Canada to catch up on their obligation. Those who are prudent and reasonably lucky should by this time be pretty well clear, and though this may result in a little freer spending of the 1926 crop proceeds, any boom in retail sales from this cause need not be anticipated.

The grain crops of Canada must be regarded as a big factor in our economic system rather than as income of individual farmers. A good crop fills the elevators, increases grain trading and transportation and storage, and increases bank transactions. It probably reduces bank and mortgage loans, though the resulting stimulus to farm settlement may later increase these investments.—The Monetary Times.

The death of a famous screen star recently has given emphasis to the whole situation as to men and women of that class. To be told that the deceased idol had earned a million dollars for appearing in five pictures during a little over a year of time is a distinct shock to a sound sense of real values. The conviction is irresistible that he could not possibly have earned that vast sum, and out of that conviction grows the logical deduction that there is something wrong with a system which makes it possible.

It may be conceded that there is room for creative genius on the part of those who appear on the screen; but the one just criticism against the whole business of making moving pictures is that very little of that nature has yet appeared. Obviously, this is not because the rewards are inadequate. In the whole course of civilization and commerce no such opportunities for quick fortune-making have occurred as attach to the so-called art of acting before a camera.

Apparently the essential requirements are a "screen face," a winsome figure, and the ability to respond to direction. In the case of a man, it is a distinct advantage to have the reputation of being "a sheik," whatever that may mean. If there is any genius displayed at all in the matter, it is, with few exceptions, the possession of the director; for the actor merely does what he is told to do. His part is almost wholly automatic. The best actor is the man or woman who responds most effectively to the signals given. He or she may not even know the plot and purpose of the picture. Therefore, to pay so enormously for work of that brainless class is contrary to all the accepted canons of values and proportion in every relation in life.

It may well be said that popular demand and popular interest in moving pictures has not only made all this possible, but in some degree unavoidable, since the men and women who answer to the specifications are rare. The argument is not, however, convincing. If the business of satisfying such a universal demand is so profitable as to permit one of these automatic actors to be paid more for appearing in a single picture than a college professor can earn in a lifetime, it should give its patrons something better than they are getting. There is no escape from such a conclusion.

We have heard a great deal about the demoralizing effects of the screen drama. Probably much of it is sheer rubbish. As a recreation the moving picture fills a useful place, and has given rest and joy to unreckonable numbers. If it does any serious harm, it is among those who find in it the suggestion of unearned and speedy fortune; and, by contrast, the prosaic and slow process of nearly all other ways of winning high reward. That would seem t obe a thing capable of remedy at the hands of the men who control the industry.

We should look for our heroes among those who really do something for their fellows. There is not a trace of sacrifice suggested by life and activities of those men and women who figure on the screen. Quite the contrary. They are very ordinary people for the most part, and instead of self-denial for the common good, there is much of the opposite nature in their lives. To make popular idols of such creatures of clay is, as has just been said, a reproach to our sense of values. It is not a good thing to see tens of thousands struggle for a final glimpse of a successful automaton, and to have his name given unusual prominence, while really heroic men and women are permitted to pass away almost unnoticed and unsung.

It merely shows how unmeaning and unappraising is the thing we call popular judgment. The situation is not bettered when one realizes that the next most profitable vocation is that of a prize fighter.—St. Catharines Standard.

A FIDDLERS' CONTEST.

If it is not too late, The Examiner would like to suggest to the management of the Peterboro Industrial Exhibition that an old-time fiddlers' contest be introduced as a feature of Music Day, which is to be held on Friday.

In this district there must be plenty of accomplished fiddlers who would be glad to participate in such a contest if they were invited to compete for a prize.

Competitions of that kind have been a wonderful success wherever held; the public like them, the contestants like them.

Old-time fiddlers' contests have had a wonderful vogue in various parts of the Continent in recent months, and there is every reason to believe that a local competition would be most enthusiastically received.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Vote as you like tomorrow, and vote early—but be careful about voting too often.

No matter who wins tomorrow, it is Peterboro's duty to give the Exhibition at least 40,000 majority.

The Examiner wouldn't be surprised if somebody called up Wednesday morning and asked when the Federal election was going to be held.

It is hoped the Ewart-Reid argument over constitutional history will be wound up in time to let these learned gentlemen exercise their franchise.

FADS OF THE FAMOUS

LORD GAINFORD.

Baron of Headlam, one of England's largest coal owners, is also England's champion male knitters. Whenever there is a knitting circle or competition of any consequence in any part of the island, Lord Gainford is usually present.

Retiring from the presidency of the Board of Education in 1915, this wealthy baron applied for, and was granted, a political pension of $6,000 a year. He gave the pension up under public pressure, but a few months later was appointed Postmaster-General.

Later he retired to the quietness of the House of Lords, where he has frequently been spokesman for the mine owners.

STERLING EXCHANGE

MONTREAL, Quebec, Sept. 13. — Canadian Press. — Sterling exchange rates were quoted here Saturday as follows:

Sterling demand, $4.84 1-2.
Sterling cables, $ .85.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 13. Canadian Press. — Attempts by the eastern shorts to cover coupled with reports of unfavorable weather in the Canadian northwest offset the bearish construction placed on the United States and Canadian government crop reports of Saturday and boosted wheat values after an early downward trend. At the finish wheat showed a net gain of 1 3-4 to 2 1-4, corn was unchanged to 1 1-4 up; oats advanced 7-8 to 1 1-4 and provisions were unchanged to 2 1-2 higher.

Prospects of frost on Saturday night in parts of the northwest with the possibility that the cold might reach some sections of the middle west, led to free buying of corn and a higher level of values.

The forecast indicated more rain over the corn belt and in addition offerings were light.

Oats were higher with the government report construed at bullish.

Provisions were easier on Scattered selling and in sympathy with weakness in cottonseed oil.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, September 13. — Canadian Press. — The foreign demand for Canadian grain on the Montreal market on Saturday, was extremely small and little business was transacted.

In sympathy with the strength that developed in the Winnipeg future market for oats, the domestic cash grain market here closed strong at an advance of 2c per bushel, but the volume of business in Canadian western oats was small.

The market for spring wheat grades of flour was fairly active and prices were steady. A moderate amount of business was worked in winter wheat grades and values ruled firm.

The tone of the market for millfeed was firm under a continued good demand from all sources. The undertone to market for standard grades of rolled oats was firm with a fair trade passing.

Prices for all grades of storage and fresh eggs were firmly maintained, under a good enquiry. The receipts on Saturday totalled 1429 cases.

A steadier feeling prevailed in the butter market owing to an improved demand from local sources. The receipts were 485[illegible] packages.

The demand from foreign buyers for cheese continued indifferent on Saturday but the local enquiry was fair and a moderate amount of business was done. The receipts were 6399 boxes.

Kildman Children Strike Over Long Walk To School

WINNIPEG, Sept. 11 (Canadian Press).—In protest against an order which would compel them to walk a mile to school, thirty pupils of an East Kildonan school have gone on strike. The children have the support of their parents. School Board authorities explained that the transfer was necessary owing to overcrowded conditions of other schools in the district. Kildonan is a municipality adjoining Winnipeg.

NEW SPORT ROADSTER BY DODGE BROTHERS

The new sport roadster with rumble seat which is now being displayed in the showrooms of Dodge Brothers dealers everywhere offers an unusual combination of beauty and service.

The dashing appearance and smart rakish lines of this new addition to Dodge Brothers' line will win the instant admiration of everyone who takes pride in a touch of individuality in the appearance of the car he drives.

There is a striking contrast between the tan colored top, the brilliant blue lacquer of the body and hood and the lustrous black of the fenders and shields. The highly polished nickel of the bumpers, lamp rims, radiator shell, windshield stanchions and top bow trimming adds a distinctive touch.

The cushion and back of the rumble seat, like the front upholstery, are of handbuffed blue Spanish genuine leather, constructed over spring frames to insure maximum riding ease. The back is high and well pitched. The deck is so constructed that when the seat is folded the rear compartment is absolutely waterproof, even in the rainiest weather. Exceptional space, easily accessible through a large covered opening behind the driver's seat, is provided for carrying golf clubs, tennis rackets, parcels or luggage.

ABOUT THE HIGHWAY.

The Editor, The Examiner, City:
Dear Sir:

For pure stupidity and utter disregard to the rights of the public the pouring of soft tar all over the highway takes the cake.

Just south of Peterboro on the Peterboro-Port Hope provincial highway, hundreds of gallons of thin tar have been smeared for miles all over the road, and that has been dusted with pebbles and dust from broken stones, but so lightly that the tar flies all over the automobiles passing through it. If half the road had been tarred, leaving it open for traffic, this thing tar would not fly all over the automobiles passing through it and damaging the clothing of the occupants of these cars.

Whose fool idea it was to cover the entire roadway with tar I suppose will never be disclosed, but I saw several people in Port Hope who were forced to go over this road, and their cars were smeared a pearl grey color with the flying tar, the wind had blown tar and small particles of stone even upon the wind shields, and one lady's suit and hat were ruined.

Yours truly,
"TAXI DRIVER"

FROM MR. TRAYNOR.

To the Editor of The Examiner,
Peterboro, Ont.

Dear sir:

As a ratepayers of the township of Harvey I, like nearly all others in this neighborhood, am supporting Joe Duffus, the Liberal candidate in this election, for the reason that we know from experience that he is a man who does things.

About three years ago, one day he was out doing business in the vicinty of Hall's Bridge or Buckhorn. The water in the lake having been raised by work carried on by the Government had flooded over the road leading north from Buckhorn, a condition which made it extremely difficult and dangerous to negotiate with either a horse drawn vehicle or motor car.

Mr. Duffus secured a photograph of an automobile coming through the water and measured the depth of it, which was exactly thirty-three inches, and immediately took the train for Ottawa with the photograph and measurements, went into the Parliament Buildings showed Mr. Gordon and other interested in Department of Public Works and succeeded in getting an appropriation sufficient to raise the road high enough that the water would not flood over it, and now we have a first class road, which before was in a very dangerous condition. No one but those who use this road know of just what value it is to us.

Our contention is that if Mr. Duffus could accomplish things like this when only a private citizen he will be able to do many such splendid turns for the people of this constituency if he is armed with the authority of the people's representative.

Again we unhesitatingly say that we are supporting him and will continue to support him while he is effective as the representative of this riding.

Yours very truly,
JOE TRAYNOR

Lyrics Of Life

(By Douglas Malloch.)

THE HAPPY ENDING

She cannot read a single word,
Yet every tale she ever heard
She knows by heart, and tells them over—
The tale of every royal rover,
Of ragged prince and cruel king,
She cannot read a single thing,
Yet knows the fairies are attending,
To give the tale a happy ending.

She's only four, and I am old,
And so, I sit around and scold
Because life isn't as I planned it,
Because I cannot understand it.
Yet life's a tale we learn by heart,
And though we toil and lose and part,
It has its promise, if we heed it,
Although we cannot really read it.

She's but a child, and yet how wise
Are children's hearts and children's eyes.
Although they do not know a letter,
They know life's tale and know it better
Than those who try to know too much.
Whatever depths we ever touch,
Remember God will give us glory,
A happy ending to life's story.

WHERE THEY LIVED

By Dr. Frank Crane.

It is a trait of human nature to feel that the house; the neighborhood, the city you live in is somehow different from the houses, neighborhoods and cities the great men you have read about have inhabited.

We never quite believe—although we say we do—that we live in the identical world with the great.

The garden of peace which the thin-lipped monk, Gregor Mendel, hoed and watched in search for proof for his law of heredity seems different from the gardens we have seen.

The romance of a great discovery clings to it and makes us imagine it had something elusively different about it, that it in itself aided in the great discovery.

When we read of the stars under which the exiled Dante walked and dreamed his immortal dream we feel somehow they were a different sort of stars from the ones we may see tonight.

When we think of the moonlight which flooded the rose garden and the poor musician, Schubert, as he stood beneath the window of the nobleman's daughter, his mind singing the deathless melody of his "Serenade," that moonlight seems remote, enhanced in beauty by the presence of genius, oddly removed from the moonlight we are familiar with.

The little tumbledown shed on the outskirts of Paris, where Pierre Curie and his wife Marie made their great discovery of radium, has a glamor clinging to it which seems to remove it from a likeness to the common sheds we have known.

The lonely road through the pine woods where Emerson and Thoreau tramped and talked together seems a different one from that we travel over when we visit Concorn. Then it seems to have had a different character, to have aroused greater thoughts in those who wandered there.

All this unconscious feeling that genius lives in an environment that contributes something from outside is fallacious.

"The poem hang on the berry bush

The street begins to masquerade
When Shakespeare passes by."

Greatness arises from the seeing eye, the understanding brain, the feeling heart.

It is not derived from surroundings which are dissimilar from those of other men.

SPAIN OFFICIALLY ANNOUNCES WITHDRAWAL FROM ASSEMBLY

Says Cause Was Failure To Obtain Permanent Seat With Germany.

IMPERATIVE DUTY.

GENEVA, Sept. 13 (Canadian Press).—Spain has left the League of Nations. An official communication announcing Spain's withdrawal was received at Geneva on Saturday and circulated immediately among all the members of the League. The communication declared that Spain had taken this step "in obedience to imperative duty."

The resignation is dated San Sebastian, September 8, and is signed by Foreign Minister Yanguas. It was delivered personally to Sir Eric Drummond, Secretary-General of the League, by the Spanish Consul at Geneva.

The note from the Spanish Government glides over the reason for the resignation, but the Spanish representative had made it perfectly clear that the cause of the withdrawal was failure to obtain a permanent seat in the Council of the League simultaneously with the election of Germany to that honor.

The note points out that Spain had refrained from giving official notification until the Asssembly had approved the reform in the composition of the Council, as regards permanent members, because it wished to show respect for the League of Nations, and desired also to await the Assembly's pronouncement on the admission of Germany—"which event Spain ardently hopes will be of great advantage to the League of Nations."

Further—it declares that Spain is convinced that her decision does not compromise any vital interests or principle of the League, "whose prosperity is ardently desired by Spain, her king and her government."

The communication continues by voicing deepest gratitude to all friendly states, whose representatives generously expressed their appreciation of Spain's work in the organs of the League and for the esteem and the affection in which they hold Spain—expressions which would always remain in cherished memory.

In conclusion, the note says:

"In leaving the League of Nations in obedience to imperative duty, Spain desires to express the hearty wish that the high ideals and universal peace for which the League was founded, and which our country has hitherto so earnestly and so effectively served, will be crowned with success."

The Spanish resignation deranges the plans of the League leaders concerning the League Council, which henceforth will consist of 14 instead of 10 members.

An agreement had been practically reached to elect Spain to a temporary seat and simultaneously extend her mandate of re-eligibility, thus virtually assuring her unbroken membership in the Council.

FUNGI POISON FIVE OF FAMILY

Supposed Mushrooms Gathered By London Man Have Bad Results.

LONDON, Ont., Sept. 13 — Mr. and Mrs. James Marks, Annie Marks, 7 years old, John Marks, 12 years old, and Joe Slivinski, 45 years old, are in Victoria Hospital, and Sidney Shyzmanski, is confined to bed at his home as a result of eating poisonous fungi in mistake for mushrooms. The plight of the Marks family was discovered by R. R. Whitehead, a neighbor, when John came to his home Saturday evening at 6.30 o'clock, crying that his parents were dying. Mr. Whitehead found Mr. and Mrs. Marks and Annie in a helpless condition. John went to summon another neighbor, and he, too, collapsed.

Drs. W. B. MacDermott and Cameron Wilson attended the poisoned family, but they were too ill to move to the hospital until Sunday morning. A small baby was the ony member of the family to escape the effects of the poisonous plants. The doctors used stomach pumps immediately in an effort to forestall the effects of the poison, but it will be some time before results will be definitely known as fungi poison works very slowly.

Mr. Marks went to pick the mushrooms earlier in the afternoon but where he obtained the poisonous plants is not known, he being too ill to tell. On his way home he stopped in at the Shyzmanski place and gave them some of the plants.

Mr. Downham, Medical Officer of Health, will make an effort to find where the fungi was obtained, and people will be warned regarding the picking of mushrooms in the vicinity.

Plans Five Year Trip to the Labrador Coast

WISCASSET, Me., Sept. 13.—The trim litle schooners Bowdoin and Sachem III., bringing Commander Donald B. MacMillan and his party back from an eighty-one day cruise to Greenland, Labrador and Baffin Land, anchored for the night in Christmas Cove, twenty miles east of here.

Today they will sail up the Damariscotta River to Wiscasset on the last lap of their journey. Plans have been made to tender Commander MacMillan a public reception when he arrives here at 11 a.m., after completing his tenth voyage of exploration to the Arctic regions.

The expedition has brought back several hundred specimens of birds, fish and animals. These are to be turned over to the Field Museum in Chicago.

But the most gratifying result achieved by the explorers, in the opinion of Commander MacMillan, was the collection of valuable data from an Eskimo at Naim, Labrador, through which the explorer hopes to produce the first real proof that the Norsemen actually discovered America several hundred years before Columbus.

This Eskimo, whose name is Amantas Paniguniak, is familiar with traditions of his people which tell of the invasions of a fierce race of warriors known as the Tunit, Commander MacMillan said.

Eskimo Says Graves Are Tunit's.

The Eskimo declared that there were graves and ruins of a site once occupied by these Tunit at a place called Kayonaku, but because of the expedition's limited time, Commander MacMillan said, they were unable to visit this place.

The same Eskimo, the Commander added, showed them the ruins of six or seven buildings built in rectangular shape on rock foundations, which corresponded in many respects with Norse ruins found in the Godthaab fiord in Greenland.

The Eskimo also pointed out a rocky island off the coast and said that, according to tradition, after several fierce battle between the Eskimos and the Tunit in which both sides lost many men, the Tunit finally took refuge on this island where eventually they were besieged and slaughtered.

In order to investigate these stories, the explorer said, he plans to equip another expedition to leave next June for a five-year stay in Labrador. The expedition, he said, will include botanists, geologists, ichthyologists, ornithologists and other scientists.

It will make its headquarters at Kowk in Labrador, where a scientific station will be built. It will have a two-fold purpose; first, the excavation and study of the ruins at Kanoyak, and, second, special research in the field of terrestial magnetism and atmospheric electricity.

Kowk, Commander MacMillan said, is admirably suited for this last purpose, because the Northern Lights there are stronger and more brilliant than anywhere else in the world. They flash overhead practically every night.

LAND ITALIANS NEAR HALIFAX

Large Steamer Sends 100 Men Ashore at Mill Cove.

HALIFAX, N. S., Sept. 13. — (Canadian Press.)—A long-distance telephone message from Hubbards, 30 miles west of Halifax, on St. Margaret's Bay, stated that a large steamer flying an Italian flag had anchored in Mill Cove yesterday afternoon and proceeded to land men in two boats. The message stated that by early evening 100 men, evidently Italians, had passed through Hubbards on foot after landing from the steamer and headed along the main road to Halifax. They spoke only one word of English—"Halifax," which was given in answer to all questions.

According to the information reaching the authorities here, about 300 men had landed this evening. A squad of immigration officers and Royal Canadian Mounted Police left for Hubbards soon after the information was received.

The steamer was said to be the "Doary," but its name could not be found in local records.

The people of Mill Cove, a tiny village between the Summer resorts of Chester and Hubbards, were reported to be in state of fear from the steady influx of foreigners who were reported to b coming ashore in two boats, 13 men to a boat each trip. There were no complaints of disorder on the part of the newcomers, however, and they were said to be well dressed and quiet.

Inspector L. E. Nauze of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, before leaving for the scene last night, arranged with the Department of Marine and Fisheries to have a steamer rushed to the entrance of St. Margaret's Bay to intercept the strange craft should it prepare to leave the bay before the officers reach Mill Cove.

"Now I come to something which pains me exceedingly; I wish I could get out of saying it and I have come to the place where I almost wish I had gone to Europe the other morning; it would have been much more comfortable· I have, however, IN AGONY reached the conclusion that the late government was well aware for quite a period of time —possibly from March to November— that all was not well in the Customs Department. It is possible that they knew that Bisaillon was the head of the Montreal underworld and chief preventive officer at one and the same time. I AM AFRAID IT IS TRUE THAT IT WAS NOT UNTIL THE STEVENS MOTION WAS MOOTED that the eleven charges which had been laid against Bisaillon were investigated, and I believe it is true that Mr. Duncan was able to secure the arrest of Mr. Bisaillon four days after he was really given authority to do so."

"IN AGONY" Miss McPhail voted against her former friends, the King Government.

REPORTS HEAVY DEMAND FOR WESTERN WHEAT

Statement To Canadian Board of Grain Commissioners on Crops.

FUTURE DELIVERY.

Illustrates Need of Increased Storage Capacity at Montreal Port.

FORT WILLIAM, Ont., Sept. 13 (Canadian Press). — Following is the report of E. A. Ussell, statistician to the Board of Grain Commissioners for Canada, on the movement of Western grain crops for the month of August, 1926:

"Although there was a considerable improvement in the demand from overseas importers for Canadian grain, the large proportion was future rather than immediate shipment. Consequently the situation which developed at Montreal in July, when receipts at the elevators were so much larger than shipments that all the elevator space available was filled and lake steamers with cargoes to unload experienced increasing delay, continued. The larger volume of shipments taking place will provide the necessary storage space, so that conditions should be entirely normal in good time for the handling of the new crop now being harvested. The circumstances illustrate very forcibly the need of increased storage capacity if the port of Montreal desires to provide facilities in proportion to the ever increasing volume of Western crops to be moved.

"At the head of the lakes elevator stocks were reduced to a very low point by shipments to lower lake ports and the Atlantic seaboard in readiness for export. Heavy rains throughout the prairie provinces retarded harvesting operations very considerably, with the result that very little of the new grain reached the terminals.

"In the districts where the grain was not fully ripened, however, these rains caused a very noticeable improvement in crop prospects and much heavier yields per acre are expetced. As comparatively small quantities of new crop grain have as yet passed inspection points, and those principally from points where harvesting took place early, it is not possible to obtain a fair indication of the quality of the crop. Both barley and rye are grading very satisfatcorily. Up to the end of August the total new crop inspections were: Wheat 1,095 cars, oats 9, barley 512, rye 214 and flaxseed 1, respectively. Of the wheat, 91 graded one northern, 450 two northern and 463 three northern, representing 29.1 per cent. of the total grading contract grades.

"Lake freight rates in consequence of much smaller shipments during the month were somewhat indefinite, moving within the following ranges: To bay ports 2 to 2¼ cents; to Montreal 7 to 8 cents; to Buffalo 2 to 2½ cents, all per bushel. Wheat basis, for spot shipments early September the rates are: Bay ports 2½ cents; Montreal 8 to 10½ cents, and Buffalo 2 to 2½ cents. Tonnage has also been taken for shipment to Buffalo before Sept. 20, 3 cents; last 10 days September, 3 to 3½ cents; October 1 to 20, 4 cents and last days October, 4½ cents per bushel. Wheat basis, also to bay ports, all October 3 to 3¼ cents, and to Montreal late September and all October 10½ cents per bushel, wheat basis.

"From the Atlantic seaboard to United Kingdom Continent, rates continue firm with all available tonnage to most ports from Montreal reported as engaged up to almost the end of October. Any tramp steamers coming in to position for cargoes command a cent or so per 100 lbs. higher to the Antwerp-Rotterdam-Hamburg range from Montreal than was paid two weeks ago. Current quotations for shipments from Montreal are: to United Kingdom 12 cents to 12½ cents per bushel; to Antwerp-Rotterdam, 17½ to 18 cents per 100 lbs.; to Antwerp-Hamburg range 18½ to 19 cents; and to Mediterranean ports 22 cents per 100 lbs."

brother, Arthur, aged 19, of the same address, were thrown in their car against the gate post at the south-west corner of the crossing, and pinned there by the detached end of the street car. There were seven passengers in the street car at the time, but only four were injured. The list of the injured is as follows:

Harold Inkpen, aged 23, of 133 Day Avenue, fairly serious injuries to the head and body. Taken to St. Michael's Hospital.

Miss Frances Gordon, aged 19, of 355 Scarboro Road. In St. Michael's Hospital with fairly serious head and body injuries.

Arthur Baynes, aged 19, of 11 Eastwood Road, Birch Cliff. Injured about the head and body. Taken home.

Jack Baynes, aged 26, of 11 Eastwood Road, Birch Cliff. Injured about the head, body and lower limbs.

F. Wright, aged 19, of 219 Shaw Street.

R. Robinson, aged 21, 736 Shaw Street.

George Cracknell, aged 40, of 37 Saulter Street.

All suffering from cuts about the face and hands, and shock. Cracknell had to have five stitches in his upper lip.

Motorman Foley and Conductor Entwistle escaped injury. The two motor cars were reduced to scrap-iron and were drawn away from the scene on flat cars. A C.N.R. wrecking crew removed the freight cars, which were little damaged, while a T.T.C. gang of wreckers replaced the street car on its trucks. The injured persons were given first aid by Drs. Hastings and Stewart, who

The near-tragedy occurred when the return Exhibition traffic was at its height. A few minutes before the gates had been lowered to allow one train to continu over the crossing to the Union station, and the Intercolonial to pass on its way north. As the gates were lifted a Beach street car, jammed with its Exhibition crowd, passed over the crossing in an easterly direction. Immediately in its rear was the motor car driven by Inkpen, conveying Miss Gordon to her home at Scarboro. Following it close was the Baynes car. At the same moment Foley drove his street car upon the crossing, proceeding in a westerly direction.

As the street car gained the centre of the crossing the first of the runaway cars, a heavy steel coal car, struck the T.T.C. car square in the middle, lifted it bodily into the air, then dropped in with a resounding crash, with its rear trucks resting against the gatepost at the southwest corner of the crossing. The Inkpen automobile was caught a slanting blow and hurled almost to the east side of the crossing, but the Baynes car was pushed by the end of the streetcar, which swung free against the gate post. Miss Gordon was hurled bodily from the Inkpen auto on her head. The steering wheel he had held a moment before was snatched from Jack Baynes' hand and thrust right between his feet. The Baynes car was telescoped like a concertina.

The shock of the collision threw the coal car from the tracks, but the cars behind it managed to retain their hold. The passengers in the street car were lifted high in the air, carried across the tracks by the thrusting coal car, and deposited, none too gently, on the road west of the railroad tracks. In their terror, the passengers scrambled to whatever exit presented itself the most readily. Flying glass rained down upon them from the shattered windows, inflicting sundry nasty gashes on the face and hands of those unfortunate enough to be in the way. However, all were extricated from their unpleasant predicament by ready hands in a minimum of time and with a minimum of injury. After receiving first aid, those not so badly hurt were able to go home.

BOWEN MEETING AT MILLBROOK

Speakers For M. E. Maybee Address Electors at Pethericks and Burnbrae.

MILLBROOK, Sept. 13.—F. W. Bowen, late member for Durham, held his first meeting in Millbrook in this campaign on Saturday evening; A. J. Fallis, M.P.P., being in the chair.

The candidate was called upon for the opening address and expressed his pleasure in the large gathering which filled practically every seat in the hall, quite a number having to stand because of lack of seating accommodation.

Referring to the fact of a second election within a year, Mr. Bowen went on to mention the appeal to the country of Right Honorable Mackenzie King because he lacked a sufficient majority to carry on his administration. That Honorable Arthur Meighen was willing to co-operate in finishing up the business of the session, after Mr. King's resignation, was asserted by the candidate, but this offer was not taken advantage of. Two or three seats at least had been stolen from the Conservative party in the Peace River district at the last election, said the speaker, and he also contended that there is no constitutional issue in the present contest.

"None of the leaders in the King administration who went to the country last Fall, except Hon. Mr. Murdoch, are seeking seats in the election now in progress," Mr. Bowen stated, mentioning a number of names which are not included in the official list of candidates this year.

"I voted against the Robb budget, with its reductions especially on automobiles, because I believed these were too drastic, and as it turned out afterward, through the changes which had to be made, I was correct."

"Tinkering with the tariff," was charged against Mackenzie King, and the consequent loss to Canada of thousands of her young people was spoken of. "What's the use of talking of increasing immigration if we can't hold our own people here?"

The fiscal policy of the late administration, and the need of stable government, and a protective tariff, both of the latter being assured, according to the speaker, through the return of Honorable Arthur Meighen as Prime Minister, formed the concluding topics of Mr. Bowen's address.

"A vote for the Conservative party is a vote for clean, honest government, and the same loyal support given me on Tuesday next as was given me last October, will mean support of Right Honorable Mr. Meighen and the goood, old Conservative policy of protection, originated by Sir John A. Macdonald, and brought up-to-date by the present Prime Minister." (Applause).

F. G. McBrien, M.P.P. for Southwest Toronto, was introduced to the audience by the chairman as "one of our youthful members in the Provincial House, a lawyer and none the worse for that, for it's nearly as good a calling as that of a farmer."

F. G. McBrien, M.P.P.

McBrien made a special reference to his appreciation of the presence of so many ladies in the audience, adding, "They say in my constituency of Southwest Toronto that Freddie McBrien would never have reached the Legislature had it not been for the good, Tory ladies."

Urging support of F. W. Bowen, the speaker said, "A certain Toronto newspaper, which has a tremendous circulation, but very little influence, led us in the last election to believe that our young Toronto millionaire, Honorable Vincent Massey, was coming into this old, historic riding of Durham with his carpet-bag, and going back again with a portfolio. But we in the city knew better than that."

The Progresive party, Mr. McBrien stated, "is led by a Toronto lawyer who wouldn't know the difference between a buttercup and a cowslip; it has proved a tragedy in the Provincial Legislature, and in the Federal House a joke."

A high tribute was paid to "your able representative, A. J. Fallis, in the local House, "and the advice strongly given, "stick by the old party, and the old cause, and you will have nothing to fear, or regret."

"I don't like to talk scandal, or investigations, because it doesn't reflect favorably upon the Dominion, but you know, and I know, the Conservatives lost more than two or three seats through illegal practices in the last election.

"The real difference between a Progressive and a Liberal," the speaker said, "reminds me of the difference between an old-fashioned night shirt and a set of pyjamas —the names differ but they each serve the same purupose. There is no place in the government for an Independent because when elected they always become bed fellows of the Liberals."

Speaking on the immigration question Mr. McBrien said, "You know the first word in our Constitution is 'British,' and we should strive to keep this country British, and take pride in its good, English stock." That the largest proportion of our immigrants should come from the British Isles was insisted upon, 'and yet," the speaker added, "there's one class of citizen that's got the English, Scotch and Irish backed off the map, and that's the native-born Canadian." (Applause).

The splendid educational advantages of Canada were emphasized, $10,000,000 being in the Provincial estimates annually for this one item. "Can this country go on educating our boys and girls at a big expense to give the finished product to Uncle Sam, when we need them here to carry on our own affairs in the Dominion?" was the query made when dealing with the exodus to the States of Canadian young people. Six per cent. of the entire population of the Dominion has gone to the United States in the last five years, according to the speaker, "and this evidences a very serious situation."

The reason for this exodus was emphaticaly stated to be the tariff policy of Hon. Mr. King whose motto is "tariff ofr revenue" while Hon. Arthur Meighen stands for the policy, "tariff for protection."

That everyone is vitally interested in agriculture was insisted upon, and the fact that protection is needed for the farmers was pointed out by means of concrete instances of the duty charged by other countries, particularly the United States, and the lowes duty charged by the Canadian government. "Honorable Mr. Meighen promises definitely a policy that will give practical assistance to the farmers of Canada to make conditions here as prosperous for them as they can be made."

The need of increased population in Canada, the railroad situation, and its requirements, a comparison of the amount spent per capita in the markets of the world by Canada and the United States, the former being very much the larger, and the conditions prevailing in respect to imports, were given attention. "I think we spend altogether too much in the American markets, and the reason is the stagnation resulting from a wrong fiscal policy."

Laughter followed the remark, in connection with the Robb budget, "I don't know any minister more correctly named than Mr. 'Robb'; he's saved you a cent on a postage stamp, and robbed you of millions."

"We have the farmers that farm the land, and those that farm the people; and your candidate is one of the best of the former. In this old, historic county of Durham we are looking for you to roll up a big majority for Fred W. Bowen." (Applause).

W. C. Mikel

W. C. Mikel, K.C., of Belleville, was the concluding speaker, and as the hour was late his remarks were considerably shortened. He spoke in support of the candidate saying: "I find there is no one down at Ottawa whose judgment is really more respected than that of Fred W. Bowen."

Referring to the opposing candidate calling himself an Independent, an editorial from a leading newspaper was quoted which condemned strongly multiplicity of parties as not being in the best interests of the Dominion. "They go to Parliament and boast that they will support neither party, and what kind of a dose are you going to get when he comes back?"

They talk about the constitutional issue," the speaker averred, but who would run the election was really the salient point, adding "though it's a very nice thing to save the constitution, but I don't think it was in any danger."

The exodus to the States came in for a share of attention, "the reason being not that we have a dearth of resources, or lack of space over here, but our young people found they could get work over there and couldn't get steady employment and remuneration here." The enormous economic loss to the country was pointed out with emphasis, and a good reasonable protective tariff advocated as the remedy.

The development of large, industrial communities, with a consequent increase of the number of consumers will work out to the advantage of the farmers, according to Mr. Mikel's viewpoint, and this condition will come as the result of a proper protective tariff.

The achievement of Conservatism, "the real Progressive party," were enthusiastically enumerated, and support of the candidate who is its representative in Durham was urged in Mr. Mikel's concluding remarks. "Wipe out these achievements and there wouldn't be a great deal left of which to be proud. Tie up to F. W. Bowen means something, rather than a candidate who belongs nowhere, and cannot definitely say what or whom he is supporting. It's your business so get out and work, and don't stand around and do the agrunting and leave someone else to do the digging."

The singing of the National Anthem, and three cheers for Mr. Bowen, brought the meeting to a close.

OTHER SPEAKERS.

BURNBRAE, September 13. — Meetings in the interests of M. E. Maybee, Conservative candidate for Northumberland, were held at Menie and Petherick's Corners on Friday Evening. Messrs. A. McColl of Campbellford and Ha and James of Trenton, spoke at both meetings. Mayor Nikel of Belleville also addressed the Menie audience and John Anderson of Campbellford also spoke at Petherick's. While the crowds were not large much interest was taken in the proceedings. The Menie meeting developed into a real old-political battle when some of those present took exception to some of Mr. McColl's figures and statements.

Mr. Robert Linn presided at Menie with Mr. Ernest Irwin in the chair at Petherick's.

LD ABOLITION OF SLAVERY RGED BY LEAGUE OF NATIONS IN NEW INTERNATIONAL TREATY

opes To Launch Agreement at Coming Session of Assembly.

ENGLAND LEADS.

Nations Not Members Are Being Asked To Sign Convention.

By HENRY WOOD

(United Press Correspondent).

GENEVA (United Press). — The League of Nations expects to launch at last its new international convention for the world-wide abolition of all forms of slavery at its seventh annual assembly which opens here September 6.

All members of the League have been asked to send to the assembly delegations with plenary powers for formally signing the protocol. In addition, all governments that are not members of the League, such as the United States, Russia, Germany, Mexico, Turkey and Ecuador, will also be given an opportunity to accept the convention in the event they wish to join in the League's humanitarian work along this line.

The initiative for a new international convention against slavery was taken by England, and the present draft was largely the work of Lord Robert Cecil. The convention in its present form has now been submitted to all of the governments of the world, for their opinions and observations, and these have nearly all already reached the secretariat.

The great bulk of them are favorable in the extreme degree and the few suggestions that have been made for changes or amendments will be taken into consideration by the coming assembly before drafting the final text of the treaty.

The convention is very short, comprising only a brief preamble and 11 articles. It is intended to supplant by going still further, all previous existing conventions relative to the abolition of slavery such as the Brussels Act of 1889-90; and the Saint Germain treaty of 1919.

The convention, after defining first just what constitutes slavery and the slave trade, pledges all of the signatories to prevent and suppress the slave trade, and, secondly, to bring about as progressively as possible the disappearance of slavery in every form, and notably in the case of domestic slavery.

The provision for bringing about progressively instead of immedeiately the suppression of all forms of slavery was inserted so as to permit those countries which have a large economic system based upon slavery to bring about the change gradually without precipitating an economic crisis or upheaval.

The remainder of the treaty has largely to do with measures towards breaking up the slave trade, and with rendering mutual assistance to that end.

All signatories pledge themselves to prevent any embarkation, transportation or disembarkation of slaves on vessels flying their respective national colors. The signatories are also asked to enter into mutual regional agreements relative to zones where it is necessary for several nations to co-operate in order to break up the slave trade.

This has particular reference to the Red Sea, across which slaves recruited in Abyssinia and other East African countries are transported for sale in the Arabian peninsula. England, France and Italy are all interested in breaking up this traffic there.

Any signatories which may not already have laws punishing people engaged in the slave trade are pledged to enact such laws as soon as possible.

For the question of forced labor, the principle is established that this can only be exacted by central authorities for public work. In all cases it must be fully remunerated and entirely abolished as soon as the special conditions necessitating it cease to exist.

While the League expects to have at once the signatures of all the leading Christian nations of the world, decided opposition is expected from the Mohammedan countries where slavery is recognizable both by law and religion. But even here the League hopes eventually to make some progress.

NEW EL DORADO IN SOUTH SEAS

Rich Gold Field Is Found In Interior of New Guinea.

HARD TO GET AT.

SYDNEY (United Press).—Adventurers have found a new El Dorado in the South Seas.

According to authentic reports from Morobe (New Guinea), a rich gold strike has been made in wild mountainous country beyond Salamoa. Four centuries ago Alvaro de Saavedra and his hardy Spanish voyagers, sailing from the western coast of Mexico, coasted along the northern shores of New Guinea, and gave to the country the name Isla del Oro (Island of Gold). It is claimed now that for the first time the name is to justify itself.

Already shipments of gold from the new field have arrived at Sydney, and outgoing vessels are carrying increased passenger lists. But men experienced in the country say that the story of the Salamoa field will be the same as many others where nature has hidden her gold from men—a story of whitening bones and ill-rewarded effort.

The field is situated in a district which has more than 200 inches of rainfall a year. Malaria, dysentry, and worst of all, the dreaded blackwater fever, play havoc with travelers who venture into its area. The natives are the fiercest in the whole of New Guinea, and have not yet come under the spell of the white man's civilization.

Tools, stores, and even food, every ounce of it, have to be carried over a serried range of high mountains from the seaboard. The field lies but 15 miles from the nearest port, as the bird flies, but those 15 miles are converted into many more by the rough untamed nature of the country. It takes a full-laden native carrier—the only method of transport—seven or eight days to travel those few miles.

Such is the citadel in which the yellow god has fortified himself in this new El Dorado. Despite official warnings of the difficulties ahead, many Australian adventurers have already set out to woo fortune in this new world.

The field is in the Mandated Territory of New Guinea, formerly German New Guinea, and the known rich auriferous belt in this country is said to be one of the reasons why Germany is so anxious for the return of this former colony.

DEMOCRATS WOULD LOWER U. S. TARIFF

Downward Revision Is Expected If They Control Congress.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Sept 13 —(By John Snure, Canadian Press Correspondent).—Democratic leaders, as the "off year" election campaign begins to get under way, say more and more openly they intend to make the tariff the leading issue. In their campaign literature and in the speeches they are beginning to make, they are stressing the tariff and emphasizing the idea that the present high rates are a burden to the farmer and labor, and in general to the consumer. In the agricultural states of the west especially, they intend to emphasize the tariff.

It is too early to tell what the political effect of this will be. But it is clear that if the Democrats should carry Congress on this issue, they will be bound at once to set in motion a bill for tariff revision. Of course, such a bill would be vetoed by President Coolidge. That would defeat it unless—something which is hardly probable but nevertheless possible—two-thirds of both houses should favor lower tariffs and vote to pass the bill over the veto.

What is probable is that there will be enough Democrats and low tariff Republicans in the next House and Senate to pass a bill reducing the tariff rates but not enough to carry such a bill over a veto. The only effect of such action, therefore, would be political.

If the regular Republican organization is able to dominate the next House and make up the committees, then the Democrats will find it impossible to force a tariff bill through.

Shrewd judges of conditions differ widely as to the wisdom of the Democrats in emphasizing the tariff issue. Some say the country is ripe for tariff revision. Others declare it is not and that the Republicans will beat the Democrats badly in a tariff fight. They add that most of the farmers, though they decry the present rates on manufactured articles, are still protectionists whose view is not that the rates on manufactured articles should be cut but that rates on farm products should be raised to correspond.

The facts seem to be, judged by the history of tariff sentiment in the middle west and northwest, that here is a real sentiment in those regions for a lowering of rates.

STEAMLINE BULLETS

LONDON, Sept. 13. — (Canadian Press). — Although experiments have been in progress for a considerable time in connection with streamline bullets, so far it has proved impossible to arrive at any conclusions which would warrant the adoption of the type. This is the statement of Captain King, financial secretary to the War Office. Captain King adds that he is advised that the alleged superiority of the streamline bullet to the ordinary bullet as regards accuracy and penetrative powers is open to question.

Colonel Applin had suggested that this kind of ammunition might be adopted for our machine-guns until it is issued for the service rifle, and asked if this could not be done, what steps it was proposed to take "in order that our machine-guns shall not be inferior in range and accuracy to those of other nations, who have already adopted the bullet." To this Captain King replied that he cannot admit that British machine-guns are in any way inferior to the machine-guns of any other nation.

MINES FRIGHTEN SAILORS

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J., Sept. 13 —Rugged seafarers trying their calling in light vessels some fifteen miles southeast of Cape May were tormented and perplexed, and almost reduced to nervous wrecks, this week when two rust-and-barnacle-coated instruments of death—the dread German floating mines—arose like ghostly apparitions from their watery graves, whipped to the surface by the fury of a sea pounded for days by a terrific nor'easter.

One fishing smack sailed within a few feet of the deadly engines before they suspected the true nature of the floating objects. The fishermen, arriving at port, related their experience to Coast Guards at Base No. 9, in Cape May, and Commander E. S. Addison ordered an immediate search for the weapons of destruction.

Patrol Boat Finds Mine.

Several patrol boats set out cautiously in the heavy swells. A snub-nosed grey rum-chaser, in command of Boatswain R. E. Cash, came upon the mine from the windward. There was a hasty consultation between the boatswain and the members of the crew, and it was decided that the safest thing to do was to blow the mine from a distance.

Accordingly a stand was taken by the patrol boat and the one-pounder on the fore deck was brought into play.

Another Mine Is Feared.

The shells skimmed the water for several minutes, and then the gunners scored a bullseye. The mine exploded with a terrific detonation. Since the destruction of this mine Commander Addison said he had been informed by several nervous fishermen that another similar mine had been sighted in the same vicinity.

The search for the second mine was still in progress yesterday. Skippers plying the waters of Cape May are extremely nervous and wary. The mines bob up and down with the tides and are not easy to detect.

FORTY-EIGHT Constituencies Are Without Liberal Candidates

in the coming Election

In these forty-eight constituencies Liberals are asked to support candidates nominated by Progressives, Independents, Socialists, etc., and in one constituency the Liberal candidate is an open secessionist.

In forty-seven of these forty-eight constituencies Conservative Candidates are running, consequently the plan is—any combination of parties to beat the Conservatives.

1.—The Liberal strategy anticipates that MacKenzie King may be able to form a weak temporary government out of Liberal, Progressive, Independent, Socialist, Secessionist, etc. members—without candidates in forty-eight constituencies the Liberals can have no hope of securing a majority—then the tail will wag the dog again.

2.—As now seems certain, the Conservatives will have a good working majority and will be in a position to give Canada stable, constructive government.

In 1921, with everything in their favor, the King Government FAILED to get a working majority, securing only 117 seats out of 235.

In 1925, specially appealing to the country for a working majority, the King Government again FAILED, this time securing only 101 seats out of 245.

Then, finally, after floundering at Ottawa for six months by bartering, the King Government again FAILED, and went down to defeat followed by a vote of censure by the House of Commons for maladministration.

METHODS OF TRIAL HAVE CHANGED FROM EARLY DAYS OF ENGLAND

Abuses Grew Up in Systems —Woman Lawyer Early.

It would be a profound mistake to think that either the Romans or the Greeks, or any of their antecedent civilizations had any real influence upon our development at all. We have merely to go back to the times just before the Conquest. Now, leaving that for the moment, what is it that we find? We find at the time of the Conquest there were two, and practically only two, methods of trial. The one was in effect a hue and cry, in which an entire district went after the man that the entire district believed guilty, and when they captured him the entire district generally put him to death, a very simple process, in which the assistance of the advocate was really not necessary. The other process was a very interesting one indeed. It was the ordeal by water or by fire. The ordeal by fire consisted of compelling a person who was accused, either of a crime or of a breach of the law, to take a red hot iron in his hand and carry it for three paces in a church. His hand was then bound up, and if after three days the hand was uninjured, he was declared innocent. If the hand was burned, he was found guilty and executed. This was quite a popular form of trial, but it seemed to have received a severe check in the reign of William Rufus, because with great dificulty in the district of Winchester he had routed out a gang of thieves, and he had fifty of them under arrest. They all claimed their right to trial by ordeal by fire, and they were all accorded a trial. At the end of the third day William Rufus came himself to inspect their hands, and to his utter disgust he found they were all quite whole. He therefore expressed a disbelief in this method of ordeal by fire, but it did not appear that that had any effect whatever upon its popularity. It continued just the same. I would ask you not to think that I am telling you fairy tales. Some of you have probably been in the Cathedral of Winchester. Within the walls of that building this very method of trial was carried out, and I imagine that if you could only get on the right side of the priest who gave you the hot iron, you had a good chance of escaping punishment. If you did not, you suffered very severely.

The ordeal by water was a different thing. The ordeal by water consisted in tying the criminal hand and foot and throwing him into the water. If he sank, he was innocent. If he swam, he was guilty. Before this ordeal took place, the following solemn invocation was addressed to the water: I am going to read to you the actual words of the charge that used to be read out to the water before this process of legal procedure was adopted:

"I adjure thee, O water, in the name of the Father Almighty who created thee in the beginning, commanding thy use for human necessities, and that thou shouldest be separated from the waters above; I adjure thee by the unspeakable name of the Lord Jesus Christ, Son of the living God under whose feet the sea and elements, being severed, was trod upon and who was pleased to be baptized therein. I also adjure thee by the Holy Ghost. I adjure these by the name of the Holy and individual Trinity, by whose Will the element of the waters was divided and the people of Isarel forthwith passed through on dry foot, atw hose invocation the Prophet Hehaeas caused the axe which fell out of the heavens to swim, that thou do not in any manner receive this man if he be guilty of what he is accused by his act, consent or knowledge or any other device but make him swim upon thee to the end that there may be no counterfeiting with him or any exploiting that may disguise him, and by the name of Christ we command thee that for his sake thou obey us unto whom every creature doth searve, whom Cherubim and Seraphim doth praise and say Holy, Holy, Holy, Lord of God of Hosts who liveth and reigneth world without end."

It seems a strange reflection to think that with the solemnity that those gerat solemn words involved, people could have taken some unhappy suspected person, tied his limbs so that he could not move, and thrown him into the water only to declare him guilty if he swam, and innocent if he drowned. Well, nonetheless, that method of trial continued, and it was not abolished in England untilt he reign of Henry the Third.

Now, there was another method of trial which was introduced by William the Conqueror, and that was ordeal by battle. He introduced this, and of his great clemency, and in order to show that he did appreciate the needs of his Saxon subjects, he admitted the Saxons to claim ordeal by battle, and the old historians say that this was welcomed with the utmost pleasure by the Saxons who thought that at last they had really got a king who understood their wants to reign over them. The ordeal by battle was perfectly simple. There the lists were set, and the two people fought from sunrise until the stars rose. If one of them was beaten, he was guilty; the one who won was declared to be innocent. In that form of trial you now for the first time get something approaching the nature of an advocate, because women and the church were permitted to appear in the first instance by their chancellors. I have no doubt there must be many of you here who can still remember the thrill of pleasure with which you read the story that tells how Wilfred of Ivanhoe, still reeling from his wounds, rode into the lists at Templestone in defense of Rebecca of York. That is an accurate description of the method of trial that was then adopted, and the account of the lists in that book is practically historically accurate. But the method of employing these advocates to appear in the place of the person who was charged soon extended from priests and women until we find that in the Thirteenth Century there was a man who had a gladiator whose name was William Grimm, and he was prepared to let him out to any litigant at so much a fight. And he apears to be a most successful advocate, because when he was called in, the other side almost invariably gave in at once. The Pope did not seem to like it, and he said that hiring gladiators was not consistent with the pious reference to the judgment of Almighty God, and so he forbade it. But, he very little knew the English people who paid no attention whatever to what the Pope said and still pursued their favorite method of settling their disputes without the least regard to his admonition.

On one occasion it appears that six or seven people having been taken, one of them turned King's evidence, he was called upon as the champion of the King to challenge all the other people who had been his fellow conspirators and criminals to answer for their misdeeds, and the records, which, no doubt, are right prove that he slew the whole six.

Well, that form of trial, although it fell into disuse, remained as a form of trial open to litigans' parties in England until the nineteenth century and it was only in 1811, when a man was brought up on appeal for murder and challenged his right of battle against the prosecutor that the judges, finding that the right of battle existed, steps were taken to have the right repealed. In 1819 that right went away.

Well, there still remained among us some remnants of these two methods of trial. The old, and as I think, the most impressive phrase of being ready to go through fire and water for a friend, is the direct descendant to-day of the old ordeal by fire and water, when somebody was permitted to take upon himself this burden of challenging the water or the iron on behalf of some accused friend. While the phrase "champion" which is frequently on people's lips, and I notice often in the newspapers when they are referring to baseball or golf, is absolutely nothing but the repetition in modern language of this old method of trial.

Now, that only shows you the methods by which, little by little, the quarrels of one person were taken from them by another; but the appearing directly by an attorney or an advocate was of later date. In the first place, in the old days a person always had to appear himself wherever the trial was held. He could not appear by a deputy at all, but as the trials were then held from place to place, this became an extremely burdensome duty, and power was granted to every person to appear by an attorney. It was considered a great privilege to be granted by the Crown in those days, and I have often thought it very interesting women were permitted to be the attorneys. There is a case in the Thirteenth Century of a woman who did so appear as an attorney, but I regret to say that the case is reported, for this reason, to show that a person whon won't accept the judgment of the court can be removed for contumacy, and so this unhappy lady was removed; but I admit that my heart goes out to her over all these frozen centuries of years. Just think of her, brave, loyal, passionate, ignorant and unreasonable, prepared to face the united batteries, logics, law, reason and fact, on behalf of the man for whom she appeared, and finally defeated, but, utterly unsilenced and unconvinced she was removed from the court. I must say I only hope that neither her wimple nor her hood were disarranged in the process, but it may have had some little bearing on what happened afterwards, because in the reign of Edward II., and more notably in the reign of James I., the power of appointing attlorneys was vested in the judges who were especially charged to appoint people who were virtuous and learned. It is a very significant fact they never appointed a woman, and I cannot help thinking it must have been because they had that reported case constantly before their eyes. At any rate, when it became my privilege to argue on behalf of women that they were entitled to be admitted to the law, I never found any answer to the proposition that they had in fact been admitted as attorneys and that nothing had ever taken place to disquality them. However, after James I., in George the Second's reign, there were farther provisions to secure what attorneys should be properly qualified. They had to serve terms of apprenticeship as they do to-day, and in 1847 we passed the Act which exists at the present time enabling the Law Society to determine the examination and secure the proper standards of knowledge and learning for admission. It is a very simple, short history so far as the attorneys go. It comes down from the times that I stated and continues as it stands at the present time.

Meanwhile the advocate came along in rather a different way. The reason why these two people appear to have been separated at first—you have re-united them—we have not—was this: It was held in an early stage of English history that what was said on behalf of the man by his attorney bound him, but that what was said in his behalf by his advocate by his advocate did not bind him at all because the advocate was not his attorney, and the real responsible advocate was at liberty to say what he liked. In the early days there can be no doubt that there was not merely one advocate, but a person would appear with a group and had a chorus of advocates, each of them saying something quite different, and one of them saying anything that bound the client. That very quickly was brought to order, and you will find in Grafton in the middle of the Nineteenth Cenutry, that the advocate was becoming a well recognized person in the admin- of Edward I. there are special proistration of the law. In the reign visions, and I think it is very valuable to remember it, there are special provisions to punish for deceit any counsel who deceives the court, and the punishment was not mild. He was sent to prison, and there remained a power of that kind for a long time; and indeed, in the reign of the Stuarts there was one counsel who had offended the court by preparing a needlessly long and prolix pleading on parchment. He was ordeded to have his pleadings taken, a large hole to be cut in the middle, he was to have his head pushed through it, and he was attend the first day of the term of every court with is head through his pleadings. So that the discipline has always been regarded as a very valuable and important thing.

WORK FOR TRUCE IN DIVERSION FIGHT

Lake-To-Gulf Supporters Seek Agreement With St. Lawrence People.

WASHINGTON, D.C., Sept. 13 —(By John Snure, Canadian Press Correspondent).—With a view to smoothing the ways for the passage of the rivers and harbor bill at the coming session of Congress, efforts are being made by the supporters of the lakes-to-the-gulf waterway to allay the opposition of ports on the Great Lakes to the establishment of that channel and to diversion of the necessary amount of water from Lake Michigan.

Efforts are being made to harmonize the views of the advocates of the St. Lawrence waterway and of the Lakes-to-the-gulf waterway.

Significance is attached here to a recent speech made by Representative William E. Hull of Illinois, leading champion of the lakes-to-the-gulf waterway, before business men of Duluth, Minn. Mr. Hull advocated both the St. Lawrence waterway and the lakes-to-the-gulf waterway. He held both were necessary and that there was no reason why the advocates of one should oppose the other. He took the ground that it would take much more time at best to open up the St. Lawrence water route than the lakes-to-the-gulf waterway and that Duluth and other lake ports would be benefitted alike by the proposed water outlet to the Atlantic. As for diversion, he held that reasons other than diversion at Chicago were mainly responsible for lowering lake levels but in any event engineering works in the St. Clair River and vicinity would more than offset any diversion, and that no harm would be done to any interest involved.

Former Senator Burton of Ohio, who represents a Cleveland district in Congress, is one of the leaders in the House in opposing the lakes-to-the-gulf waterway provision in the river and harbor bill in connection with diversion at Chicago. Here comes in a clashing of views and of interests between Cleveland and Chicago. It is charged by advocates of the lakes-to-the-gulf waterway that the Cleveland people, including Mr. Burton, are thinking only of their fears that Cleveland may lose trade if the lakes-to-the-gulf route is opened and they point to the fact that the barge traffic on the Ohio River, which Mr. Burton helped develop, is growing rapidly. The Cleveland argument is that the lakes-to-the-gulf waterway is a mask to enable Chicago perpetually to divert a large flow of water from the lakes to the detriment of the lake ports.

MY VISIT TO GRETNA GREEN.

In the world romance of marriage I suppose that Gretna Green is as world famous, perhaps more so, for the tying of knots as Reno, Nevada, is for their untying. On my way to Scotland I have often passed through the little borderland village, but only this week did I pay my visit to the Blacksmith's Shop which runaway marriages have made famous for nearly two centuries. Outside is the signpost: "To Corriesmill, 3 miles, To Annan 8 1-4 miles, To Carlisle, 9 1-4 miles. To Glasgow, 25 miles," and on the little cottage a signboard reads: "Marriage Room. Old Blacksmith's Building. Gretna Green, famous for runaway marriages; books, romances, post cards, Relics of the Old Priests and other Antiquities. Marriage register kept," and in the other yindow a card announcing "Refreshments." Many a n able as well as commoner travelled "Cupid's Causeway" to be joined here. Lord Brougham, Lord Dundonald, Lord Eldon and Lord Erskine fled to this border wedding house and its unlicensed "priest.' Even to-day to be married at Gretna Green adds spice to the romance though the ceremony be more orderly.

FRUIT PIES

by Stella Elizabeth Deland

Fruit pies make an excelelnt dessert for summer meals when the family grows tired of the raw fruits. In fact, I often make on Saturday mornings enough pastry for two or three pies. After baking one I place the left-over pastry in a refrigerator. Usually it keeps fresh for a week, though you should wrap it in a damp piece of cloth.

How the Pie Pastry Is Made

For a large double crust pie I use one cupful of shortening, two cupfuls of flour, a saltspoonful of salt and three-quarters cupful of ice water. I chop the shortening and flour together on a pastry board until smooth, then add the water gradually. This is then placed in a bowl covered with damp cloth and put into the refrigerator until needed.

Plum Pie

Place two quarts of plums with one cupful of sugar and two cupfuls of water over "medium" heat on the cooking top of your elctric range. Bring to a boil, reduce the heat to "low" and let simmer, skimming repeatedly until the syrup thickens and gets glossy. Remove, and cool the mixture. Then stone the plums. Line your pie plate with pastry, put in the plums, fit pastry cover, tie a strip of cloth around the edge of the plate to prevent the juice from running over and bake in your oven which has been preheated to 375 degrees Fahrenheit. For those who like the flavor, clove often improves the taste of plums.

Peach Pie

Wash and peel your peaches, cut in thin slices, put into a baked pie crust, sprinkle with sugar to taste, and over this pour a cupful of light custard, cover with pastry and bake until top is cooked and browned. The oven should be preheated to about 400 degrees Fahrenheit.

Huckleberry Pie

Pick over and wash one quart box of huckleberries. Put into a saucepan, add three-quarters cupful of sugar, one-half cupful of water, and simmer for fifteen minutes over "low" heat. Thicken with one tablespoonful of cornstarch dissolved in as little water as will do it. Flavor with a little vanilla and chill. When cold, pour into a pie plate lined with pastry, cover and bind—following directions for plum pie — and bake in your range oven for fifteen minutes or until the pastry is lightly browned. The temperature of the oven should be about 375 degrees Fahrenheit.

BLACK KNIGHTS ATTEND SERVICE

Annual Church Parade is Held to George Street United Church.

INSPIRING SERMON

Preceptory 261, Royal Black Knights of Ireland, held its annual parade last night to George street United Church, with a good attendance of Sir Knights. A large congregation greeted the brethren and the pastor, Rev. J. E. Todd preached a sermon fitting to the occasion. Special music was rendered by the choir and suitable hymns were sung.

Verse 105 of Psalm 119, "Thy word is a lamp unto thy feet and a light unto my path," was the text chosen by Mr. Todd for his sermon, the subject of which was "The Open Book.' He referred to the practice of the Orange Order of carrying an open Bible in the processions, and said that it was one of the outstanding things for which the order stood.

The speaker referred to the middle ages when few men could read, and the church and the privileged classes thought that it was better that they should have no opportunity. This monopoly brought abuses and corruption, with religion and superstition being used to rule the rank and file of the people. In those days the Bible was not an open book.

The Bible is in danger in this day of being closed in another manner, the speaker continued. Although this is a day of enlightment and more Bibles are in print than at any previous time in history, and the price is low so that practically every home has at least one Bible, the position of the book is more precarious than ever before. It is not being read as much to-day and the people do not kno it as did their fathers and their grandparents. Though there are so many in print many of them are used to catch dust, said the speaker, adding that their possessors could not find many familiar passages which he he mentioned.

People, said Mr. Todd, are prone to accept the sayings of some man, instead of the truths contained in the book. They set great store by the councils held hundreds of years ago, which composed it is true of holy men, made their interpretations of the Bible without any more to guide them than the people have now.

"There are some things" said the speaker" that no man c for us. We are priests ev us unto God."

The speaker said that an tion or a nation which was n on the principles contained book, was on the road to tragic destruction, and expressed his ure at addressing the members organization which took its basic ciples from the Bible. The pri ples taught there interpreted by light of Christ's life and teachi would become a real lamp to tho who studied them. He conclud with a plea to the order to stand and for the priciple of the ope book, with equal rights for all and special privileges for none.

SCIENCE IN NEW GAINS ON DISEASE

NEW YORK, Sept 13 — High blood pressure, one of the few remaining scourges of mankind that has not been brought under subjection, may soon be conquered.

From the University of Toronto comes word that Dr. Arthur MacDonald and Prof. J. J. R. Macleod, a Nobel prize winner because of his part in the evolution of insulin, are attaining some success with an extract obtained from the liver of cattle.

From the University of Munich, Germany, it is reported that Prof. H. Heilner has succeeded in preparing an extract which injected intravenously, has a curative effect on the diseased vessel walls in arterfo sclerosis.

Dr. H. H. Wirtz, of Osnabrueck, has obtained a product of protein decomposition which passes through the intestinal wall unchanged and brings about lower blood pressure. His product is called animasa, and has been subjected to tests before famous German clinics and found beneficial.

BORDERS POPULAR.

Bordered materials are particularly in demand this season, since the mode lends itself to their use better than ever before. White crepe de chine or chiffon with floral borders are particularly liked

GENERAL STORE AT MENIE LOOTED

CAMPAIGN ENDS

(Examiner Correspondence.)

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 13. — Between 1 and 6 a.m., Thursday, Alex. Milne's general store at Menie was broken into and looted of a rather large quantity of men's wear, including sweater coats, shirts, socks and other articles of clothing. Most of the missing goods were taken from the unpacked crates in which they had only recently been received. Entrance into the store was forced through a rear window which was raised in spite of several nails that had been driven in above it.

Mr. Milne in his home across the street had not retired until about midnight, and the theft was discovered at six o'clock Thursday morning. The tracks of an automobile were noticed near the building, but no other clues were found. The provincial authorities were notified through Chief Brown, as the robbery occurred beyond Campbellford jurisdiction.

Final Meeting.

The political campaign closes this evening with a Fraser meeting in the Regent theatre. This is the Liberal candidate's second platform appearance here.

Traffic Accident.

A blinding headlight was a contributing cause to the traffic accident on Sebastopol street on Friday evening in which Robt. Innes was painfully hurt. He was standing beside their buggy talking to Mr. and Mrs. E. Bonney by the side of the road, when two cars approached from opposite directions. The glare of the one prevented Marshall West, who was driving the other, from seeing the buggy until he was only a few yards from it, but his prompt action avoided serious results. Mrs. Bonney was reported to have suffered a nervous shock from the accident, and Mr. Innes was injured about the legs.

WIRELESS BABY.

LIVERPOOL, Sept. 13 —Radio brought the advice of a skilled surgeon while a baby was being born on the steamer Nacoya, according to word received here. The child was born two hours after the Nacoya received the requested medical advice from a surgeon aboard the Montclare, and both mother and child were reported to be doing well.

FOR HER SERVICES.

BERLIN, Sept. 13.—Fraulein Emma Trondheim sued George Neuman for breach of promise here, demanding compensation for the evenings she had given up to entertaining him.

Heavy Earthquake Recorded Believed Near Japan Coast

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13—A severe earthquake recorded on seismographs throughout the world occurred at 5.41 o'clock Saturday morning. The most probable location was about 60 miles off the coast of Japan, near Tokio, but data collected by Science Service and analyzed by experts of the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey here are not sufficiently definite to locate exactly the centre of disturbance, which may have been in the interior of China or at any point within the area bound by 36 and 43 north latitude and 120 and 141 east longitude.

Records were received from Georgetown University, Washington; Fordham University, New York; the Weather Bureau, Chicago; Dominion Astrophysical Observatory, Victoria, and J. J. Shaw's Observatory at West Bromwich, England.

MINE OWNERS REFUSE APPEAL

Government May Be Compelled To Impose Some Form of Settlement.

EFFECTS TRADE.

LONDON, Sept. 13 (Canadian Press).—The coal strike is now in its twentieth week and no end is in sight. It appears inevitable that the Government in the end will be compelled to impose some settlement. The earnest appeal of Winston Churchill, Chancellor of the Exchequer, to the mine owners that they re-consider their attitude has had no effect. Local associations of mine owners have nearly all reported stubbornly against a national agreement and hence the mining association can make no compromise.

The effect the coal strike has had on British trade is plainly apparent

School Strike Called Off Provision Made For Pupils

WINNIPEG, Man., Sept. 13 (Canadian Press) — The strike of school children in East Kildonan, a suburb, has been settled. The children, with the approval of their parents, protested against their transfer from the old school to a new one, which would have forced them to walk a mile. Younger pupils will remain at the old school, and those over ten will go to the new building.

Segregation Necessary Says Sir J. Chancellor

LONDON, Sept. 13. — (Canadian Press). — The question of the segregation of the native races of South Africa, which is of more than ordinary interest to the people of the British Empire at the present time because of the measures proposed by the Hertzog Government to segragate the natives to a considerable extent, was touched on by Sir John Chancellor, Governor of Southern Rhodesia, in a recent address to the African Society here.

Sir John said there was no difference of opinion among those who had knowledge of South African conditions that some measure of segregation of the natives was essential to the comfort and happiness of Europeans and natives alike and to the maintainence of good will between the two races.

"But when we talk about segregation," he said, "We must be quite sure that we all mean the same thing. Absolute segregation of the natives, that is, their removal from all relationship and contact, with the white races, would be impracticable and disastrous. It would be economically impracticable and the Europeans would suffer from complete segregation no less than the natives. It would be disastrous to the native population, for it would condemn them to moral, intellectual and material stagnation, and experience has shown that to keep the African races on the path of progress the constant stimulus of contact with European faces is essential. When that influence is withdrawn retrogression is rapid and certain.

"We can not, however, prevent the ambitious and advanced natives from desiring to emancipate themselves from the control of their chiefs and from forsaking the stagnant comunel life of the kraal for a life of greater independence and opportunity. It is to their advantage and to the advaintage of their country generally that natives shall leave their reserves and work under Europeans on farms and mines. Yet there is no royal road to a solution of the difficulties and problems. So Justice, sympathy and commonsense, firmly and consistently applied, are the only means by which a modus vivendi can be established."

The Big Job To-morrow Is to Elect Strong Government

The main task the electors of Canada have to do tomorrow is to elect a strong, stable, responsible government.

To do that they must put first things first and not be lured away from the main issue by Mackenzie King's propaganda.

Mr. King told the people of Canada at Richmond Hill in announcing the election of 1925 that he could not carry on the affairs of this country without a Liberal majority in Parliament.

Yet with the supreme gall that has characterized his whole career he is at the present moment endeavouring to establish at Ottawa exactly the conditions in Parliament that he said only last year made it impossible to give good government.

HIS WHOLE CAMPAIGN HAS BEEN DESIGNED TO PUT HIM INTO OFFICE AT THE HEAD OF A COMBINATION OF LIBERALS, PROGRESSIVES, INDEPENDENTS, SECESSIONISTS, FREE-TRADERS, OR-WHAT-HAVE YOU.

When he does not put a candidate up in 46 ridings and endorses anybody except a Conservative who runs in these ridings no other evidence is needed of the fact that a Mackenzie King triumph tomorrow means a return of the same kind of Government that has held Canada back for the past five years.

Size up the candidates running under King endorsement and ask yourself the question "Could stability come from a conglomeration like that?"

Mr. King was right when he said at Richmond Hill that it was impossible to give good government under such conditions but in the name of common sense how can he ask the people of Canada to put him back into office under those very same conditions now?

Five years of it has been enough.

Canada wants to get going; she has been standing still too long.

She wants a firm hand at the helm, that's all, and she can never get it from a Mackenzie King Government dictated to and controlled by U.F.A.'s and U.F.O.'s and Progressives and Socialists and Bourassas.

Enough people of all sides of politics recognize that to return Right Honourable Arthur Meighen to power tomorrow and West Peterboro will help by electing E. A. Peck, Meighen Candidate.

BICYCLIST HAS NARROW ESCAPE

Falls in Front of Car on Chemong Road—Car Takes Ditch.

SLIGHT DAMAGE

Roy Pulkinghorn (12) had a narrow escape from death, and a large car belonging to E. Hiland, and driven by Miss Hiland, was slightly damaged in a mix-up on Chemong Road on Friday night.

The boy was cycling away from the city, and near the bottom of Stewart's Hill he swerved from the centre of the road to the right hand side to avoid a vehicle coming in the opposite direction. At the same time, the other car came up from behind, and young Pulkinghorn's sudden swerve put him almost directly in front. In the effort to right himself the boy lost his balance ,and Miss Hiland ran the car into the ditch to avoid striking him. So close was the boy that his cap was carried away on the bumpers of the car.

The car was damaged around the transmission. The work of getting the large vehicle out was complicated by the presence of a large amount of poison ivy. A passing teamster unhitched his horses, and after some delay in procuring a chain, the automobile was pulled out on to the road once more.

SHOWER GIVEN

Havelock Bride and Groom Receive Many Useful Gifts.

HAVELOCK, Sept. 13.— A delightful party and kitchen shower was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Smith, "Kosy Korner Farm," Belmont, on Wednesday evening, September 8th, in honor of Miss Kathleen Smith and Mr. Bruce Longmuir, bride and groom elect of this month, when about sixty neighbors and friends were present. A beautiful arch of vegetables and flowers met the gaze of the invited guests as they arrived.

The first part of the evening was spent in card playing. A contest, "A conundrum dinner," was won by Mrs. John A. Sexsmith and Mrs. P. Johnson.

By way of rehearsal and to give the happy couple an idea of what was in store for them on Wednesday of next week, a mock wedding was celebrated, minus a license and clergyman.

Miss Lilly Anderson, from the State of Maine, was the blushing bride, while Miss Luella Anderson was the bridegroom. Mr. Gerald Anderson acted as clergyman. Little Mary Anderson was the charming flower girl and the Misses Adelaide Page and Allie Johnson carried the bride's train. Before and after the ceremony the wedding march was played on a zylophone. During the evening Mr. Douglas Young rendered a vocal solo, "Lucky Lucky," which was enjoyed by all present.

The gifts, which were beautiful and useful, filled to overflowing two large baskets which were carried to the young couple by Master Harold Smith and Miss Jessie Anderson.

Mr. Longmuir thanked the many friends on behalf of Miss Smith and himself for the lovely gifts.

All joined in singing "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows," after which a sumptuous lunch was served and a short time spent in dancing brought to a lose a very successful shower and social evening.

DUCHESS OF YORK MUST LEAVE BABE

Cannot Take Daughter on Long Official Tour of Australia.

LONDON, Sept. 13.—(United News).—The Duchess of York is paying the price of prominence. Only a few months ago she gave birth to a baby princess who some day may be Queen of England and now she is looking forward with sorrow and probably accompanying tears to what will seem to her an interminable parting. She and the Duke—the King's second son—are going to Australia on a long official visit in January and there is no place for babies on royal official tours.

So where ever the Duchess goes now, the baby goes too. She is seldom parted from her for an hour if she can help it.

"I must make the most of her now," she said to a friend recently. "It will be like a life time while I am away from her."

A modern kitchen is included in the design. The general contract, involving $15,000, is being carried out by T. C. Ephgrave, a well-known local contractor. W. and W. R. L. Teachers are asked to select teams of three girls from their schools.

in the Board of Trade's returns for August, which show an increasing decrease of exports. Imports increase, but only because of the enormous importation of foreign coal, amounting in value during the month to seven and a half million pounds sterling. The slump in exports is noted in nearly every item on the whole list, but chiefly marked in cotton goods and iron and steel manufactures. The total of exports is less by over eleven million pounds sterling than August, 1925, while there was a larger import of manufactured goods than usual owing to the stoppage of home manufactures.

SYNOPSIS

Don Juan's disillusioned father warns him: "Destroy women or they will destroy you. Take their love scornfully—and forget!" This advice has made Don Juan the greatest lover of all time. In Rome he gaily risks the displeasure of infamous, all-powerful Lucretia Borgia, who loves him, to protect Duke Varanese, whose death the Borgias seek so that Donati, their kinsman, can seize the Duke's lovely daughter, Adriana. Juan misunderstands Adriana's innocent gratitude and enters her bedroom. She threatens to kill herself unless he leaves.

For an instant he stood there; then, with a sudden, graceful gesture, such a gesture as a king might make in giving up a throne.

Below Pedrillo waited with the horses. As Juan appeared he glanced up in amazement. His master's appointments usually lasted longer than this one had! Then, with an insinuating smile, he asked:

"Was she so—entrancing?"

Juan's face might have been carved from stone. Only the eyes seemed alive, and in them at Pedrillo's words burned such murderous fury that Pedrillo stepped back in fear.

For a moment Juan glared at him. Then deliberately he struck his servant across the mouth with the back of his hand. Pedrillo gasped. Never had this happened before. Without a word Juan swung himself into the saddle and rode away.

Daylight was breaking; the narrow street glowed with the first rosy light of dawn. Don Juan had come riding home through many a dawn after a rendezvous with a lovely lady, but never had he come as he did now. Disillusionment had ridden with him; despair at the utter futility of life had saddened him, sent him home loathing all women.

But in this dawn a different sort of sadness held his heart. For he knew that at last he had found a girl who was unlike all the others he had ever known, one who proved that the teachings of his father had been false, that such a thing as a good woman did exist. And he feared that he had forfeited all chance of ever winning her love because of his complete misunderstanding of her.

Wretchedly he went back over the events of the last hour. He saw himself entering her room, standing here staring at her, appraising her loveliness as she sat half-dressed before her mirror. How she must have hated him in that moment! And then the way that he had taken her in his arms despite her struggles, the way he had taunted her with being afraid that Donati would find them there together, with having Donati for a lover and then inviting him, Juan, to come to her, the way he had kissed her—he groaned aloud, sick with disgust.

His mind went back, too, to the moment when he had laid her, unconscious, on the divan and to the thoughts that had rushed through his mind. Slowly, angrily, his cheeks flushed red with shame. It was a new sensation for Juan and not a particularly pleasant one.

And then that moment when he had lifted his eyes and found himself staring at the statue of the Virgin! How suddenly, then, as he had looked down at Adriana, had he realized the girl's purity and his love for her! He felt somehow as if he had been changed in that moment, made a new man again. Never again could he carelessly make love to any woman who chanced to please him for a moment. Adriana might never deign to look at him again, might hate him as he had hated all women, but henceforth his life would be dedicated to her.

And at that moment Lucretia, picking up an exquisite goblet of Syrian glass, hurled it to the stone floor, where it splintered into a thousand pieces. There were other fragments scattered about, signs of the temper which had raged within her for the last few hours. Her little dog cowered behind a chair. Her maid was huddled just outside the door of the bedroom, pale with fear, nursing a great bruise on her cheek, looking ruefully down at her arms, where long, angry scratches testified to the passage of Lucretia's nails.

And over and over Lucretia asked herself two questions:

"Why did he not come? And did he ever mean to come at all?"

Pedrillo was dropping with fatigue when home was reached at last, but to Juan any thought of rest was an impossibility. He wanted to spend the day where there might be some change of seeing Adriana, not at home recuperating from the night before. The battle with Donati's men had less effect on him than had the emotion aroused by Adriana, and that had been stimulating as well as exhausting.

Days of torture for Juan followed. Hopelessly he went back over the events of that evening, cursing himself for a fool, considering the many things he might have done, the many ways in which he might have handled the situation.

If only he had known how different Adriana was from all other women! Why had he not known; why had he not seen at a glance that she was as unlike all others as an angel from heaven?

And why had he not realized what she meant to him?

Those were days of wretchedness for Pedrillo also, for his master tramped streets of Rome, heedless of friend and foe alike. Hour after hour he walked, hoping to see Adriana, and paying no attention to anyone else.

Pedrillo anticipated the worst when, the second day after the eventful night when Juan went to Adriana's room, they passed the palace in which one of Italy's most beautiful women dwelt. She was just descending the two shallow steps leading to the street when Juan approached; Pedrillo, walking behind him, noted her beauty and felt cheered.

He could see that she dallied a little waiting till Juan should meet her squarely as she left the lowest step. She was exquisite to behold, with her delicate, oval face, her great gray eyes and fair hair.

"From the northern part of the country," Pedrillo told himself, rather priding himself on his knowledge of these Italians. Up there, near Milagno, they were not like these southerners, not dark and rather small, but tall, and fair—surely she was one of them.

And surely, when the master saw her, he would take an interest, would lose that blank, despairing expression that made his handsomme face so gaunt. The old look would come into his countenance, Pedrillo told himself. The old fire would light up his eyes, the lids would droop heavily over them, the mouth would twist into that cynical, bored smile that appealed so surely to all women.

Then—ah, then, with this new conquest at hand, the master would forget that snip of a girl who had played havoc with him!

It would be as it used to be. Then Don Juan in a casual word or two, would make a rendezvous with the lovely lady. She would come cautiously, yet eagerly, to his home, would slip into the hall when Pedrillo opened the door, and look about her like a frightened faun. Even the old, experienced ones had that look when they came! Pedrillo was used to it; it amused him when they assumed it.

He would take her into the inner room, and after a moment Don Juan would saunter out of his bedroom, and she would run to him, and he would nod a dismissal to Pedrillo, and take her into his arms.

Radio train despatching is to be adopted by the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway on its 2,200 miles of route from Chicago to the Pacific Coast. The new method will make train orders independent of telegraph. A despatcher in his office at the end of the line can converse with the crew of any train on the system at any time.

CLAIM CANDIDATE NOT NATURALIZED

Official Protest Made Against Liberal Nominee in Montmagny.

OTTAWA, Sept. 13 (Canadian Press).—Formal protest against the candidature of L. K. Laflamme, Liberal candidate in the constituency of Montmagny, Quebec, has been filed with the chief electoral officer here. The grounds for the protest are that Mr. Laflamme was born in the United States, and has never been naturalized. The protest is made by Armand Lavergne, Conservative candidate in Montmagny, and it was transmitted to the chief electoral officer by the deputy-returning officer of the district.

Such matters, it was stated at the office of the chief electoral officer, are dealt with after the election. In the event of Mr. Laflamme being elected to-morrow his eligibility for membership in Parliament will, it is stated, have to be determined by the courts. The Election Act provides that "except as in this Act otherwise provided any British subject, male or female, who is of the full age of 21 years, may be a candidate at the Dominion election."

YOUR JEWEL COLOR FLOWER

The emblem of sorrow—jet—is today's talismanic gem. According to ancient belief, it will serve as an amulet to protect its weaker from the forces which cause sorrow, if it is worn in close contact with the flesh. Jet, like a pearl, loses its lustre if it is not carefully cherished and frequently worn.

One of the most curious of stones is today's natal gem, the chrysophrase. The ancients believed that this stone possessed all the good qualities of the opal, the emerald and jade, rolled into one. Anyone condemned to die, upon placing this stone in his mouth, will immediately escape his execution, the ancients believed.

Black will have a quieting effect on those who wear it today.

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 14, 1926

Benefic aspects are strongly dominant today, according to astrology which finds the planetary government favorable to many vocations.

Many honors are to come to military men who will achieve fame in national service, but while certain officers reach success, others may be subject to sinister guidance.

This is a day fortunate for all sorts of constructive work, whether in the domain of mind or the realm of material things.

Building will be pushed in many cities where there is apparently danger of too much preparation for municipal growth, but the seers prophesy for the United States tremendous development.

Women as well as men will engage in big projects and co-operation along strictly conservative lines will be profitable.

This should be an auspicious time for launching enterprises big and small. There is a promising sign for neighborhood retail shops and for the individual promoter of unimportant enterprises.

One of the signs of the times appears to indicate in business and social affairs a more general association of men and women.

Identity of interests instead of separation will be evident in the lives of men and women, astrologers prognosticate. Economic as well as domestic partnerships will make marriages more lasting and divorces less numerous.

Ireland, Italy, the Balkans and Japan will continue under a sinister rule of the stars, it is forecast, when the new year begins.

Women and children are to benefit in 1927, after months in which they are subject to thwarting and disturbing planetary influences.

Novelties in toys and clothing are to be offered in the holiday season, which will owe much to French and German originality and industry.

Newspaper controversies will be uncommonly bitter where politics are concerned and religious differences will strongly tinge many national issues, the seers prognosticate.

Persons whose birthdate it is should be lucky in the coming year where money or business is concerned, small personal annoyances may be numerous, but not worth noticing.

Children whose birthdate it is may have an extraordinary keen interest in the general activities of men and women. These subjects of Virgo make remarkably successful newspaper writers and succeed as biographers.

ALBERTA

Alberta, meaning nobly bright, has its origin in the Teutonic language. It is one of the names coming from the nobility of which Aethel is the root.

Asthelbryht was its first form, though it was a masculine name and was given to the first Christian king of England. The famous bishop of Prague, who was martyred near Dantzic while preaching to the heathen Prussians in 997, was called Adelbrecht, and his fame spread the man of the name throughout a great part of Europe.

Italy received it and straightway changed it to Alberto. It is from this latter that the feminine forms Alberta and Albertine were formed. The husband of the late Queen Victoria, who bore the name of Albert, brought both the masculine and feminine into great vogue in England. Indeed, it has since been accepted as a national name.

But, like all names which have a masculine and feminine equivalent, Alberta has no really individual existence. After all, she is merely a masculine name with a feminine termination. But unlike many of her contemporaries, such as Edwina and Roberta, she is almost frivolously feminine and is not regarded as a substitute name for the hoped-for son and heir, who was to have been called Albert.

Jade is Alberta's talismanic stone. It has the power to assure its wearer great prosperity, and freedom from danger and disease. But it should never be removed from the finger, arm, or throat on which it is worn. Monday is Alberta's lucky day and 1 her lucky number.

Triple rolls of hair over the ears is the newest variation of "the shingle that is trying to grow long again," and many girls at the moment are adopting this very effective style.

Condition—An obviously "made-up" appearance.

Treatment—Follow your natural coloring, don't select your rouge and powder at random, and follow the natural coloring of your face when you use rouge and powder. Use the same tint on you cheeks that you use for your lips. If you are a blonde, a light rouge is advisable. For a brunette, a darker red is better. Eccentric make-up should be avoided. Your powder should be harmonious with your skin. For a dark skin, a rachel powder is best, but on a light one, a flesh tint is better. Though make up has much more standing than it once had, the most fastidiously groomed women avoid artificiality, and strive to achieve only a perfectly natural effect.

A WORD IN TIME

"I really don't know why I am calling up Jerry all the time," I reprimanded myself, "unless it is to keep him dangling, as he says. I am getting to be an old dog in the manger."

For all the time I was talking to Jerry I was thinking of John Meredith—thinking of those sad eyes and that sneering mouth and wondering how it would look if for once someone could make him permanently unlock it and plant upon it a smile that would not come off.

I had had one glimpse of his face when he was smiling and the change was so wonderful, I could hardly believe it.

As I was about to pass out of my room into the hall, I heard Mr. Symington speaking: "As I told you Jack, I got the tickets. This is some little jamboree you are planning. Are you strong enough to stand the curious gaze of everyone in the Beaux Arts? You know it is the most fashionable restaurant in town."

After hearing his friend thus place this fear subtly in his mind, I thought it was about time to make my appearance on the scene.

"Ah!" I said, stepping into the hall. "I am glad we are going to the Beaux Arts, my dear Mr. Meredith, for it was there that I suffered the greatest humiliation in my life. At that time, I thought I would never go there again and up until now, I never have. But tonight, however, you have unconsciously arranged it so that I shall reenter in triumph."

John Meredith's face lighted up. I saw again the smile that I was always trying to call up and my heart went thumping again.

He hastened to say, "I am very glad my dear Judy (you'll let me call you Judy as Joan does, won't you?) if I can make you happy in the slightest degree. I never believed before that I could make anyone happy and to make you joyous is something that will make me perhaps happier than anything I have ever done in this world.

"You see, I am usually a killjoy to everyone. I even hurt my beautiful mother, by insisting upon staying alive when I should have died at birth."

At this moment, very ostentatiously, Mr. Symington left the room.

BRIG. GEN. HENRY M. NAGLEE AND MARY SCHELL

(By The McClure Syndicate.)

The love correspondence between Brig. Gen. Naglee and Mary Schell offers another proof that soldiers are the most romantic lovers, at least in letters. The general's love affair, however, did not turn out as well as it should have, for there was a breach of promise suit instituted by the lady. The love epistles then were made public.

The following is one of a large number, written during the Civil war:

"Camp, near Richmond,
"Naglee's Brigade,
"June 21, 1862.

'My own dear baby:

"You don't know how often I think of you. When lying upon the wet ground unable to sleep lest neglect might lead to disaster, I have forgotten the weariness and exposure and filled my mind with you: when, midst the horrors and rattle and thunder of war, I thought only of my own baby. When the air all around was filled with iron and lead, I thought only of my baby. When the ground seemed to open under me and shells come underneath it, then, to, baby, I thought of you. And when for two weeks I kept my bed, I would have given a dozen worlds, had I possessed them, for one dear, dear little one."

At another time, the general is apprehensive:

"My dear Mary, I think only of you. I am possessed night and day of constant hopes and fears lest you will forget my prayers and forget how much I am wrapped up in you. I would rather lose every relation there remains to me than have you go wrong. I would rather the fires of hell should enter your brain and breath than that man should near your lips or touch your hand; and should this happen, from thence and forever stop all communication with me. I would never hear your name again. I want, dear Mary, to see you happy; to know that your future shall be a permanently contented, virtuous life."

Each chemical element in a star or planet gives off a distinctive kind of light.

FASHIONS

By HEDDA HOYT.

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—(United Press).—Fat or thin, they're still rolling them! Weak emaciated knees, sun-burnt and flea-bitten can be seen on any subway these hot days. Fat knees with ample garters hidden in folds of avoirdupois peep brazenly from under short scant skirts. Thin nudity causes no commotion in these days of dieting women. It's the fleshy kneejoints that get the laugh during the sock-rolling season.

A young lady was arrested in New York the other day because she rolled her stockings upon the street and blocked traffic. The poor girl probably had the "sock-drops," a familiar trouble during warm months. Women, especially young ones, never feel quite comfortable until they have their knees bared, their corsets off and as little clothing on as possible, but one grows weary of seeing red chapped knees nevertheless.

Undoubtedly we shall live to see the time when we shall look back upon this semi-nude manner of dressing with horror. At any rate, we have reached our limit and cannot discard more garments in common decency. Women are healthier today than formerly because they wear so few constricting garments. It is only when we see too blatant a display of limbs or body that we grow weary of our comfort.

Today all women look very much alike in figure. We are straight-lined and boyish regardless of our bulk. Corsets and confiners are made to mold the fleshy figure into huge unfeminine lines so that the stout woman has the figure of an overfat child. Hips, busts and curving waistlines are a thing of the past. If we have them we hide them. The graceful lines of a long draped skirt are no more. Tall ladies who wore them well now prefer to display half a yard of shin-bone hampered by a scant width of skirt which formerly have acted as a tunic.

And whether skirts will grow longer or shorter depends upon the ladies themselves. At any rate, we regard knees, especially bare ones, the limit.

A Fashion Model's Diary

By Grace Thorncli

SHE DESCRIBES A CHIC FALL SUIT

Of all people who are interested in fashions, I think perhaps fashion models do more advance discussing of them than anybody.

I've never known a manikin at Madame's who was not interested primarily in what was at the height of fashion, and what was going to be there when the next season came. This may be because we have so much to do with planning and making our own clothes, for I must say the interest is most often purely selfish, and means that we are thinking of what we can afford to get for ourselves.

Now, Pam has been discussing for days whether to indulge in a new early Fall suit, or a new coat.

"I simply can't have both this season," she informed us. "The question is, which do I need most?"

"I think you would do awfully well to get a smart Fall suit, and wear it late into the season," I advised. "You have a good green cloth coat left from last year, and it happens to have deeply inset sleeves which are very smart."

"So I have," said Pam. "I really want an excuse to get both a new coat and suit, you know, but I think I could use that green coat very nicely."

"Do that," I urged. "And save your coat-money till you can indulge in a fur-lined cloth coat, which you say you consider the height of elegance."

"As good as done," declared Pam. "I'll get one in the late Winter sales, and have it for a number of seasons to come."

"You know you never wear your things a number of seasons," I returned with a smile. Then we fell to discussing the new Fall suit.

"I have a great weakness for those new printed velveteens," Pam confessed. "I saw one yesterday that was in a lovely bottle green, but printed in the same color to give a sort of moire effect."

Knowing Pam as I did, I could see that she was leaning in the direction of this suit.

She drew a picture of it, and I liked it immensely. It was soon decided on, and Pam declared green was the only color for her.

"It does bring out the color of your complexion," I advised. "And if it gets very cold, you can wear the coat over your suit."

"Never," Pam declared emphatically. "I'd freeze first. Haven't you heard me say I think the chief beauty of any tailored suit is its line? It should only be worn in the Spring and Fall when no coat is necessary."

This closed the discussion.

This Simply Tailored Suit Is of Green Printed Velveteen.

STEVENS DENIES KING STATEMENT

Report of Action By 'Paper' Unutterably False, He Says.

VANCOUVER, B.C., Sept. 13 — (Canadian Press). — "The whole statement is a tissue of unmitigated lies," declared Hon. H. H. Stevens, Minister of Customs, when his attention was drawn to the statement of Right Hon. W. L. MacKenzie King, in Ottawa, when the Liberal leader was reported as having stated that Hon. Mr. Stevens had been "read out of the party," by the Province, "the newspaper which is supporting Mr. Stevens in Vancouver."

"The whole thing is unutterably false," declared the Minister of Customs. "The Province in most critical editorials has supported me and has advised the people for serious reasons to vote for me."

"The whole statement," Mr. Stevens concluded, in reference to the Liberal leader's remarks, is a tissue of unmitigated lies."

ANTI-VACCINATION

Editors' Note: This letter is written on the paper of the Anti-Vaccination League of Canada, on which H. T. Millard of Peterborough, appears as Vice President.

To the editor of The Examiner:

By reports in your paper it is reported that Peterborough is another city where the present occupant of the Ministry of Health of Ontario is busy.

Personally it would appear good policy not to add to the taxes of this province any more burden than possible owing to the heavy legacy of debt left by their predecesors.

State Medicine never can be justified when thousands of taxpayers have no use for it, and many are bitterly opposed to its methods. Compulsory methods of doing business were declared recently to be unjust in a speech delivered by Premier Ferguson.

Then why try and enforce a medical operation on the school children before allowing them the right to refuse.

The United States with its heavy list of smallpox cases and its huge vaccine interests would seem the country we are following.

The Conservative party claims to be the one that would stick to the policy laid down by the Old Land rather than follow Uncle Sam and the Rockefeller Trust.

If so, then let them study the methods employed in the City of Leicester, a large manufacturing district not naturally situated for a health resort.

On June 6th, 1913, Lord Percy stated in the House of Commons, that during the five years ending 1921 only 3.5 per cent of the newly-born children had been vaccinated. No case of smallpox had been notified during that period.

During the twenty years, 1905 to 1925 only one imported case had been reported. Leicester is keenly alive to the value of sanitation! Dr. Millard, M.O.H. in The Practitioner, dated March 15th, 1924, wrote, "I really fail to see why we need view the future with the great alarm that is usual in orthodox circles, even though infant vaccination should fall still further into neglect."

Parents — why then vaccinate? Follow Leicester and her health methods and save your children's health and your taxes from State Medicine.

DUFFUS MUST WIN!

←WHY?——WHY?——WHY?→

Because it is admitted that Mackenzie King will be the next Prime Minister and West Peterboro should have a member who is on the winning side.

"The Conservatives had everything in their favor, but the direction of the campaign on the part of the Conservatives was so weak that the Conservative support began slowly to ebb from the day the new government was announced."

Financial Post (Conservative)
September 10th, 1926.

Because West Peterboro needs a man of action as its Federal Member at Ottawa.

"We believe that if Joe Duffus is elected that he will not only do his utmost but that he will do more for Peterborough riding than any other man in this riding, and we believe it will be very much in the interests of all the people of this city and community if he is our representative during the next Parliamentary term."

"W. H. BAKER"
"W. G. MENZIES"
Peterborough Planing Mill Co.

Because the Hon. J. A. Robb, has promised to make the burden of taxation even lighter if the Liberals are returned to power.

"I think the Robb Budget is the reason why there is so little excitement in this election. You know it takes money to produce that artificial enthusiasm so characteristic of the Conservatives in former campaigns, and its pretty hard to ask a man to subscribe to a fund which is to be used to defeat a man who has just saved him money by reducing his taxes and gave promise of still further reduction."

LIEUT.-COL. A. T. HUNTER,
Liberal Candidate, West York.

The Vancouver Province (Conservative Paper) admits that Hon. H. H. Stevens, Minister of Customs, has ruined all chances of Conservative Victory.

TWELVE YEARS' PUBLIC SERVICE BY GEORGE HENDERSON IS ENDED

Accountant of Peterborough Utilities Commission Goes to New Position.

HAS SEEN GROWTH

His Introduction of Modern Methods Keeps Pace With Work.

On the fifteenth of the present month, Peterborough Utilities Commission will lose a valuable servant and the city an estimable resident when George Henderson, accountant for nearly twelve years with the commission, will leave to take up a position in Montreal.

Mr. Henderson was born in Keene but removed, when ten years of age, to the United States. Returning to Canada, he held positions with Toronto and North Bay concerns and as railway accountant, and eventually located in his native county, where he entered the service of the Peterborough Light and Power Company. The rapid growth of the Hydro-Electric Commission of Ontario led to the absorption of many private power companies and attracted many of the best brains of competing business staffs. Mr. Henderson made the change from the service of private enterprise to that of public ownership by entering the employment of the Peterborough Utilities Commission on July 9, 1914, as a power salesman, a position similar to that which he had occupied under private employers. But he was not destined to remain long on the outside force. In October, 1914, he was called up to fill temporarily the position of accountant, which was held by the late J. C. Anderson who was granted a six months' leave of absence on account of failing health. Mr. Anderson never recovered and died early in 1915 before his holiday period had expired. The result was that Mr. Henderson's temporary appointment became permanent.

The extension of the activities of the commission during Mr. Henderson's term of office is well illustrated by the following comparative figures: In 1914 there were 3,199 light consumers and 93 power consumers and the revenue of the commission was slightly over $98000. To-day, there are 5,722 light and 124 power consumers, while the revenue has jumped to nearly $220,000 annually. In 1915, the old style of arc lamp was in use. To-day, the modern incandescent system is in vogue, with lamps spaced on every second pole. The source of power in 1915 was the old sub-station situated in the rear of the plant of the Peterborough Cereal Company, which was replaced by the modern sub-station on Aylmer street. During the same period, the adoption of new methods led to the construction of the filtration plant.

The introduction of modern methods, under Mr. Henderson's supervision, has kept pace with the development of the mechanical side of the business. The growth of the commission forced the introduction of bi-monthly bills in preference to the monthly bills issued by the commission in the earlier days. Into the office Mr. Henderson introduced the latest type of billing and counting machine, which unites the ledger, and the consumer's bill, takes an abstract of the revenue and the electrical consumption, all in one operation. Despite the vast increase in the volume of business since 1914, there are now only eight persons on the office staff against seven employed twelve years ago—a fact which illustrates how the adoption of modern methods has coped with increasing demands with a very slight increase in the staff.

The introduction of this machine was Mr. Henderson's own innovation and marked a radical departure from former office procedure. Peterborough Commission has led the way in the adoption of this type of machine for public utilities work.

Mr. Henderson is a firm believer in public ownership of public utilities, and declares that the Hydro, since its inception, has effected a saving to the consumers in Ontario of a sum equal to double the cost of the system.

Mr. Henderson is one of the charter members of the local Kiwanis Club joining in 1921 and acting as secretary during the most difficult period of organization, and later being appointed to the board of directors.

Mr. Henderson will enter the service of the Remington Company, the makers of the accounting machine he has installed in the commission office here. He will take complete charge of the distribution of the machines through the Province of Quebec.

Two figures well known in British social circles are shown above. The Earl of Lathom is the descendant of a very old family, and owns 11,000 acres of valuable mine lands in Lancashire. Lady May Cambridge, daughter of the Earl and Countess of Athlone, and niece of the Queen, is reported affianced to Crown Prince Olof of Norway. She is shown above with the newest style in English bobbed coiffures.

DEATH PENALTY FOR ASSASSINS

Italian Deputies Ask For Special Session to Pass Law.

ANARCHIST HELD.

ROME, Sept. 13 (Canadian Press) —The assassin who attempted the life of Premier Mussolini on Saturday by throwing a bomb at his automobile is believed to be Gino Lucetti, 26, a native of Avenza, Tuscany. It is said that when arrested he gave a false name to avoid complications for his family.

There are many scars on Lucetti's body and tattooed across his chest are the words, "Vive la morte" (long live death). He fought in the war with Italy's choicest shock troops, and has lived in France for eight years. Lucetti is known in his native village and several French cities as a dangerous anarchist. The police assert that evidence so far supports their theory that the attempt was the outocme of larger machinations abroad.

Fascist deputies have asked Mussolini to call a special session of Parliament to pass legislation to prevent by means of capital punishment, crimes against the head of the State and the head of the Government. Meanwhile the Minister of Justice has received instructions to draft a bill instituting the death penalty.

FIRE DESTROYS SUMMER HOME

Occupants of J. E. A. Fitzgerald's Cottage Have Narrow Escape.

EARLY TO-DAY.

Between 12 and 2.15 this morning, the sumemr cottage of J. E. A. Fitzgerald, at Catchecoma Lake, was burned to the ground, the six occupants narrowly escaping with their lives.

The fire is believed to have started in the woodshed or in the kitchen, and was discovered about 1 a.m. by Mrs. Bertram, who gave the other sleepers the warning that saved their lives. Dr. Keyes of Ottawa, whose cottage was near that of Mr. Fitzgerald's, along with his nephews and two lady friends, lent assistance and helped to carry water from the lake in a vain effort to quench the flames. The work was greatly hindered by the volumes of smoke, and one of the party being slightly overcome by he heat and excitement.

One of the occupants of the cottage was a lady over 81 years of age who had to be carried out.

The ladies were accommodated for the remainder of the night in the cottage of Dr. Keyes.

Due to the wind blowing in a favorable direction the boat house and ice house are intact.

The damage is partially covered by insurance.

Mr. Fitzgerald and his party returned to Peterboro to-day and are none the worse for their experience, although some effects were felt this morning from the smoke inhaled during their perilous exit from the burning cottage.

WOMAN ADMITS HER STATEMENT TO BE FALSE

Promised $5,000 By Mrs. McPherson To Say Her Sister Was "Miss X."

TELLS OF PLOT.

Seamstress Decides To Confess at Her Sister's Request.

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Sept. 13 (Canadian Press).—The Examiner, in a copyrighted story to-day, says Mrs. Lorraine Wiseman Macdonald Seilaff, $18 a week seamstress, has confessed that her story of having shared a seaside cottage at Carmel with her sister, the anonymous "Miss X," and Kenneth G. Ormiston, former Angelus Temple radio operator, was a fake, for which she was to receive $5,000 from Aimee Semple McPherson, the evangelist. The admission was made in a sworn statement.

"Some time after Mrs. McPherson re-appeared, witnesses were found at Carmel, Calif., who said Ormiston had occupied a cottage at Carmel a part of the time that the Evangelist was missing, with a woman who looked like Mrs. McPherson."

The alleged confession climaxed a dramatic meeting between Mrs. Seilaff and her twin sister, Mrs. Virala Kimball, of Oakland, and is said to have been made at the direct request of the latter. They met in the newspaper office. The sisters kissed and Mrs. Seilaff announced her intention of "making a clean breast of the whole thing."

Mrs. Seilaff began her affidavit by stating that she was approached in San Francisco on or about July 30 by a man, who gave his name as "Mr. Martin," and who asked her if she would come to Los Angeles on "some work which would pay good money, and would take only a few weeks, or not all of that time."

She said the man could give her only a few details, but informed her that the work offered was in connection with the McPherson case. She stated that she was instructed to send a telegram to District Attorney Asa Keyes at Los Angeles, declaring that her sister, who was in the east, had been with Ormiston at Carmel and that she had wired her sister to return immediately. Mrs. Seilaff said she left that night for Los Angeles.

"I talked with Mrs. Kennedy and Mr. Veitch, one of her attorneys," her statement continues.

Mrs. Seilaff said she remained in town two days, during which time she went out to the Temple "quite a number of times," talking with Mrs. Kennedy and Mrs. McPherson.

"During these two days I at no time talked with Mrs. McPherson alone, with the exception of just a moment when Mrs. McPherson told me it was all right to go ahead," the woman related.

OFFICER MISSING.

Provincial Constable For Haliburton Has Not Been Seen Since Wednesday.

LINDSAY, Ont., Sept. 13. — County Crown Attorney Anderson received word this morning from Haliburton village that Major William Warren, Provincial officer for the County of Haliburton, was missing. The officer left the village on Wednesday morning for the woods on police work and never returned. Provincial Constable Storey and License Inspector Porter left Lindsay this morning to assist in the search. After Officer Warren had been driven to Essonville, he announced that he would be back in Haliburton the next morning. He has been quite active since his appointment in rounding up illicit stills and bootleggers.

Vigilance Committee Threshes Men and Chases Women Found Engaged In Nude Sun-Bathing On Island Beach

CANVEY ISLAND, England, Sept. 13 (United News).—A hastily-formed vigilance committee has prevented Canvey Island from becoming the British sun bathing headquarters. Attracted by stories of the care-free open-air life led by residents on this pretty little island at the mouth of the Thames, below London, sun bathers flocked here this summer.

The bathing suits they brought became scantier and scantier and then disappeared.

Shocked residents on the island appealed to the police, who arrested several men and women for lying nude on the beaches. But finding the island's four policemen could not cope with the hundreds of sun bathers the men formed a vigilance committee and are threshing all men they find sun bathing in no clothes and forcing all over-enthusiastic women to dress and leave.

In Peterborough Churches

ALL SAINTS, ANGLICAN.

"I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly," the tenth verse of the tenth chapter of St. John's Gospel, was the text from which the Right Rev. Arthur Lea, D.D., Bishop of Kyu-Shu, Japan, preached a rally Sunday sermon in All Saints' Church yesterday morning.

A rally, said the speaker, is not the action of an individual but of a body of people. People are converted individually but their salvation is perfected in their union in the body of Christ, the church. They rally to meet the danger of loss of morale, of slipping back and of losing their grip. On rally Sunday they begin anew to deepen their spiritual lives and make them more complete, and to re-engage in their corporate efforts.

All the actions and expressions of personality, all people think and do, go to make up their lives; all are devised to help in the understanding and enrichment of life. He spoke of the slogan of a steamship company, "See this world before the next." That, he said, was an appeal to human instincts for greater knowledge of life.

To have abundant life it is necessary to avoid the pitfalls of too much concentration on one side of life. People who are too intent on business or pleasure get into a state of mind where they cannot feel that there is a God. The people of Japan have been concentrating on science and manufacturers to the neglect of their souls and now they are dissatisfied and all is not well with them. They know the west has something they need but are not prepared to pay the price as this life is based on Christ.

There are four factors in the growth of natural life, said Bishop Lea. They are birth, development at home under the parents, training in school, and choice of a profession. These four exist in the spiritual life. It is necessary to be born again, to develop spiritually by communion with the Father, to study to follow Christ, and to fufill one's mission. Every one has his place in the work of the kingdom, and should not leave it to some one else.

In conclusion, the speaker urged his hearers to alter the steamship motto and make it read for themselves: "See the next world while seeing this one," or to live their spiritual lives while living their natural ones.

Addressing the Sunday school in the afternoon and the congregation at the evening service, Bishop Lea told something of his work in Japan. Large congregations were on hand at all services.

CRICKET CLUB CLOSES SEASON WITH GOOD WIN

Beats Oshawa C. C. 72-15 in Match Here on Saturday.

BOWLER'S WICKET.

Local Bowling Proves Deadly, Taking Stump of Nine Batsmen.

It was a glorious Saturday afternoon when the tar bespattered Oshawa eleven showed up on the local Exhibition cricket pitch to play the return game with the Peterborough Club, this being the local club's wind-up game.

The luck of the "spin of the coin" fell to the Oshawa captain, who for some reason unknown to the locals, sent them in to bat. It was an unexplained procedure. The Peterborough Club opened with Dunkerley and Thorpe, to the bowling of the Oshawa captain, Pickup, whose first over was a maiden. Hayley opened on the other end.

The first ball, Thorpe put over the boundary for the one and only four of the game. He got another single; then in the next over Pickup took his leg stump at five runs, the outgoing batsman having made them all. In the next over Dunkerley hit out at a rising ball way over his shoulder, skied it and was well caught by Haley with the addition of only two runs, at seven.

Things were beginning to look rather blue for the locals, when Garbutt and Dyer playing very steadily, for it was decidedly a bowler's wicket, carried the score to 23 for 3 before the letter fell to Pickup for 6. The score then rose to 29 for 4, Monkman being bowled by Pickup for a single, then to 39 for 5, when Garbutt, who had played a very steady innings, contributing the top score of 15 for the day, was also bowled by Pickup. This bowler was working havoc among the locals, he being dead on the wicket, which however was not playing as true as at any other game this year.

With one run added, Stuart skied a ball from Pickup after having contributed a timely 6 runs. Succeeding wickets fell at the scores of 44, 47 and 49 respectively to the ninth wicket. At this point a most welcome stand was staged by Manning and Elliott, who carried the score to 62 for 10 before the former also fell a victim to Pickup, skying a ball up to Haley. This as the third catch made by this youthful promising Oshawa player. With Ryland in, the tail wagged and the score was carried to 72 before this player was neatly run out, Elliott carrying out his bat for 8. Pickup took 8 wickets for 29 runs.

Set with 73 runs to get to win, not too big a total playing twelve aside, Oshawa started outo very badly, for without a run being scored they had two men out, and with only one run made, two more wickets fell. The scoreboard looked pretty sick reading 1 run for 4 wickets. The next wicket fell with the score at 5. Six more runs were added, making the score 11 for 6, at which total two more wickets fell. Two more runs were added for the ninth wicket, and the innings closed at 16, the last two wickets falling at this total.

Never before has the Peterbor-Oshawa started out very badly, for Dyer and Dunkerley shared the bowling honors, each taking five wickets for 10 and 4 runs respectively. Only one catch was given and taken, the remainder of the wickets all being clean bowled—mostly middle stump—except the second, when Monkman and Dunkerley neatly threw out Cunliffe.

The game over, the visiting team was taken up to Coleman's Paragon Tea Rooms, and a hearty lunch served. After lunch a few words were expressed by members of both teams, those by the local team in encouragement to the visitors, as their team is only a newly reorganized club, and both expressing the hope that they would meet again next season.

The local club have finished up the season with three wins, and shows a favorable balance of wins for the season, having won six games, lost five, and drawn two.

ACT CAUSING NO HARDSHIP IN LOCAL FAMILIES

Mr. Jas. Abraham Tells Rotary Club of Adolescence Act.

THE PLAYGROUNDS.

Speaker Expresses Their Value as Factor in Developing Children.

That the Adolescent Act is a good measure that entails no hardships upon any family was the opinion given before the Rotary Club at its weekly luncheon today by Mr. James Abraham, the local adolescent officer.

Mr. Abraham not only dealt in his paper with the Adolescent Act but also referred to the value of supervised playgrounds. His four years' experience with the playgrounds had convinced him that there was a splendid work to be done on behalf of the boys and girls of the city and among the benefits he mentioned were the effect upon the health of the children, the teaching of the principles of fair play, the value of teamplay, and the fact that children were kept off the streets. Mr. Abraham complimented the Rotary Club upon its learn-to-swim campaign and emphasized the importance of not only teaching people to swim but also teaching them life-saving methods and a knowledge of artificial respiration.

In dealing with the Adolescent Act the speaker stressed the necessity of careful attention being given the young people in their impressionable years, and pointed out the system that has been adopted in SouthAfrica with a view to ensuring a better chance in life to the children.

Mr. Abraham declared the Adolescent Act was being carried out in Peterborough so as to entail no hardship upon any family. It was his endeavor in investigating cases to use discretion and common sense, and where the circumstances justified the granting of a working permit it was never refused.

Mrs. A. A. Perrin delighted the gathering with two solos, "Mavourneen" and "Wait For Me," in splendid voice, and her numbers were warmly applauded. Miss McCabe provided an effective accompaniment.

President Rogers was in the chair today and there was a large attendance.

The schedule run from one end of the tunnel to the other, by way of the bank, requires 53 minutes; and by way of Charing Cross, from Morden to Golders' green, the schedule calls for a run in 49 minutes. There are 24 stations on the line.

Mr. Peck Against Old Age Pensions Bill

Mr. Peck says in Saturday's Examiner, that the Old Age Pension Bill was nothing but a sham.

As Mr. Peck goes on, we find more about his hostility to Penny Postage, Reduction of Income Tax, Cutting Automobile Prices Down, and now he assaults and assails, through his Publicity Committee, the Old Age Pension Bill, which would mean so much to the elderly p[illegible] of Canada.

Why did Mr. Peck not object to it in the House, and move an amendment, if he did not like the form of it? He never gave the squeak of a mouse against the Old Age Pension Bill, which he says to-day is a sham. He says it is just so much "waste paper." That is Mr. Peck's view.

Of course, Mr. Peck has been fortunate enough, with the property inherited, and the money he has made, that he does not need to worry about old age, but if he had suffered from ill health, poor investments, or business difficulties, even he might like to have an Old Age Pension.

The men and women of Canada are entitled to Old Age Pensions, who have honestly and faithfully sought to assist in building up the structure of this country.

In Saturday's Examiner, Mr. Peck speaks about some things Mr. Duffus forgot to mention, about automobile reduction in price.

Why, then, did not Mr. Peck move that the Luxury Tax be taken off Canadian automobiles and maintained on United States' automobiles? He did not.

On Saturday night, he admits, that the Robb Budget assists 100,000 working men by safeguarding their interests and increasing their labour and employment.

But anyway how did Mr. Peck vote on the Budget, which he now criticizes so severely? If the Robb Budget did not reduce taxation by $25,000,000.00, why did Mr. Peck not vote for it?

—Liberal Publicity Committee.

Leafs Clinch Pennant By Defeating Buffalo In Double B

C.G.E. LADIES DEFEAT OSHAWA; WIN ONE-SIDED GAME 23 TO 4

WINNERS HIT HARD

Game Provides Needed Practice for Games in Ontario Championships.

Canadian General Ladies had little trouble on Saturday afternoon in beating an all-star team from the Oshawa Ladies' Softball League, the final score of the exhibition encounter being 23-4. The visitors were no match for the local team in either hitting or fielding, and only wildness on the part of Miss Vincent, followed by errors by her team mates, gave them the four runs they managed to compile.

Except for moments of poor control, the little local hurler had the Oshawa team at her mercy. She allowed them only four hits, struck out five, and walked twelve. When her generosity put runners on the sacks, however, she forced the succeeding batters into easy infield outs or flies too short for the runners to score.

Miss Vincent did a great deal to aid in the offensive, securing five hits in six attempts. Among them were two doubles and a triple, and four times she scored a run. Five hits, three of them triples, were Miss Taylor's contribution to the victorious effect, while Miss Langton hit a home run. Every other member of the team secured at least one safe hit.

In the fielding end of the game there were no stars. A number of errors were made, mostly due to lack of games during the past three weeks, and none of the visitors' runs were earned. Good plays were made both in the infield and the outfield.

N. Reece and J. Morgan were the stars for the visitors. Miss Reece, playing stortstop, contributed a number of fine stops and throws, some of them on hard hit balls that looked like safeties. Miss Morgan played a good game at first base, and secured two of her team's four hits, one of them a triple. Miss Shorten was the pitcher, and had little to turn back the heavy hitting locals. They made twenty-six hits off her delivery, including a home run, five triples and five doubles, and none struck out. Only one batter had to wait long enough before picking on her slow shoots to get a walk.

The visitors scored one in the first. Miss Morgan was walked and Misses Walker and Cunningham were safe on infield errors. The next two batters went out on flies, but Miss N. Reece was passed, forcing in a run. Miss Shorten rolled to first.

The winners also secured one run on Miss Taylor's triple and Miss Langton's sacrifice fly. A single, a fielder's choice, an infield out, and another triple by Miss Taylor resulted in two runs in the second. In the third fifteen batters faced Miss Shorten and eleven hits were made, ten runs scoring. In the fourth Miss J. Morgan tripled, but was out trying to score when Miss Mortimer let the throw from the outfield go by.

The home team scored three in the fourth and two in the fifth. In the sixth the visitors outscored them two to one. Two more runs in the seventh and two in the eighth brought the C.G.E. total to 23, and the visitors in a last effort scored one in the ninth.

DECIDING GAME MONDAY NIGHT

Win for Mill Ties Up Final Round in Campbellford League.

SCORE 14-13

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 13. — The deciding game for the Campbellford Softball Championship and possession of the big silver cup donated by the Campbellford Cloth Co. will be played at the Agricultural Grounds Monday night at 5.30 o'clock.

The third game was necessary when the Mill defeated the Clerks on Friday night, 14 to 13, in a rather ragged exhibition of the popular pastime.

The Mill hammered Thomas' offerings to all corners of the lot, and his support at times was anything but brilliant. The Clerks took the lead in the first innings with five runs, and the Mill came back with a pair. The Clerks added another in the third to make it 6 to 2, then the Mill went to front with six runs in the fourth. Each added a pair in the fifth and the Clerks pounded out another five runs in the sixth to lead again. They were blanked for the rest of the journey, while the Mill got one in the seventh and three in eighth. Ayrhart, Blakely, Cochrane, and Runes supplied the fielding features for the Mill; while Parsons, McArthur, and Denike were the bright lights for the Clerks. Montgomery and Cochrane were the heavy hitters for the Mill, Montgomery collecting four safe blows out of five trips to the plate, while the Mill's second sacker slammed one over Blake's head in left for a homer and also had a two bagger.

Parsons, Gay and Blake were the consistent hitters for the champions.

The crowd was the biggest yet, and all will be back for the final Monday night. Both teams had their supporters, and they made their presence felt in no uncertain vocal manner.

The teams have met four times and every game has been close and exciting and hard fought right to the end.

LEAFS SQUELCH THE BISONS IN DOUBLE-HEADER

Billy Kelly's Forty-Third Home Run Features First Game.

NEWARK SECOND

Skeeters Win Both Ends of Double-header at Jersey City.

NEW YORK, Sept. 13 (Canadian Press) — Playing at Buffalo, the Toronto Leafs cinched the pennant beyond question by squelching the Bisons in both sections of a twin bill, 9 to 8, and 4 to 0. Clarence Fisher, former Bison, kalsomined his former team mates in the second contest and set them down with a single hit in six innings before darkness halted proceedings. The first game was featured by Billy Kelly's second home run in as many days and his forty-third of the season.

Newark succeeded Baltimore in second place in the league by taking a double header from the Orioles yesterday afternoon, 15 to 5, and 9 to 3.

Baltimore paraded an army of pitchers all of whom were ineffective. Catcher Schulte of Newark dropped two homers over Baltimore's right field fence.

Jersey City won two games from Reading yesterday, the first a bitter twelve-inning battle, 2 to 1, and the nightcap, 3 to 2.

Syracuse and Rochester divided their twin bill in the latter's garden. Syracuse took the first fracas, 4 to 2, and dropped the second, 6 to 5.

BOWEN MEETING AT MT. PLEASANT

Candidate and Other Speakers Discuss Election Issues.

MOUNT PLEASANT, Sept. 13. — A meeting was held in the Temperance hall at Mount Pleasant on Friday evening in the interests of Fred W. Bowen, the Conservative candidate for the Federal election from Durham.

Mr. Robert McCamus, acting as chairman called the meeting to order and introduced the speakers of the evening.

Mr. Bowen was present and was the first speaker. He outlined the activities and doings of the Conservative party since the election last year, after which he left to speak at a meeting being held in Cavan the same evening.

The audience then heard Major Belford, M.P.P., for East Northumberland who was in good form.

The Major's ready wit makes him a very popular speaker with the adherents of all parties. He reviewed points brought out by Mr. Bowen and stressed certain things which he thought worthy of note.

Mrs. Bowen was present and at this interval was asked to address the ladies. She said she felt she owed Mount Pleasant an apology for not being present at the former Conservative meeting. Mrs. Bowen spoke to the women voters, asking everyone to put the country before party and vote for Mr. Bowen and Mr. Meighen.

A. J. Fallis M.P.P., was the next speaker. He touched on the tariff and customs scandal.

The next speaker was Mr. Cameron, ex-alderman of Toronto, who gave a rousing address regarding the relation of the farmer to the home market and industry.

The meeting closed with the National anthem.

ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER

PIRATES GAIN DOUBLE VICTORY FROM NEW YORK

Advance Within Two and Half Games of League Leaders.

HOMERS FEATURE

Aldridge Blows Up in Last, Two Out and Bases Full.

NEW YORK, N.Y., Sept. 13 (Canadian Press)—Pittsburgh entered upon its invasion of the east yesterday with a double victory over the New York Giants by 5 to 1 and 7 to 1, thereby advancing the Pirates to within two and one half games of the league-leading Cardinals.

Home runs featured the opening contest, Kelly breaking a scoreless tie with a circuit blow in the sixth while Waner knotted the score with another in the seventh. However, two rallies in the eighth and ninth netted the visitors four runs to put the game safely away.

Aldridge twirled steadily until the last frame when he blew up and left the game with the bases full and two out. Bush went to his rescue and retired Pinch Hitter Terry for the final out.

In the second game, Meadows pitched perfect ball for six and two thirds innings when Frisch beat out an infield tap. New York's lone run was the result of Meusel's triple and Tyson's single in the eighth.

Pittsburgh totalled 13 hits off Greenfield while Meadows yielded but five.

Paul Waner of the Pirates was the batting star of the day with five safeties good for 14 bases, two of which were home runs. He drove in two runs in each game.

The Giants announced the purchase of Chick Thompson, second baseman of the Buffalo International League Club. The price was not stated.

Pete Donohue, ace of the Cincinnati righthanders was in superb form in the first game of a doubleheader in Brooklyn yesterday afternoon and the Cincinnati Reds won their eastern inaugural by a score of 5 to 0. Aided by airtight fielding behind him, Donohue blanked Brooklyn with three hits.

The Reds reached Dazzy Vance for 13 safe drives. Roush, with four hits in four times up, was the leading offensive figure.

EMIL WIDE BEATS NURMI'S RECORD

Runs Two Miles in Nine Minutes and One Second

SCORE YARDS AHEAD

BERLIN, Sept. 13 (Canadian Press)—Running two miles yesterday in 9 minutes, one and two-fifths seconds, Emil Wide of Sweden not only settled old scores with Paavo Nurmi of Finland, and whom he outdistanced by a score or more yards, but established a new world record.

Nurmi, too, outdid himself, also beating the previous world record by covering the distance in 9 minutes and 5 seconds.

(The previous world's record for two miles was made by the British champion A. Shrubb in 1904 — 9 minutes, 9 3-5 seconds.

There were five men in the race. Nurmi went to the front and held that postion up to about 300 yards from home. It was then that Wide, by a terrific spurt overtook Nurmi, who was unable to keep up the pace, and the Swedish champion fairly ran away from him at the end.

SENATORS LOSE THIRD GAME TO THE INDIANS

Played in Mud, Rain and Pelted by Semi-Darkness.

MAYBERRY HIT HARD

Tobin's Home Run Features First Inning in Boston-Brown Game.

NEW YORK, Sept. 13 (Canadian Press) — Cleveland at home, made it three straight yesterday, winning 14 to 4, from Washington in a game played in the mud, pelted by rain, and finished in semi-darkness. Washington played erratically in the field while Marberry, starting pitcher, was hit very hard. Levsen was fairly effective, throughout and was brilliantly supported.

Speaker and Burns had perfect days at bat, Speaker having a single, two doubles and a triple while Burns had two singles and two doubles, his sixty second and sixty third, respectively, of the season.

Boston and the Browns at St. Louis split a double bill. The Red Sox took the first, 11 to 3, the Browns handing them a 1 to 0 shutout in the second with M. Gaston on the mound. Tobin's home run in the sixth inning of the first game, with three on, featured the opening tilt.

QUAKERS DEFEATED DE LAVAL 4 TO 0

In the Semi-Final of the Holloway Cup—Players Failed to Appear.

Through the non-appearance of the regular players of the De Laval team on Saturday afternoon at Nicholl's Oval, they conceded the semi-final game of the Holloway trophy to the Quaker Oats when only seven of the eleven turned out in uniform against their opponents.

A large number of spectators gathered to witness the match and were satisfied when a few players from other teams filled the vacancies in the De Laval team.

First Half.

The Quakers opened up at a fast pace to dwindle away against the Honor and Jory defence, who kept them outside shooting range while the De Laval new recruits made Curtis hustle in his goal to save a counter from two corner-kicks. A few minutes later Wilson, of Quakers, was injured but continued playing. Eventually a foul kick against Ashmore caused disaster to his team when Maker and Wilson combined to let the pivot open the scoring with a rising shot into the the rigging, after fifteen minutes of hard going. They continued to press but the forwards were very erratic in front of goal but Wilson made amends later in a scrimmage in front of goal. There was no more prominent figure on the field than the new player on the left wing who caused the Quakers any amount of anxiety around the goal. His clean tackling and long distance shooting received favorable comment, and Murchie, at half-back, gave him able assistance. Exchanges were even, thereafter, until a break-away by Black, just before half time terminated in him giving Frick no chance to save. Quakers 3, De Laval 0.

Second Half.

On resuming the De Laval reorganized their team to advantage in the opening stages. Frick went out into the right wing and Nash into goal. From a nice cross by Burgess the Quakers increased their score and held their opponents scoreless until the final whistle was sounded. Quakers 4, De Laval 0.

GREEK SITUATION REMAINS CALM

Party Leaders Will Leave Athens For Coming Election Campaign.

REBELS TRIED.

ATHENS, Sept. 13 (Canadian Press)—Calm prevails throughout Greece and proof of the confidence in the future is seen in the fact that the party leaders will leave Athens the coming week for the election campaign. The preliminary investigation has proved nothing against M. Vozikis, former minister of instruction, and some of the journalists and politicians arrested in connection with the recent revolt, and they have been liberated. About 30 others will be tried with Col. Zervas and Col. Dertilis, commanders of the two guard corps which mutineed for open conspiracy against the government. The hearing will probably begin Wednesday.

Many of the mutineers at the preliminary inquiry denied their guilt, declaring that they acted simply in obeyance to their superiors or were compelled to use arms to defend themselves against the regular troops.

Provoked by newspaper criticism that if Zervas and Dertilis had been arrested earlier both mutiny and bloodshed would have been avoided, General Manetas, commanding the first army corps, has issued a communique stating that nothing was left undone to persuade republican battalions of the futility of resisting the government's orders. Premier Kondylis personally tried, up to the last moment, to obtain a peaceful surrender but Zervas and Dertilis only replied with insults.

The communique also reveals that after fighting began, Communists attacked the royal troops in the rear, thus placing them between two fires. This Communist attack would have been more serious, but the government learned that the guard leaders had planned their attack for Saturday, whereupon Kondylis hastened to discharge the guards on Thursday.

Bakers Hold Good Lead Among Channel Swimmers

PARIS, Sept. 13.—(United News).—The bakers are now far ahead of the butchers, candlestick makers, and all others in the free-for-all art of channel swimming. Ernest Veirkotter, the German who recently broke Getrude Ederle's record, was a baker's boy of Cologne. He has since made enough money to buy himself a first class bakery.

Georges Michel, who broke Vierkotter's record, operates a small bakery in Paris. French enthusiasm over his feat may mean enough to him to provide a whole chain of bakeries.

LAST-MINUTE SCORING FEATURES ENGLISH LEAGUE SOCCER MATCH

Large Crowd Witness One of Most Sensational Encounters Yet Played.

THREE-ALL DRAW

Large Attendances and Heavy Scoring Feature Saturday's League Games.

LONDON, Sept. 13.—(Canadian Press.)—Forty thousand fans, assembled at White Hart Lane Saturday, saw one of the most sensational encounters in the First Division of the English Soccer League, when Tottenham Hotspurs and Huddersfield Town played to a three-all draw. The League champions had held the 'Spurs scoreless throughout the first half and for a great part of the second, when they let loose and in two minutes had rammed in a couple of counters.

The ball had scarcely been set in motion after the second goal when the 'Spurs found the net and immediately after came the equalizer. The astounded crowd had scarcely recovered from this lightning-quick scoring when Huddersfield returned and shot in their third goal.

The situation looked blue for Tottenham, but just as the referee put his whistle into his mouth to sound for the close of the game, the ball crashed past the Huddersfield goal-keeper, and the contest wound up three to three.

Large attendances and heavy scoring featured League games on Saturday. Thirty-five thousand enthusiastic supporters saw Liverpool scramble into second place in the race on the shoulders of Sheffield United. Hopelessly outclassed from the beginning of the game, the Blades were completely avalanched, securing only one of the six goals that were scored. Forshaw was the hero of the game, being responsible for three of Liverpool's five goals.

A similar number of fans were drawn to the game at Birmingham, where the home team blanked Sunderland by a couple of goals. This was Birmingham's third victory out of four games, their sole defeat coming from Leicester City two weeks ago. Incidentally the result recorded Sheffield's first defeat of the season.

The sensation of the English Soccer League continues to be Burnley, and yesterday they ran true to their new form by taking the points from Bolton Wanderers by the odd goal in seven. Deel was Burnley's star man, three of the goals coming from his toe. Burnley have a lead of one point over Liverpool and have yet to meet defeat. In this respect they are travelling in the same company as Leicester City. In five games Burnley had won three and drawn two.

The London District came out of their first string contests with no great honor. The best that could be done at Highbury was a two-two draw, Leicester City holding Arsenal throughout the game and keeping their own escutcheon still untarnished. A heavy blow fell at Upton Park where Blackburn Rovers kept West Ham busy defending their territory throughout the game, and eventually came out of it at the big end of a five-one score. This followed on the defeat of the Spurs by the Rovers a week ago, and showed plainly that Blackburn have no apprehensions with regard to the London teams.

Much needed points were cornered by The Wednesday at Sheffield when they blanked Everton by a quartette of goals. Everton are in a bad way, having lost all of their five games, while Wednesday's win lifted them well out of the rut. A run of three straight defeats has been succeeded by a couple of wins.

No fewer than ten goals were scored at Bury where the locals came out of their game with West Bromwich four goals to the good.

Another sensation was sprung at Stanford Bridge in the Second Division when Southampton effected the dethronement of Chelsea, with Rawlings doing in one minute what four other teams had failed to do in six hours. The Pensioners had begun the season well and up to yesterday their nets had remained inviolate. But their Waterloo came when the game with Southampton had been less than sixty second in progress, for Rawlings sent in a stinger, and followed it up four minutes later by scoring another goal. There was no further scoring and Chelsea were left to contemplate their first defeat, in consequence of which they yielded pride of place to Manchester City, as Division leaders, and to Oldham Athletics as runners-up.

POOR FIELDING BY BARRIE TEAM

Deloro Hits Came Behind Losers' Errors to Pile Up Score.

WINNERS HIT HARD

BARRIE, Sept. 13.—Barrie got the worst beating they have experienced in years today at the hands of Deloro, Eastern champions of the Intermediate O.B.A.A., in the first of the home and home series constituting the semi-final rounds. The score was 14 to 0, and that is a fair indication of the relative playing of each team, for out of the battery the visitors outclassed the locals in every department. The Barrie team is capable of playing an infinitely better game than they did on Friday, in fact, they got about the worst game they could possibly play out of their system.

The visitors outhit Barrie by 13 to 5, but barring the seventh when Dunn, who went in, was nicked for five safeties, they were well scattered and had the Barrie pitchers been given the support that was accorded Ralph there would not have been very many runs to decorate the score board.

Archie Buston pitched the first six innings, during which time he was found for seven hits, but the team made five errors behind him at critical stages, with the result that Deloro got 8 runs. Dunn went in the 7th and was hit hard in that frame but in the eighth and ninth he blanked Deloro with one hit.

Buston struck out seven and gave only one free ticket, while Dunn whiffed two during his tenure on the mound.

Ralph the southpaw who hurled for the visitors, fanned two and issued an equal number of walks but the local sluggers were completely at his mercy throughout. In only one inning, the first, did Barrie get a man to third base. Two snappy double plays helped Ralph out of dangerous situations.

For two innings it looked like a real ball game. Each tteam got men on the sacks in the first session but they were stranded there while in the second they went out in order. The trouble started in the third.

Ralph, the first man up, scratched a hit to first, but was forced by Bond. Then Amby Small, who generally plays bang up ball in the infield, did the unprecedented stunt of making errors on the next three men. Brown followed with a long single to right, and three runs resulted.

In the following innings Regan was beaned and singles by Ralph and A. Quinn coupled with a stolen base and an infield out gave the enemy two more runs. An infield out, one hit, and two errors in the sixth brought the total up to eight and the doings of the seventh innings are too sad to be realized. As stated before, six runs crossed the path.

In the first inning after, Emns got a life on Regan's error Dobson beat out a bunt and that was the nearest approach to a hit that Barrie could gather until the sixth when with two down Jennett produced a healthy wallop to left. In the eighth Emns and Dobson singled in succession, both real drives, and that ended Barrie's batting for the afternoon.

Deloro trotted out about as nice a ball team as has played on the local diamond in recent years. They was not a weak man on the team or if there was, neither the Barrie players nor the spectators could locate him. Every man played heads up baseball and was quick to take advantage of every misplay or error of judgment that Barrie made.

Motoring on a race-track is said to be most dangerous at a speed of forty-five miles an hour. A medical witness at a recent inquest said when accidents happened at ninety miles an hour motorists usually escaped with bruises only.

Two golfers of Waverly, Iowa, set up something of a record the other day when they indulged in match play continuously from 5 o'clock in the morning until 5 in the afternoon. It is estimated that during the twelve hours of play they traversed a distance of approximately 30 miles.

Diamond Disputes Decided

By Billy Evans

Why is it necessary to make an appeal to the umpire when a player bats out of order?

* * *

Such a mistake can be penalized if the team in the field is wide awake.

All that is necessary is for the team in the field to be aware of the fact that the improper batsman has hit and to make an appeal to the umpire. He does the rest by calling out the proper batsman.

Putting the enforcement of the decision entirely up to the umpire would make him more or less an active player rather than a judge of play.

LOCAL MAGISTRATE IS VICE-PRESIDENT

Reads Paper at the Annual Meeting of Ontario Magistrates.

GUELPH, Ont., Sept. 13.—The third annual meeting of the Ontario Magistrates' Association was held at the Ontario Reformatory, at Guelph, on Friday, under the direction of the president, James E. Jones, of Toronto. Many matters of importance, dealing with the conduct of the courts, and with problems which present themselves to magistrates for solution were discussed, and much helpful information given.

Papers were presented on 'Costs,' by Magistrate Cook, of Midland; "Procedure in Juvenile Courts," by Magistrate O. A. Langley, of Peterboro; "A Proposal to Provide Barriers to Assist in the Apprehension of Criminals," by Magistrate H. P. Moore, of Acton, and "An Appreciation of the Service Given to Police by the Police of Toronto and Other Large Centres," by Magistrate G. H. Clark, of Orillia.

The matter of uniformity of sentence was carefully considered and discussed.

It was shown, however, that diftrates, that equality of sentence, and uniformity of practice were considerations of very great importance, and earnest thought has been given to plan means to insure an even administration of justice throughout the coutrs of the Province.

It was shown, howeer, that differences apparent in given cases were perhaps not so great as would seem on reports, which were often condensed of necessity for lack of space, and did not, therefore, always show all of the considerations which affected the decision of the courts.

It was suggested, however, that the association, by more frequent meeting or some system of distribution of the reports of cases among the magistrates, may accomplish something in the direction of uniformity. Officers for the ensuing year are: President, Major Hind of Oshawa; Vice-President, O. A. Langley of Peterboro; Secretary-Treasurer, H. Gover, of Coldwater; Executive Committee, J. E. Jones, Toronto; Dr. M. Patterson of Toronto; J. H. Campbell, St. Catharines; G. H. Clark, Orillia; F. Watt, of Guelph, and H. P. Moore, of Acton. The fourth annual meeting, it was decided, will be held at Kingston.

THEATRE

GREAT IS HOYT'S COMEDY ROLE IN "THE DANGER GIRL."

Player Provides Amusement For Associates During Filming of Photoplay.

Arthur Hoyt, who plays the role of the Ichthological Professor in Priscilla Dean's new starring production, "The Danger Girl," provides much relishable comedy in the action of that photoplay which will be on view at the Regent Theatre to-day.

In the picture there is shown a billiard room, the walls of which are lined with large and decorative aquariums. In the course of the action there is a hand-to-hand fight in this apartment when one of the battlers, throwing billiard balls, breaks the largest aquarium.

Out rushes gallons of water—and with it several large fish flop onto the floor. The fight continues and Hoyt, whose hobby is fish, rushes in and is horrified to see his little playmates flopping around the flooded floor. The scene occurring at night, Hoyt's attire is rather scanty and he wears no slippers. When he rushed into the room and his feet struck the ice cold water he yelled. The players in the company, who were watching the scene, were convulsed with laughter when Director Edward Dillon humorously remarked; "That was fine, Mr. Hoyt, but we will have to shoot the scene over again." Mr. Hoyt almost passed out.

The above is but one of the many real comedy touches in "The Danger Girl." It is the best production Miss Dean has had for years. Melodrama, comedy and mystery are three elements which make this production a most notable one.

John Bowers, Cissy Fitzgerald, Arthur Hoyt, Clarence Burton, William Humphrey and Gustave Von Seyffertitz comprise the supporting cast.

LIBERALS HOLD FINAL MEETING

J. J. Duffus, R. R. Hall and W. Shields Visit Ennismore.

ISSUES DISCUSSED

A meeting in St. Martin's Hall, Ennismore, marked the winding up of the campaign of the Liberal candidate, Joseph J. Duffus, on Saturday night. Mr. Duffus was supported on the platform by R. R. Hall, K.C., and former member for the riding, and by W. Shields. John P. Flood was chairman.

The feature of the meeting was the reading by Mr. Hall of a telegram from the Liberal organizer, W. R. P. Parker, stating that The Vancouver Province, the official Conservative organ, had read H. H. Stevens out of the Conservative party because of exploitation of his membership in the House of Commons for the sale of oil stock.

W. Shields

Mr. Shields, who made a creditable first appearance on the political platform, said the farmer did not need to help to produce. What he needed was a market. The world market decided the price. All that any government could do was to give the farmer access to the market. Did they not realize that the American farmer in the most highly protected country in the world, was in a much worse plight than was the Canadian farmer? The Robb Budget was in the interests of the farmer and the whole country. The Robb Budget was a balanced Budget—the receipts covered the expenditure.

Mr. Shields thought public expenditure had been too great in the past and the Liberals were following a policy of economy. He urged every Ennismore voter to cast his ballot for Mr. Duffus.

R. R. Hall

Mr. Hall said that he proposed to examine Messrs. King and Meighen in the light of the method adopted by Napoleon Bonaparte towards applicants for offices of authority.

Napoleon was accustomed to say, "Tell me what he has done and I will tell you what he will do."

What had(Mr. Meighen done? Mr. Meighen was the chief lieutenant of Sir Robert Borden during the war and stepped into Sir Robert's shoes on his retirement in 1921.

Sir Arthur Currie, commander of the Canadian division during the war, had declared that the Borden-Meighen government wasted hundreds of millions of dollars through not listening to the advice of the experts. Sir Arthur Currie was an expert, he knew what he was talking about; and he was a Conservative. The total loss, without reckoning interest, was $247,313,000, charged directly at the door of the administration of which Mr. Meighen was a leader. The people did not want to have that kind of man administering the affairs of Canada.

He examined the record of Mr. King. The wise financial policy of Mr. King's government had reduced the cost of administering the country, had restored the Canadian dollar to a position above par, had raised the C.N.R. to become a national asset and inaugurated an era of prosperity. By the Napoleonic test, the people would choose Mr. King.

Mr. Hall then read to the audience the following telegram which was addressed to Mr. Duffus:

Belleville, Ont., Sept. 11.
J. J. Duffus, Esq.,
Peterborough.

Honorable H. H. Stevens should be read out of the Conservative party because of exploitation of membership in the House of Commons, and his franking privilege House of Commons stationery and crest in a promoting scheme by which American and Canadian widows were induced to put their money into fake oil company. The Sun says Mr. Stevens will have to answer to those thousands of his investors who suffered. Vancouver cannot afford to be brought into this sordid fight by supoprting a man whose actions threaten to become a national storm centre and whose election would disrupt and interrupt the progress of the west and Vancouver.

W. R. P. PARKER.

This was the same Mr. Stevens who set himself up as the apostle of purity.

J. J. Duffus.

Mr. Duffus, who predicted for the Liberals 125 seats—a majority over all—said the people were sick of governments having an insufficient majority and were determined to give Mr. King a sufficient lead to enable him to carry out government in a business-like way.

The Conservatives, by conducting a campaign last year that resembled a conversation between an undertaker and a grave-digger, had done more to discourage immigration and send people out of the country than any other contributing factor.

Stressing the desirability of enabling the farmer to produce cheaply, Mr. Duffuss contrasted the Liberal and Conservative attitudes. Quoting from Hansard, Mr. Duffus said that on June 2, 1925, during a discussion on the tariff, Mr. Meighen, in reply to a question from F. A. Raymond of Brantford, declared he undoubtedly would raise the tariff on agricultural implements, adding: "I say so, unhesitatingly." That was the way in which Mr. Meighen looked after the interests of the farmer.

Mr. Duffus reviewed the Robb budget, dwelt at some length on the Oshawa deputation, the expenses of which were, he said, paid by the big interests, and declared that, under the Liberals, Canada would be the envy of the world and the fairest gem in the British Crown.

At the Committee Rooms

Standing room was at a premium in the Liberal committee rooms on Saturday night to hear Hon. G. N. Gordon discuss the topics of the campaign. Mr. Gordon gave the final instructions to the scrutineers after which he gave a short speech.

"H. G. Fester, the man who was advertised as a Labor leader, and who spoke in Victoria Hall, has never been heard of as a Labor man before by some of the representatives of Labor in this city," said Mr. Gordon for he had taken the time to find out whether the Labor men in this city had ever heard of him. "He is a political fakir who came from Hamilton and who has been campaigning through Northern Ontario in the interests of the Conservative party," said Mr. Gordon.

Mr. Meighen declared for the open door and today there are all kinds of men from Central Europe coming into this country, said the speaker. They are the poorest kind of labor who will be on the bread line this winter or who will be coming into this city and taking the jobs of the labor men. These statements have been made all over the country and Sir Henry Drayton has never denied it, he said.

Mr. Stevens was criticized by the speaker for his part in the oil company which took thousands of dollars out of people. He used House of Commons stationery, said the speaker, with the Canadian coat of arms as a bait to innocent old women to put their money into it for he was a director of this company. "This is the holy, honest Mr. Stevens."

"Mr. Peck has been criticizing the Robb budget but he has never denied that it meant a saving of $100,000 a year to Peterborough alone. Mr. Peck's idea of old age pension is a sham for he never rose in his seat in the house and asked that it be considered again and he has never criticized what his Conservative friends did in the senate, said Mr. Gordon.

"I have been blamed for trying to step away from these questions and for not running in this election," he said in conclusion, "but I repeat again that which I said at the convention, that I could not afford it for I had been in three hard elections in five years, for I never ran away from a fight and today I am just about where I started 21 years ago when I came to this city. I want to say that I am in this election to tell everyone to support J. J. Duffus."

Remember, Your Job May Be the Next

The worker who goes to the polls tomorrow and risks a vote on Mr. Duffus, risks at the same time putting his job at the mercy of Mr. Garland, Mr. Evans, or some other Progressive Free Trader.

That is a cold fact.

As sure as the sun will rise tomorrow morning, if a combination of Liberals, Progressives and Independents outnumber the Conservatives in the next Parliament, and Mackenzie King returns to office as the nominal head of such an alliance, Free Traders from the West who don't care a snap of their fingers whether anybody in Peterborough has a job or not so long as they can sell their wheat in the highest market and buy what they need in the lowest, will sit in with the Liberal Ministry and slice off Protection wherever their fancy dictates.

And the Liberals, most of them Protectionists, at heart, will not be able to lift a finger to stop them.

Mr. Garland boasts that the Progressives pounded the legislation of the last session into their form.

You men and women who depend upon local industries for employment, you business men who depend upon the purchase of those men and women to keep your stores open, can you afford to leave the tariff in the hands of the Garlands and Forkes?

Peterborough industries may be the next singled out for attack.

The safe way is to vote for a safe candidate, a supporter of Arthur Meighen, champion of a national tariff policy that protects Canadian industries and the people employed in Canadian industry.

Safety first—remember your jobs and vote for the candidate who will help to protect them.

IN POLICE COURT

George Clapper and G. W. Clapper, cousins, both residents of Belmont township, appeared this morning on charges of stealing bicycles.

George Clapper, the younger of the two accused, was sentenced to not less than three months in the Ontario Reformatory and not to exceed six months. G. W. Clapper was sentenced to the same institution for not less than six months and not more than two years less one day.

The Hon. G. N. Gordon and Joseph Wearing appeared for the accused. Crown Attorney G. W. Hatton represented the Crown. The accused, through their counsel, both pleaded guilty.

Chief of Police Samuel Newhall told The Examiner that the apprehension of these two men had only been possible through very smart detective work on the part of Detective Sergeant William Meagher and Detective William Carey. These two officers, he said, had travelled hundreds of miles throughout the entire county and were successful in recovering eight of the stolen wheels. Fifteen, in all, were stolen in the City of Peterborough. The younger man stole the wheels here, advising the older man in Havelock when he had a sufficient number to warrant his coming here to pick them up. The wheels were then taken to the east end of the Locks bridge and from there were taken to Havelock. The majority of them were disposed of to different persons in the outlying sections which made the tracing of them a difficult process. Chief Newhall stated that his department had received invaluable assistance from C.P.R. Constable H. Evans at Havelock who, he said, had worked day and night on the case.

ISSUES BEFORE THE ELECTORATE IN PETERBOROUGH

This space is contributed daily by The Examiner for discussing of the election issues by representatives of the candidates of both parties for this riding. The articles are to be kept free from personalities and will be the opinions of their respective authors, not those of The Examiner.

The Conservative Viewpoint

Prepared by the Liberal-Conservative Association of Peterborough, on behalf of E. A. Peck, the Conservative candidate.

The Conservative party, thanks to the loyalty of its own supporters, and the patriotism of thousands of Liberal voters who can no longer follow Mr. King in dancing attendance upon the Progressive group, is within a few hours of complete triumph.

Right Honorable Arthur Meighen will win to-morrow, and Canada will win with him, because once more she will have a responsible government and the past five years of barter and compromise will be like a bad dream.

From all parts of the Dominion the story is the same.

Disgusted at the spectacle afforded by the once great Liberal party, dominated by the Forkes and Garlands and Woodsworths and Bourassas, shocked at the extent to which fraud and corruption have entered into the administration of the country's greatest revenue department, the electors who put Canada before party, are lending their support to the Conservative candidates.

And their numbers are being increased by the last minute voters who like to cast their ballot for a winner, and, sensing the Conservative swing, are lining up to-morrow to give Canada stable government.

The campaign on behalf of Mr. Peck, winding up with a big meeting in Lakefield to-night, is enthusiastic and well organized.

From city sub-divisions, from county polls, come the same cheery messages of enthusiasm and confidence.

The people who last October elected Mr. Peck as their representative at Ottawa, are determined to send him back to complete the term that was shortened by Mr. King's downfall.

And other voters are going to help them do it, believing that only by the election of a sufficient number of Conservative candidates can Canada be certain of a return to stable government to the tried British system.

Liberal speakers have ceased to proclaim a Liberal victory over all.

They know it is impossible for Mr. King to get a clear majority and that the only chance he has of obtaining office is through a Liberal Progressive-Independent amalgamation that would give the Liberals office and the minority group the power.

The fact that in 46 seats Mr King hasn't a Liberal candidate running is proof positive that there is not the slightest hope of a straight Liberal majority.

There is no Liberal candidate in two ridings in British Columbia.

There is no Liberal candidate in seven ridings in Alberta.

There is no Liberal candidate in four ridings in Saskatchewan.

There is no Liberal candidate in two ridings in Nova Scotia.

There is no Liberal candidate in one riding in New Brunswick.

There is no Liberal candidate in four ridings in Quebec.

There is no Liberal candidate in nineteen ridings in Ontario.

In Nova Scotia Mr. King has as candidates one man who is an open secessionist, and another who says he is for Labor.

In New Brunswick Mr. King has as a candidate a Progressive Free Trader.

In Quebec Mr. King has as candidates three Independent high protectionist Liberals and Mr. Bourassa.

In British Columbia Mr. King has as candidates a so-called Labour man and an Independent.

In Alberta Mr. King has as candidaes 7 U.F.A.'s, followers of the ultra-radical and out-and-out free trader, E. J. Garland.

In Saskatchewan, Mr. King has as candidates four Progressives of the Crerar-Forke school, all free traders.

In Manitoba Mr. King has as candidates a variety of candidates ranging from J. S. Woodsworth, pacifist, socialist, to Robert Forke, Liberal-Progressive.

In Ontario Mr. King has 19 candidates ranging from Miss Agnes MacPhail to Independent High-Protectionist Liberals and Free Traders like E. C. Drury.

From that combination is there any sound reasons for expecting good government?

The choice is between Meighen and responsible government and King and political chaos.

And there is no doubt as to West Peterborough's answer to-morrow.

It will be a verdict for PECK. MEIGHEN AND RESPONSIBLE GOVENMENT.

The Conservative Victory Committee.

The Liberal Viewpoint.

Prepared by the Liberal Association of Peterborough on behalf of J. J. Duffus, the Liberal candidate.

For five years Mackenzie King was able to command 128 votes while Arthur Meighen could only command 101. After becoming Prime Minister this spring Mr. Meighen was defeated at the very first vote taken.

Independent observers all agree that no matter what happens, only one thing is certain, and that is, that King will be the next Prime Minister. Sir John Willison, a Conservative, writing to the Montreal Star, states definitely that the Conservatives cannot hope to gain west of the Great Lakes. Hon. Thomas Crerar, a Progressive, predicts that the Liberals will gain eight seats in the West. The Financial Post, a Conservative paper, in its last issue, holds out no hope of Hon. Arthur Meighen becoming the next Prime Minister.

Hon. Mackenzie King, on the eve of the election, makes the following statement which speaks for itself:

"1. We have given you the budgets which have reduced your taxes.

2. We have administered a railway policy which is rapidly creating a great asset for our country out of what was formerly a serious liability.

3. By successive trade treaties we have strengthened the ties of Empire and rejuvenated Canadian trade and industry until we now sell $400,000,000 more goods than we buy.

4. By economical administration we have reduced the debt and given momentum to the rising tide of national prosperity. Our dollar is at par the world over.

5. We have legislated to maintain a united Canada.

And when returned to power I pledge myself:

1. To continue relentlessly the investigation of the Customs service, and to carry out without fear or favor the needed reforms.

2. In our next budget to make other reductions in direct taxation and thus further lighten the burdens upon the people.

3. To re-introduce and carry through the legislation which was defeated or scrapped by the Conservative action at the end of the last session, such as old age pensions and rural credits.

4. To do all that lies in my power to maintain Canada's proud position as one of the great self-governing nations within the British Empire."

Mr. J. J. Duffus, the Liberal candidate for West Peterborough, also pledges himself as follows:

"If elected, I give you my assurance that I will assist in every way possible to bring about a further reduction in general taxation, consistent with sound business principles.

I will continue to keep in touch with industrial, agricultural and business conditions and use my utmost endeavors to further their interests as well as the interests of all those connected with these, by making a thorough study of all tariff matters and giving the Tariff Board all the help I may be able from time to time, to adjust the tariff in a way that will foster manufacturing and at the same time lighten taxation upon the necessities of life, which is so essential to the welfare of the great masses of people.

I will do everything in my power to put the Old Age Pensions Bill upon the statute books at the earliest opportunity, as I believe that it will save the ratepayers of this constituency thousands of dollars annually.

I will assist in promoting constructive legislation with a view to benefiting all the people and I will honestly try to represent you in a manner befitting this very important riding, and I assure you that if you select me to serve you your trust will not be betrayed."

If the readers of this paper desire to have the next member for West Peterborough on the winning side in Parliament at Ottawa in order that the needs of West Peterborough may be properly considered and attended to, they will see to it that they go to the poll to-morrow and vote for Joseph James Duffus.

POLICE ARE INVESTIGATING STRANGE STORY OF "DORI"

Captain of Steamer Says He Landed Italians To Avoid Mutiny.

100 CAUGHT.

Rest of 165 Are Being Sought Along Road To Halifax.

HALIFAX, N. S., Sept. 13.—(Canadian Press.)— With a hundred Italians under guard in a barn at the head of St. Margaret's Bay, 25 miles from here on the southwest coast, officers of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police and others are attempting to round up 65 others who made up the party of strangers mysteriously set ashore from the Italian steamer Dori, 2,200 tons, said to be from Algiers, via Bermuda, at Mill Cove, a tiny fishing village, some ten miles farther down the shore. The Dori is in the hands of Customs officers with orders to report in Halifax and officer were trying to fathom one of the strangest marine stories of recent years.

The officers of the Dori declared that they had set the men ashore because of a threatened mutiny. They stated that the Italian passengers were immigrants who had been taken aboard at Algiers on Aug. 6, and that when the Dori, forced to enter St. Margaret's Bay because of engine trouble, anchored so near the shore, the passengers could not be restrained from their desire to be on dry land and were therefore allowed to land. The story was disjointed and difficult to understand and there was no explanation of the steamer's presence in these waters.

The Dori dropped anchor in Mill Cove shortly before dusk yesterday afternoon and landed 165 men in two boats, which plied back and forth between ship and shore, carrying thirteen passengers each trip. As fast as the men landed they inquired the road to Halifax and set off on foot.

MEN DECEIVED.

HALIFAX, N. S., Sept. 13. — (Canadian Press.)— The Canadian Government cruiser Arleux was expected to reach Halifax to-day with the Italian steamer Dori, which yesterday threw the district around St. Margaret's Bay into a furore of excitement by landing between one and two hundred foreigeners, believed to be mostly Italians, at Mill Cove, a small fishing hamlet about forty miles from the city.

When messages reached here telling of the mysterious "invasion," Customs officials, immigration authorities and officers of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police proceeded to the scene and early this morning had succeeded in rounding up the majority of the foreigners, only a few of whom could speak English. The story told by the bewildered men was to the effect that they had paid between two and ten thousand lira apiece for passage from Marseilles to New York and that when the steamer cast anchor in St. Margaret's Bay, the captain told them to "dress up cleanly" as they were only three miles from Halifax, which they understood was a United States' city. One of the Italians told the interpreter that he and his comrades had left their homes in Sicily to seek their fortunes in the United States. They had, he declared, sold practically all their belongings to raise their passage.

HALIFAX, Sept. 13. Canadian Press. — A party of one hundred and two Italians from the Island of Sicily rounded up during the night and early this morning by the immigration authorities and officers of the Royal Canadian mounted police, after they had landed yesterday afternoon from the Italian steamer Dori, at iMll Cove on St. Margaret's Bay, was brought to Halifax this morning by train and lodged in the immigration premises at pier two, there to remain under guard pending instructions from Ottawa.

Shortly before the arrival of the train at the immigration shed, six other Italians who had been picked up on St Margaret's Bay Road while en route to the city, were brought to pier two by the police officers, making a tota lof 108.

W. F. Maclean, parliamentary dean who has represented first East and then South York in the House of Commons for 34 years, and who was displaced in the Conservative convention in South York recently by a majority of eight votes among 454 delegates. He said: "I accept the situation, yet I might be a member of the next parliament—who can tell?"

Mr. Maclean was proprietor of the Toronto World, which succumbed to post-war conditions in 1921.

"BA... CATIONS' DELEGATES LIKELY TO ACCEPT AMERICAN RESERVATIONS COUNTERED BY THEIR OWN TERMS

Members' Committee Drafting Reply To Serve as General Model.

JURISTS OBJECT.

Agreement Sought of America Not To Claim Different Privileges.

GENEVA, Sept. 14.—The nations belonging to the World Court will in all probability accept the American reservations, accompanied by reservations of their own. The commission named ten days ago to study the Senate condition has now named a Drafting Committee to frame an answer of the United States which can serve for a model for the different Governments in making their respective replies to Washington.

I am informed that the jurists who have been working on the issue have advised against a simple affirmative reply to America. Their opposition is directed against Reservation 5 and especially the part saying the League Council may not ask the World Court for an advisory opinion on any issue "in which the United States has or claims an interest" without the consent of Washington.

Unfortunately the Senator who drafted the resolution apparently lost sight of the fact that all the decisions of the Council were not taken by unanimity, since the Council votes by a majority on questions of procedure and practically all appeals by the Council to the World Court have been on procedure. It is, therefore, contended by the jurists that to accept America's fifth reservation would give the United States too strong a position in being able by its one veto vote to oppose a majority of the Council acting in a case in which the Covenant provides it shall act by a majority.

However, the jurists have gone carefully over the Senate debate, especially the speech of Senator Walsh, and have taken note of the recent statements by President Coolidge that the United States sought to obtain by Reservation 5 the same rights as the nations who are members of the Council. They are hoping, therefore, that Washington will look kindly upon acceptance of the reservations with a statement meaning in effect that it is understood America will not claim any more privileges than members of the Council have.

Perhaps this somewhat technical matter can be illustrated by the case of Mosul. The Council was asked to settle the Mosul frontier. It asked the World Court to advise it whether as a matter of procedure the Council was entitled under the Lausanne Treaty to fit this line. Turkey was opposed to the Court's role and when there was a discussion of her attitude the President of the Council ruled that the appeal to the Court represented an issue of procedure and that a majority vote of the Council sufficed.

In an analagous case, were America's Reservation 5 in force America alone could block the plan of the majority of the Council. This is construed here as being unfair. Of course in cases where the Council vote would be taken by unanimity the situation would be different and America would have the same vote as any other nation.

COMPETITION IN STOCK JUDGING

Boys Will Compete at Fair Grounds To-morrow Morning.

GOOD PRIZES.

A live stock judging competition for the boys of the county will be held at the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition under the direction of the county representative and in co-operation with the different live stock committees of the Peterboro Fair Board. It will take place in front of the grand stand on Wednesday, September 15, commencing at 9.30. Five different classes of animals will be judged, and a demonstration by a competent judge on one particular animal will be given before placing each class. In the afternoon all the classes will be brought into the ring and placed in order of merit, and reasons will be given for the benefit of competitors and others interested. This will be a real Farmers' Day and should interest others as well. Substantial prizes are offered and keen competition is expetced. A girls' competition will be held the same day.

WEATHER GOOD FOR VOTING DAY OVER CANADA

Winnipeg Only Place To Report Rain This Morning.

QUESTIONS ASKED.

Ottawa Waits Result Expectantly—Hears Voting Is Brisk.

OTTAWA, Sept. 14 (Canadian Press).—The election campaign which had been carried on with exceptional vigor over Canada, particularly during the past few weeks, closed last night with the leaders of both political parties prophesying victory. To-day the electors have their say. From Ontario east the weather conditions are excellent for a big vote. The sun is shining and the air is quite cool. In Winnipeg it rained most of the night and was continuing early this morning. Farther west the weather was cloudy but no rain.

Ottawa awaits the result with a great deal of expectancy and uncertainty. Will the Conservatives be able to hold the Maritimes? Will Quebec remain almost solidly Liberal? Will the Liberals be able to make inroads into the Conservative hold in Ontario? How will the fusion of Liberal and Progressive candidates in Manitoba affect the result in that Province? Will the Conservatives be able to break into Saskatchewan, th only province in which they failed to elect a member last election? How will Alberta, whose Progressive representation played such a big part in last Parliament, do on this ocasion? Will British Columbia remain as Conservative as in the last election? And how will the Hon. H. H. Stevens fare in Vancouver Centre? These are some of the questions that to-day's voting will decide and which are most frequently heard among those in the capital who seek to forecast the vote.

At dissolution the parties stood: Conservatives 116, Liberals 102, Progressives 23, Labor 2, and Independents 2. Reports to Ottawa indicate that the vote started briskly when the polls opened, with the party machines working smoothly in checking up and getting out the vote.

ATTENTION OF WORLD FOCUSED ON DOMINION

British Politicians Viewing Canadian Election From Two Distinct Angles.

EUROPE INTERESTED.

Hope For Stable Government and Assurance of Canada's Prosperity.

LONDON, Sept. 14.—The searchlight of the British Empire and of Europe generally is upon the Canadian elections. It is recognized everywhere that this is the most important election within living memory, for its effect is not so much upon Canada but upon the Dominion's external relations.

British politicians are viewing it from two distinct angles. In the first place they hope it will prove decisive in giving to one party or the other a substantial majority, by which a stable government can be carried on and Canada's prosperity assured.

Economic Loss.

It has been remarked that the unstable government in Canada for the past four years, as compared with the stability which the United States enjoys, is certain, sooner or later, to bring comparisons between the two system of government and, unless there is a period of freedom from elections for a while, it is emphasized that the continual interruptions in the life of the country will mean an economic loss in which the Mother Country must share. There is little hope here, however, that the present election will prove decisive, because all despatches from Canada emphasize that a stalemate is the most likely result. The Mother Country and Europe particularly are also viewing the election in its probable effect on imperial relations.

Mere Episode.

The constitutional issue attaching to Lord Byng's action is now regarded merely as an episode of the past, without much significance in the present election, but with Australia and New Zealand determined to pursue a policy of closer unity in the imperial conference and with South Africa demanding equal status in all things with the Mother Country, it is felt that Canadian representatives will have a decisive influence in finding out a way by which the dominions can progress as parts of the Empire without unduly disturbing the present relations.

Therefore, it is felt that a premier with an assured majority would be better able to wield this influence than one who was engrossed with domestic problems and whose power was contingent on the wavering of a few votes.

The European press is giving much importance to this aspect of the problem, saying that Canada is determined to assert her rights as a nation, and they are watching the election to see if there is any tendency this way.

Naturally, politicians, government officials and the press here do not share these views of Europeans, who long for the predicted breaking up of the Empire, but they do hope that Canada will give a decisive expression on her views.

Beyond that, however, there does not seem a disposition for any one to go.

Press Comment.

LONDON, Sept. 14.—Several of the big daily papers here give prominence to-day to the Canadian general elections, some of them doing so for the first time since the campaign began. This reticence doubtless has been due to anxiety not to appear as being officiously interested in the outcome, especially when delicate constitutional matters are involved. Yesterday's editorials in the London papers are studiously non-committal.

The Times mainly confines itself to a general review of the situation and hazards the opinion that the old political parties appear to have made rather too much of the customs scandal, and the controversy over Lord Byng's course in connection with the granting of dissolution to Premier Meighen. The Times also refers to the difficulties encountered by either party in revising an all-round national program, especially when added to the difficulties is a "widespread though temporary disillusionment and apathy about the value of political action."

Balanced Result.

The Manchester Guardian, which is also non-commital, expresses the view that the three-months' election campaign in the Dominion has not fulfilled the possibility of a first-rate issue emerging on the eve of the imperial conference. "Expectation of a balanced result of the voting," the Guardian says, seems to be general, although it is fully recognized that the memory of 1925 may at the last moment bring a decisive change, and the Canadian electorate may act on the belief that the only thing to do is to make sure of returning a government with a strong majority."

E. F. MASON TENDERS RESIGNATION FROM THE UTILITIES COMMISSION

Many Improvements Since He Was First Elected to Commission.

BUSINESS REASONS

George Henderson Presented With Club Bag as Token From Commissioners.

Members of the Utilities Commission came to the parting of the ways yesterday afternoon when E. F. Mason, the chairman announced that he was tendering resignation to Mayor Holloway today to take effect Sept. 30, and George Henderson, who has been with the Commission for the past twelve years was present for the last time, as he had resigned some few weeks ago.

Mr. Mason stated that he was resigning on account of business reasons as lately he had been working sixteen hours a day, dividing the time between the work of the Commission and his own business, but in duty to himself and his business he felt he would have to resign from the Commission. "During the time I have been on the Commission, the work has been strenuous as many improvements have been made. When I came on, the work was in a run down condition on account of the war, finances had gotten behind and the surplus had been absorbed to take care of the water charges. Since then the rates have been changed, the filtration plant built, sub-station built, housing for the men considered, the rebuilding and reconstruction of all the wiring in the city taken up and well on the way to completion. Today the engineering department is well taken care of by Mr. Dobbin, and it will remain to the Commissioners who have worked so well with me to bring these things up to a greater and fuller success. While I regret very much having to leave the Commission, it is my duty to myself and my business which makes it necessary, for I have been working sixteen hours a day, and half my time has been taken up with Commission work. I have great interest in the work and am deeply interested in public ownership, and to the two remaining Commissioners, Mr. Bradburn, who understands the work thoroughly, and Mr. Matthews, who is getting well into the harness, I bespeak for them the same co-operation and consideration which I have received," said Mr. Mason.

Mr. Bradburn, in a few well chosen words, expressed his deep regret at Mr. Mason's action, but he said that he could plainly see that Mr. Mason's position in business and the competition made it necessary for him to take this step.

Mr. Matthews said that he had tried to persuade Mr. Mason to stay on for he has done an enormous amount of work for the citizens of Peterborough, and it is they who are the losers.

Presentation to Mr. Henderson

The members of the Commission along with the engineer, R. L. Dobbin, and the secretary, S. R. Armstrong, presented George Henderson with a fine leather club bag on the eve of his departure to Montreal. Mr. Mason, in a short address, expressed the gratitude of the Commissioners for the work Mr. Henderson has done and the manner in which he has performed his duties. The office today is one of the best equipped in the city, and through his suggestions a system of checking up the work has been installed that is satisfactory both to the citizens and to the Commission. Mr. Henderson was thanked for the way in which he had helped the Commissioners in meeting the attacks of people who were against the Commission, for he had spent days and nights searching up data to satisfy the public. "The Commissioners appreciate these acts and we know that you have given all the information possible to your successor, so on behalf of the Commission, Mr. Dobbin and Mr. Armstrong, I ask you to accept this club bag, for we believe you will need one this size to take care of your acquirements in the eastern province."

The other two Commissioners expressed their regret of his leaving, and hoped that he would have a successful career in his new sphere of work.

Mr. Henderson, in reply, said it was very hard for him to express himself, for in the twelve years he had served under several commissions, he was under T. E. Matthews and has now served under his son, and his relationship has been nothing but the most pleasant and he bespoke for his successor the same co-operation.

General Business

The engineer was instructed to continue the dead head mains on Leslie Avenue and Bethune Street and link them up with the mains on Homewood and Hunter Streets respectively.

The Commission was unable to see its way clear to put a light at the corner of Maria and Armour Road on account of the excessive cost, which was estimated at $350.

The Hydro-Electric Power Commission wrote saying it had no objections to a tie line being built between the Quaker sub-station and the City sub-station, so as there will be fewer interruptions in the power.

Mr. Mason spoke recommending a pumper, and said that he had sent out letters to the various cities using pumpers, asking for information, and as yet only one reply had been received, in which it meant a saving of $10,000 to the electorate. "As its is today each time a fire alarm goes in, the pressure at the pumping station is increased to 110 pounds, and this has been playing havoc to the water mains, and to the plumbing in the houses."

Mr. Bradburn thought the idea a good one, and that the city should help to some extent.

RESIGNS POSITION.

Chairman of the Utilities Commission, who announced yesterday his resignation from the Commission, to take effect September 30th.

Tomatoes Are Thrown At Montreal Meeting

MONTREAL, Sept. 14 (Canadian Press). — The election campaign in Montreal closed last night in a burst of fireworks in a number of city constituencies, following a stormy week-end meeting in St. Mary's Division, where barrages of eggs and other missiles featured the clashes. Rival factions attending the meeting of the Hon. E. L. Patenaude, ran into another storm at Lachine last night. Yelling and singing crowds surrounded the hall, and fierce encounters took place between supporters and the opponents of the Minister. Tomatoes were thrown and one of these hit Mr. Patenaude.

In Hochelaga there was another scene where five policemen had difficulty in keeping order in a crowd which prevented the Conservative candidate, J. T. U. Simard, from speaking.

LARGE CROWD ATTEND OPENING OF EXHIBITION

Packed Grandstand Thrills to Performance of Aerials Artists.

TWO BAND CONCERTS

Lampham's Red Hussars Delights Audience With Vocal and Instrumental Solos.

Crowds thronged the Exhibition grounds last night for the opening of this year's fair, and despite the non-arrival of midway company, found plenty to interest them. The independent concessionaires, local and transient, were on hand with their stalls filled with good things to eat or with articles that might be won by skill or luck. Most of the exhibits were in place, with attendants on hand.

A large portion of the crowd assembled in the grand stand for the vaudeville performance. Although the "Funny Ford" failed to arrive on time and the "Sig Franz" bicyclists rushed from the station to the grounds to put on their act, there was a good programme given.

Lampham's Red Hussars proved to be a musical organization of great worth. Their concert selections showed good training and hard practice and their accompaniments for the acrobats and others added to the enjoyment of these numbers. Bandmaster Clayton Lampham displayed mastery of the cornet in a solo and the encore which was demanded.

Miss Elizabeth Roderick, the girl with the golden voice, sang one solo, but found the weather too cold for her to respond to an encore. Her voice is of surprising sweetness when it is considered that she sings out of doors accompanied by a band of some 12 pieces and is heard to advanage under these conditions.

The Santiago Trio, two gentlemen and a lady, displayed feats of balancing and contortionist work. The lady's principal part was when she held up the two men in some apparently awkward positions, and in a tambourine number. One of the men did some good balancing on his partner's hands, and on pillars, all the while twisting himself into many strange shapes. He was able to bend backward and kick his hat, and then faced the spectators while bent completely around so as to look out between his knees.

The Lakefield Giants, handbalancers, might almost have been a take-off on the prancing act Made up with their legs through the sleeves of large shirts and their hands supporting large legs, they were giant caricatures of the contortionist with the Santiago Trio, when he stood on his hands with his back very much arched.

The Flying Floyds, aerial artists, were possibly the best on the programme. The lady of the party swung continually from one trapeze, holding on with her hands, knees or feet, while she caught one or other of the men as he dropped from the other trapeze. A transfer act, one man swinging from the trapeze to her hands, while his fellow moved the other way, was good, as was the double flip turned by one of the men during the journey from his trapeze to a grip on the lady's hands.

A young lady jazz dancer displayed some of the latest steps, and put in some that will never become favorites on a ball room floor, such as handsprings and high kicks. Skilful and graceful, she was well received.

Three men and a lady riding bicycles of all descriptions, formed the Sig Franz troup, which concluded the programme. The lady did most of the fancy riding, moving round to all parts of the wheel while in motion. The three men provided the comic relief, using bicyces with eccentric wheels, one with a bed mounted on it, one with the pedals where the saddle ought to be, and various other strange contraptions The act concluded with all four piled on one bicycle.

The fireworks display came up to the usual standard, with all the old favorites, such as rockets, aerial bombs, Roman candles, and colored pictures, and a couple of new ones. There was a rocket which started off as if fired wrongly, taking a horizontal course, but it turned around two or three times, dashing back and forth across the field. Six lights in a row changed color gradually, and were at times a dazzling white, and at others different beautiful colors, but they did not seem as interesting as the moving pieces.

At the conclusion of the programme the Kilties came over to the Grand Stand, and paraded up and down the track.

France Heads Cry in Desire For Peace Among Nations.

ADOPT RESOLUTION.

Delegates Not Reconciled With Attitude Because of Technical Difficulties.

GENEVA, Sept. 14 (Canadian Press).—The outstanding event in Geneva yesterday was France's recommendation, voiced by M. Paul Boncour that a general conference on disarmament should be convoked at the earliest possible date.

Quickly following France's decision, pronounced at Paris the very day Germany became a member of the League of Nations, whereby the French army would be reduced by 2,700 officers and steps would be taken to establish a 12 months' instead of 18 months' military service for French youth, M. Paul Boncour's action yesterday furnished evidence to many of the delegates that France sincerely desires to reach a disarmament agreement.

Many of the delegates, however, find it difficult to reconcile this general political attitude of France with the technical difficulties which have arisen repeatedly in the military sub-commission which is making technical study of military, naval and air problems in preparation for a general disarmament conference. Nevertheless, M. Paul Boncour's stand has created optimism that technical discord can be removed when the full preparatory commission meets and treats the thorny points more from a political standpoint.

A modified resolution was adopted by the League Assembly's disarmament commission yesterday; it emphasizes the necessity of concluding as soon as possible a convention on the private manufacture of arms. It approves making this problem an integral part of the general disarmament conference, provided this conference can convene before next September, but insists that, should the general conference not materialize within the period of one years, private manufacture of arms should be treated by special conferences.

The conversations between M. Briand, the French Foreign Minister, and Dr. Stresemann, representing Germany, continue with almost frantic endeavors of the representatives of both French and German delegations to prevent the public from getting an exaggerated impression of their importance. Both statesmen are moving cautiously, realizing the stupendous nature of their task.

Premier Poincare has heartily approved M. Briand's speech in the assembly welcoming Germany, and, it is understood, is earnestly backing M. Briand in his effortss to develop a Franco-German rapprochement.

DEBT PAYMENT IS ANNOUNCED

Hon. R. B. Bennett Says Loan Due Oct. 1 Can Be Paid.

RIGID ECONOMY.

OSHAWA, Sept. 14. — (Canadian Press.) — Premier Meighen's last evening of the campaign closed strenuously. There was a large meeting in Cobourg, a thirty-mile automobile drive and another meeting at Oshawa, with a smaller one at Port Hope on the way.

Mr. Meighen read a telegram from the Hon. R. B. Bennett, Minister of Finance, stating that on Oct. 1st the Dominion would pay off the whole outstanding loan of $35,000,000 then due. This, the telegram stated, would relieve the taxpayers of an annual charge of $1,400,000.

"This has been accomplished," said Mr. Bennett in the telegram, "by the practice of most rigid economy in public expenditures during the last three months and the enforcing of the customs and excise laws, although the income tax collections have been $6,000,000 less than last year."

Registrars, D.R.O.'s and Others All Play Important Part.

Most people, when an election is announced, simply take matters for granted. They give very little, if any, thought to the machine-like organization that cares for the thousands of details that must necessarily be taken care of before the vote is actually taken. The average voter on election day simply walks into a polling booth, gives his name to the deputy returning officer, marks his "X" against the name of his candidate, gives his ballot to the officer, and then walks out, feeling that he at least has done his duty. As far as he is concerned the matter ends right there. Therefore, a few facts in connection with the duties of a returning officer may be considered interesting.

A Dominion election is commenced by a writ issued by His Majesty the King and directing a returning officer therein named to hold the nominations and the poll on specified days.

Immediately upon receipt of the writ the returning officer publishes a proclamation, giving the electors notice that the election will be held. He then makes the necessary arrangements for the preparation of lists of voters, which are always prepared a-fresh for each election, unless the writ has been issued to fill a vacancy and there has been a Dominion election held in the electoral district within the preceding two years.

The lists of voters are prepared in one or two different ways according to whether the polling divisions to which they relate are urban or rural.

For groups of urban polling divisions the returning officer appoints registrars before whom voters must appear in person and establish their qualifications as voters.

At the conclusion of their sittings for registration, which continue during six week days, urban registrars post three copies of the lists of voters they have made up, one copy being posted in the City Hall and the other two in the polling division to which the list relates. With each copy is posted a notice of the sittings for the revision of the lists.

These sittings are held by the district or county judge. Any qualified voter whose name has not been included in the registrar's list may appear before the revising officer and apply to have his name added.

For each rural polling division the returning officer appoints a rural registrar by whom the preliminary list is prepared from such information as he can obtain. Fifteen days before polling day he, like the urban registrar, posts in his polling division two copies of his preliminary list, posting also with each a notice of a place at which he will be found on the four or five afternoons following. Applications to correct or add to the preliminary list are made to the rural registrar himself, and he himself makes such corrections as he is satisfied on oath are required to perfect the list as he posted it up. The non-inclusion of the name of a qualified voter in the list for a rural polling division does not, however, deprive the voter of his franchise. He may exercise it upon taking, at the poll, the prescribed oath, and being at the same time vouched for on oath by another resident of the polling division in which he himself resides, and in which alone his vote can be cast.

Nominations of candidates are made in writing by any ten electors. With each nomination there is required a deposit of $200, which is retained only if the candidate fails at the poll to receive half as many votes as a candidate elected.

Polling stations are established in each polling division, and for each the returning officer appoints a deputy, who selects his own poll clerk. The ballots cast at each polling station are counted thereat, and the ballots and other documents, with a statement of the result at that polling station, are transmitted to the returning officer, who on a later day, of which he has given notice in the proclamation, brings together and totals the figures returned by each deputy returning officer.

The returning officer retains the papers for the next six days, during which a recount may be demanded from the county or district judge.

COBOURG SPEECH ENDS MEIGHEN'S CAMPAIGN TOUR

PROTECTIVE POLICY.

The interior of the building was transformed for the occasion—flowers, flags, and bunting decorating the platform, the steps leading to the raised dais where the Prime Minister stood being covered with crimson carpet. A big streamer at the rear of the platform read, "Coburg Welcomes the Prime Minister of the Dominion'; while on either side of the building the mottoes were, "King Can't Win; Vote for Meighen and Maybee; Let Canada Prosper", and "Cobourg Wants Meighen and Maybee."

Exact truth, with fair argument and debate would mark his message, Mr. Meighen gave assurance. "I like to see men from the farm come to Parliament; other things being equal, an agricultural constituency is best represented by an agricultural man," said the Conservative leader, speaking in support of Mr. Maybee. "Who did his duty at Ottawa quietly, industriously, and carefully."

To again deny an unscrupulous canard broadcasted throughout Canada was the next thing the speaker said he felt obliged to mention, referring to stories printed in certain newspapers stating that the Conservative party would sell out the Canadian National Railways. "I don't know anything that the mind of mendacity could produce with a view to keeping the people from thinking of the record of the King Government quite equal to this. It is a deliberate, groundless, malignant falsehood."

The Liberals had opposed the formation of the National System persistently, "and at least thirty Liberals secured their election in the Province of Quebec by declaring they would get rid of it. And yet their leader goes about the country speaking as though he alone was the savior of the situation."

Misrepresentation of the Conservative position in regard to Old Age Pensions was alleged by Mr. Meighen, adding the information that this provision was always formerly in the hands of the provinces. "To keep the responsibility on the provinces and enable the Dominion to help," is the ideal the Premier declared now in view.

The cry, "A Tory Senate Blocked the Bill" has been raised by the Liberal leader, the speaker said, but declared the real reason to be because eight of the nine provinces refused to accept it—the Premier designating the bill as a "transparent farce." "We propose to do the sensible thing and it will be no farce. We'll call a conferences of the provinces without delay and as soon as we get an agreement we'll put an Old Age Pensions Act on the statute books."

Take 2 Cobourg Speech

Taht the Conservative party stands definitely pledged to a protective policy as embodied in a resolution which the present Prime Minister had moved in the House of Commons on June 2, 1925, was declared by the speaker, who went on to say that his party declares for an immediate revision of the tariff, in a relation to the industrial and farming interests. "The first act on our tariff programme will be to raise Canadian duties as high as other countries, and particularly the United States, have raised theirs against us. We'll keep the Canadian farm and industrial products just as securely as the American market is kept for the American farmer, and manufacturers." (Applause).

That the Liberal party never was in favor of the free admission of foodstuffs, cement, felt, and other articles mentioned, was the speaker's contention, but had made a pretence of this in order to deceive the three Progressive provinces of the west, the object being to gain votes. "Tariff by bargain," and "Government by barter" was charged against the late administration, "because Mr. King must have the Progressives' votes to carry on his government." A dismal picture of the effect of this bargaining on Canadian industry was painted, the basic steel industry of Nova Scotia, "wallowing in the mire of liqudation," being a specific instance.

"Suppose that by any miracle Mr. King is called back, and hangs on to power, what will he depend upon for his narrow margin? He'll have a few Liberals from the three Western provinces; next the Liberal-Progressives; next the U.F.A.; and next the Progressive-Liberals. I don't know why I named so many because they're all alike, but the same bartering and bargaining, and tariff tinkering will go each year, and you will have the same price, for every one of them is running on the policy of free trade and is pledged to vote down, down, down with the tariff policy of our country."

"The Mackenzie King party (for the best Liberals in Canada have left it)," was the way the Prime Minister referred to the late administration, as he went on to reply to the circulation of a canard or roorbach circulated in the last few days which contends that Hon. Mr. Bennett is opposed to the completion of the Hudson's Bay Railway, and which the speaker branded as wholly false. In dealing with the story purporting to prove that Honorable H. H. Stevens had resigned in his constituency, and had been read out of his party, because of his connection with the Canadian-United States Oil and Refining Company, and certain correspondence resulting therefrom for which he had used the House of Commons note-paper and his own personal frank for mailing, the Premier said suit had been instituted for libel against a leading Toronto daily and action is being taken accordingly. A telegram recently received was read: "Absolutely no foundation for the story. Stevens will win by a big majority," and the audience showed its delight by prolonged applause.

"What's needed now more than constitutional law is constitutional common-sense," averred Mr. Meighen as he told the story of his own formation of a government after becoming Prime Minister, and dealt scathingly with the criticism of Hon. Mackenzie King on his course of action.

"Wouldn't you rather have a government of ministers that weren't sworn in but did their duty, than ministers that were sworn to do their duty and didn't do it?" and the audience laughed its approval.

The Customs' probe was dealt with at some length by Mr. Meighen, who said, "Don't imagine that you do not suffer as the result of the millions lost to the national treasury through this scandal. The war taxes will have to be continued for years longer because these millions are in the pockets of thieves."

The dissolution asked for by Mr. King and refused as a result of the investigation led the Prime Minister to relate how he had met the Liberal leader and urged that they two should get together and confer on some way of conserving the legislation of the session. But his overtures had been scorned. "What Mr. King wanted was to produce a condition of chaos for his successor," was the summing up of the speaker.

A strong appeal for support of the Conservative policy of protection, and of stable government, filled the final sentences.

The Premier was accorded a tremendous ovation when he arrived at the rink, and again, as his address was concluded, rousing cheers and repeated cries, "Vote for Meighen," testifying to the popularity of the guest of honor by his numerous admirers.

Brief addresses were also given by Honorable James Wood, the candidate, Mr. Maybee, Colonel Ponton and Mr. Norman, ex-M.P.

Colonel Boggs, K.C., of Cobourg, was chairman, and two bands, the Kilties and the Salvation Army Band, led the procession from the station to the place of meeting.

CAVAN PEOPLE HEAR F. BOWEN

Conservative Candidate in Durham Addresses Good Gathering.

FARM VIEWPOINT.

CAVAN, Sept. 14.—A well attended meeting of the Conservative party was held at Cavan Hall on Friday with James Paul presiding. The first speaker was A. J. Fallis, M.P.P. for Durham. He dealt with the tariff question and explained how the Conservative standard would benefit the farmers. He pointed out that the farmer must pay 12 cents a bushel to send wheat to United States and United States had only to pay 3 cents a bushel to send similar wheat back into Canada.

Controller Cameron, of Toronto, gave an address along the same lines as that of that of Hon. Hugh Guthrie in Peterboro. He was followed by F. W. Bowen, Conservative candidate in Durham, who explained why he voted against the Robb Budget, which, he said, was only benefitting the larger concerns such as Eaton's who were handling a lot of mail. He also told how Mackenzie King opposed every move of the Conservatives after dissolution. Major J. P. B. Belford, M.P. for Northumberland, dealt with the Customs Probe and told his audience of police being ordered away from certain parts of the border, giving the smugglers a chance to operate. He spoke also about trucks taking liquor over to United States and returning with pillows, goods that were not sanitary enough for the United States.

Major Belford also took exception to lowering of the sales tax, explaining that when Mackenzie King went into power it was three cents; he raised it to six cents; then lowered it to five cents; and now claims credit for the lowering of the sales tax.

CONSERVATIVES END CAMPAIGN

Meeting at Lakefield Last Night Addressed By Candidate.

STAND FIRM.

E. A. Peck held his last meeting of the present campaign in the Memorial Hall, Lakefield last night. He was assisted by Mrs H. T. Fallis, W. H. Boulton, W. H. Bradburn and Colonel A. W. Gray of Leeds county.

Dr. J. R. Fraser of Lakefield acted as chairman for the occasion. Prior to the meeting the Lakefield Citizens' Band rendered several selections. During the evening little Cora Charlton presented a beautiful bouquet to Mrs. Fallis.

E. A. Peck.

In a brief speech the Conservative outlined some of the issues that were at stake. During the last election the issue was that of protection for labor. He declared that he stood as strongly on that issue as ever. Canada, he said, was exporting enormous quantities of unmanufactured material which if manufactured here would have resulted in employment for the labor men of the country. He outlined at some length the Customs investigation stating that the committee for that purpose had brought in a finding that Mackenzie King and his government had known of the conditions that existed for a considerable time before they acted.

Mrs. Fallis.

Mrs. Fallis outlined the issues before the electors in a forceful manner declaring that "the King government are asking the people to send them back when their own supporters turned them down." Canada, she said, would pass judgment tomorrow as to whether they would let a government get away with corruption. The constitutional issues she disposed of in a few words claiming that all there was to it was "that Meighen was given a chance to appeal to the country and Mackenzie was not." Taking the tariff from the standpoint of the farmer the speaker stated that the farmer had to depend upon his particular home market. Meighen had promised that he would raise the tariff on farm produce brick for brick with the United States. In concluding the speaker declared "If you vote as your conscience dictates Mr. Peck will have a bigger majority than ever."

Quoting from The Globe editorials Mr. Boulton in a vigorous speech prophesied a sweeping victory for the Conservative party. The constitutional issue he decribed as so much political bunkum. Referring to stable government the speaker stated that next to France Canada suffered more than any other country as a result of the war and naturally her business suffered. I maintained the British system of politics it would be absolutely necessary for her to carry on under the group system. No legislation he said, could be brought during the last session of the House by Mackenzie King without his first appealing to the Progressives. He concluded by making a stirring appeal for support of Mr. Peck and the Rt. Honorable Arthur Meighen.

Colonel A. W. Gray.

The railways, the immigration policy and the tariff were the subjects dealt with by Colonel Gray. He claimed that a country to operate must, have money and the money had to be raised either by direct taxation or indirect taxation. The country, he said, had not had not had a real government during the last five years; it was only a combination.

"You are anxious to have a stable government—you can have it by voting for Mr. Peck and the Rt Honorable Arthur Meighen", the speaker said in conclusion.

Last Year's Record Vote

In the Federal election of last year the people of Peterborough city made a record vote, only 26 per cent. of them failing to register at the polls.

There were in 1925 a possible 13,495 votes in the city, and 9,996 ballots were cast, or 74.04 per cent. There are 13, 137 possible votes in the city this year. The campaigning has not been so heavy this year and it is possible the vote may be lighter, though both parties are rushing their efforts to get out all possible votes.

TUESDAY, SEPT. 14, 1926.

. . . VOICE OF THE LOWLY AND OPPRESSED . . . ADVOCATE OF THE FRIENDLESS . . . RIGHTER OF PUBLIC AND PRIVATE WRONGS.

WHY THE DIFFERENCE?

Voters have exercised the franchise in Peterboro today who have left their work and driven many miles in order to express their opinion on the issues by means of the ballot.

At the same time city voters living perhaps a block away from the polling booth have been too indifferent to discharge their duty as citizens.

The spirit that caused the former class to make sacrifices in order to have the privilege of voting is badly needed in this country.

There is something lacking in our citizenship when, in spite of the eager efforts of political organizations and the influence of the newspapers, at least twenty-five per cent. of the voters on the lists refuse to go to the trouble of visiting the polls.

HELPING AGRICULTURE.

The livestock judging competition at the Peterboro Industrial Exhibition, under the direction of the county representative and in co-operation with the different livestock committees of the Fair Board, is an example of the value of the Exhibition to the farming community.

There is the danger that fairs as they expand will stress the amusement end of the programme at the expense of the agricultural features.

This has not been the case with the Peterboro Exhibition.

While the entertainment features have been steadily enlarged, the other departments have kept pace with this expansion, and the result is an all-round excellence.

The stock judging competition will be a feature of tomorrow's programme, and should provide a keen contest and much interest among the hundreds of farmers from all parts of the district who are expected.

THE EXHIBITION.

With the election out of the way today, the people of Peterboro and this district are free to give their attention to the Peterboro Industrial Exhibition, and the indications are that the attendance during the next four days, granted favourable weather, will reach a new level.

The Exhibition deserves a record patronage, inasmuch as the directors have not been satisfied with standing still, but have each year expanded the programme and built up every department.

There is something for everybody, a splendid showing in all branches, a grandstand performance better than ever, the biggest midway yet, good horse races, fine music, special exhibits of all kinds.

This should be a gala week for Peterboro, and for the next four days the Exhibition Grounds will be the mecca of people from all over the district.

There is no doubt that Mayor Holloway's appeal on behalf of the Exhibition will be splendidly answered by local citizens, while the people of the countryside can be counted on to give just as enthusiastic support.

NEW HOPE FOR BRITAIN.

Sir Philip Henry Kerr, wartime Secretary to former Prime Minister Lloyd George, now on his way to Canada, is one of those who see a silver lining to the industrial cloud which has been hanging over Britain since the war. He sees hope for better times in the change taking place in the relations between labor and capital. There has been a notable awakening on both sides, due to observations in "non-unionized and capitalist-ridden America," where high wages and low costs go hand in hand. Employers are beginning to realize that old-fashioned methods are no longer good enough, and that employees are not satisfied with a wage standard which carries no promise of improvement in living conditions. "The number of British industrialists who are now visiting the United States to study American methods is proof," he states in an interview, "that capital as a whole is beginning to reform its ways."

The most remarkable change in point of view, however, is that shown by trade union leaders, who are also studying methods in America "instead of making pilgrimages to Russia, the land where the proletariat can dictate, but where his wages are the lowest in the world." Since the war the British Labor movement has been dominated by the Socialist philosophy, which has also made considerable headway in Canada. The aim has been to eliminate the private capitalist, and out of this have grown many of the difficulties which have beset industry. The workers have resented improvements, have imposed all sorts of trade union restrictions, limiting output, and hampering progress in general. Sir Philip says, however, that the Labor party under Mr. Ramsay MacDonald "has discovered that the Socialist panacea of the nationalization of means of production, distribution and exchange was hopelessly impractical." Upon the fall of the political section the industrial section took charge of the program by making "direct action" attacks on capital, the culmination being the general strike.

This is what British industry has been through. It has been the victim of the methods of impractical visionaries who imagined that they could benefit by killing the goose that lad the golden egg. A feeling has developed in recent months that this is all wrong, that labor and capital have a common interest in making industry prosperous, and the missions of their leaders to this continent are opening the way to a new era. If the spirit of co-operation can be developed there is no doubt that British industry will speedily recover, and that both employers and employees will enter upon a new age of prosperity.—The Globe.

KEEPING YOUNG.

Do you remember Lizzie, grandmother of the present-day flapper? Your grandparents thought she was pretty fast for her day and generation, and her goings and doings heralded the going to the dogs of the coming generation. When Lizzie showed an ankle to the Main street audience strong men with strong breaths ducked through swinging doors to report her passing. The spinster ladies of the sewing circle gave one horrified look and swept the dust from the post-office steps as they hurried home to report. Horses reared back from the hitching posts around the court-house and life in general was electrified with her presence and passing. There was nothing wrong with Lizzie any more than there is anything seriously wrong with her grandaughter Betty, who wears silk hose, dances the Charleston and refuses to get as excited about the future life as she does about the present one. Times change and the world keeps moving ahead. The progressives of yesterday are the standpats of today. Youth is the priceless heritage of town, city or nation. Let a community or nation lose its youth and it begins to decay.

* * * * *

The viewpoint of youth is the fresh viewpoint that discovers and builds something new. The town band, baseball team, lawn festival—these are all expressions of youth, hope and ambition. They mark the youthful effort to express progress in a community. Progress marked by paving, lighting, better water supplies, better school and municipal buildings, all help to lift a community with its youth and preserve it for service to its people. And in this connection let me suggest that age has nothing to do with the youthful spirit that accomplishes all these things. I have known men and women far past the half century mark in years who were as full of the spirit of youth as were their grandchildren. Whatever the years may do with our bodies, let us strive to keep ourselves youthful in mind. We don't want to be passed up as standpatters, nor will it be pleasant for us to be classed among the dead ones before the time comes for us to be properly buried. If you are really anxious to preserve your youthful spirit, fraternize as much as possible with the young. No matter how old you may be in years, keep in touch with the children, with the young men and young women and study their viewpoint of life sympathetically.—Alberta Farmer.

EXPENSIVE AND UNSATISFACTORY.

The Toronto Globe quotes Hon. E. B. Ryckman as saying that it costs the country $15 a minute when a member of the House of Commons is speaking. Mr. Ryckman admits that he kept silent because he did not think his speeches were worth the money.

The art of speaking and being able to address an audience in understandable language should not be denied. It seems to The Star that this is a qualification every member should possess or endeavor to acquire.

But few speeches are worth $15 a minute, and The Border Cities Star entirely agrees with The Globe that a businesslike Parliament ought to be able to make a substantial reduction in this expense. It is not so difficult after all. First elect business men who believe in deeds rather than words. Limit speeches by all members except party leaders or Cabinet Ministers to half an hour—at most. Reduce the size of House of Commons membership at least 50 per cent.

Canada is paying too much, far too much, for government, and getting, in return for her money, a mixture that is about 90 per cent. politics and 10 per cent. sound business practice. Precious hours, days, weeks and months are wasted in useless political argument at Ottawa. Indeed it seems if the present parliamentary system is to continue, Canada should adopt a practice long in vogue in the United States. Congressmen who have a long-winded message to deliver and are anxious for their constituents to see that they are "doing something" at Washington, simply secure permission to "spread" the address on the pages of the Congressional Record—corresponding to our own Hansard. This satisfies the Congressman, pleases the folks back home and saves a great deal of time in the House of Representatives. The printing bill is high, of course, but a lot of time is saved. Over here the members have to actually deliver the speech in order to have it appear in Hansard, which means that we have the printing expense anyhow, plus the $15 per minute that Mr. Ryckman says it costs whenever an oration—no matter how vapid—is delivered.

Far better than this plan, however, is The Star's frequently offered suggestion that Parliament take steps to reduce its size and improve the quality of its membership. Speeches would then look after themselves because a great many speechifying second-raters would be eliminated. Parliamentary honors, thus limited, would be more attractive, and it is therefore reasonable to suppose that a higher type of men would be obtainable than is often the case. At the present time we have 245 members of the House of Commons and 96 Senators. The efficiency and value of the lower chamber could be materially increased—and expenses greatly reduced—by cutting the roster to 100. In the same way the Senate should be reduced to 30 or, at the most, 40 members. With only nine millions of population in the whole of Canada, this would be ample representation. We have only to look around our own district to appreciate the truth of this. What reasonable excuse is there for Essex County having three members at Ottawa? One would be ample. Kent and Elgin could share one representative between the two, and so on throughout the country. At present members are fairly falling over themselves at Ottawa and the business of the nation is being retarded in consequence. Most Parliaments and other public bodies, it is generally known, are overmanned, but it has been pointed out that if the American Congress had the same unit of population in use in Canada, Washington would be hardly large enough to hold the crowd.

Some day, The Border Cities Star hopes, a Canadian statesman will have the energy, the courage and the ability to tackle this question and do something about it. The facts must be apparent to all, but no one, to date, has felt like taking it up. The man who does so and who carries a sound scheme of parliamentary reform through to a successful conclusion, will have done a big thing for his country.—Border Cities Star.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Well, in a few hours you'll know all about it.

This was one day in which almost every Canadian had an opportunity to ride in an automobile.

The only people who lost their vote today were the ones who did not use their franchise.

Judging from the number of claims made by both parties that they are sweeping the country today, Canada should be fairly clean tomorrow.

Let us hope anyway that the verdict is decisive. Another Federal election next year—with a Provincial contest in between—would be much too much.

Winners and losers will all be at the Peterboro Exhibition tomorrow. It is a great place to celebrate or forget your sorrows as the case may be.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK.

TORONTO, Sept. 14.—Trade opened slow, with a heavy run of cattle offering. Large supplies of western cattle are now coming in, many of them direct to the packing plants. Among the Ontario finished steers and heifers were a fair proportion of choice quality heavy export steers. Export buyers have orders this week for 700 to 800 cattle. Purchases of exporters up to noon today were about 300 cattle, including one or two loads of good stockers. Export prices average about 15c lower on the heavy steers than a week ago today. Heavy steers, $7.25 to $7.75, with a couple of loads at $8. The store cattle cost $7.

Butcher cattle trade opened slowly, with prices about steady with last week's closing for choice butcher quality steers and heifers. Western offerings include many killers, but few of choice quality. The choicest butcher steers were going from $6.50 to $7.

Fat cows are a little easier at from $4.50 to $5.25.

Calves, steady, $12 to $13.

Lambs easier, with a heavy run, at $12.75 tops.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Sept. 14 (Canadian Press).—Owing to the limited demand from English importers for Canadian grain, the export trade on the Montreal market yesterday was quiet. Only sales of odd loads of wheat and barley were made. There was some demand from New York exporters for No. 3 Northern wheat here and a sale of 40,000 bushels was made at 9 cents per bushel over the Winnipeg October option and one load of No. 2 Northern was sold for local account at 15 1-2c per bushel over the same option, c.i.f. Montreal.

The trade in car lots was rather slow and the tone of the market for oats was easier at a decline of 1-2c per bushel for Canadian Western grades.

Prices for Spring and Winter wheat grades of flour were firmly maintained under a steady demand.

A good trade was done in all lines of millfeed and prices ruled steady. The tone of the market for standard grades of rolled oats was firm with a better demand.

A fairly active business was transacted in all grades of eggs and the undertone to the market was firm. The receipts were 2,235 cases.

The feature of the butter trade was the stronger feeling that developed and prices were advanced 1-2c to 1c per pound. The strength was attributed to the better demand. The receipts were 954 packages.

A stronger feeling also developed in the cheese situation and prices for Western grades were advanced 1 1-8c to 1 1-4c per pound at 17 1-8c to 17 1-4c per pound, and Eastern grades were marked up 1-2c to 3-4c per pound at 16 1-4c per pound. This was attributed to the improvement in the demand from foreign buyers. The receipts were 6,909 boxes.

Th market for beans was quiet and prices were unchanged with car lots of choice white hand-picked quoted at $2.25 per bushel and smaller quantities at $2.35 to $2.45 per bushel.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Sept. 14 (Canadian Press).—Grain values averaged lower yesterday. Buying power remained slack during the greater part of the trading and the close was weak with wheat down 1-2 to 1 5-8; corn unchanged to 5-8 lower; oats unchanged to 1-8 off, and provisions at the same at Saturday's finish to 22 1-2 cents decline.

Improved weather in the Canadian Northwest and failure of Liverpool to respond fully to the advance here on Saturday brought about initial weakness and induced some scattering buying. The market continued to ease off under profit-taking sales, but buying against bids later served to check the declines.

Export business was slow with practically no seaboard sales of consequence. Higher freight rates again was said to be hampering export business. Clearances were quite liberal, however, with 1,095,000 bushels total. Visible stocks of wheat increased 3,422,000 bushels, and local stocks of wheat gained 458,000 for the week.

The market as a whole reflected the big short covering of last Saturday.

A desire on the part of the longs to take profits and restricted buying lower gave corn an easier tone. There was free selling on the hard spots. Crop reports were a bit more optimistic in character, although prospects are for unsettled weather which is not desirable at this stage of crop development.

Oats, while higher in the early trading, dipped later, largely on profit taking sales prompted by the setback in wheat.

Provisions were easier despite an advance in hog values.

Lyrics Of Life

(By Douglas Malloch.)

A HEART IS SUCH A FRAGILE THING

A heart is such a fragile thing!—
We are so gentle with a bowl
Fashioned of glass, and yet we fling
Stones at a soul.

I know no crystal ever heard
A thought unkind, and fell apart;
But there are moments when a word
Will break a heart.

Oh, I would have you be as kind
To mortals as you are to glass:
An angry thought may fret the mind,
But let it pass.

Great souls great hurts have always met
With silence and uplifted head;
For few the words that men regret

They who have suffered from life's sting
In suffering this need should find:
A heart is such a fragile thing,
Let us be kind.

FURFURAL

By Dr. Frank Crane.

Keep your eye on furfural.

It is a liquid of which we do not yet know all of the possibilities. We know that it can be distilled from corncobs and other waste substance and is a very peculiar thing.

For one thing it is deadly to insects and in this direction may have a use.

It can run an automobile, but it is hardly adapted to the present type of internal combustion engine and besides it costs too much. They are continually reducing the price of manufactured articles, however, and something may come of it in this direction. At least there are plenty of corncobs.

By combination with other substances it produces the hard substance known as bakelite and may be found to produce other things. There are a great many prospects in the chemist's laboratory which have not yet been found to be paying inventions. Yet most of the discoveries in physics which now serve a useful purpose were once idle experiments.

We owe much to the fumbling experiments of scientists who are merely pursuing idle dreams. There is no telling when one of these dreams may turn into reality.

The combinations of the various elements are infinite and their products stagger the imagination. Some day or other the gasoline will give out and we must either give up our automobiles or look to the chemist for his substitute for gasoline. There is already a wide demand for his products and there is little doubt that this demand will be supplied, though we cannot tell how.

In the meanwhile it will pay you to keep your eye on furfural, for there is no telling to what purposes it may be applied.

People once thought that coal tar was only waste matter, but from this waste matter the chemists now produce the bulk of our dyes and perfumes.

Sooner or later the practical man must go back to the tousle-haired scientist. He is the voice of one crying in the wilderness. The John the Baptist of humanity—to him we ultimately turn in all crises.

Even in the late war it was the chemist who was called in on a pinch, although we asked him only how to kill men the most quickly and efficaciously. He may also be found to be of quite as much service in saving men and meeting their needs as in destroying them.

FADS OF THE FAMOUS

SECRETARY DAVIS.

Dwight F. Davis is a tennis fan first, and secretary of war second—at least chronologically speaking.

For Davis is relatively new at the business of running the government's land defense department, but long before tennis hit the sport pages as a recognized national game he was fathering the sport.

It is a case of a man being more widely known for his hobby than for his job despite his real success in the latter. Probably not one person in ten on the street in the average city could tell you the name of the secretary of war. But most of them class as "big news" the international tennis matches for the Davis cup, of which he is the donor.

Davis is more than a fan; he is a player. He tells the story of playing during the war. As he went to the net he was disappointed to find one of his opponents a girl, probably a novice at the game. With the return of the first ball, however, he decided she was better than he. As her second return whizzed by him, Davis gasped to his partner:

"Who is she?"

"Suzanne Lenglen," was the reply.

WISE AND OTHERWISE

Perhaps a stenographer who tried to swim the English channel quit because someone told her it was five o'clock.

Spain has had no rain for 53 days. Perhaps a few well-planned picnics would bring about a little shower.

Only a few more weeks now until you can start making faces at the ice man.

The rising generation is a speedy one. A San Francisco baby only two weeks old is cutting teeth.

The bathing suit season will be over before long now but they wear evening gowns all winter.

Boys eventually turn out to be men while men eventually turn out to be nothing but boys.

About all college does for some farmer boys is educate them so they can't tell when it's going to rain.

Some write long letters home about the fun they are having while those having the fun have no time to write.

The only real menace to civilization is civilization.

Wonder why it is a bill collector never seems to break his leg?

Nothing seems to matter much before breakfast.

Believe it or not, ants don't carry picks and shovels.

[illegible]EST TERRITORIES HOLDS RICHES IN RESERVE FOR FUTURE GENERATIONS

Immediate Development of Vast Empire Neither Probable Nor Necessary.

PLANT GROWTH.

But Season Is Only Ten Weeks—Future Lies in Minerals and Oil.

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 14.—(By Canadian Press).—The part to be played by Canada's great northland in the future expansion of the country has not hitherto been realized by Canadians, and even now there are only a few who thoroughly appreciate the great possibilities that lie in that region of mountains, lakes, majestic rivers, forests and plains which is expressed in the one geographical term: "The North West Territories." This is the opinion of D. A. Patterson, a man who has spent many years of his life voyaging up and down the MacKenzie River and to whom the names Fort Resolution, the Great Slave Lake, Aklavik—romantic to the ears of those gregarious Canadians clustered about the cities—are familiar punctuations of space and mean much more than Winnipeg, Montreal or Vancouver.

Mr. Patterson has returned to the civilization of street cars, automobiles, movie theatres, fox-trots and newspapers. The North had been friendly to him; his enterprises had prospered and he had bade a reluctant farewell to it. In two weeks, however, he decided that he had said only "au revoir" for he is going back.

"What are the North West Territories like?" The question was natural, and Mr. Patterson was invited to tell his fellow-Canadians just what was to be found up there.

Farming? It is a bit cold for farming; the season is brief, but it is certain that sufficient can be grown to take care of one's needs provided that the matter is approached judiciously. As a compensation for the shortness of the summer, the days are long and vegetation grows about twice as rapidly as in the more southerly latitudes. He instanced the result of some of his own observations. He had measured the growth in 24 hours of a weed that spreads widely along the banks of the Great Slave Lake and noted that in that period it had shot out 5 1-2 inches. As in any other part of the country there was good soil in places, but for the most part the ground was rocky and the further north one proceeded the more rocky it became. He was doubtful that farming would ever develop as an industry in the north-west.

Wealth In Minerals And Oil.

The wealth of the Territories lay in minerals, in fur-bearing animals, to some extent in timber, and in oil. There was oil in the country. Mr. Patterson was emphatic in that respect. At the moment its exploitation was in the hands of the Imperial Oil Company who had extensive holdings at Norman on the MacKenzie River, but little would be done with it for several years to come. The difficulty of getting the oil out was the chief obstacle at present. He thought that eventually a pipe-line might be laid from Norman to the Pacific Coast and the company were believed to be contemplating something in this direction. They were in no particular hurry, however. They had the holdings; they had the oil, and they had the patience to wait until they had explored every avenue that might lead to the profitable development of the undertaking.

For the most part trading was confined to furs, and the Hudson Bay Company had a virtual monopoly of that business. Their agents operated all over the Territories, hardy and hearty men who had abandoned the superficial pleasures of the effete south and extracted their full measure of life's enjoyment from the hardships and privations of the north. What settlements there were in district were to be found only in the vicinity of the Hudson Bay posts—Indians, half-breeds who bore names with a distinctly Scottish ring to them (MacKenzies and Campbells) some Eskimos and a few whites. The whites directed the operations, bartering the products of their civilization for the furs that were brought to them.

Some prospecting for minerals had been engaged in, but not to any extent. Geological surveys had established that the country possessed distinctly marked areas where gold, silver, zinc, copper and lead would be found. But the lack of transportation, the necessity for those who would essay prospecting trips into the Territories to carry with them supplies enough for one, two or even perhaps three years, militated against any immediate development along these lines.

The forests were extensive between Waterways, the railway terminal on the Athabaska River, towards Lake Athabaska and Fort Smith, but the growth thinned out along the Slave River to Fort Resolution, where it empties itself into the Great Slave Lake. This immense area of water is over 500 feet above the sea level.

With regard to navigation on the lake and down the MacKenzie River, Mr. Patterson declared that the period of open water was of about 10 weeks duration, normally. Dominion Day usually saw the ice out of the Great Slave Lake, although he had seen it frozen over on July 4. From the beginning of July, however, until about the middle of September navigation was genrally possible, and in those 10 weeks enough business had to be done to last for the rest of the year.

Life In the Territories.

It was then that the long trips had to be taken to Aklavik, a little over 100 miles from the Arctic circle, and an Eskimo metropolis. The hazards of the MacKenzie River were undertaken in wood-burning steamers and the arrival of these from Resolution to Aklavik was a red-letter day in the lives not only of the aborigines but of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police and the few white traders who call Aklavik "home."

Mr. Patterson was dubious of too rigid an application of the white man's standard of civilization to the Eskimos. The natives were a simple, cheerful and fatalistc race. They had well-defined ideas with regard to the necessity of controlling their natural increase and their methods were drastic. They did away with any infants who might become a "public charge" and since their prejudices ran in the direction of regarding women as more or less superfluous, female infants were more liable to be killed than males. It was this situation which was the cause of most Eskimo murders, for a the male grew up mateless they coveted their neighbors' wives and the Tenth Commandment of the Mosaic Law simply did not exist to them.

The Dominion Government, who administer the Territories, were indulgent, tempering justice with mercy, and it was gradually being borne in the on the Eskimo that the system of murdering the newborn babes to the end that the poplation might be maintained at a point consistent with the resources of the country was not approved.

The North West Territories have not been and are not likely to be "thrown open" to general exploitation for many years to come. Only those capable of looking after themselves, prepared to undergo hardships, can "make good" there. Canada has land a-plenty awaiting development before the necessity of peopling the north west arrives, but when that time does come the vast empire of the north stands ready to receive them.

Boy and Sister Swim 3-Mile Race To Shore Bringing Rescue For Seven On Upset Boat

OCEAN CITY, N.J., Sept. 14. —(Associated Press).—A seventeen-year-old boy and his sixteen-year-old sister, both fully clothed, swam a three-mile race through the waves here yesterday to summon aid for their father and six other men, whose fishing boat had overturned. Lifeguards along the beach were startled when they saw the lad, Thorn Henderson, emerge from the ocean and stumble toward their patrol station.

"My father and six other men are clinging to an overturned boat about three miles out," yelled the boy. "Hurry."

Quickly launching three motor boats, the coastguards worked them out over the breakers, and headed for the open sea. Henderson went with them. A few hundred yards out they saw another swimmer approaching.

"That's my sister Edith," the boy told the guards. "We were all out fishing in a 40-foot boat when it hit a bar and capsized. We all managed to grab hold of the boat, but I knew we couldn't hold on forever, so I said I was going after help. Edith said she was going with me. She's a dandy swimmer and kept up with me almost all the way. Don't bother about her."

The guards were afraid the girl would be exhausted, and approached to take her in.

"Don't stop," she shouted. "I'm all right. Go out and get the rest of them," and with a wave of dismissal she swam on toward the beach.

When the guards reached the boat the yfound the seven men clinging to the upturned keel. William J. Henderson, father of Thorn and Edith, said none of them could have held on much longer. Other members of the party were Watson B. Ruey, Joseph Rudy, Watson B. Duty, Jr., Archie Hunter, Hansome Hogge and Watson Bowker. All live in Philadelphia.

THIEVES LOOT THEATRE OFFICE

Take $1,500 in Currency From Winnipeg Theatre and Adjoining Automobile Co.

JIMMIED WINDOW.

WINNIPEG, Man., Sept. 14. —(Canadian Press).—The offices of the Winnipeg Theatre, and an adjacent automobile accessory warehouse, on Adelaide Street, were entered early yesterday morning and robbers escaped with more than $1,500 in currency.

Using chisels or "jimmies" and heavy hammers, the robbers smashed the combinations of the safes, and escaped through a window through which they had made their entrance. At the theatre they obtained $1,500, but the warehouse safe yielded them only $60, the thieves having overlooked an envelope containing several hundred dollars.

It is the second robbery at the theatre within a year. Last year, the same safe was hauled from the theatre office to the outskirts of the city and there robbed of a small sum of money.

When the office staff reported for work Monday morning they discovered the robberies, and at the warehouse the robbers had left a "jimmie" on the floor.

City police obtained finger prints and yesterday afternoon were checking up on criminal characters.

CAR HAS NARROW ESCAPE FROM FIRE

Drops Lighted Cigarette Into Gasoline—Causes Spectacular Blaze at Welcome.

WELCOME, September 14. Canadian Press — A spectacular blaze in front of Mr Sid Armstrong's garage about 2 am., on Sunday morning, caused the residents of Welcome some excitementt.

A car from Toronto pulled up for gas. The owner while handling the nozzle, it is supposed, also held a lighted cigarette.

The result was that the gas in the tank of the car, which was situated at the back, took fire.

As the nozzle was dropped considerable gas was pumped on the ground and this also ignited.

The speedy use of a fire extinguisher put out the fire in the car, which was pushed down the grade to a place of safety.

Attention was then turned to the fire in front of the garage.

This was extinguished without any further damage

The clothing of the man owning the car was partially burned and his wife and children who were in the back seat of the car, had a bad shock.

Funeral Service.

The funeral of the late George Brooking of Wesleyville was held in Welcome cemetery on Friday afternoon. Rev. D. R. Clare officiated.

Mr. Brooking had been in poor health for about a year and six weeks ago he underwent an operation in the Port Hope hospital He died at his home on Wednesday night

Besides his wife and family, consisting of two sons and four daughters, his aged mother, and several brothers and sisters remain to mourn his loss.

Tin articles should never be arranged on the stove to dry, as this darkens them, and enough heat will melt them.

BURNBRAE NEWS

BURNBRAE, Sept. 14.—Will. Hume has sufficiently recovered from his recent operation to return home again.

Marshall Miller, who also suffered an operation, is improving steadily.

Harvest has been terribly delayed by the frequent showers and several farmers have a great deal of their crop still in the stook.

Threshing has been also delayed, although in some neighboring sections the harvesting is almost completed and threshing goes on at full speed. Farmers are busy getting their wheat in and are taking advantage of the rains to get a good deal of after-harvest plowing and cultivation done.

OWNERS DECLINE LABOR PROPOSAL

Will Not Consider Churchill's Proposed Conference For Strike Settlement.

LONDON, Sept. 14 (Canadian Press).—Evan Williams, on behalf of the Mine Owners' Association yesterday definitely closed the door on Winston Churchill's proposed conference of government, mine owners and mine workers for a negotiation of a settlement of the coal strike on a national basis. Mr. Williams, in his statement, declares that with one exception the 24 district assocations of mine owners emphatically declined to give the general association power to negotiate on such a basis.

The decision, he adds, arises from the deep conviction that "settlements on a national basis by linking the industry with politics inevitably would take consideration of purely industrial questions out of their proper economic sphere."

The next move lies with the government whose coal committee meets today under the presidency of Winston Churchill to consider the Williams letter. The matter will now probably become a struggle within the cabinet itself, as even supposing Mr. Churchill ready to adopt means of coercing the owners it is known that many of the ministers approve the mine owners' stand to allow the dispute to settle itself by attrition and exhaustion.

Premier Baldwin is expected to return to London this week and his influence probably will be thrown into the scale for conciliation.

There are now less than 60,000 miners working out of a normal force of more than a million and there is no sign that the strikers are ready to surrender.

MEETING A... FOR DR. L...

Major Belfort, M.P.P., Hon. J. R. Cooke, M.P.P. Are the Speakers.

MADOC, Sept. 14. — A meeting in the interests of the Conservative party and of the Conservative candidate, Dr. Embury of Bancroft, was held in the Masonic Hall last night with a capacity audience. Fred Curry, reeve of Madoc, was the chairman appointed.

The first speaker was Major Belford who opened his address with a few remarks on partyism "It is not necessary," he said, "to think the Conservative party has all the good qualities and the Liberal all the bad qualities ,or the Liberal all the good good qualities and the Conservatives all the bad ones; but every man should take an intelligent interest in the affairs of the country. We want to know that conditions are going to be stable. What Canada wants is a strong stable government.

"Mackenzie King made certain promises in 1921 and 1925 and was returned to Parliament, but did not keep his promises. He is making certain other promises to-day with no more chance of their being carried out. If you want stability in your government, then you will have to vote for Meighen, for Mackenzie King has proven that he is at the mercy of all the winds that blow," said Major Belford.

Major Belford spoke in praiseworthy terms of Mr. Marshall, the Liberal candidate, but he said, he was in very bad company just at present.

Major Belford discussed briefly the customs scandal and emphasized the fact that the officials knew what was going on, not only the paid officials at the border, but those in charge of affairs in Montreal, and those still higher up in the service, right up to Mackenzie King.

The Robb budget was next touched upon, and the pulpwood question, in which connection Major Belford said "We are selling our birthright."

In speaking of the automobile tariff he said the only man who could benefit by the Robb budget is the man who is buying a car for the first time. He pointed out that for every dollar taken off the price of an automobile some Canadian is paying, for the things that formerly went into the construction of a car and were taxed are now free from duty and some one must pay. The man who does not own a car must help to pay for them as well as the man who does. He next touched on the luxury tax removal.

Mr. Belford then discussed the tariff on farm produce and eggs in particular, saying it was a wonder the Canadian hens do not go on strike altogether. He spoke of industrial conditions and the closing down of factories. His personal opinion was that he would like to see walls as high as the tariff walls of the United States, but Mr. Meighen had promised adequate protection if not as high as Major Belford would desire himself.

Major Belford then spoke of the spirit of a nation. The thing that affects national life is higher than than which affects the purse, he said He extolled the old Liberal party but scored the Mackenzie King Liberals of today and such men as Woodsworth, the head of the Communist party in Canada, Heap and Bourassa.

If the Conservatives were elected, he said, they would carry on the investigation of the Customs scandal and clean it up. He spoke of the integrity, honor and honesty of Mr. Meighen, and said if elected he would give Canada a higher standard of political life. He concluded by appealing to the electors to be sure to vote, and to vote for Dr. Embury, not because he is Dr. Embury, but because he stands for those policies that make this country great.

At the close of Major Belford's address, the chairman announced that Dr. Embury was unavoidably detained and would be unable to be present at the meeting, much to the regret of all. After a seletcion by the orchestra, Hon. Robert Cook was called upon, and was greeted by the hearty applause that testifies to his popularity here. He gave a humorous but earnest and commanding address.

He paid high tribute to the Liberals of the old school, particularly Sir Wilfrid Laurier, and prophesied a cleavage in the Liberal ranks, one wing to remain loyal followers of the old school and loyal to the British Empire, and the other wing to be led by Mackenzie King, Woodsworth, Heaps and such men. If the people marked their ballots for King they would be marking them for the protection of bootleggers and smugglers, he said. In this riding the Liberal party had found it so difficult to find a candidate and had to peddle from door to door. He reiterated the Conservative belief in the need of a protective tariff, and urged his audience to vote in the way they believed to be in the best interests of the country to-day, and which he believed was shown by the policies of Mr. Meighen and the Conservative party.

Col. Mackay expressed pleas... at being again in Havelock, rec... ing that he had been one of t... speakers at a meeting here on O... 28th last and congratulated the e... ectors on the splendid account the... had given of themselves last yea... in giving Dr. Embury a substantia... majority in this district. Revele... tions at Ottawa of the tragic stat... of affairs was the great reason tha... everyone who did not vote Conserv... ative last time should do so this time. "This is a time when the very institutions of the country which have taken centuries to build may crumble and fall," he said. "The time has arrived when people demand integrity, honesty and sincerity in public life."

The speaker dwelt at some length on the customs scandal and ridiculed the methods used by the Customs Department in dealing with smuggling "What is the result," he asked, "of pouring the enormous amount of liquor and drugs in this country, debauching and damning the souls of young Canadians?"

"Canada is a land of great resources but what will it matter if these conditions continue. Time has arrived when there must be integrity in government. As you will have to appear," he said, "at the bar of judgment, I appeal to you to make an answerable conclusion to these appalling conditions."

The tariff question was next dealt with. Canada possesses 85 per cent. of the world's asbestos which is very much in demand, yet the material is being shiped out of the country keeping thousands of people employed in the United States. Col. Mackay strongly advocated the policy of the Right Hon. Arthur Meighen, which, he said, "will first revive and encourage confidence in our industries, second, develop the great resources of this country by our own people, third give an immigration policy with first of all employment for our own people, fourth clear up the customs debauchery with favor to none. This policy will protect the workers, the industries and place Canada on an equal footing with the United States. The question was never more clear. Let it not be said that anyone is more in line with politics than principles."

Mrs. Vankoughnet declared that everyone had a great responsibility to perform in voting in this election, for Canada is at stake. The great old Liberal party was not being assailed, Mackenzie King had lost the support of many outstanding Liberals of the old days, and when any reference was made to the Liberal party it meant Mackenzie King's party. In discussing the exodus of Canadians to the U. S.A. Mrs. Vankoughnet said, "The Conservative policy is for all the provinces of the Dominion to help upbuild our country and keep our people at home." In closing the speaker appealed to the electors to reflect credit to themselves and this mighty Dominion of Canada by forgetting party and voting for country and return Dr. Embury with flying colors.

Mrs. Vance made an appeal to the ladies to give Tuesday to the great work and to be ready when the cars came to take them to the polling booths. "This is the greatest election since Confederation," she said, 'and all nations are awaiting the results."

Speeches by John A. Sexsmith and J. Kinnaid discussed the customs scandal, the exodus to the U S.A., tariff, etc. Mr. Sexsmith said he could understand people overlooking mistakes because every government whether Liberal or Conservative, made mistakes, but he could not understand anyone over looking debauchery.

OBITUARY.

MRS. GRACE MYRTLE MILNE.

There passed away in Nichol's Hospital, Peterboro, last night, Mrs. Grace Myrtle Milne, wife of James Milne of Seymour township, at the age of 32 years.

She leaves to mourn her loss her sorrowing husband and three children, Genevieve, Grant and baby Irene; her mother, Mrs. Ridley Wood, and her only brother, H. B. Wood of Trent River.

Funeral will take place at 2 p.m. on Wednesday from her brother's residence to Centre Cemetery at Trent River.

CLAUDE PORTEOUS.

BETHANY, Sept. 14.—Bright autumn sunshine flooded the landscape on Friday afternoon when the remains of the late Claude J. Porteous, who died from injuries received just one week previous by a farm tractor he was operating, was borne to its last resting place in Fallis Cemetery.

For over an hour friends, acquaintances and neighbors came sadly and reverently to pay their last respects to one who had been widely known and to express their sympathy to the bereaved ones left to mourn.

The casket was covered by floral tributes, tokens of sympathy from friends.

The large living-room was filled to overflowing, also the verandah and lawn, so the ministers, Rev. Alfred Poulter, of the United Church, of which the family are members, and Rev. Totten, of Cavan United Church, a sympathizing friend took their stand just inside the door so that all might hear the service. Joseph Scriven's hymn of comfort, "What a Friend We Have in Jesus," was sung, and Rev. Mr. Totten read the 14th chapter of St. John's gospel, "Let not your heart be troubled," and offered prayer. Rev. Poulter then read a few verses of a psalm and spoke comforting words to the family and the friends. The service closed with the hymn, "Nearer My God to Thee."

The casket was carried from the home by six cousins of the deceased from Blackstock and Nestleton and was followed by the sorrowing wife, three eldest children and the aged parents. The funeral cortege was one of the largest seen in this part of the country, about one hundred automobiles carrying friends from Hamilton, London, St. Catharines, Orono, Port Hope, Nestleton Blackstock, Peterboro, Reaboro Millbrook and places nearer home. The sympathy of the entire neighborhood is with the bereaved ones.

More than half a ton of snails were shipped from France to the United States last year.

SYNOPSIS

Don Juan's disillusioned father warns him: "Destroy women or they will destroy you. Take their love scornfully—and forget!" This advice has made Don Juan the greatest lover of all time. But his gay career of heart-wrecking is suddenly checked in Rome by the disarming innocence of beauteous Adriana Varanese. Juan loves her madly, changing the whole philosophy of his life. The affair arouses the enmity of the infamous Borgias, for Lucretia Borgia loves Juan, and her cousin, Donati, covets Adriana.

Ah, the old times would return, and all would be well!

Another step, another—and then Juan was looking the lovely, appealing lady straight in the face—and passing on. Just striding past her, without even another glance!

She looked after him, bewildered. Pedrillo would have laughed at that look of utter amazement, had he not been so thoroughly disgusted with his master in that moment.

What a way to act! With life showering its most gorgeous gifts upon a man! Most heartily Pedrillo wished that, instead of helping his master in the fight with Donato and his hirelings, he had turned and run Adriana through with his own sword.

It was on that second day that Juan's patience was rewarded. For he caught sight of Adriana for an instant, as she was entering the very church on whose steps Donati had first seen her.

There was a garden beside the church, sheltered from the street by a low wall. As the heavy doors of the church swung to behind Adriana, Juan, rousing himself from the trance of adoration into which he had fallen, hurried across the street and into the garden.

Through a side door he could see into the church; opposite that side door was an image of St. Anthony, the dull blues and reds of the saint's robes glowing faintly in the lights of the candles that burned before the image.

One the stone floor knelt Adriana, with head devoutly bent.

For an instant Juan knelt too, there in the soft Italian sunlight, then rose, to stare with hungry eyes at the girlish figure in the trailing white gown.

When at last she left the church he watched her as she went. Again, on the next day, and the days after that, he hurried to the church and watched for her to come, and then for her to go.

And Pedrillo, realizing that his master had completely lost his heart, swore that he had lost his head as well.

It was the day following that new determination seemed to take hold of Juan. As Adriana entered the church he stood watching her adoringly—at sight of his master's face Pedrillo stared in blank unbelief. Then he shrugged his shoulders skeptically. Impossible that Don Juan, the greatest lover in all Europe, should fall so hopelessly in love!

Eagerly he hurried across the street and up the steps, and stood for an instant looking into the church, watching Adriana as she knelt in prayer.

Pedrillo followed him and would have gone with him into the church, but Juan motioned to him not to. Pedrillo stopped short, hurt and indignant. Never before had he been treated like this! Had he not always been the greatest possible help to his master? Had he not been of inestimable aid in many a delicate situation? How many times had he taken the blame that should have fallen on Don Juan in a compromising moment, just as he had done it on the balcony outside Lucretia Borgia's rooms when Juan was found making love to the pretty servant?

He sulked in the street while Juan passed through the little door in the wall surrounding the garden beside the church.

Juan closed the door behind him, and it was as if the peace of the church surrounded him the moment he had done so. There was quiet in the small garden, quiet that even the violence of the Borgias' rule could not touch. There were flowers growing close to the wall; there was a little stone fountain, in whose waters cooing pigeons splashed; there was a little shrine with a statue of the Virgin, whose dull blue robes were like a bit of the blue Italian sky.

Seeing that statue, Juan murmured a prayer. The Virgin had come between him and an intention the thought of which sickened him as it rose in his memory. Perhaps the Virgin would help him now, when he came to her with only purity and love in his heart.

Fearful, eager, wrung by the force of his ardor, he stood waiting, and at last the heavy leather door of the church swung outward. Juan stopped behind a tall flowering shrub whose yellow flowers fell softly on his shoulders. Hardly breathing, he stood there, waiting as Adriana came out of the shadowy church and down the garden path.

At last, after days of waiting, she was coming! What would he do, what could he say to her?

She walked slowly, pausing to pick a flower and to watch the pigeons. As for Adriana, she had known the bitterest despair when, regaining consciousness after fainting in Juan's arms, she realized what had happened. He had remained hidden until she was beside his hiding place; then he stepped forward humbly.

She had adored Juan, had in her mind endowed him with all the virtues that any man could have. He was brave and strong and good, she had told herself, and kind, and gentle.

And then he had shattered her idol to bits, had before her eyes become as loathsome as any slavering beast eyeing its prey. He had made her doubt all that was holy, and good, had forced her to lose her faith in mankind.

Daily she had prayed to be made to forget him. Yet even in her prayers there was the vivid memory of him, the feeling of his arms about her, of his lips pressed to hers. She told herself angrily that she would give life itself to thrust him forever out of her mind, and knew in her heart that, despite the insult he had offered her, those memories were the most precious possession that she had.

Not understanding herself, she wept. And even as she wept, she wondered if she would ever see him again.

Her question was answered when, one day, as she was entering the church, she saw him in the street. Again the next day, and again the next, she saw him, waiting in the little garden. She told herself that she must avoid such encounters; she knew that he came because he wanted to see her, that, resenting his actions, she ought to give him no opportunity to speak to her.

And yet—when she longed so to speak to him again—embarrassed, humiliated when she recalled his treatment of her, she could not bring herself to make a change in her plans and going to church elsewhere. Each day she told herself that she would change the next day, and each day she postponed changing.

"I do not expect you to forgive me," he said, and his voice sounded strange in his own ears. "Just let me look at you, I beg. For three days, at this same hour, I have waited, and I would have gone on waiting through all eternity had it meant that I might have had a glimpse of you'"

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

From the pen of Simon Louis Katzoff, M.D., Ph.D., of Bridgeport, Conn., graduate in law, pharmacy, and medicine, prominent physician psychologist and author [illegible] he would no more put vaccine virus into a man's body than he would a bullet into his brain.

In 1888 Bismarck sent an address to all of the governments of the German States, in which it was admitted that numerous eczematous diseases, even those of an epidemic nature, were directly attributable to vaccination.

He said: the hopes placed in the efficacy of the cowpox virus as a preventative of smallpox have proven entirely deceptive.

Alexander Wilder, M.D., editor of the New York "Medical Times," and Professor of Physiology of the U.S. Medical College of New York, observes:

Vaccination is the infusion of a contaminating element into the system, and after such contamination, you can never hope to regain the former purity of your blood. Thus tainted, the body is made liable to a host of ailments; all cases of consumption may be as unequivocally traced to vaccination as effects follow causes.

Dr. D. O. Phillips, of Bessemer, Alabama, said recently for publication:

"I visited a family yesterday and I witnessed the most horrifying sight I have ever seen. Two children, girl and boy, I judge about ten and twelve years of age, who were raving maniacs from the effects of vaccination inflicted at school and without consent of parents.

R. T. Trail, M.D., writing in the Hydropathic Encyclopaedia, gives the following account of the effect of vaccination:

"I have seen a most horrible loathsome case of scrofulous disease, in which the patient literally rotted alive at the age of fifteen from virus received when he was but three years of age.

Yours in the interests of the health and lives of the children.

When The Babies Are Cutting Teeth
THE MOTHER SHOULD USE

During baby's teething time, the bowels become loose and diarrhoea, dysentery, colic, cramps, etc., manifest themselves; the gums become swollen, and cankers form in the mouth.
This is the time when the mother should use "Dr. Fowler's," and, perhaps, save the baby's life.

LIBERAL LEADER ENDS CAMPAIGN

Promises Judicial Inquiry Into Charges Against Mr. Stevens.

AT ARNPRIOR.

ARNPRIOR, Sept. 14 (Canadian Press).—Closing his campaign here at midnight last night, Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, Liberal leader, announced that if the Liberal party was returned to power, his Government "would institute a judicial inquiry into this whole stock-selling scheme." He was referring to the charges which have been levelled against the Hon. H. H. Stevens, Minister of Customs in the Meighen Government. He added that such an inquiry "will give Mr. Stevens a chance to account for himself."

The Liberal leader declared that when the circular letter written on Commons paper was first made public, Mr. Stevens had defended it. It took from Tuesday until Sunday for Mr. Stevens to decide to call the letter a forgery. That letter, said Mr. King, came from a shareholder in the oil company, who was prepared to come forward and give his name if required. To-day more shareholders had come forward and told of Mr. Stevens' activities, including his presiding over shareholders' meetings.

Mr. King paid a tribute to the loyalty of Hon. Thomas A. Low, who was on the platform at Renfrew, to the Liberal cause. He hoped that Mr. Low's rest from public life would mean that some day he would return to active work for the party.

Property Damage in Kans[illegible] Is Estimated at Four Millions.

SCORES HOMELESS.

EMPORIA, Kan., Sept. 14. — (Canadian Press). — Floods and storms in south-eastern Kansas had taken a toll of at least five lives late yesterday, inundated several towns, wrought damage estimated as high as $4,000,000, and made scores homeless. Wire communication was hampered and rail traffic impeded.

Torrential rains on Sunday in the watersheds of the Neosho, Cottonwood and Verdigris Rivers put those streams on the rampage, and there was a heavy loss of live stock and an enormous crop loss as the flood swept south-eastward. Reports received here indicated the property damage was heaviest in the rural sections.

NUNS PAY DUTY ON THEIR LACE

Four Women Released By U. S. Customs Officers.

NO FRAUD MEANT.

ST. ALBANS, Vt, Sept. 14 (Canadian Press).—The four Franciscan nuns who were taken from the Montreal-Boston train at Richford last Saturday when a large quantity of rare Breton lace was found in their possession, paid $4,000 on the good last night, and were permitted to continue their journey to Boston. Customs officials decided that there had been no fraudulent intent in their failure to declare the merchandise.

Not Much Betting Here On Results Of Election

There is not much betting on the result of today's voting, and any odds that are laid are fairly even. It is common to hear of a cigar wagered against a cigar, but no large majorities are being claimed by any but the most rabid partizans. In some cases the extravagant claims (not backed by ready funds) indicate a desire to bolster up the morale rather than a conviction of assured victory.

The citizens will be treated to the sight of a George street merchant pushing a peanut down the street whichever way the battle goes. This wager was announced some days ago.

MAY LAY CHARGE AGAINST CAPTAIN

Immigration Officials Will Hold Inquiry About Italians.

OTTAWA, Ont., September 14. — Canadian Press. — Charges will be laid, under the Immigration Act, against the captain of the Italian vessel Dori, from which ship 110 people presumably Italians, were landed yesterday on the Nova Scotia coast, 30 miles west of Halifax. This announcement was made in official quarters here last night.

A board of enquiry will probably be held shortly to determine the fate of the 97 men so far accounted for out of the 110 and who are under detention. The board will enquire into the full facts of the whole case. If it is shown that an attempt was made to evade the immigration laws in any way, these men are of course subject to deportation

The question of the forfeiture of the steamer, seized by the Department of Customs, will be decided upon, it is stated, after a full report from the Customs officials has been received at the Department here.

A suspicion exists in official circles it is intimated, that some prearrangement may have existed with some one in Canada for the landing of these men. A particular feature of the case is that the vessel is supposed to have sailed from Algiers.

LIVE STOCK JUDGING AT THE EXHIBITION

Boys Will Compete To-morrow Morning and in Afternoon.

The Boys' Live Stock Judging Competition begins tomorrow Wednesday morning, at 9.30 o'clock, in front of the Grand Stand, and will continue throughout the morning until 12.30 noon.

It will be resumed after lunch, when the boys will give a further demonstration of live stock judging in front of the Grand Stand for the benefit of spectators.

IRELAND TO SEEK SEAT IN COUNCIL

Delegates Say, However, They Would Withdraw in Favour of Canada.

GENEVA, Switzerland, Sept. 14. (Canadian Press).—The Irish Free State delegation to the League of Nations Assembly let it be known today that the Free State would be a candidate for a non-permanent seat in the reorganization of the League Council.

If Canada was also a candidate, however, the Irish delegates said, the Free State would withdraw its candidacy and support her.

Evening Examiner "Ideal Fashions" by Jean Belle Hamilton

Smartly Simple

A triumph of chic and slenderness, in navy mirroleen. It is most essential that every smart wardrobe should contain at least one frock of this type. In every detail it illustrates the theory that the long line is the shortest route to slenderness. Two inverted plaits extend full length on either side of the front. A straight piece of the material is folded to form a trimming-band two inches wide, and placed beneath the edge of the outside plait before it is stitched. Flat bone buttons trim the band. The back is plain and extends over the shoulder fastening onto the front in yoke effect. The V-shaped neck opening is very becoming, and is finished with a tailored collar. The diagram pictures the simple design of No. 1207, which is in sizes 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust. Size 38 requires 4 yards of 36-inch, or 3¾ yards of 40-inch material. Price 20 cents.

Our Fashion Book, illustrating the newest and most practical styles, will be of interest to every home dressmaker. Price of the book 10 cents the copy.

YOUR JEWEL COLOR FLOWER

By Mildred Marshall

(Copyright, McClure Syndicate.)

Today's talismanic gem, the amethyst, is likely to make its wearers headstrong and move them to make rash promises. This tendency is somewhat discounted by its power to endow them with keen intelligence and unusual ability in business.

The emerald is today's natal gem, though belonging to Venus, by some queer contradiction it is an enemy to sentiment. It bestows upon them whose birth anniversary it is extraordinary clarity of vision.

The white violet is the lucky flower for this day.

SOPHISTICATED.

Neutral backgrounds are stressed this season, and the color that is used to accent it is made all the more important.

HER OWN WAY

by

A GIRL of TODAY

JUDY SPEAKS OUT

"I was very young when I realized that I was a living sorrow to my mother," continued John Meredith, "and once or twice when I was a very little boy, I tried to relieve her of my worthless life, but they kept too many people about me.

"Although I had every material comfort in the world, everything to keep me physically fit, I was always miserable in my soul. I begged and pleaded to be sent away from this house, where until I came back here this time I had never spent a happy moment.

"At last my mother had the camp in the Adirondacks built for me. I suppose that it is one of the most beautiful places of its kind in America. Then a very beautiful fiction story was circulated among my mother's friends that I had to be sent away because of my health.

"I did not need health. I was perfectly well. I was to be simply hidden away, where none of my family's friends could see me."

"Why?"

This little word which I shouted at John Meredith seemed to give him a shock of surprise so great that he acted as though he had been struck.

"Beg pardon," he stammered.

"Why," I repeated.

"Surely, Miss Dean, you do not have to ask me that question."

I noticed that he had returned into the more formal Miss Dean, but I would not back down.

"I certainly do have to ask you 'Why,'" I answered.

"I must confess that I don't understand you when you ask such a question," he explained, impatiently.

"Well, I will tell you. I ask the question, John, because I don't understand why you should think you are a killjoy to anyone. On the contrary, you should bring happiness to everyone with whom you come in contact.

"Personally, I have never met anyone who had more to give to his friends and acquaintances. You have exceptionally magnetic qualities if you will allow yourself to exercise them, and I need not tell you, for you know it, that your brain is much above the average. It only needs contact with the brain of your fellow men.

"Aren't you ashamed of yourself because you have only used that brain to patch up uncomfortable situations and great unhappiness for yourself and those near and dear to you?

"The only thing I can see about you that is at all wrong, as I said before, you have an ingrowing soul."

HOLD CONFERENCE TO STOP SMUGGLING

Canadian and United States Officials To Confer This Month.

WASHINGTON, September 14.—United Press. — A new anti-smuggling agreement with Canada, similar to the one recently arranged with England, will be negotiated late this month by Canadian and United States officials, Assisting Secretary of the Treasury Andrews announced to-day.

The pact will be a "business agreement" for the exchange of information to prevent liquor smuggling, and not a treaty, Andrews said

The arrangement will be a two-way affair to stop the flow of rum into the United States, and also to end the smuggling of bootleg liquor into the dry provinces of Canada from the United States.

Secretary of State Kellogg is now arranging the date for the conference, it is understood.

Whether the meeting will be held in Ottawa or Washington has not yet been determined.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, but do not Compel.

FOR WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 15, 1926.

Astrologers read this as one of the rarely fortunate days in which all the mental and physical energies are stimulated.

Venus smiles on the affairs of women especially those who are interested in music or the arts.

This should be a favorable sway for actresses but they should not sign contracts while this configuration prevails.

Weddings today should be happy in the growth of love and prosperity. It is also a lucky day for engagements.

One of the developments of the future the seers prophesy will be a business basis for marriage in which wives share in the financial success of their husbands or receive stated salaries for housekeeping.

Under the direction of the stars which has stimulated the use of publicity in personal matters many unworthy persons have gained fame the seers point out but the future is to bring about a n adjustment in which real worth is more generally exploited.

A London astrologer prophesies for next month a secret military alliance which will cause anxiety and even tension in the United States.

Development of India is to center world attention and to attract many Americans if the stars are wisely interpreted.

Mars' prolonged stay in Taurus which reaches its culmination in November is likely to increase the tax burdens of British subjects.

Death of a potentate under mysterious circumstances is prognosticated by astrologers.

Hospitals and those who conduct them should benefit greatly in the next few weeks, for their service to humanity is to be recognized in a substantial way.

Clerks and minor employees now come under a rule making for discontent, owing to the better rewards of manual labor the stars foretell.

Persons whose birthdate it is may have a year of monotony yet it may be a period of preparation for important achievement.

Children born on this day may be too idealistic to succeed in ordinary vocations. They should be trained wisely along their special lines, which may be artistic.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

(By Mildred Marshall.)

Facts about your name, its history; its meaning; whence it was derived; its significance; your lucky day, and lucky jewel.

LUCRETIA

Though Lucretia was the name borne by the notorious daughter of the Borgia, it is one of the quaintest and most old-fashioned of names in this country. It is a far cry from ancient Rome to modern New England, but the name has completed the transition with very few changes to mark the successive stages of its evolution.

There are two theories among etymologists in regard to the original source of Lucretia. Some contend that it comes from the Latin word lucrum, meaning "gain," and for that reason Lucretia is said to signify gain. On the other hand, there is much evidence to prove that its real source was in the Latin word for light, lux. Many feminine names have been derived from this root, and the same word has supplied surnames without number.

It is believed, therefore that the noted old gens, Lucrative, from which Lucretia is directly descended, was only another of the derivatives of lux. "Lucrece, combing the fleece under the midnight lamp," the famous old Roman tale, inspired Shakespeare to write one of his earliest poems. Despite her notoriety, Lucretia Borgia probably established the name of Lucretia in Italy, and in nearly modern times it was one of the few classical names to be revived.

France has a Lucrece which is popular, and England imported Lucretia in the eighteenth century.

Lucretia's talismanic stone is the red-hearted ruby. It has the power to bring her strength of body, an invincible spirit, and success in every undertaking. Tuesday is her lucky day and 6 her lucky number.

The Beauty Doctor

Condition—Pimples or eruptions on the face.

Treatment—See a doctor. Ordinarily it is risky to attempt to doctor pimples or facial eruptions yourself, because of the danger of infection. However, a bit of alcohol or peroxide, applied with sterilized cotton, will not be injurious and may prevent further spreading until a doctor can be consulted.

IDEAL WEATHER

Tunney Sets in Final Week of Training for Championship Bout.

STROUDSBURG, Pa., Sept. 14—Stroudsburg is having the finest weather in the wide world. It's cool and the air has that peculiar clear dryness that lets the sun blaze down so brightly that you have to squint through half-closed eyes and the shaded side of the street seems to be in midnight darkness through sheer contrast. Every breath of this mountain ozone is like a sip of wine, exhilarating, pep-producing. Dempsey was right last week when he said the challenger had the right place to train.

Gene Tunney, after his day off from boxing, was out early for a run on the road, wearing light clothes and a wool-lined leather jacket. Tunney covered nine miles at a fast clip. He ran the first half of it like a Nurmi and through the last half of the spin over the hilly road stopped every few minutes to skip and shadow box. Gene does most of his shadow boxing on the road. He hasn't wasted time on play of that sort since coming down from Speculator and settling into the last hard grind.

Gene Looks in Great Condition

Tunney looks in great condition for a fight and it's evident at a glance that he hasn't been loafing on the job. He has an eye somewhat streaked with black, a small cut on his upper lip and a half-healed lowed lip that was cut a week ago. Tunney is a bit like old Bob Fitzsimmons, who never went through hard training without getting a black eye and a cut lip and who usually carried his marks into the ring.

Tunney is pretty well marked for a clever boxer. His nose is straight, although it has been broken in the ring, but his ears show that he hasn't blocked everything that came his way. His eyebrows, if you look closely, show long, thin white lines where they were sliced in collisions with the top of Harry Greb's head. His lips are thickened just now because of half-healed cuts and bruises.

"Why don't you wear a headguard?" I asked Tunney, suggesting that a bad cut in training near fight time might be dangerous to his chances.

Doesn't Believe in Headgear

"I don't believe in any such artificial protection," said Gene. "If I relied on it in training I might forget and rely on it in the fight. A mask interferes with clear vision and affects one's judgment of blows going and coming. I don't mind being hit in training. I believe in being accustomed to taking care of myself."

So Tunney won't train in a mask, though if he did it would be a great relief to Tex Rickard.

Tunney doesn't tape his hands heavily with black tape, the way Dempsey does so carefully before each day's boxing. He wraps them lightly with soft cotton bandages, held together with adhesive tape. This is the only bandaging allowed in the ring and he won't use anything else in the course of preparations for the fight. And this in spite of the fact that Tunney broke his hands several times in early fights.

I reminded him that Billy Gibson once sent him up to the Maine Woods to work as a lumberjack just to strengthen his hands and make him tough.

Hard Muscles a Handicap: Gene

"Yes," said Tunney, "and that was the worst thing that ever happened me. I worked four months; it took me two years to loosen up the hard muscles I developed and get back the speed of my punch. Perhaps it was good for my hands, but the reason I hurt them in early fights was that I didn't know how to hit. I never hurt them now. Dempsey doesn't hurt his hands because he knows how to hit. veloped that way are useless in the ring. They're too slow and they tire. The most important physical qualification for boxing is muscles that are lose, pliable, that react instanty after the effort of hitting."

Gene Tunney if he becomes champion is going to be a great source of copy for the newspaper writers. You don't have to try to guess what Gene's thinking. He tells you. He has a remarkably quick mind and no trouble at all finding words to express his meaning. So far Gene hasn't quoted Keats, Shelly, Goldsmith or Shakespeare to me. They say that's a favorite diversion of his. But he has shown that he knows his own profession thoroughly and can tell what he knows.

Thinks He Is at His Best

"In a couple of weeks," he said, while sitting in his car this afternoon, "I'll know whether I'm a success or a failure in my vocation.

"I've had some good fortune, but I don't measure success by anything less than the coming fight. I've aimed at winning the championship. I have planned and studied and trained to that end and now I feel confident that I am fit and ready and at my best in every way. I expect to win."

Tunney grinned.

"You know I had one thing drilled into me—a marine can't be beaten."

If cheerful confidence can win this fight Gene has it buttoned up in his pocket.

BOB JONES HAS BIG LEAD FOR NATIONAL CROWN

Leads Field in First Round of 36-Hole Qualification Test.

SCORE OF 70

Illinois Titleholder Brings in Card of 74 in Afternoon.

SHORTHILLS, N.J., Sept. 14 (Canadian Press) — Bobby Jones, Georgia's marvellous shot maker, led a field of 144 players in the first round of the 36 hole qualification test for the National Amateur golf championship on the links of the Baltusrol Club. Jones breezed over the 18 hole round in 70, two strokes better than par.

Four strokes back of Bobby came George Dawson of Chicago, Illinois State title holder who furnished one of day's biggest surprises by bringing in a card of 74 late in the afternoon. Tied for third place were Lauren Upson of Englewood N. J., and Paul Haviland, Yale University captain, at 76, while one stroke back of this pair came Dexter Cummings of Chicago, Ellsworth H. Augustus and Rudy Knepper of Sioux City.

C. Ross Somerville of London, Ontario, led the Canadian contingent with an 80. Norman Scott of Montreal had an 83, while Don Carrick of Toronto was two strokes ahead of J. B. Mickles of Montreal, with an 85.

Eustace F. Storey, British amateur, scored an 81.

BRAVES CLIMB ONE GAME IN PENNANT RACE

Take Final Game of Boston Series From St. Louis.

CINCINNATI TIES

NEW YORK, Sept. 14 (Canadian Press).—The Braves took the final game of the Boston series from St. Louis yesterday, 5 to 4, in 14 innings, and further endangered the pennant chances of the Cardinals. Cincinnati, winning while St. Louis was losing, went into a tie with the Cardinals for first place.

A hit by Cooney with two out and Taylor on second base blasted the hope of St. Louis in the 14th inning. Twice while the teams were tied at 4-4 from the eighth inning on, St. Louis had filled the bases with none out. Each time the team, with Hornsby at bat, was unable to score. The game was bitterly contested throughout, and Thevenow's fielding was a feature.

Douthit's home run in the fourth was the longest drive seen at the Braves' field this season. Sherdal and Alexander pitched for the Cardinals and Wertz and Benton for Boston.

Brooklyn was blanked 4 to 0 by the climbing Cincinnati Reds under the direction of Eppa Rixey's left pitching arm. The Red moundsman allowed only six hits. Two Brooklyn players reached third base.

Cincinnati opened strong in the first, filling the bases, but were retired when Critz was thrown out at first. The Reds first score came in the third with a hit batsman, a sacrifice, and Pipp's single. In the fourth inning they got another through singles by Hargrave and Rixey.

The remaining scores were in the eighth when Carey muffed Pipp's fly and Dressen tripled, later scoring on a sacrifice. The Reds gave Rixey fine support, playing errorless ball.

Succumbing to a Giant onslaught inspired by the homers of Kelly and Lindstrom, with men on bases, the world's champion Pirates lost ground in the League pennant race yesterday. The score was 9 to 5. Four home runs were hit, two by Granthem, Pirate first sacker. George Kelly slammed the first ball out of the yard in the first inning, driving Frisch before him for two runs. Lindstrom hit a high one into the upper right field stand for a home run with Florence and Ring on base.

Jimmy Ring started on the mound for New York, but was succeeded by Davies in the eighth. Pittsburgh tried four hurlers.

The Chicago Cubs defeated the Phillies, at home, yesterday, 3 to 1, in a pitching duel between Blake and Dean. The latter hurler saved his team from a shut-out by a lonely home run in the seventh.

DETROIT TAKES DOUBLE-HEADER FROM NEW YORK

Lopped Off Two and Half Games From Yankees' Lead.

BRILLIANT PITCHING

Leaders' Single Score in Second Result of Wild Throw.

NEW YORK, Sept. 14 (Canadian Press).—Detroit lopped a game and a half off the New York American's lead by taking both games of yesterday's double header at Detroit. The Tigers won the first game, 4 to 3, by bunching hits in two innings, and took the second, 4 to 1, behind the brilliant pitching of Sam Gibson, who allowed only three hits. New York's single score in the second game was the result of a wild throw by Burke. Tavener's fielding was the bright spot of Detroit's defensive playing. Meusel hit his eleventh home run of the season in the sixth inning of the first game.

Cleveland made it four straight from Washington, Shaute winning his own game with a double with the bases filled in the seventh inning, driving in three runs. He held Washington to four hits, but as three of them were bunched with a pass and a hit batsman in the third, Washington scored three runs.

Chicago and Philadelphia divided a double-header, Philadelphia winning the first game 5 to 2, after thirteen innings, when Conally weakened and his support went to pieces. McGurdy's triple with the bases loaded gave the home team the second game, 3 to 2. It was a pitching duel between Faber and Rommell, the former allowing only three hits, when he gave way to McCurdy as a pinch hitter.

These were all the game scheduled yesterday.

TILDEN WINS FIRST MATCH IN NATIONAL PLAY

Drops Set to John Van Ryn Before Retiring Opponent.

IS HANDICAPPED

Canadian Entry Eliminated by Herbert Bowman, of New York.

FOREST HILLS, N.Y., Sept. 14 (Canadian Press)—Willam T. iTlden hobbled out on the courts of the West Side Club to start the defense of the National Tennis title he has held for six straight years and dropepd a set to John Van Ryn, 21 year old Princeton star, before winning his first round match. The scores were 6-4, 3-6, 7-5, 6-2.

The National champion betrayed every evidence of being severely handicapped by the fresh injury to his left knee, sufefred in his losing match with Rne Lacoste on Saturday. Unless his condition improves Tilden's prospect of reaching his goal of seven straight titles appears remote, particularly as he is faced by one of the most formidable international fields the tourney has ever had.

Jack Wright of Montreal, sole Canada entrant in the tourney, and one of the seeded invaders, was eliminated yesterday by Herbert Bowman of New York. The score was 7-5, 6-1, 8-6.

Other invaders came through safely, however, including Takeichi Harade, and two Japanese Davis Cup team mates, as well as the four French cracks, Lacoste, Jean Borotra, Jacques Brugnon and Henri Cochet.

Of the home talent "little Bill" Johnston scrambled through to the third round by virtue of a win and a default, while Vincent Richards, Johnston's likely semi-final opponent, romped to victory.

Giants Buy Buffalo's Star Second Sacker In International League.

BUFFALO, N.Y., Sept. 14 (Canadian Press).—President Sam Robertson of the Buffalo International League Club has sold Lafayette Fresco Thompson, star second sacker, to the New York Giants for $25,000 in cash and two players. In addition, Robertson claims to have formed an alliance with McGraw which he believes will prove beneficial to the Buffalo Club, the first fruit of which will be two exhibition games during next spring's training season.

WHITE RACE A MENACE

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 14.—(United Press).—White races not yellow constitute the world menace, in the opinion of Professor Percy L. Clark, Cornell University economist who is now on a western tour.

The white race is multiplying at a far greater rate than the others, having increased from 130,000,000 to 600,000,000 in 175 years and if this increase is maintained it will mean economic disaster for Europe and America, Professor Clark points out.

Syracuse and Rochester Divide Twin Bill at Latter's Plate.

NEW YORK, Sept. 14 (Canadian Press).—The Toronto Leafs coasted to a third straight victory at Buffalo yesterday by a score of 10 to 4. The Canadians jolted Stryker from the mound in the second inning and piled up such a big lead the Bisons never got within striking distance. Kelly collected his forty-fourth homer.

Syracuse and Rochester divided a double-header at the latter's bailiwick. The visitors lost the first, 6 to 3, and captured the second, 9 to 0, Boyd shutting down on Rochester and allowing only five hits.

Newark and Baltimore evened another twin bill. The Orioles grabbing the first game, 5 to 3, lost out badly in the nightcap when they scored a single run against Newark's 10.

Jersey City and Reading were idle yesterday.

The Millions Gained by Export are Millions saved for You!

Today Canadians may purchase cars built by General Motors of Canada at lower prices, which are largely the result of an ever increasing export trade.

Totalling over $65,000,000 for the past five years, these exports absorb a substantial proportion of General Motors of Canada production.

They swell that production to a point far beyond the possible demands of our home market alone.

They permit volume-buying that would otherwise be out of the question.

They justify large-scale methods that could otherwise not be employed.

They allow efficiency economies that could otherwise not be practiced.

They have reduced the cost of the luxurious Cadillac, which stands the unchallenged leader of all fine motor cars.

They have reduced the cost of Canada's standard car, the prized McLaughlin-Buick, a worthy memorial to the great Canadian industrial pioneer whose name it bears.

They have reduced the cost of the Canadian Oakland ... winning and holding good will.

They have reduced the cost of the Oldsmobile built in Canada ... the car that asks no favors—fears no road.

They have reduced the cost of the Pontiac, Chief of the Sixes.

They have reduced the cost of the astonishing Canadian-built Chevrolet ... so smooth, so powerful.

A dollar here, a dollar there ... hundreds from this, hundreds from that ... thousands saved in materials, thousands in operating costs ... millions and millions in all—millions gained by exports ... millions saved for You!

Silk Thieves, Smugglers, Automobile Thieves and Rum Runners Allied.

VANCOUVER, B. C., Sept. 14. — Canadian Press. — "I claim the right to tell my fellow citizens what the forces are that are lined up against me in this contest," declared Hon. H. H. Stevens, Minister of Customs, in his final campaign meeeting here last night.

He said that the campaign carried on against him during the past week has been the most bitter and malicious of any attack launched against any public man in Canada.

The Minister of Customs declared that the attacsk against him had not been confined to Vancouver, but had been made all over the East.

There were those who would do anything in their power to force him out of public life because of his activities in uncovering the "unsavory mess in connection with smuggling and rum-running" and he charged that among those who were fighting him were silk thieves of the United States, the silk smugglers who operated in well organized and wealthy gangs; the cotton smugglers of Rock Island; automobile thieves and bandits; and border rum-runners and bootleggers

PROSPECTS GOOD FOR LARGE VOTE IN THIS PROVINCE

Interest Heightens During Final Week of Election Campaign.

LEADERS IN ONTARIO.

Premier Ends Tour Along Lake Shore—King Visits Ottawa Valley.

TORONTO, Sept. 14.—Canadian Press).—Prospects are bright for the polling of a heavy vote throughout Ontario to-day. The interest in the Federal election campaign has reached fever heat in many constituencies. Weather conditions are fair and cool throughout the Province, and should enhance the possibility of a large and representative expression of opinion at the polling booths.

If the number voting at the advance polls which were open Friday, Saturday and Monday is any indication, more electors should go to the polls to-day than in 1925. A decided increase in the number of commercial travellers, railwaymen and sailors casting their ballots in advance was noticed. The degree of apathy which was evident in the early stages of the campaign has developed during the last week into keen enthusiasm.

Liberals and Conservatives are both confident that their representation from Ontario in the next House of Commons will be increased. The former held 12 seats in the last House, while the latter held 68. The Progressives, who held two seats from this Province as compared with 24 in 1921, expect to gain at the expense of the two old parties.

Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen and Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzit King spent the final day of the election campaign in Ontario. The Prime Minister addressed meetings at Cobourg, Port Hope and Oshawa, while the Liberal leader was at Pembroke, Arnprior and other Ottawa Valley points.

Ontario has returned a large number of Conservative members to the House of Commons since 1878 than of any other party. In this campaign the efforts of the Liberals have been concentrated on returning non-Conservative candidates in several constituencies, with the result that there are very few contests in which Conservative, Liberal and Progressive are all in the field. Seven members of the Meighen Cabinet are candidates in Ontario.

SWIMS FOR HOUR WITH FULL PACK

American Army Sergeant Gains Permission To Cross Narrows.

NEW YORK, Sept. 14.—Armed to the teeth and loaded with nearly 100 pounds of doughboy equipment, Staff Sergeant Deo Kondas of the Army Recruiting Service, more than an hour yesterday swam the waters near Fort Hamilton, Brooklyn, and proved to skeptical officers that it was safe for him to attempt to swim the Narrows thus heavily burdened today. He won their consent to attempt the feat.

Sergeant Kondas' equipment consisted of a Springfield rifle and bayonet, steel trench helmet, gas mask, a bandolier of ammunition and a full infantry pack, containing two blankets, a pup tent, two suits of underwear, a can of "corned willy" and a collection of safety razors, tooth brushes and foot powders.

Besides this heavy load, Sergeant Kondas' clothing consisted of hobnailed marching shoes, leggings, riding breeches and service tunic. After he had churned the water for more than an hour, Major C. A. Pixiretto of the recruiting service signalled Kondas to come ashore. After a medical officer had pronounced Kondas in perfect physical condition the officers announced Kondas would be permitted to attempt the feat of swimming from Fort Wadsworth to Fort Hamilton, two miles.

PRESENTATION MADE.

Miss E. Greenhalgh, Shortstop of C.G.E. Team, Being Married.

A presentation was made to-day to Miss Edith Greenhalgh, shortstop of the C.G.E. ladies' softball team, by the members of the club, on the occasion of her marriage The following address was read:

Miss E. Greenhalgh.

Dear Edie,—It was a real surprise to your friends and players of the C.G.E. Softball Club when we heard the joyful news that you were about to enter married life. It also came as a shock to think our club was to lose your valued services, and especially as you were to sever your friendly relations with all your Peterborough friends, by migrating to other fields.

In conclusion, we would ask you to accept these useful pieces of electrical necessities (iron, toaster, and grill), and hope that your future is one of joy and happiness for your place will be hard to fill.

With best love and greetings to your better half, for he sure picked a winner.

Queen Has Taken Up Collection Of Antiques Is Now a Frequent Visitor To Shops and Houses

HARROGATE, England, Sept. 14.— (United Press.)— Queen Mary has joined the antique hunters. She has succumbed to the lure of things that are old and now frequently visits out of the way shops and ancient cottages, appraising the age of furniture and furnishings that are offered.

With Princess Mary (Viscountess Lascelles) Queen Mary suddenly descended on the shop of Mrs. Shann here on the Royal Parade. When the Queen emerged some time later, she had purchased two pieces of antique French furniutre, a pair of French candelbra, an old Chinese carved ivory figure, an old painted tea caddy, an old glass hanging lantern, an old Chinese pink vase, a crystal chandelier, two blue Wedgewood vases, a Florentine bronze candle stick, and a Chinese jade elephant and monkey. Princess Mary came out of Mrs. Shann's shop with an old needle work fire scene, a Chinese agate bottle, a Chinese rose quartz Buddha, and a white agate bottle as her purchases. Viscount Lascelles contented himself with buying an old grandfather clock and a green ash tray.,

Women Stay Too Long In Public Baths, Say Officials So They Put In Extra Vent To Drain Tub At Right Time

LONDON, Sept. 14.—(United Press.)—The only way to get the London women out of the public baths is to drain the bath tubs dry, according to the bath commissioners. A special tap has been connected to each tub so that an attendant from outside can draw off the water when the female bather's time is up.

The women, especially in the hot weather, have come in crowds to the public bath halls, paid their two pennies and locked themselves in for hours while they sat immersed in water to their chins eating chocolates, reading novels and sometimes even doing their family sewing and mending.

No infrequently the women bathers smoked up an entire package of cigarettes before stepping out of their tubs.

"We made it too comfortable," the bath authorities admitted. "But we think we have found the solution. Few women like to sit long in an empty tub."

THEATRE AT THE CAPITOL

BUSTER KEATON IN "BATTLING BUTLER."

The main interest in the picture at the Capitol Theatre for the first half of this we . . he imperturbable demeanor of Buster Keaton, in the role of Alfred Butler. He never cracks a smile from beginning to end of a series of laughable incidents in which he is the principal actor.

As the hothouse product of a very wealthy home, the hero is sent on a trip to the mountains by his disgusted father in the hope of injecting a little red blood into his veins. He takes with him his valet who is portrayed by the unique Snitz Edwards in incomparable fashion and also surrounds himself with all the comforts of home. He falls in love with a mountain girl, whose towering male relatives regard him with scorn, and then is projected suddenly into the role of "Battling Butler," the lightweight champion, and is compelled to undergo rigorous trials in trying to uphold his assumed character. His struggles at the training camp and subsequent forced participation in a championship bout cause gales of laughter to ripple through the house.

The excellent music provided by the Capitol orchestra for this feature and the appropriate character of the selections played, add immensely to the attraction of the programme, which is supplemented by excellent short reels and comedy.—Jeanette.

AT THE REGENT

A THRILLING PICTURE.

Bright vivacious Priscilla Dean scored another big hit with local screen fans when "The Danger Girl," her latest Metropolitan star picture, was presented at the Regent Theatre yesterday. Miss Dean, in this delightful mystery photoplay, is first seen as a bride who travels over housetops at night and finds refuge in the apartment of two bachelor brothers, one of whom, of course, falls in love with her.

From the very start, the action proceeds rapidly to a sensational finish. The story deals with the plottings of a band of thieves to steal a fortune in gems and while for a time it would seem that Marie Duquesne, the character portrayed by Miss Dean, was in league with the robbers, the finale reveals a contrary state of affairs. At any rate, the picture is filled with thrills that are warranted to hold the interest of the most blase movie fan.

John Bowers plays opposite the star and heads an adequate supporting cast of players. Among these are Gustave Von Seyffertitz, Cissy Fitzgerald, Arthur Hoyt, Willian Humphrey, Clarence Burton and Erwin Connolly. The picture, directed by Edward Dillon, was handsomely mounted, while the photography is excellent.

DE LAVAL MILKERS AND SEPARATORS

Modern Dairy Appliances That Save Time, Labor any Money.

In the Manufacturers' Building at the Peterborough Exhibition, the De Laval Company are in arresting evidence again this year with a commendable display of their time and money-saving Milkers and Separators

Both these world-famed machines are operated by power—electric or gasoline—and both are guaranteed to assure their users of maximum service at the minimum expense. Not only are farmers and dairymen interested in this exhibit, but city folks also find in these modern Separators and Milkers a revelation of that spirit of scientific progress which marks the operations of this enterprising local manufactory

The Milkers are four-teat units and it is claimed that the extra flow of milk obtained by their use will pay for the cost of the machine.

Their Cream Separators have a capacity of up to 900 lbs. per hour, and, like their companion Milkers, give their users an equipment which for economy, efficiency and service, positively cannot be excelled.

The DeLaval Company's products have found a growing market, not only at home, but also abroad. And in substantiation of this statement it is interesting to note that they are found in operation to-day in the United States, South America, Europe, Africa, Asia, Japan, Australia and the Pacific Islands. LAST WORD IN MODERN PIANOS

Heintzman & Co. Have a Wonderful Exhibit at Peterbrough Exhibition.

Since the inception of the Manufacturers Building at the Peterborough Exhibition, Ye Olde Firme, Heintzman & Co., have retained their section in that building. This year, however, having considerably enlarged their exhibit space, they are now showing to better advantage, exceedingly interest-holding samples of pianos which for structural beauty and exquisite tone cannot be surpassed. These pianos are indeed instrumental creators of joy, setting an all-round standard of improvement which cannot be excelled. And in harmony with their unsurpassed quality in music one finds in them also that superior craftsmanship for designing pianos which has won for Heintzman & Co. enviable fame the world over.

Music lovers are irresistibly attracted to this exhibit, for it presents an interest-holding appeal not to be denied. The display includes Style O Player Piano, in size suited for the average apartment home, and finished in that charming English brown mahogany which gives an exterior beauty acclaimed by many as decidedly matchless; the popular Classic in glistening mahogany finish; and a Sty E Grand in English brown mahogany exterior finish, an instrument which for exclusive character in construction, responsiveness and tonal quality proved the biggest favorite among the piano displays at the Toronto Exhibition.

Then there are a wonderfully attractive exhibit and demonstration of Phonographs, featuring the new Orthophonic in two-tone walnut finish, admitted by leading musical critics to be the most marvellous phonographic creation of the age; and the new type of Brunswick, also finished in walnut. Both these phonograph wonders embody the new method of reproduction which assures absolute naturalness, whether of voice or instrument—in fact one can actually hear the performers breathing — and a tonal volume heretofore quite undreamt of. A Consolette phonograph, for attractive design and finish, and true recording quality, is also recommended by experts as figuring in the premier class.

The phenomenal success of Heintzman & Co. in piano building is emphasized by the fact that their drawing room instruments have been used by the world's greatest artists, such as Mesdames Melba and Tetrazinni (voice) and De Pachmann (instrumental), each of whom highly recommended this company's Grands for concert work.

Established for over 76 years; these noted piano builders have established branches in every important community in the Dominion. Their Peterborough show rooms are at Heintzman Hall, Royal Bank Building, at the corner of George and Hunter Streets. Visitors are cordially invited to call, either at this address or at the company's exhibit section at the Exhibition, where that courtesy so characteristic of Heintzman & Co. awaits them. Hear the recitals by high-class artists in the Manufacturers' Building on Thursday and Friday.

Mr. R. Haddow, the genial local manager, is in charge of this exhibit, and he has exemplified considerable skill in the display of the Company's beautiful instruments.—(Advt.)

WEDDING BELLS.

CARROLL—O'NEILL.

DOWNEYVILLE, Sept. 14.—St. Luke's church was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Wednesday morning, Sept. 8, when Gertrude, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William O'Neill was united in marriage to Martin Carroll, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Carroll.

The ceremony was conducted by Rev. Father Galvin, Miss Lorretto Harrington was organist and solos were sung by Mrs. Patrick Perdue. The bride, who was given away by her father, looked charming in a parchment shaded flat crepe dress and wore a golden velvet picture hat, red fox fur and alligator shoes with stockings to match. She carried a bouquet of ophelia roses and maiden hair fern. Her sister, Miss Mayme O'Neill, was bridesmaid, wearing a Sonora shade silk crepe dress, black velvet picture hat, and black satin shoes. She carried a bouquet of sweet peas and maiden hair ferns. The groom was supported by his brother, Mr. Philip Carroll, of Rochester.

After the ceremony dinner was served at the home of the bride. The bride and groom left, after the reception, on a trip to Buffalo, Rochester and other points, the bride travelling in a chanel red satin-faced crepe dress with hat to match and a fur trimmed black satin coat.

IN MEMORIAM.

SCULLY.—In loving memory of our two dear sons, Vincent and Melville, who passed away in September, 1925, ages two years and 7 years.

"Farewell, dear little Vincent and Melville, to all our hearts so dear,
Oft shall we bathe thy memories with a tear;
Short was thy lives, but long thy rest,
God called thee soon, because He saw it best.

A father's pride, a mother's care,
Came in this world our joys to share,
They did not long with us remain,
Till Jesus called them home again."

Dome's Decline Features Mining Exchange To-day

TORONTO, Sept. 14.— (Canadian Press.)—Dome's decline of 55 cents per share to 10.25 featured the trading on the Standard Mining Exchange to-day. The market had a decidedly weaker price tendency and offerings were rather meagre.

Lake Shore slumped 20 cents to 14.45, McIntyre 10 to 25.40, Gold Hill 1 1-2 to 47, Kirkland Lake 1 to 1.14, Tough Oakes 1 to 46, and Wright Hargreaves 5 to 8.75. Hollinger was unchanged at 19.25, Teck-Hughes at 4.70 and Vipond at 1.73. In the silvers, Beaver and Castle Trethewey were off one cent to 87 and 1.40 respectively, and the Mining Corporation 5 to 3.60, while Keeley was up 1 to 1.60. Noranda lost 15 cents to 19.00.

Wheat Values Are Firm Due To Winnipeg Strength

CHICAGO, Sept. 14. — (Canadian Press.) — Wheat values displayed considerable firmness at the opening here to-day, largely because of strength in the Winnipeg market and unexpected stability of quotations in Liverpool. Starting 33-8c. to 1c. higher, the wheat market here quickly scored additional gains all around. Corn and oats moved in the wake of wheat, corn starting 1-8c. to 1-2c. up and later advancing still more. Provisions were quiet.

There was a rush to buy wheat here shortly after the trading started which quickly carried the market upward. Commission houses were active buyers and shorts scurried to cover. The lateness of the growing crop attracted the attention of corn traders and tended to give additional firmness to the corn market.

Abitibi's Activity Feature Of Toronto Exchange Session

TORONTO, September 14. — Canadian Press. — Strength and activity of Abitibi featured the trading on the Toronto stock exchange to-day, the stock closing 2 1-2 points higher at 97 1-2. Industrial alcohol was also active but it eased 3-8 to 23 3-4 Massey Harris common advanced 1-2 to 63, and Gooderham and Worts new was off the same amount to 3. Noranda was active andd weaker with a noon close of 19.00 for a net loss of 20 cents. Brazilian tractor sold off 1-4 to 115 1-2, but Consolidated Smelters strengthened 5-8 to 249 1-8. Speculative Pressure Shifts And Market Starts Upward

NEW YORK, Sept. 14 (Canadian Press).—Selling pressure was lifted from to-day's stock market, with the result that the general list swept forward in one of the most impressive buying demonstrations in recent weeks. There was nothing in to-day's news to account for the sudden shift of speculative sentiment, but rather a general feeling existed that the recent reaction had sufficiently corrected the weakened technical position of the market.

Although call money again renewed at five per cent. and the Federal reserve report showed a slight increase in brokers' loans for the week-end last Wednesday, the credit situation was no longer the cause of speculative uneasiness.

Motors, which have been under pressure recently on rumors of further price cuts and falling off in sales, received better buying support. Mack Trucks, which has been under pressure for over a week, opened two points lower at 112, but rallied above 115 by early afternoon and General Motors was selling five points higher.

Heavy buying of amusement shares reflected the appeal made to the speculative imagination by the recent talking pictures placed on the market. Warner Bros. Pictures A, which sold as low at 12 earlier in the year, continued its sensational advance by soaring 6 points to a new record high above 69. Fox Film, Pathe, Famous Players, and Loew's moved up 2 to 4 points.

Speculative interest in rails was confined largely to the southern issues.

FRENCH MINING SHOWS INCREASE

Output For Past Six Months Higher Than in 1925.

The activity of the mining industries in France from January to July, 1926, shows a marked increase when compared with the corresponding period of the preceding year.

According to official figures transmitted to the Bankers Trust Company of New York by its French Information Service, the output of pig iron during the first six months aggregated 4,570,000 tons as against 4,092,000 tons in 1925.

The number of furnaces in blast, which was 133 at the beginning of January and 141 in July 1925, was 147 in January and 153 in July 1926.

When compared with preceding years, the first six months show a record output, for the corresponding half year of 1925 already showed an increase of 7.5 over the first half ear of 1924.

The following are the figures for the monthly output of pig iron during the last three years:

(in thousands of tons)

	1924	1925	1926

The output of steel during the first half year 1926 totalled 4,060,000 tons as against 3,568,000 in 1925. The following are the comparative figures for the last three years:

PRESS CONGRESS SITTINGS START

Third Annual Assembly Begins in Geneva To-day.

GENEVA, Switzerland, Sept. 14. —(Canadian Press.)—The third assembly of the Press Congress of the World was opened to-day, when Vice Rector Werner of the University of Geneva officially welcomed the delegates of thirty nations. The Congress is under the presidency of Dr. Walter Williams, Dean of the School of Journalism of the University of Missouri.

Calling attention to Geneva's role in International events, Dr. Werner gave as an example the entrance of Germany into the League of Nations which had made this city the theatre of a remarkable reconciliation of peoples."

Dr. Williams, in his address, assured the delegates that the League of Journalists could do more good than the League of Nations.

"Here in the capital of the League of Nations," said Dr. Williams. "Even in this noble city, I make bold to say that the League of Journalists, keeping open and free the channels of world communications, may do more good than any other human agency, League or Association of Nations."

To facilitate the gathering and transmission of accurate news he urged that the League or interested governments call a world conference to consider means of making truth more readily available and a reduction of transmission rates.

Gone to the light that shines so fair,
Gone from the earth of sorrow and care;

Gone, dear pal; gone to rest.

E. A. Peck Wins West Riding With About Same Majority That Marked Last Election

Big Vote Cast in City and Country Yesterday With Only Few Polls Giving Lead To Liberal Candidate—Looks For Provincial Fray.

SUCCESSFUL CANDIDATE CHEERED ON APPEARANCE IN VICTORIA HALL

Later News of Development Toward Liberal Sweep Not Commented On—No Public Demonstration Made By Conservative Supporters Last Night.

From the receipt of the earliest reports last night there was no doubt in the minds of Mr. Peck's supporters of the outcome of the General Election in the west riding of Peterborough, and their expectations were more than realized in the final poll. The majority for the Conservative candidate will be about 2,000 when the few missing polls are recorded and the inevitable corrections made. It may be a few hundred more or less, but the result is decisive; it is just as definite as was the outcome of the last General Election, in which Mr. Peck won his first Federal honors by defeating the Hon. G. N. Gordon by 1,963.

There was jubilation in the Conservative committee rooms as poll after poll recorded a majority for the Government candidate, and while the Liberals a block away were solacing themselves in the local defeat by looking at the big party gains elsewhere, the supporters of Mr. Peck were happy in the evidence of a successful campaign at home. The candidate himself was enthusiastically received on his appearance before his supporters, and in a neat speech told of his gratitude to those who had helped him hold West Peterborough for the Conservative party. There was no triumphal procession such as usually marks the victories of the Conservative party, and when The Examiner sought Mr. Peck at 10.30 to obtain a statement on the general situation he could not be found.

Examination of the unrevised figures from the city polls show that Mr. Peck had majorities in 63 of the 71 subdivisions reported. Mr. Duffus' largest majority was at the Town Hall, Douro, where the vote was 135 to 7, and he had substantial majorities in all the polls in North Monaghan, South Monaghan and the village of Lakefield.

What was without doubt one of the most lackadaisical of election campaigns was closed last night in a sudden burst of interest, evidenced by the crowd that thronged George street at The Examiner office where full and fast bulletin service was given. In addition, there were many hundreds of telephone queries answered between the closing of the polls and 2 o'clock this morning.

The old Babylonian astronomers divided the hour into 60 minues. The number 60 was to them a convenient number to be used in division, much as 100 is found handy now.

WINS AGAIN.

E. A. PECK, M.P.

Marshall May Lose His Deposit In East Riding

John S. Marshall's apparent failure to secure half the number of votes polled by his victorious opponent, Dr. A. T. Embury, will cause him to lose his deposit.

In the returns received by The Examiner up to eleven o'clock last night, the Peterboro-Hastings victor had a margin of three votes to one, and had been behind only in four polls.

The Peterborough section of the riding went strong for Embury, every village and township helping to pile up the huge majority. The Town Hall at Warsaw provided an interesting battle, the returns showing a tie vote.

Meighen's Ministers Go Down to Defeat Along With Leader

Three Members of Cabinet Lose in Quebec—Hon. Robert Rogers Beaten in Winnipeg—Two Ministerial Losses in Ontario.

MEMBERS OF FORMER KING CABINET ARE RETURNED IN THEIR RIDINGS

OTTAWA, Sept. 15 (Canadian Press).—The Conservative Government of the Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen met with defeat at the polls yesterday. The Prime Minister himself failed to secure election in Portage la Prairie, Manitoba, and five of his ministers three of them from the Province of Quebec, were defeated. On the other hand, the Liberal party headed by Rt. Hon. Mackenzie King, constitutes the largest group in the new parliament of Canada. Mr.King and all members of his former government who contested ridings were returned by the electorate. Mr. King was elected in Prince Albert, Sask.

Liberals 118; Conservatives 90; Progressives 7; Liberal-Progressives 11; United Farmers of Alberta 11; Labor 3; Independents 2; Doubtful 3. Total 245.

Party standing after election October, 1925, was as follows:

Conservatives 116; Liberals 102; Progressives 23; Labor 2; Independents 2. Total 245.

Members of the government in addition to Premier Meighen who were defeated yesterday are: Hon. E. L. Patenaude, Minister of Justice; Hon. Andre Fauteaux, Solicitor General; Hon. Eugene Paquet, Minister of Health and Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment; and two ministers without portfolio, Hon. Donald Sutherland and Hon. Raymond Morand.

Former ministers in the King Government, in addition to the Liberal leader who were re-elected are: Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Hon. P. J. Cardin, Hon. Lucien Cannon, Hon. J.A. Robb, Hon. J. C. Elliott, Hon.

PETERBORO MEN USUALLY FOUND ON WINNING SIDE

Eleven Times Riding Has Sent Back Supporter of Party in Power

FIVE IN OPPOSITION.

Votes in General Elections Close Until Recent Years.

Peterborough has been eleven times on the winning side in general elections since Confederation and has on five ocacsions sent a man to swell the ranks of the Opposition one of these being at a by-election when a Government supporter came out on the losing side of the count. Not until 1917 was a member for Peterborough returned by a majority exceeding 360. Since then the winning candidate at a general election has always had a four figured lead. The first Peterborough member received 29 votes more than his opponent and in 1887 the winning candidate was only 16 votes ahead of his opponent. The most rapid rise in the local electoral table is furnished by the comparison of the figures for 1911 and 1917, J. H. Burnham winner on both ocacsions being returned by 42 votes in the former year and by 3,418 in the latter.

A curious situation arose after the general election of 1872 in which year J. Bertram, the Liberal candidate, was elected, but never took his seat, as the returning officer declared the Conservative candidate, W. Cluxton, to be the winner. Mr. Cluxton sat in the House of Commons from March, 1873, to November of the same year, and before plans to unseat him were matured, the House dissolved on January, 1874, and Mr. Bertram became undisputed winner in the subsequent appeal to the electors.

Mackenzie King Has Larger Following Than Meighen Had Last Year—Progressives and Labor Groups Gain More Seats Also.

MR. MEIGHEN'S COURSE IS CENTRE OF INTEREST

Aid From Labor Members and Liberal-Progressives Would Give King 130, or Majority of 15 in Division—Others May Help Him.

TORONTO, Sept. 15 (Canadian Press).—After six weeks' campaigning from coast to coast, culminating in yesterday's battle of polls, political interest shifts back today to the Capital, to Pariament Hill, and perhaps to Rideau Hall itself. The most definite thing that emerges from the smoke of conflict is that Premier Meighen has failed in his bid for popular support and has lost the solid foothold he had in the last Parliament as leader of the largest group with 116 supporters, just seven short of a clear majority. With all the returns in, his following will be less than the round hundred the Liberals returned in October of last year. On the other hand, Mr. Mackenzie King early today had already passed Mr. Meighen's following of 116 of the last session. He can count assuredly on the support of Mr. Bourassa, the Independent member for Labelle, but who has not during the late campaign lost an opportunity of attacking Mr. Meighen. He can also count with some certainty on the support of the three Labor members, A. A. Heaps of Winnipeg North, and Rev. J. S. Woodsworth of Winnipeg North Centre, who gave him pretty consistent support last session, as well as a new recruit to Labor ranks, H. B. Adshead, of Calgary East. In addition there is the whole Progressive body, increased from a couple of dozen to about thirty members, lacking indeed the cohesion with

LOSERS BREAK USUAL TRADITION BY CELEBRATING

Liberals Cheer When Returns Show Party Successful.

PARADE STREETS

Success of Party in Dominion Offsets Local Defeat.

Contrary to all established precedent in West Peterborough and elsewhere, the losing side did the celebrating. The Liberals held the only procession through the city, after the returns were completed.

A large number of cars filled with cheering supporters of J. J. Duffus drove along George Street, tooting their horns, and followed by a troop of Liberals, with the defeated candidate in the van, hat in hand, and leading the cheering.

It was evident that the source of the gaiety was the standing of the parties, which pointed to an early resumption by Mackenzie King of the Premiership now held by Arthur Meighen. The name of Mackenzie King was repeatedly extolled by the processionists, and a lady on the march held aloft a copy of the Examiner extra, which stated in the top headline: Liberal gain—14.

The procession passed through the crowd assembled in front of The Examiner Office, and, turning at Brock Street, retraced its steps along George Street. Evidently the procession was to the liking of the marchers, for they came back a second time with an equally enthusiastic vociferation. The marchers singled out well-known Conservatives standing on the sidewalk and poked good-natured fun at their erstwhile opponents, twitting them with sending a man to sit in the cold shades of Opposition at Ottawa. "Aren't you sick?" and "What do you think of the news from Portage la Prairie?" were questions that were hurled at the onlookers.

The idea of forming into procession followed two brief speeches at Liberal headquarters from Messrs. Hetherington and Gliddon, who mustered the crowd and led a march that in some respects is unique in the annals of political warfare in West Peterborough.

Northumberland Gave Maybee 346 Majority

Conservative Candidate Re-elected, But Majority Reduced From 1,150 Against Fred Slade Last October—Third Successive Victory For Milton E. Maybee.

THANKS CAMPBELLFORD CROWD FOR THIRD SUCCESSIVE VICTORY

(Examiner Correspondence)

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 15.—With his majority of 1,150 last October reduced to 346, Milton E. Maybee yesterday won his third successive victory as the standard-bearer of the Conservatives of Northumberland county defeating William A. Fraser, Mayor of Trenton in perhaps the sharpest contest in the Central Ontario sector of the federal campaign.

Elated with his own success but just as modest as usual, Mr. Maybee addressed an enthusiastic crowd of about three hundred of his supporters in front of the Conservative committee rooms here last night. He had just arrived by motor from his home near Brighton and remained half an hour as a stop-over on his way to Cobourg.

"I realize that we have come through a strenuous campaign," he spoke through a megaphone. "All credit is due to those who opposed us for the very stiff campaign they waged. I wish to thank all of you for the splendid way you carried on the campaign and for the loyal support you gave me. I appreciate this renewal of your confidence very much. There has been a considerable reduction in our majority today but I looked upon the majority last year as not normal for Northumberland. I hope the results will be equally satisfactory in Canada as a whole."

Alluding to Campbellford's needed post office, which had been mentioned in the course of the campaign, Mr. Maybee said, "I hope Mr. Meighen has a sufficient majority so that I can approach him in connection with a new post office for Campbellford. I thank you again, and I am glad to be able to say that I have been elected again. I will give my best endeavours to represent all the electors in this constituency."

In his committee rooms Mr. Maybee had previously paid a warm tribute to his co-workers especially acknowledging the efforts of the women during the long campaign.

Grits Cheer First.

Yesterday's polling in town rolled up an aggregate of 1621 votes, 39 more than the total of 1582 a year ago. In the contest with Fred Slade, Mr. Maybee received 968 votes to Mr. Slade's 614, giving a majority of 354.

Yesterday Maybee's majority here was 257, his total being 939 to Fraser's 682. In other words, with 30 more votes registered this year the victor's margin was 97 less than

DON JUAN

Novel by INEZ SABASTIEN

SYNOPSIS

Don Juan's disillusioned father warns him: "Destroy women or they will destroy you. Take their love scornfully—and forget!" This advice has made Don Juan the greatest lover of all time. But his gay philosophy is checked in Rome by the disarming innocence of beauteous Adriana Varanese, with whom he falls madly in love. The affair is dangerous because infamous Lucretia Borgia loves Juan, while her kinsman, Doanti, covets Adriana. Outraged by Juan's first approach, Adriana avoids him. He humbly contrives to meet her again.

CHAPTER VI.—Continued.

A tiny pulse throbbed in her throat. She knew a sudden impulse to run, but a stronger one, to stay, held her. After an instant's silence she spoke, raising her great dark eyes to his face.

"I know that you have been here, for I have seen you," she told him truthfully.

Juan could hardly believe that. She was as lovely as the Madonna, he told himself. He could not look into her eyes, could not face the beautiful innocence that looked out from them. Kneeling, he lifted the hem of her dress to his lips and kissed it.

Looking down at his bent head, Adriana smiled tenderly, as one might smile at a beloved child. She could not understand the devotion that moved him, or appreciate the depths of passion that the sight of her had stirred in him.

When he rose, however, and his expression showed her how greatly moved he was, her eyes filled with tears.

"My soul has been asleep," he said to her, "and you have wakened it."

And the trembling of his voice, the humble, beseeching manner that was his, told her more plainly than any words could have that his heart was in her keeping. Here was no sign of the gallant lover; here stood a man with reverence and worship in his eyes, who adored her, a man who would be ruled by her slightest wish, and who without her must be incomplete forever.

Because of her innocence and unworldliness she could not realize the depth of the devotion that he offered her, but she did know that he was the hero of her most romantic dreams, that the love he offered her was all that she had longed to have come into her life.

They stood there in the quiet garden, amid the flowers pouring their fragrance into the sunlit air, with the Virgin in her blue robe looking down benignly upon them, and they felt as if all the world stood still in that moment, held motionless in its course between the suns of the universe, because they loved each other.

They did not dream that anyone saw them. Had they known that Lucretia Borgia stood in the doorway of the church, looking at them, they would hardly have believed it, because the sunny garden seemed made for them and them alone.

Plan after plan she rejected, finding none of them hideous enough to accomplish the revenge that she must carry out if she was to satisfy the hatred that surged through her.

Beside her stood Maia, her lady-in-waiting.

"Did I not tell you, my lady?" she murmured. "You venot seen him of late—and there is the reason why. Will you not believe me now?"

And Lucretia, unwillingly, believed. Yet she turned angrily on Maia, hating her for being the means of making this belief come into being. And she hated herself for having lost her heart to this handsome young Spaniard. She told herself that she had thrown it at his feet, and that he had not even bothered to pick it up.

In that moment she knew emotions that she had never known before. Never until now had she been really jealous; it had always been far too easy to get what she wanted. Now she felt cold all over, and a curious trembling seemed to run through her whole body. She felt as if something had died within her. Merciless she had been, and inhumanly cruel, but never until now had she been so completely ruled by hatre

She had seen murder done at her order and smiled as death claimed her victims; now for an instant she lost all restraint. Gladly would she have killed both Adriana and Juan with her own hands.

And like a knife run through her heart was the knowledge that in spite of his treatment of her, she loved the man who stood there looking down at another woman with his soul in his eyes.

Juan was speaking to Adriana again; his words came clearly to Lucretia through the soft spring air.

"You have given me a new faith," he was saying, and every word was a caress, and the expression in his eyes was like kisses on the girl's drooping eyelids. "Belief in the goodness of women. Teach me—help me—so that I may never lose faith again!"

Lucretia, watching and listening, yet wishing wretchedly that she could neither hear nor see, was sick at heart. Men had adored her, had given their lives for her, gladly, triumphantly. Yet now she knew that never had any man loved her as this gallant young Spaniard loved the girl who stood there lifting innocent, shining eyes to his.

"She cannot love him as I do," Lucretia told herself bitterly. "Never could she learn the ways of love as I know them. It is I who am meant for him—and I shall have him!"

And standing there in the shadows, like a venomous snake that soon will strike, she watched the two lovers who stood in the sunlight, looking at each other as if the world held nothing but their love.

After a moment Adriana tore her gaze from his. She must go—she wanted to stay, but could tarry no longer. Her father would be anxious about her even now. Since the night of the Borgias' ball, and Donati's vicious attack, her father had felt that Rome was no safe place for him and his daughter.

She held out one slender hand to Juan, with the sweet, innocent smile of a child for a beloved one. Juan, bending reverently over it, told himself that never before had he met anyone so pure of heart. He would not have believed that such a woman could exist, until he met her.

He would teach her what the love of a man for a woman could be, its strength, its beauty, its tenderness. He would be gentle and kind with her, as he had never been before. He longed to make himself over for her sake, to cleanse himself of every evil thought that had ever crossed his mind. He hated the memory of the women to whom he had pretended to make love in the past, and hoped that she could forgive him the philandering of the past, because she and his love for her had made him a new man, having nothing in common with the one who had been known as the greatest lover in all Europe.

And so he stood watching her as she walked away from him, worshipping her, envying the path along which she walked because her feet touched it, envying the nodding flowers because their fragrant petals brushed her skirts as she passed.

Asbestos Roofings are not expensive

BECAUSE asbestos shingles are used on the finest houses some people have the idea that they are necessarily expensive.

That is not true. You can get the beauty, durability, and fire-safety, of asbestos shingles at a very moderate price.

And remember what you get. A better shingle—beautiful, permanent, fire-safe—far more for your money than with ordinary shingles. Cheap shingles are the expensive ones. Asbestos shingles will cost you less.

51 YEARS MARRIED.

Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Orser Are Still Well and Strong.

NORHAM, Sept. 15.—One year ago today Mr. and Mrs. David Hulbert Orser, aunt and uncle of Hon. G. N. Gordon of ePterborough, celebrated the golden jubilee of their marriage, at their home in the Orser neighborhood in Brighton Township surrounded by a host of friends and neighbors. They are both still hale and hearty and able to attend to their regular duties on the farm.

Mr. Orser was born in Prince Edward County on November 21, 1854. He is a son of the late David Orser of United Empire stock. His grandfather was a prosperous farmer in New York State when the American Revolution broke out, and rather than surrender his allegiance to the British Crown, he abandoned his property and took to pioneer life with his family in Canada, settling at Beach Creek, near Kingston.

A part of the land which he owned now forms the site of Sing Sing, the famous penitentiary, New York State. For generations the Orsers have been noted as musicians and singers. In New York States they were known far and wide as the "Sing-Sing" family, and it is recorded that this is the reason why that term was used to designate the prison built on the site of their old home.

Mr. Orser's father was born near Kingston but later moved to Prince Edward County and while these secured the Crown deed of the home in the neighborhood where his son now resides. It was then a bush, but now the most productive and highly improved farm in Brighton Township.

The commodious brick house in which Mr. and Mrs. Orser have lived for these fifty?one years was built over one hundred years ago to replace the primeval log cabin. It is a comfortable home, fitted with andirons and old-fashioned fireplace. On the floor in front of the fireplace and countersunk in the stone are the words, "Home, Sweet Home." This was the second brick house built in Brighton Township. The bricks used in its construction were made on the spot from the clay excavated from the cellar.

Seventy-five years ago the Methodist Episcopal Church, a modest log structure, stood on this homestead.

Mr. Orser's musical talents enabled him to play well by ear when he was so small that he had to be helped upon the stood of the harmonium. He later became an expert with both the organ and the piano, being obliged to retire from the musical field a few years ago when his hands became unfit because of rheumatism.

Mrs. Orser, nee Eneta Newcombe, was born at Orland, and is a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Newcombe.

Their long companionship has not been without its sharows and sorrows. About thirty years ago Mr. and Mrs. Orser lost a son, James Hudbert, at two years, and later, a daughter, Eneta Alberts, at thirteen days. They are cheerful and optimistic. Their many friends wish them many happy returns on this their anniversary.

MISSIONARY TALK GIVEN AT MARMORA

Canon G. E. Simmons Addresses United Church Congregation on Sunday Morning.

MARMORA, Sept. 15.—Canon G. E. Simmons, missionary on furlough from Honan, China, paid a welcome return visit to Marmora on Sunday. Speaking at the morning session of the United Church Sunday school, he dealt strikingly with the educational work being carried on in China to-day, basing his remarks on "Suffer Little Children to Come Unto Me," which he recited in Chinese. He also showed three patterns of Chinese lady's slippers, the first being the type of centuries of usage, the second that used on the unbound foot of the Christian convert, and the third that worn by the lady of Christian birth in that land. These, with a small Chinese Buddha, were displayed to the fascination of the scholars.

Preaching at St. Paul's at the eleven o'clock celebration of Holy Communion, Canon Simmons chose Isa, 49.8 as his text. He commenced by drawing a comparison between the entrance of Paul and Silas into European Phillipi and Thessalonica which their message from the East and that of Western missionaries into the Orient to-day on the errand of Christianity. He dealt in graphic manner with China's anti-foreign or rather anti-Christian troubles, and traced the ever-increasing impact of Christianity upon non-Christian communities. China is advancing to-day through a succession of those who are imbued with the spirit of those who turned the world upside down. Canon Simmons then made reference to his work as treasurer of the Provincial Famine Relief Fund in Honan when 600,000 dollars were sent from Canada. For this, he was honoured by the Chinese authorities in being invested with the Order of the Grain of Felicity. Proceeding, he made the interesting announcement that the Buddhists of China were copying the Christians in their services to-day. They are taking our hymns and substituting the name of Buddha for that of Jesus. They are assembling the people to hear sermons. They are asking for a revision of treaties along the lines of Christianity. Canon Simmons concluded with an appeal to his hearers to pray on, to give on and to organize all missionary effort that fullest results might obtain.

St. Paul's was filled at evensong when officers and brethren of Marmora A.F. & A.M. No. 222 attended in goodly numbers. Canon Simmons, who is a highly esteemed member of the Order, delivered a most impressive sermon, choosing 1 Co. 3, verses 16 and 17, for his text and for his thesis, "The Masons of the Shrine of God." At both services the Rector officiated. The interior of St. Paul's was made more beautiful for the occasion by choice asters, chrysanthemums and other flowers, occupying positions in chancel and nave.

THE LOCAL RESULT.

The re-election of Mr. E. A. Peck, Conservative candidate in West Peterboro, was perhaps anticipated by the majority of the electors, although there were many predictions that the margin would not be as great as in the election of last October.

However, the final majority for Mr. Peck over Mr. Duffus, his opponent of yesterday, will not, when the complete figures are in, differ greatly from last year's majority.

The esteem in which the victorious candidate is held in all parts of the riding and the effective work of a well-directed organization of enthusiastic supporters were big factors in the victory.

Mr. Peck carried the majority of the city polls by a wide margin, and an examination of the figures shows that in a number of the rural subdivisions he made an even better showing than in 1925, particularly in the townships of North Monaghan, South Monaghan and Smith.

Mr. Duffus, in his first essay into the political arena, conducted a splendid campaign, and he, in common with his opponent, is to be congratulated upon the clean tactics adopted and the absence from the fight of personalities and other disagreeable features.

It was a gentlemanly campaign throughout, and in that respect both parties deserve the thanks of the electorate.

MR. MASON'S RESIGNATION.

The resignation of Mr. E. F. Mason, Chairman of the Peterboro Utilities Commission, has been received with regret by the citizens.

Mr. Mason has done the community splendid service during his connection with the Commission.

Few people have anything but the faintest idea of the amount of time devoted by Mr. Mason to the duties of his public position.

Being Chairman of such an organization is in no sense of the word a sinecure, especially when one throws oneself so thoroughly into the work as Mr. Mason has done.

His conception of his duty to the people, on whose behalf he was serving, was a lofty one, and for his years of good service he deserves great praise and general thanks.

THE DOMINION RESULT.

While the final standing of the parties as this was being written was a matter of conjecture, in so far as Mr. King's commanding a clear majority of straight Liberals was concerned, there was no doubt of the defeat of the Meighen Government.

The Conservatives, with only nine seats to gain in addition to those they held at dissolution, not only found it impossible to capture those much-coveted additional seats but had to yield ground almost everywhere, except in Nova Scotia, where they registered a net gain of one, and in Quebec, where they managed to hold the four seats won by them last year.

This failure in Quebec would have made it almost impossible under any circumstances for the Meighen Government to gain a clear majority, but bad as it was, the unexpected Liberal successes in Ontario, where substantial inroads were made by Mr. King's candidates in the western portions of the Province and the total collapse of the Conservative campaign where the Premier himself and Hon. Robert Rogers were among the fallen, spelled complete disaster for Mr. Meighen and his Government.

The return to office of Mr. King will, of course, be the immediate consequence of the election.

He can count upon the support not only of the official Liberal candidates but also of the Liberal-Progressives and Independents, and while this assurance of a substantial following will be gratifying to Mr. King, his will not be an easy task in handling the various groups of Western members.

The customs matter does not seem to have played a very prominent part in the arrival of yesterday's result.

The irresponsible charges so freely flung about early in the campaign by Messrs. Doucet and Nicholson, charges that were easily disproven, undoubtedly did much to destroy the effectiveness of Conservative attacks upon the administration of the King Government as revealed by the customs investigation.

It would be unfortunate were the verdict of yesterday to be interpreted as meaning that the people of Canada condoned such conditions as were disclosed by the investigation.

Rather should it be taken as an indication that the electors have accepted Mr. King's promise to complete the customs probe and to deal with it sternly and effectively.

The cleaning up of that mess will have to be one of the first tasks to which the new Government will have to address itself.

A clear majority of straight Liberals over all, it is hoped, will eventuate, and in this hope Conservatives as well as Liberals will share, believing that such a result would be infinitively better than the conditions that existed during the last few sessions of Parliament.

IN THE DISTRICT.

The Conservative sweep of 1925 in Eastern Ontario was repeated yesterday, this whole section of Ontario going solidly in favour of the Government.

In some ridings, notably in Ontario and in Northumberland, the fight was particularly keen, and Liberal gains had been predicted.

However, in every riding in this district the Conservatives were victorious yesterday, with the same standard-bearers as in 1925, while all but one of the victors had to face a new opponent.

The spectacular features of the 1925 campaign, including the contesting of Durham by Hon. Vincent Massey, were missing on this occasion, the Northumberland contest, in which M. E. Maybee defeated W. A. Fraser, furnishing the most excitement in this part of the district.

In Hastings-Peterboro Dr. Embury, the Conservative candidate, piled up such a big vote that John Marshall, the Liberal nominee, will lose his deposit.

Stinson in Victoria, Bowen in Durham, Tummon in South Hastings and Ross in Kingston all had easy victories.

Eastern Ontario's representation in the new Parliament will be exactly the same as it was in the last House.

A PROVINCIAL ELECTION.

Just as a bit of consolation to a public already surfeited with politics, the intimation that a Provincial election is likely to follow closely upon the heels of the present Federal campaign may be offered.

The report has become current that Premier Ferguson plans to p ' his fortune to the torch within the next few weeks, not later than November 1.

There are nine constituencies in Ontario which are at present without representation in the House.

To allow these riding to go without a member in the next session of the Legislature would cause a great deal of adverse criticism, and it is current opinion that instead of holding by-elections the Government will go to the country in a general election.

The final decision may, of course, rest upon the result of today's campaign in Ontario, but there seems much reason to believe that before many days the announcement of an election may be made by Premier Ferguson.

A BRIGHTENING OUTLOOK.

Since the war fluctuating currencies have furnished the most serious of all obstacles to international trade. The depreciation of the French and Belgian franc, together with the fall of the Italian lire, stood very definitely in the way of European rehabilitation; and the stagnation which accompanied this financial situation reacted on the trade of America, which includes Canada. At one time the outlook was very grave; but a hopeful change has supervened. Italy has finally resolved to reduce her paper money circulation by five billion lire during the current budget year, and this is taken by the financial world as suggesting that France and Belgium will join in a comprehensive movement to bring about currency stability.

Italy's plan is heroic. It begins by turning over to the Bank of Italy the $90,000,000 loan made through the house of Morgan in New York, and thus retire 2,500,000,000 lire which had been issued as an advance to the State. Silver coinage will replace a large volume of paper money now in circulation in addition to which there will be a budget reduction of 500,000,000 lire yearly in circulation.

The soundness of this plan, and belief in both the ability and sincerity of Italy to make good, were evidenced in an immediate and substantial advance in the exchange rate on the lira in New York. Wall Street has been most favourably impressed; and the inference seems to be general that if Italy can stabilize her currency by such methods France and Belgium could do the same.

The trouble with France is not so much economic as it is political. No party seems to be able to hold the reins of government long enough to put into effect any well-considered measure for the strengthening of the franc. Delay has brought about very discouraging results; yet no one doubts that France will straighten up her political situatin, and will then deal drastically and effectively with the matter of her currency.—Exchange.

CANADA AND CRIME.

Vice is seldom successful when wearing its own clothes. To make headway it must be disguised in the garb of virtue. And this it has learned to do, as our American neighbors are discovering to their cost and confusion. Banditry across the boundary has copied the fundamental plan of big business and is now thoroughly organized. The thief and swindler no longer operate independently or in relatively small groups; but are merely units in a huge organization, and have therefore lost all traces of anything which could be identified as picturesque or heroic. The object of all commercial organization is to reduce hazards to the lowest possible minimum; and the bandits have recognized in a practical way the soundness of that principle.

Banditry in the big cities of the United States is less risky than is a business enterprise. This is not an outside opinion, and therefore of little value. It is the sober and considered judgment of eminent jurists and of the American press in general. The thief himself is but the front line operator. Back of him are the fence, the criminal lawyer, the professional bondsman, and, most valuable of all, the ward politician. result that crime flourishes on a scale that Americans themselves admit to be a national scandal. The bandit does not fear conviction, because he knows that his release from a prison sentence is only a matter of time, often merely months. The politicians look after pardons and paroles for him.

Canada lies right alongside the United States, and affords a rich field for exploitation; yet she has relatively little of the banditry which flourishes so successfully a few miles away. There must be a reason; and, of course, there is. That reason is summed up in the fact that our concept of law is fundamentally different from that which obtains on the southern side of the boundary. Over there the administration of law and order is interwoven with the political system under constitutional practice. Judges and magistrates are elected, and are therefore, unavoidably, linked up with the politicians. The underworld makes use of the situation by allying itself with political agencies, and thereby secures a certain measure of protection. If political power is not able to prevent the conviction of a thief, it very frequently, comes to his rescue after he has been committed to prison.

It is in one sense none of our business, although we are constantly menaced by the success of banditry in the neighboring republic, yet it seems certain that the United States will not be able to check the rising tide of crime until the British system is substituted for that which is now in force. Many of her best jurists have already reached that conclusion. It would, of course, be a terrible wrench to the self-sufficiency of our neighbors to have to copy Canada in anything of that nature; nevertheless it looks as if they would have to take the plunge. They may rest assured we would accept the tribute without gloating.—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

In West Peterboro both parties had an opportunity during the evening to rejoice.

Now the voting is over let us put the Peterboro Industrial Exhibition over the top.

What issues resulted in yesterday's verdict? The answer will require more than a few hours thought.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, Sept. 15—Cattle buying put on a livelier gait in the last hour or two of Monday's market and of the heavy run of nearly 6,000 cattle, there was only a small carry over of about 700. A run of about 600 cattle for yesterday, one-third Ontarios, found a fair steady market at Monday'sdecline of about 15c to 25c, the cut being chiefly on the heavy steers.

Export buyers took their full quoto of 800 cattle for this week's shipment to seaboard. It is expected about the same number will be required for next week.

The hog market is still unsettled, buyers sitting tight on their bid of $12.50 off cars.

Export prices average about 15c lower on the heavy steers than a week ago yesterday. Heavy steers, $7.25 to $8. The store cattle cost $7.

Butcher cattle, steady with last week's closing for choice butcher quality steers and heifers. Western offerings include many killers, but few of choice quality. The choicest butcher steers were going from $6.50 to $7.

Fat cows firmer at from $4.50 to $5.50

Calves steady, $12 to $13.

Hogs, unsettled, buyers bidding 25c lower at $12.50 off cars.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Sept. 15 (Canadian Press).—Aggressive buying by local and eastern shorts combined with impressive strength in Winnipeg gave wheat values a decided turn upward yesterday. Despite a slight reaction just before the close, when some some early buyers turned to the selling side, the market closed strong at a net gain of 1 7-8 to 3 cents. Corn finished 3-8c down to 3-8c up; oats gained 1-4c to 7-8c, and provisions were 5 cents lower to 2 1-2 cents higher.

Wet weather over part of the corn belt coupled with the strength in wheat helped corn values early but later the offerings from the country increased and the market eased off.

Advices which told of considerable damage and delay to oats threshing because of soaking rains, gave that cereal a firm undertone.

CHICAGO CATTLE

CHICAGO, Sept. 15 (Canadian Press).—Cattle 15,000; all grades and classes fed and grass steers steady to strong; best fed yearlings 11.60; heavies 11.45; vealers 50c higher at $13 to $14.

Hogs, 22,000; closed very uneven anywhere from steady to 75c lower, few desirable packing sows and heavy butchers steady, top $14.10; bulk desirable 210 pounds down $13.50 to $14; bulk 220 to 250 pound butchers$13 to $13.75; most 260 to 325 pound averages $12 to $13; bulk strong weight slaughter pigs $12.75 to $13.25.

Sheep 26,000; fat lambs closing steady to 25c lower than Monday; bulk westerns $14.50 to $14.75; some held above $14.90 late; sheep closing steady to 25c higher.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Sept. 15 (Canadian Press).—The export trade in the Montreal market yesterday was dull owing to the fact that prices bid for Manitoba Spring wheat overnight were 2s. per quarter below what exporters asked, and the bids on oats were 4 1-2 cents per bushel out of line. There was some business done in ocean freights with the Continent and the undertone to the market was firm.

The domestic trade in cash grain was also quiet, the demand being only for odd cars to meet immediate wants.

A stronger feelingdeveloped in the local market for Spring wheat grades of flour and prices were marked up 10 cents per barrel which is the first change that has taken place in an upward direction for some weks. The market was fairly active there being a steady demand for the suplies from most sources and a good business was done.

The tone of the market for millfeed remained firm under a steady demand. A considerable volume of business was done.

The baled hay market was quiet with a steady undertone.

A feature of the local egg situation was the stronger feeling that developed in the market for fresh extras and firsts, and prices were advanced 2 cents per dozen, attributed to the continued small supplies coming forward. The demand was in excess of the offerings. There was no change in prices for storage eggs, but the tone of the market was firm with a good trade passing. The receipts were 2,458 cases.

Butter receipts 845 packages. The strength that developed in the market on Monday was more pronounced yesterday and prices scored another advance of 1 cent per pound. The increase being again attributed to a sustained demand and smaller receipts.

Cheese receipts 13,546 boxes. The tone of this market was also stronger and prices were 1-4 cent per lb. higher. Steady improvement in demand from English importers featured the market.

The tone of the bean market was steady, but the volume of business was small, with car lots of choice white hand-picked quoted at $2.25 per bushel, and broken lots at $2.25 to $2.45 per bushel.

STERLING EXCHANGE

MONTREAL, Sept. 15 (Canadian Press). — Sterling exchange was quoted here yesterday as follows:

Sterling demand $4.84 3-8.

Sterling cables $4.84 7-8.

NORTHUMBERLAND GAVE MAYBEE, ETC.

in 1925, indicating the inroads the Liberals succeeded in making behind the leadership of "Billy" Fraser.

In fact the Liberal headquarters raised the first cheers when No. 2 ward gave Maybee 155 and Fraser 152 as against Maybee's 186 to Slade's 143 a year ago. This was a gain of 40. No. 1 showed but little change, and Ward No. 4 coming in shortly after produced a Liberal gain of 64. That is, Maybee 265 to Slade's 108, a majority of 157 last October, but yesterday Maybee had 236 to 143, a majority of 93 in that Ward. And just when visions were broadening among Don Douglas and his followers, Ward No. 3 turned in a majority of 140 for Maybee, which represented a loss of 106 in the comparative calculations.

	Fraser	Maybee
Ward No. 1	227	248
Ward No. 2	152	155
Ward No. 3	160	300
Ward No. 4	143	236
	682	939

Such was Campbellford's verdict. It narrowed Mr. Maybee's margin of last year, but it carried scant comfort to the Grits.

At 6.45, three polls from Seymour township, Menie, Stanwood and Petherick's gave Fraser 271 to Maybee's 224 a majority of 47, but passing 7 o'clock returns increased Maybee's majority to 326 from 12 places. Brighton village added 219. At 7.25 fifteen polling places had swung the Conservative's lead to 547. And by 7.30 p.m. twenty-two places put 747 ahead, and when Cobourg clocked in with 111 majority for Maybee the end was in sight.

Hastings gave Fraser 33, and Haldimand township 432 over Maybee and with that last figure the Conservatives started to celebrate.

The majorities tabulated late last night were:

	Fraser	Maybee
Cobourg		111
Campbellford		257
Brighton		212
Hastings	33
Alnwick Township	1
Brighton Township		61
Colborne		14
Crahame Township		1
Hamilton Township	83
Percy Township	8
Seymour Township		45
Haldimand Township	432
Murray Township		195

Dominion Results

Meanwhile the wires began to reflect the fortunes of war on the Federal front, and the gloom that had settled in the Liberal headquarters gradually lifted upstairs to the Conservative rooms as Mackenzie King's ranks of followers swelled from the Atlantic through to Winnipeg. Quebec was again Quebec, and the Ontario transfer of seats from one column to the other had opposite effects in the opposing camps here. Toronto's solid bloc had been discounted in the anticipatory reckoning. The defeat of the Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen was a blow to his faithful followers; but if there was silence in that quarter, there were cheers in the Liberal company as the Conservative chieftain's defeat loomed as a certainty.

Victory at Hastings

Hastings Liberals refused to retreat from the salient they had thrust into the Conservative line, and after a parade with bagpipe music they crowded into George Stevenson's office for the radio reports.

At midnight they were still counting the Liberal's accumulating Commoners, but the general victory could not entirely assuage the feeling of loss in W. A. Fraser's defeat. Hastings was the only urban community to give Fraser a majority, and the 33 votes were 23 more than last year's Liberal majority there.

Some of the sub-division majorities were: Trent River 48, Meyersburg 21, English Line 21, Dartford 41, Orland 18, and for Fraser: Norham 36, Cobourg Road 36.

WISE AND OTHERWISE

There are 365 days in a year. This gives you 365 times when you can start upon the road to success.

Don't depend upon the bars in the jail windows to keep you out.

Lying about your age is like setting the clock back to keep the hour from being so late.

The way to get even with an enemy is by learning something from him.

A couple without children always manages to find troubles of some sort to fill the vacancy.

If you'll keep quiet you'll learn that you at least had sense enough to keep quiet.

Marrying for money is a hard life. When you make love you shouldn't mean business.

Rolling a hoop spinning a top or playing marbles are better exercise than golf but less expensive.

When a man is wrong he usually tries to dodge the blame by thinking the world is wrong.

Many a tenant gets more out of life than his landlord.

Those who haev the things we want never seem to appreciate them as much as we think we would.

Ambition is great stuff but use your head. A grasshopper shouldn't try to learn to be a kangaroo.

Hell hath no fury like a woman who has broken a fingernail washing dishes.

Leaving footprints on the sands of time is hard because you can't keep off the rocks.

There really isn't any use in thinking here isn't any use.

A THOUGHT FOR TODAY

He that passeth by and meddleth with strife belonging not to him is like one that taketh a dog by the ears.—Prov. 26:17.

We should enjoy more peace if we did not busy ourselves with the words and deeds of other men which appertain not to our charge. —Jeremy Taylor.

FADS OF THE FAMOUS

SANTOS DUMONT.

Santos Dumont, Bazilian inventor, to whom South Americans credit the invention of the aeroplane, has one great hobby—traveling between Rio de Janeiro and Paris.

Dumont rarely spends more than two months of the year at his beautiful home in Petropolis, a mountain resort near Rio de Janiero. Most of this time is spent in Paris and on steamers between Rio and France.

Dumont also goes in for collecting models of aeroplanes, dirigibles, automobiles, locomotives and ships, and has several hundred of such in his Petropolis home.

THE BIGGEST THING WE KNOW.

Astronomers are studying what they say is the largest thing known to science—a super-universe so far out in space it takes ten million years for light from its centre to reach us, yet so fast that a light ray would require two million years to cross it.

The largest thing is described in Popular Science Monthly as a cloud of galaxies containing at least 108 spiral nebulae or separate universes like the one of which our sun and stars are parts.

Lyrics Of Life

(By Douglas Malloch.)

GIVE ME AN OLD MAN

Give me an old man for a friend
When I am young, a man who knows
The country just around the bend
A little nearer to the snows.
For men will fail upon life's trail
Who only on their youth depend;
Give me a boy to share my joy
But give me an old man for a friend.

I know how brightly skies will bend
With beauty when the heart is young;
When nights and coin we freely spend.
And cups are passed, and songs are sung.
But I shall learn that wicks that burn
The brightest soonest reach the end,
And, in the hour when nights are dour,
Give me an old man for a friend.

Give me a young man to attend
My dancing steps, when nights are fair;
But when the dance is at an end
I hope I find another there.
Some fine old man life's sky to scan
I hope the hand of God will send—
A prodigal is a merry pal;
But give me an old man for a friend.

NEW GOALS FOR OLD

(By Dr. Frank Crane.)

Georges Clemenceau, after an active life as teacher, soldier, editor, statesman and writer, said on his eighty-fifth birthday

"Happiness comes only in the continuation of work and not in finishing your job."

Burton in his poem "Kasidah, or the Lay of the Higher Law," expresses the same idea in different words when he asks

"And who 'mid e'en the fools
But feels that half the joy is in the race
For wealth and fame and place
Nor sighs when comes success to crown the chase."

Every so often in life this lesson has to be pounded in.

Every so often we arrive at a goal toward which we have been struggling and find that having reached it something is lacking

Men look forward to the day when they will return to their old home town rich or famous or powerful. They imagine what such a day of days would be like.

But those few who are fortunate enough to reach their goal find that the day of days never arrives—as imagined.

Something is always lacking.

Instead of being able to sit down the rest of his life and bask comfortably in the sun of his achievements the man who has arrived—and tries it—finds he has left something behind which gave the zest to life.

The joy of struggle, the interest in the uncertain future, the beckoning of a distant goal, have all dropped out of life.

Men who have "arrived" and then stopped going on have invariably found life a dreary affair.

Those who have given up their work and still continued to live a life unrobbed of fascination have been men like Edward Bok who have retired from one activity to plunge into others.

The "growing life" is the happiest because it is a life of continued activity, of continual striving for new goals.

Embury Sweeps East With Huge Majority

Conservative Seeking Re-elec tion, Leads at Almost Every Poll — Marshall, Defeate d Liberal Candidate, May Lose D eposit.

MARGIN FOR WINNER A BOUT 3,000 VOTE IS ALMOST THREE TO ONE

Re-election by a large majority was secured by Dr. A. T. Embury, Conservative member of the fifteenth Parliament, when he contested Hastings-Peterborough against John S. Marshall. In fact it seems now, with a number of polls to hear from, that the Liberal standard bearer, who entered the fight at the last moment to prevent an acclamation, would lose his deposit.

From the first returns the lead of Dr. Embury mounted steadily, only a few small margins being accorded Mr. Marshall. At one poll in the townships of Tudor and Cashel the member-elect received every one of the sixty-seven votes cast, while Rawdon township alone gave him a lead of nearly 500 votes.

The Peterborough county of the riding voted almost solidly for Embury, who made almost a clean sweep in his own district in the northern part of Hastings county. Dr. Embury's home village of Bancroft gave him 269 to the good and Mr. Marshall's place of residence, Stirling, village, turned him down, giving the Conservative a majority of 125.

Dr. Embury's best majority, of course, was in his home village, while Cordova Mines, in Belmont township, gave Mr. Marshall his best vote, 64 to 9.

The election passed off very quietly at Marmora and Deloro. In the former village, out of 514 on the voters' list, only 110 had voted by noon. Unusual activity by the Liberal workers, was noticeable in the afternoon. As the poll closed, it was manifest that only three-fourths registered their vote At Deloro, where polling was brisk all day, out of 171 voters, 149 cast their vote. In view of the fact that several families are away on holidays the percentage is exceptionally good. The Marmora town hall was thronged in the evening when the picture, "For Heaven's Sake" was the pleasing diversion for those assembled to learn through the screen, who had got in "For Earth's Sake."

DEFEAT CAUSED BY WRONG VIEW CUSTOMS ISSUE

J. J. Duffus Declares Conservative Propaganda Misled Electors.

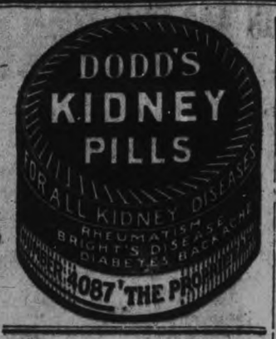
LIBERAL HANDICAPS

Merits of Robb Budget Insufficiently Recognized in Peterborough.

Joseph J. Duffus, interviewed by The Examiner, attributed the failure of the Liberals to redeem the riding to the fact that under the spell of incessant Conservative propaganda, the people were induced to hold the Liberals solely responsible for deficiencies in the administration of the Customs Department, despite the fact that smuggling and rum-running were prevalent under previous Conservative Governments. The fact that the day was so fine, militated, Mr. Duffus believed, against the Liberals, as many of the farmers, who had benefitted by the Robb budget and favored the legislation promulgated by the Hon. Mackenzie King, took advantage of the fine weather to overhaul their arrears of work. On the other hand, the city dweller was tempted out by the favorable conditions to record his vote. This exchange of circumstances was detrimental to the Liberal cause, claimed Mr. Duffus, who thought that the inhabitants of the city had not entirely grasped the significance of the Robb budget on the welfare of all classes of the community.

"The results of the vote throughout the Dominion show that Canada, as a whole, is appreciative of the merits of the Robb budget and of the legislation passed by the King Government," said Mr. Duffus, who added that had the election night been on any other date than one of those set apart for the Peterborough Exhibition, he would have had a private wire connected with the Liberal headquarters. He had refrained from doing so, on account of his desire to do nothing to impede the success of the Exhibition.

"I said at the beginning of the campaign that I would conduct a clean fight, free of mudslinging, and that if we followed such a policy victory would be all the sweeter, and defeat would leave no regrets. I can honestly say, I have no regrets. Now that the fight is over and the Conservative is returned, I wish to extend my congratulations to Mr. Peck, and wish him success in every effort he puts forward on behalf of the people of this riding. West Peterborough is capable of development. If wise counsels are followed there is great expansion in store for the district. But Mr. Peck will require to have the co-operation of the entire community and I call on all my friends and supporters to get behind the member who has been elected to the Dominion House of Commons."



WOMAN KILLED NEAR HARRISTON

Train Hits Automobile at Crossing Where View Is Clear.

HUSBAND HURT.

HARRISTON, Sept. 15.— When the car in which they were motoring from Elora to Teeswater was struck by the Owen Sound passenger train at the Elora street crossing, north of Harriston, Mrs. Andrew McDonald was killed, while her husband was seriously injured. The crossing at the point at which the accident occurred is very clear, and authorities are at a loss to account for the smash, as both train crew and automobile passengers are thought to have seen each other. Mr. McDonald is representative of the Alabastine Company at Elora. His wife is also survived by two small sons.

CHILDREN'S DAY BRINGS FORTH LARGE CROWD

Sporting Events Were Very Keenly Contested Before Grandstand.

MANY ENTRIES

Fine Class of Livestock Coming in to be Exhibited.

The big fair was all agog with children yesterday, for it was their day. The schools had closed down for the afternoon thus giving the children a half holiday and all with one accord rushed to the fair grounds after dinner. In fact some little lots brought their lunch to school with them so as they would have all the longer to spend at the exhibition, for it was a great day for them.

The school boys and girls were allowed on the grand stand free and never has there been such a crowd on it for the afternoon performance. The vaudeville brought forth many shouts of joy, especially the Sir Franz Troupe, who have achieved a world-wide reputation as trick and comedy cyclists, and many were the difficult and thrilling tricks which they performed with an ease and a grace. The Red Hussar band gave a program of popular music before the vaudeville commenced and this band is living up to its reputation as being one of the finest musical organizations in North America.

The sports in front of the grand stand were a decided attraction to the afternoon's performance, for the entries were large and many heats had to be made off in each event. In the ballon race alone there were seventy-five entries, which meant five heats and a final. The boys were all under eleven and it was necessary for them to run fifty yards and then blow up a large balloon until it burst. It seemed very easy to the onlooker but by the times the boys had run the fifty yards they had not much wind left to blow up the big balloon. The other events were contested just as keenly, especially the ones the girls were in.

The great majority of the children missed the midway, but it is expected to arrive tonight and they will get another opportunity to see these wonderful shows that are coming another day this week.

A new attraction in the afternoon was the firework display when rockets exploded in the air and all kinds of funny forms of animals and people came out of them when the balloon filled with air.

The booths and tents, which had been set up, were doing a very large business, as the boys were intent on trying everything. The livestock commenced to come in last night and if the whole exhibit is to be judged by the class of stock that came in yesterday it is going to be the best in the history of the fair.

Advance Poll	10	21

It is no more improbable to broadcast heat waves than it is to broadcast sound waves, according to Prof. E. S. Dibble of the Carnegie Institute of Technology. Discovery of invention of instruments capable of controlling heat waves, and a detector that will hold the waves and amplify them are the main need.

EARLY RETURNS DAMPEN HOPES OF DUFFUS MEN

Return of E. A. Peck is Conceded When Majority Passes 1,000.

LOSSES IN CITY

Country Returns Fail to Show Expected Liberal Majorities.

Returns came into the Liberal headquarters soon after the polls closed. For fifteen minutes the wires were busy and the compilers could hardly keep pace with the speedy returns. The early results gave Mr. Peck a good lead, but Mr. Duffus' supporters did not lose heart, hoping that the country returns would off-set the decided drift toward Conservatism in the city. Rousing cheers greeted the announcement of the returns from the few city polls that gave Mr. Duffus a majority.

The excitement and enthusiasm was intense when the announcement was made that Ennismore had pulled down Mr. Peck's already substantial majority. As the country returns were announced it became evident that all hope of recovering the lost ground was gone. Shortly after seven o'clock it was announced that Mr. Peck was 1,037 votes ahead, and the henchmen of Mr. Duffus expressed the opinion that the cause was lost so far as the election of 1926 was concerned. A few minutes later Mr. Duffus arrived, and in reply to a query from The Examiner, said he did not think it possible to overtake the lead piled up for Mr. Peck.

Though beaten, Mr. Duffus was in no way dismayed. He had a smile and a handshake for everybody, and his buoyant optimism and courage revived the drooping spirits of his followers.

J. J. Hartley mounted a hastily improvised rostrum and addressed the crowd that filled the committee-room. Personally, he said, the result was a great disappointment. He had been very hopeful of again seeing West Peterborough represented by a Liberal. Mr. Duffus had lost the fight, but he had established himself more firmly than ever in the affections of his fellow-citizens.

J. J. Duffus.

Mr. Duffus, who was then called to address the gathering, mounted the platform and was greeted with resounding cheers. In clear, resonant tones, Mr. Duffus announced that it was evident the Conservative candidate had retained the seat. He said he was at a loss to account for the unexpected issue to the campaign which they had fought during the past few weeks, but he expressed his sincere appreciation to all who had given him such evidence of good-will during the election battle. They had lost the battle, but they had been losers before, and they had been winners before. He had never seen a campaign in which the candidate had received such loyal assistance from his supporters; the help he had received had surpassed his most ardent expectations. He had promised to fight a clean battle; it was a source of gratification to know that this promise had been kept by all his lieutenants and all those who had fought on his side.

He had no regrets. They had done all that possibly could be done. They had worked hard and long and not altogether in vain, for it was possible they had lowered the majority which the Conservatives secured last year. On behalf of the association and himself he thanked all who had labored in the Liberal cause in West Peterborough. Workers had given freely and ungrudgingly of their services in checking the lists, and in every other way. The Liberal party in West Peterborough was united; no section had failed to do its duty.

He urged them all to keep up their courage; they would win some time. He reminded them of the Shakespearean quotation: "He who steals my purse steals trash, but he who filches from me my good name, takes that which doth not enrich him, but leaves me poor indeed." The Liberal party had lost no credit. The campaign of scandal and of defamation of public men could not be laid at the door of the Liberals. Although he was defeated, he wished to say that he would still continue to serve the community in every way possible; his services were at the disposal of the entire riding, and if he could do anything for anyone in it, he hoped they would give him the opportunity.

The sporting spirit in which Mr. Duffus accepted his defeat was recognized by the crowd, which gave him a vociferous ovation as he stepped from the platform.

G. N. Gordon

Mr. Gordon declared that it was easy to see that the beaten candidate was the better man by 1000 per cent. Peterborough had made mistakes before. Senator Cox was beaten in a Peterborough election. Joe Duffus had done more for Peterborough than Mr. Peck ever did, or ever would do, or ever could dream of doing. They were all proud of Joe, and never were they prouder of him than at present.

NEWS OVER WIRE HELPS CONSOLE LOCAL LIBERALS

Disappointed at Home, They Cheer Federal Results.

DUFFUS LEADS

Shouts Greet Tidings of Patenaude's Fall Before Opponent.

Judging from the volume of cheering that issued from the Liberal rooms, a passer-by might have carried away the impression that a Liberal win had been chronicled in the local election. It was merely the local Liberals, disappointed in the result of the battle at home, finding consolation in the results further afield. A report that G. B. Nicholson had fallen by the wayside relieved some of the gloom that fell on the gathering when it was realized that the Liberal cause was lost in West Peterborough. The announcement that E. L. Patenaude had come out on the losing end was rapturously cheered, and a mighty shout, led by J. J. Duffus, shook the rafters following the news that early reports from some of the polls of Portage la Prairie showed Arthur Meighen to be some votes behind his opponent. Mr. Duffus also expressed lively satisfaction at the announcement of the defeat of Mr. Doucet, whom he has severely criticized for linking the name of the Hon. Ernest Lapointe with reports of joy-sails on the Government preventive steamer Margaret.

The half dollars commemorative of the Columbian exposition were issued in such quantities that they are worth only their face value.

31 PEOPLE VOTE IN ADVANCE POLL

Most of Them Cast Their Ballots at Saturday Night Session.

Thirty-one votes—two on Friday, twenty-four on Saturday, and five on Monday night—were cast in the advance poll held in the council chamber of the city building. Each of the advance voters presented a certificate from Judge Huycke, and was called upon to sign a second certificate tendered him by the advance poll returning officer.

The signatures on both certificates were compared—this comparison furnishing a reliable identification test.

A would-be voter lost an opportunity to exercise his franchise on Monday night, through leaving the duty to the last minute. Shortly before ten o'clock he appeared in the polling station, only to discover that he had lost his certificate. He went home to find it, and came back five minutes after the poll was closed.

The votes were locked and sealed in a box which was opened last night at six o'clock, like the other ballot boxes, and the ballots were counted in the Council Chamber in the presence of two scrutineers.

DOMINIONS MAY SEEK PLACE IN LEAGUE COUNCIL

Believe Great Britain Should No Longer Have Full Representation.

ASSERTS RIGHTS.

Irish Free State in Field For Non-Permanent Seat.

GENEVA, Sept. 15.—(Canadian Press.)—The probable candidacy of the Irish Free State for a non-permanent seat in the re-organized league council proved an interesting topic of discussion in league circles last night.

It is learned that the British Dominions have virtually reached a decision that Great Britain should no longer be recognized as fully representing Dominion interests in the league and that the Dominions as members of the league have the same right as a group to be represented in the council as have the Scandinavian, Little Entente, Asiatic and Latin American groups.

Among the delegates representing India and the Dominions it is felt that no regional arrangement should be arrived at which might preclude one of them asserting its right as a full member of the League to be an independent candidate for a seat in the council.

The Irish Free State let it be known yesterday that it was in the field for a non-permanent seat, although a definite decision has not yet been made. In a statement last night Prof. John MacNeil, former minister of education, and member of the Irish delegation, said that the delegation was considering putting forward the free State's candidacy.

"We find some evidence," he explained, "of an impression that because we belong to a group of states associated with Great Britain politically that that affords some reason why we should not be on terms of equality with the other members of the league of nations from the point of view of eligibility to the council.

"We naturally object to being put, even in the manner of an impression, in that position. Our objection would extend to any other members of the same group being put in that position. In the event of no other members of that group being a candidate we feel that we ought to come forward."

Asked his opinion concerning the criticism heard abroad that any election of a dominion would give England two votes in the council. Prof. MacNeill replied: "We are not bound in any way to vote except as we ourselves decide. Our vote is quite independent in the assembly and would be equally independent in the council."

LARGE CROWD AT EXHIBITION

Election Returns Are Heard With Interest—Three Amplifiers.

BOOTHS BUSY

A very large crowd of people attended the Exhibition last night to hear the returns and to listen to the music.

The music given by the victrola and amplifiers was received by the large crowd with much applause. The returns were given in the same way and came direct over a Canadian Press wire from Toronto.

At ten o'clock, just as the fireworks ended, the big crowd on the grandstand seemed to become disgusted with the way the election was going and went home, or came uptown to hear further results. The Examiner heard many saying, "Well this means another election."

A large amplifier was set up in the Manufacturers' Building, and one in the flower tent, and around these gathered hundreds, still intent on hearing the last of the results.

The shows and booths are doing a big business, and many young ladies could be seen carrying away their trophies which marked both skill and luck.

The man who has the bell pole was having an interesting time as many of the heavy weights were succeeding in winning the cigars.

ALL ROADS LEAD

Peck's Supporters Joy In Second Triumph Of Conservative Member Committee Chambers Too Small for Jubilant Crowd as Favorable Returns Pour in — Victoria Hall Packed.

CANDIDATE THANKS SUPPORTERS IN SPEECH WHEN SURE OF WIN

Joy reigned in the Conservative Committee rooms last night as the polls reported the result of the vote. The first poll to send in results was No. 1, at 6.15, and from that time on nearly all the polls gave a majority for Mr. Peck. By 7.15 the Committee Rooms became too small for the vast crowd of supporters, who had gathered to cheer and re-cheer the elected candidate.

The crowd then thronged to Victoria Hall which was crowded to the doors, and as Mr. Peck took the platform the cheers re-echoed for blocks and the crowd sang "See Him Smiling, Just Now."

"I have been talking on the various issues of the day for some weeks, and now I want to thank you for returning me with such a substantial victory," said the member-elect.

"It is not my victory, of course, for everyone has worked hard for this great result. I have been grossly misrepresented by two ex-M.P.'s, one of those a gentleman who knew better, and I have been more mildly attacked by another who should have been aiding this party at this time.

"In the criticism that has been made of me, I want to personally say that it was not on the part of Mr. Duffus, for he has conducted a clean campaign and is a gentleman, and I know he is respected better by the people of Peterboro West.

"I am authorized by your votes to go down to Ottawa and continue for a clean administration, and the Customs probe is to be continued. I think, too, that your vote means that you want me to support in the House the great principle of Protection.

Mrs. Fallis.

On taking the platform Mrs. Fallis was cheered to an encore. "I have completed five weeks of organization and spoken at 40 or 50 meetings," she said. "The return of Mr. Peck was because we were supporting a clean man behind a clean leader. The opposition misled us at times because they made such a big noise. Every riding in which I have worked the Conservative candidate was conducting as clean a campaign as Mr. Peck conducted. Sooner or later there will be a provincial election. Now we are organized let us stand together for this election. The Conservative party in Canada is the party that is standing for clean administration."

W. H. Bradburn, M.P.P.

"Mrs. Fallis has made reference to us having a Provincial election sooner or later," said Mr. Bradburn, "and if we do I ask the Conservative workers to keep their armour on so that a Conservative candidate may be elected to the Provincial House."

SMITH REFUSES FIRE PAYMENT

Council Disclaims Responsibility For Call To Chemong Park.

COUNCIL MEETING.

The members of the Municipal Council of the Township of Smith met in the County Council Chamber, Peterborough, on Saturday, September 11, at the hour of 1.30 p.m.

The chair was occupied by Reeve Middleton, the Deputy-Reeve and other members all being present.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed.

A communication was received from Dr. A. W. McPherson, of Peterborough, chairman of the 'Rotary Crippled Children's Committee,' asking co-operation in the discovery of every crippled child in the Township of Smith, and especially those who, by reason of poverty, ignorance or indifference on the part of the parents, may not be receiving the treatment that is due them.

A letter of appreciation is being sent the Rotary Club.

A resolution was passed to notify the Corporation of the City of Peterborough that in the matter of the visit of the Peterborough Fire Department to Chemong Park on August 15th last, that the Municipal Council of the Township of Smith does not accept any responsibility for the payment of same.

A motion was also passed, authorizing the township solicitor, Mr. E. A. Peck, to again write Mr. Robert Cox, notifying him that if he does not, within ten days from date of notice, comply with the terms of the former demand sent him in August last by the township solicitor, that the Municipal Council of the Township of Smith will forthwith enter an action against him to recover such damages.

On motion of Deputy-Reeve Simpson and Councillor Fitzgerald, the following certified accounts were ordered to be paid:

Examiner Publishing Co., printing cards, $2.89; A. W. Ackison, sheep killed and worried, $95.

The Greeks used a concoction of ashes, earthworns and perfumed oil to keep the hair from turning white.

Waggish Citizen's Joke Comes Near Causing Riot

The headquarters of both parties were scenes of incessant activity in the completion of the arrangements to bring out the fullest possible strength in support of the respective candidates. A near tragedy occurred in the Conservative headquarters when a waggish citizen, on leaving the rooms looked intently at the perspiring workers and asked blandly, "When is the election, anyway?"

His fate is unknown.

Excitement Of Election Causes Ludicrous Error

Some of the excitement which possessed the waiting crowds evidently communicated itself to the deputy returning officers. At the Liberal committee rooms two statements of results at local polls were handed in envelopes to the eager, anxious group in the office. One of the sheets contained the results of the votes cast, but failed to mention the name or number of the poll. The other was an official form, which contained no figures whatever!

HOLD SCHOOL FAIR.

Six Schools Take Part in Annual Event—Prizes Given.

DUNSFORD, Sept. 15. — The Rural School Fair which was held here on Friday, September 10th, proved to be a real success, six schools taking part, namely No. 1, Verulam, No. 2, Verulam, No 3 Emily, No 16 Emily, No. 7 Fenelon and No. 11 Ops.

From the splendid display of exhibits in the ten it is quite evident very keen interest is taken by both teachers and pupils of every school.

The school parade was very good, indeed, and each school is to be congratulated on their appearance; also their singing and school yell.

The three prizes were awarded as follows:

Miss Richardson's school, of No. 2, Verulam, 1st.

Mr. Elliott's school of No. 3, Emily 2nd.

Miss McFadyen's school of No. 16, Emily, 3rd.

The public speaking was very good. Iva Robertson, of No. 1 Verulam, who chose for her subject the Life of Brant, received 1st prize. Ethel Chalmers of No. 11 Ops, speaking on Our Federal Government, 2nd, Anna Burgess, of No. 2 Verulam, speaking on the Corn Borer 3rd; and Morris Thurston, of No. 3, Emily, speaking on the Potatoe Bug, 4th.

The races and sports which followed, furnished sufficient amusement until the tent was thrown open to all.

Then came the rush, all the pupils being anxious to see what prizes they had received.

Quite a large crowd gathered for the event and all returned home in the evening well satisfied after very pleasant day

BARBED WIRE FENCES FOR RADIO.

Barbed wire fences can carry radio concerts as well as any other kind of wire. Popular Science Monthly reports that Perry Brown, a young farmer, connected his receiving set to a barbed wire fence nearby and now entertains farmers for miles around. Similar connecting fences stretch in all directions, and neighbors who want to hear the radio concerts have only to tap the wire.

WILL CONISDER COAL DISPUTE

Committee Will Submit Report To Full Cabinet on Thursday.

TO CALL OWNERS.

LONDON, Sept. 15 (Canadian Press).—The coal committee of the Cabinet has drafted a report on the situation for submission to a full Cabinet meeting to-morrow when Premier Baldwin, who comes back to London to-day, will preside.

It is believed that representatives of the 24 districts owners and associations will be called to meet Mr. Baldwin in conference in the hope of securing some concession toward a peaceful solution.

The executive chiefs of the mine workers issued a manifesto yesterday, exhorting the workers to maintain the strongest resistance against any effort to defeat their insistence on a nation-wide settlement.

POLLING CONTINUED STEADILY WITH NO HEAVY RUSH HOURS

Opened Briskly With Electors Waiting at Some Polling Places.

VOTE WAS HEAVY.

Scrutineers Assert That More Electors Will Vote Than Last Year.

The streets all day yesterday were full of bustle and excitement, not all attributable to the Exhibition, and polling proceeded with a briskness which suggested that the electors had thrown off some of the apathy of which many complaints have been heard. The stream of voters was steady in the morning and forenoon, but at no time were the officers or scrutineers swamped with work.

Reports from most of the polls showed that a large proportion of the women voters have exercised their franchise. At several of the polls, voting commenced right away. At Poll 28, on George street, two young men were on the spot when the clock struck 8, and when the deputy returning officer announced, "I declare this poll open," the electoral enthusiasts immediately called for ballots. At several other polling places in the city, there was at least one voter ready for immediate action.

Early in the afternoon, scrutineers were emphatic in the assertion that a heavier poll than last year had been recorded.

Heavy in Country.

Similar predictions were made by party supporters who had come in to the city from the rural divisions. It was estimated that 50 per cent. of the voting strength of Smith had visited the booths before 2 o'clock in the afternoon, many of the farmers evidently contenting themselves with casting their ballot and returning to work. In the city, where the political affiliations of so many voters were known to the scrutineers, it was a matter of intense interest, the spectacle of a known supporters being the first to enter the poll was hailed by party scutineers as a good augury of the final outcome. There was much good-humored badinage passing between the opposing scrutineers, and, judging from the comments that were audible both candidates were sure to win.

No Rush At Noon.

Contrary to general expectation, there was no overwhelming rush of workmen at noon. This is partly accounted for by the fact that the Canadian Packing Company, while falling into line with other companies in the city, to the extent of adding an hour to the luncheon interval, fixed the interval between eleven and one, to permit of killing operations being commenced at 2 p.m. The other plants closed from 12 till 2 p.m.

A worthy example to many more robust voters was shown by Mrs. Anderson, who recorded her vote at Poll 11, being carried in a bath-chair, from which she was too weak to rise, and she marked her ballot while remaining in the chair.

It was evident that quite a number of the women were exercising their voting privilege for the first time. Some of them were at loss to know where to put their ballots. A rather apochryphal story was told today of a young woman who asked if her ballot paper had to be dropped in a pillar box near the voting station.

Another young lady asked one of the officers if Mr. Peck or Mr. Duffus was allowed to vote. On being told 'yes' she then begged to be informed if they were allowed to vote for themselves. A bystander gravely assured her that an agreement had been made whereby Mr. Peck voted for Mr. Duffus, and vice-versa.

Mr. Peck, who voted at 9.45 in Poll 35, said September had been a fortunate month for the Conservatives in past general elections. The General Election, fought on the National Policy in 1878 returned Sir John A. MacDonald with a Conservative policy, he said. The Reciprocity election of 1911 was also fought in September and resulted in a Conservative victory. Mr. Peck was hopeful that yesterday's struggle would continue the tradition of Conservative victory. As he dropped his ballot into the box, Mr. Peck remarked smilingly: "There goes another one to add to the majority. The Conservative candidate said the weather was ideal from the point of view of temperature and clearness, and hoped the fine weather would continue for the Exhibition.

Mr. Duffus voted at 2 p.m.

LADIES' AID MEETING.

Regular Meeting in Sunday School of Trinity United Church.

OMEMEE, Sept. 15. — The September meeting of the Ladies' Aid of Trinity United Church was held in the Sunday school room on Thursday afternoon. There was only a small membership represented.

Following the devotional exercises conducted by the president, Mrs. W. Henderson, reports were received from the secretary and treasurer.

Letters of appreciation for flowers during illness were received from Mrs Fred Evans and Mrs. E. Hart

A request from the Dramatic Art Society of Bobcaygeon to present their play at an early date under Aid auspices, was presented but not considered.

The president made mention of another coat of paint for part of the barn, which if procured would be applied free of charge.

It was decided to procure through a committee composed of Mrs. H. Lamb and Miss Neill two flower vases for use in the church.

The annual fowl supper was the next item of business and after several views had been expressed it was unanimously decided to hold the same on Thanksgiving day.

A committee composed of Mrs. Rowland, Mrs. Bradburn and Miss Lila Parsons were appointed to look after the programme to be given following the supper The president was requested to interview Mr. Rowland regarding a special speaker for the Sunday services.

Several ladies were appointed to have charge of the tables and other committees appointed. Final arrangements will be held at the October meeting, which will be held one week earlier than the regular date.

The meeting closed with the benediction prounced by Mrs. H. Lamb.

which it emerged from the 1925 election, but offering Mr. King presumably consistent support of Liberal-Progressives whose candidature was endorsed by separate Progressive and Liberal nominations and successful yesterday to the number of eleven. They include in their number Mr. Forke, recognized last session as the Progressive leader, whose influence with the party as a whole is apt to be thrown in support of Mr. King. It is not a secret that a year ago Mr. Forke was willing to enter a Liberal-Progressive coalition himself, taking the portfolio of Agriculture. Even, therefore, if Mr. King cannot rally to his support any of the seven "straight" Progressives, among whom Miss Agnes MacPhail gave him uniform support almost throughout the last session, or the eleven U.F.A. members from Alberta he yet has in sight Liberals, Labor, Independent and Liberal-Progressives, a voting strength of about 130, giving him the quite respectable majority of 15 on division.

Immediate interest of course centres on the course Mr. Meighen may elect to pursue.

MAGNET SEPARATES METAL SCRAP

FASHIONS

By HEDDA HOYT.

NEW YORK, Sept. 15.—(United Press).—Kneecaps, like the Marines, have had a chance to see the world! Their sight-seeing tour is nearing its finish though, sad as this may seem to those who have taken a keen delight in watching knee sockets cavort on byways and highways throughout the world.

Of course, legs won't suddenly depart from fashion, but skirts will gradually come downwards. Several smart gown designers in Paris are already sponsoring dresses which come three inches below the knees. In New York, especially on Broadway, the knee is not the skirt limit and many misses wear dresses which extend two inches above the knees.

The short-skirt vogue has taught us that legs are merely legs after all. Very seldom do we see a pair which knock us off our feet with their shapeliness. Legs are slender or plump, long or short, and that's all. From a rear view sixty-year-olds look like flappers if the legs are encased in silk and the heels are high. In fact, older women often have more shapely legs than do the youngsters. One simply can't get excited over a pretty leg these days when every woman seems to have them.

Those who possess well turned-out shin-bones are out of luck, for they don't get much credit. Perhaps Dame Fashion is planning on concealing our kneecaps in order to again create an illusion about women's legs.

Up in Harlem where the colored element hold away short skirts have long since ceased to create any enthusiasm so the dusky belles have taken to going bare-legged as a special inducement. Those who are not quite so dusky have lovely parchment-colored legs which can't be distinguished from parchment colored stockings.

In the residence district of upper Broadway white girls are also going stockingless, but the nude effect is not quite so alluring since pinkish legs are not in keeping with tannish hosiery shades. The time is coming when women will devote less time to featuring their nether portions and they will turn from exposed boyishness to more modest feminine figures and frills will rule triumphant. Gradually, very gradually, the wheels of fashion get back to their starting point.

MARRIED MEN AND OLD MAIDS MAKE THE BEST WORKERS

Who are the best office workers? "Married men and old maids," answers Hubert D. Brown, chief of the Bureau of Efficiency, from his experience with employees in Government offices. "Bachelors and boys, married women and flappers are not so good."

The Government, he declares in Popular Science Monthly, has no better employees than married men, probably because they have learned the art of give-and-take from married life.

The old maids are ideal, he adds, because woman's efficiency increases as the thought of marriage fades —"she mothers her job."

Flappers, he contends, let their minds wander, think too much of men, stop work to powder their noses, and constantly "flit about."

WORD TO WISE

Vegetables should be cooked until they are tender, but no longer. Overcooking causes them to be indigestible and strong in flavor.

YOUR JEWEL COLOR FLOWER

By Mildred Marshall

Though the cat's eye is today's talismanic stone, caution should be permitted to slumber, since the jewel indicates the presence of treachery and deceit. False friends and particularly false lovers likely to be discovered today and new acquaintances should not be made.

The crystal, which is today's natal gem, is an exceptionally lucky stone. It has the power to direct future action, since it is believed that those who gaze into its depths will see future events transpire. In ancient times, all lovers gazed into crystals to determine what the future held in store.

Yellow is today's lucky hue. It signifies unexpected happiness through the coming of a legacy.

The jonquil is today's lucky flower which will bring good cheer to the home which it decorates.

HER OWN WAY by A GIRL of TODAY

JUDY'S OPINION

John Meredith looked so bewildered when I told him he had an in-growing soul, that I laughed. Instantly his face became suffused with red.

"Why do you laugh," he asked. "Of course, I know that I am many things but I did not know that I was a laughable object."

"You're not," I said laconically. "I laughed because you looked so helpless in your surprise, that anyone would have the temerity to tell you, of all men, that you had no reason for being miserable."

"But surely, you must see, this and this," sticking out his shortened leg which in its especially made shoe was plainly visible, and pointing to it with his withered arm.

Although it was very pathetic and I wanted to cry, I could not help being happy for I knew in my heart by these gestures, John achieved a great victory over himself.

I was almost sure that he had never spoken of his shriveled arm and leg before in any way, and I was doubly sure that not to anyone in the world had he called particular attention to them, and he had shown them to me when all the while I was the one person to whom he wished to appear "like other men are." I managed to keep the tears back, but I think the smile upon my mouth was rather mechanical.

"Of course," I explained, " a perfect leg and arm would be better for you, but surely you must know that you have enough splendid physical qualities and mental attainments to make anyone forget your magnified affliction. With your brain, personality and fabulous wealth, you should forget everything about yourself that is not perfect."

John Meredith turned toward me impetuously, "Could you forget it, Judy," he asked, holding out his good hand.

"I really would never have thought about it at all, if you had not insisted upon dragging your condition into every conversation."

My heart was beating like a trip hammer. John came nearer and nearer. Again he was conquered by an emotion that made him forget himself.

CONDITION— Clogged pores and unhealthy appearing skin.

TREATMENT—Absolute cleanliness is the solution. One of the most common causes of uncleanlines is a soiled powderpuff, or chamois skin that has seen too much service. Unless you are very fastidious in your care of your powder puff, it is far better to use sterilized cotton for spreading powder, and to use a fresh pad each time. Also, keep your powder container closed so that the dust cannot contaminate it.

FOR FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 17, 1926.

Again a fairly favorable day read by astrologers who find the planetary government stimulating and encouraging.

There is an especially good sign for men of large affairs and the aspects presage the extension of commercial enterprises of amazing size.

The President and men who transact the business of the people should benefit from today's rule, although they are to have many trying questions to solve. The larger problems of the nation are to be reflected in the states.

This is held to be a lucky day for the giving of presents or the asking of favors of any sort.

Uranus smiles on the Earth with promise of tremendous awakening of apathetic minds and the access of new knowledge.

Having triumphed over the material things belonging to this world, men are to explore the occult world and to learn much.

Scientific proof of the persistence of personality after death is forecast, and radio is to be used as nothing compared with what is to be accomplished in communication through the ether, the seers prophesy.

Inventions are to multiply as never before and there will be an effort to simplify all that pertains to physical existence and to concentrate on spiritual things.

Extremes are to mark the coming months; weather and health will be affected in an extraordinary manner, it is forecast.

Railways and steamship companies are to have a period of extreme activity and profit.

Religious matters will gain added attention, not only because of diverse faiths in dissensions, but on account of renewed interest in spiritual things.

Wars on a large scale should belong to the past, if the signs in the skies are rightly read. While there may be conflicts of limited scope a world cataclysm should be impossible.

Persons whose birthdate it is should prosper in the coming year, which promises success in all high ambitions.

Children born on this day should be able to make life an interesting experience. These subjects of Virgo usually succeed in public careers for they are well-poised and level-headed.

A Fashion Model's Diary

By Grace Thorncli

SHE DESCRIBES A CHARMING DANCE FROCK

Madame pays great attention to the designing of frocks for the young girl whose real charm is best enhanced by youthful frocks, rather than those which express sophistication in every line.

"What a struggle I have persuading Marie to get the frocks I think best for her, and not the ones which are really designed for debutantes who have been out several seasons!" an older client confided to Madame today, in speaking of her daughter.

"Send Marie in to me, and I will see that she likes the frocks which she really should have," Madame answered.

"Do you think you could really manage that?" the grateful mother asked, apparently in some doubt. "Because if you can, I'll leave Marie altogether to you, and I won't even come in with her. She'd love to feel that she was choosing the frock unchaperoned."

Madame smiled at the ways of the young and replied:

"I have two or three charming evening frocks that are just Marie's style. I'll have them shown first, and I feel sure she'll love at least one of them, and we won't even have to bring out the more sophisticated frocks."

Madame's scheme worked like a charm. Marie came in during the afternoon, and Madame was all prepared for her. She had told me which three frocks to show, and had named the order of their showing. The first two were lovely, but the third was calculated to fill Marie with the urge of possession, and that was what it did.

To do Madame's art credit, Marie had liked each of the two frocks immensely, but Madame had simply replied:

"Just wait."

When I came out on the small manikins' platform in the ruffled light pink chiffon, I heard Marie give a low squeal of pleasure.

Tiny Ruffles and a Silver Sash Give Additional Charm to Pale Pink Chiffon.

"I can't wait any longer, Madame," she said. "I want that one."

It is a dream. There is a simple blouse, and a skirt with four godets let in for fulness. The entire skirt is covered with the picot-edged ruffles, and the blouse uses them halfway down from the neck, with a divide in the middle.

The dress is delightfully youthful, and so charming that even one in her thirties could be forgiven for wearing it.

BESSIE

Bessie, is of course, one of the derivatives of Elizabeth, but so frequently is it given in baptism without any reference to its more proper antecedent that it has come to be regarded as a separate and distinct name.

Through its association with Elizabeth, it has its source in the old Hebrew name Elisheba and probably came to be evolved from the shortening of Elizabeth to Beth, whence Bess shortly followed. The first Bess on record is said to have been Elizabeth Woodville, whose mother, Jacquetta of Luxemburg, imported it from Flanders. Shakespeare's Edward IV. called her Bess and her daughter, Elizabeth of Yorke was called "lady Bessee" in the verses which told of the political courtship of Henry of Richmond. "Pretty Bessee" is the granddaughter of Simon de Montford in the old English ballad. "Good Queen Bess" is too well known to need comment but through her, Bess had incredible popularity in the English court, at least one out of every three young women bearing the name of the queen. How Bessee, the endearing form of Bess, came to be spelt Bessie is not satisfactorily explained, unless it is the Scotch preference which gained vogue in England. Bessie is a favorite Scotch name, but Betsey, its equivalent, soon became popular in England and remains so.

Germany calls Bessie, Lischen. She is Babette in France and Betta in Italian. Russia has a form taken from the German: Lisenka.

The flame-hearted ruby is Bessie's talismanic gem. It promises her courage, invincibility, and long life. Sunday is her lucky day and 1 her lucky number. The lily, signifying purity, is her flower.

UNCLE WIGGILY

Todays' Bedtime Story

By Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY TEACHES SCHOO
UNCLE WIGGILY TEACHES SCHOOL

Copyright, 1926, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

(By Howard R. Garis)

"Come, Ambie! Come, Scramble-Hurry, Tooter! Don't be late, Scooter! Where is Jangle! Don't do that, Jingle! Wash your face, Buster! Come in to breakfast, Custer!"

These were only a few of the shouts Uncle Wiggily listened to as he hopped out of bed in his hollow stump bungalow one morning.

"My goodness!—What's the matter?" he asked as he jumped into the bath tub and out again, dressing quickly.

"Oh, have you forgotten?" asked his wife, who was jumping through the hall with two high piles of clean handkerchiefs. "This is the first day of school, after the long vacation, and I am getting our forty 'leven little bunnies ready so they will not be late."

"Dear me! That's so! The first day of school!" said Mr. Longears. "I must stop in and call on the Lady Mouse Teacher this afternoon to see if everything is all right."

Getting forty 'leven little bunny children ready for school is no joke, and it took Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy and Mrs. Longears and Uncle Wiggily quite a while to do it. But, at last they were all marching down the path, even to Baby Bunty, the little orphan rabbit child, who was visiting at the bungalow for a time.

"Now, I can take a rest," said Uncle Wiggily. But, hardly had he settled himself in an easy chair, and started to twinkle his pink nose, than along the path came running the old gentleman rat who was janitor in the Hollow Stump School.

"Oh, Uncle Wiggily!" squeaked the rat janitor.

"What's the matter?" asked the bunny gentleman. "Did the bad Bob Cat take away the bell?"

"Worse than that!" said the janitor. "The Lady Mouse Teacher isn't at school to take charge. The children are jumping around and playing all sorts of tricks and they won't mind me."

"Where is the Lady Mouse?"

"I don't know. She must be ill, or something. What's to be done?"

"I will come and teach school for the first day," said Uncle Wiggily. "I guess I can manage all right. Perhaps the Lady Mouse will be there before I hear many lessons. Anyhow, there isn't much studying on the first day."

So Uncle Wiggily hopped to the Hollow Stump School where, as the rat janitor had said, the animal boys and girls were not behaving as nicely as they should. But at the sight of the rabbit gentleman the pupils hurried to their seats and became very quiet.

"Girls and boys," began Uncle Wiggily, "your teacher is a bit late this morning. I think she is ill, so I am going to teach you. Now we shall have the first class in lollypops. Jackie Bow Wow, you may tell us what lollypops are made of."

"Molasses!" barked Jackie.

"Oh, teacher! Teacher! Uncle Wiggily teacher!" whispered half a dozen boys and girls eagerly raising their paws or their wings or their feet, which ever came most natural. "Jackie is wrong!"

"Jollie," said the bunny, looking at a mouse boy, "you may tell us what lollypops are made of."

"Cheese!" squeaked Jollie.

"Oh, no! He's wrong!" quacked Lulu Wibblewobble, the duck. "Lollypops are made of honey!"

"Dear me!" said Uncle Wiggily. "No one seems to know for certain, so I will tell you what I am going to do. The whole school shall go with me to the store and I will buy each one a lollypop. After they are eaten we shall have a lesson on them and find out what they are really made of. Such ignorance about lollypops is astonishing! Come now, we must settle this question. Come with me to the candy store!"

"What's the matter?" called the bunny gentleman.

And such happy, joyous, well behaved animal boys and girls you never saw. In orderly lines they marched with the bunny to the candy shop, and when the lollypops were bought and eaten each one knew they were made of sugar.

And when Uncle Wiggily led the children back to school there was the Lady Mouse Teacher waiting for her classes.

"I am sorry I was late," he said, "but a wheel came off the jitney bus. However, I think you made a very good teacher, Uncle Wiggily."

"He surely did! Hurray for Uncle Wiggily!" cried the boys and girls.

And that's all now. But if the gum drop doesn't fall off the front porch when it's trying to stick a postage stamp on the rag doll's nose, I'll tell you to-morrow about Uncle Wiggily and the tired ant.

ROSE BRAND LARD AT THE EXHIBITION

Striking Display By Canadian Packing Co. of Popular Baking Accessory.

Rose Brand lard constitutes the striking exhibit of the Canadian Packing Co. in the Manufacturers' Building at the Peterborough Exhibition. Pails and packages galore of this popular aid to good baking forcefully holds the attention of interested visitors. Both pails and packages are clothed in red and yellow wrappers, and, backed by the national emblem in a section hung with blue and white draping, they offer a dominating exhibit of peculiar attraction to housewives.

While showing only one of the many lines of Rose Brand products for which this ever-growing local industry is famed, the plentitude of Rose Brand lard in evidence fittingly typifies the large and extended market attained by the C.P.C. for this super-quality cooking commodity.

The facing of this section is appropriately composed of a roomy show case, in which are seen a generous and varied array of perfectly tempting pies into the making of which Rose Brand lard has entered.

"Rose Brand" is also the trade mark adopted by this big Peterborough industry for their altogether delicious and always dependable bacon, ham, pork, sausage, eggs, and other eats, and with the discriminating consumer, "Rose Brand" is synonymous with all-round goodness.

The estimating contest is proving exceedingly popular with all. Four prizes of Rose Brand lard are to be given daily to those guessing closest to the actual attendance at the Exhibition that day. The first prize is a 20-lb. pail of lard, second prize a 10-lb. pail of lard, third prize a 5-lb. pail of lard, and the fourth prize a 3-lb. pail of lard. One estimate only for each person. Get your estimating blanks at the C.P.C.'s section in the Manufacturers' Building.—(Advt.).

QUAKER OATS CO.'S ARRESTING EXHIBIT

Exhibition Visitors Astounded at Scope of Local Industry's Operations.

On a huge revolving drum and in spacious surroundings, the Quaker Oats Company are displaying in the Manufacturers' Building at the local Exhibition, the products of their big mills on the banks of the Otonabee River, this city. These products include health-promoting and invigorating cereals which to-day find their way to the breakfast tables of millions of little folks and their elders in almost every quarter of the civilized world. The exhibits are so many and varied that visitors are astounded at the extent of this big concern's operations, as here demonstrated. For, among other commodities, this section is replete with Quaker corn flakes, puffed wheat and rice, macaroni and rolled oats, each of which finds approval with discriminating consumers; Tilson's natural health bran, Quaker farina, a nourishing product for invalids and little folk; and Quaker flour for bread and Saxon flour for pastry, both of which are in growing demand.

Then visitors find arresting interest in the samples of useful household premiums given away with each package of Quaker rolled white oats and quick Quaker oats—a piece of fine aluminum ware with the former and an article of china ware with the latter.

With excelling goodness and body-building qualities characterizing the output of this mammoth industry, its products find a gratifying and expanding market both at home and abroad. The company's local plant is up-to-the-minute in scientific equipment for sustaining their universal reputation for manufacturing nothing but the best in pure foods.—(Advt).

TWICE-A-DAY

—THIS, ADVISE DENTISTS, TO CLEAR THE TEETH OF FILM

What the Film on Teeth, to Which Many Tooth and Gum Disorders are Ascribed, Actually Is

By running your tongue across your teeth, you will feel a film; a slippery sort of coating. Ordinary brushing does not remove it.

Film absorbs discolorations from food, smoking, etc. That is why, according to leading dental opinion, teeth look dingy and "off color."

Film clings to teeth, gets into crevices and stays. It invites and breeds the germs of decay. And that is why it is judged so grave a danger to the teeth by authorities.

Film is the basis of tartar. And tartar, with germs, is the chief cause of pyorrhea. That is why regular film removal is urged as probably first in correct gum protection.

Most dental authorities urgently advise thorough film removal at least twice each day. That is, every morning and every night.

For that purpose, obtain Pepsodent, the special film-removing dentifrice which leading dental authorities favor. Different from any other tooth paste.

Pepsodent curdles the film, then removes it; then polishes the teeth in gentle safety to enamel. It combats the acids of decay and scientifically firms the gums. It multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva. And meets, thus, in all ways, the exactments of modern dental science.

On dental advice, people are adopting this new way of tooth cleansing. Obtain Pepsodent, the quality dentifrice, at drug stores. Two months' supply at a moderate price—or send coupon for 10-day tube. Use twice each year. Make both a habit.

Daily Short Story

A ROSE WASHED IN LEW.

(By Martha McCulloch-Williams.)

Dew still lay, yet flower-breath was at its fullest, mingling with a southerly air already laden with the sweetness of grape blossom, rising from the vineyard at foot of the long walk, where Elspeth moved entranced, herself the embodiment of it all. Until two years back, another garden, one older, and rambling, had been her sole confidante. She had grown in it, from a scrawny child, holding aloof from the bouncing brood of nieces and nephews her step-mother made a point of asking in to play with her, into a slip of a girl, scrawnier, more aloof. Then upon her father's sudden death his widow had claimed the homestead. She said that Elspeth could stay on—if she chose—but must understand there would be changes. Doing away with that ragged garden first of all. Elspeth's answer had been silent—she packed her belongings and went to a grandfather, who, though he had never forgiven his daughter for marrying the man he did not choose, opened his house, if not his heart, to this sole grandchild.

What do you want?" he had demanded of her. Schooling? travel? Young fools to play with?"

After a silent minute, she had answered clearly: Most of all—to be let alone—and not made to feel myself in the way."

Thus, happily, she had fixed her own place. She found liberty something beyond her dreams; she had thriven in it, filling out, gaining daily in color, in strength, yet holding fast to her old loves—books and the garden.

Loitering in her garden through a long morning, she came suddenly upon her grandfather, beside the tall rose trees stately in their beds, and cried to him impulsively: You ought to see them in the dew! Do come early, once at least."

I remember! A rose in the dew is at its best—and deadliest," he said with a keen look, a hovering smile.

He did not and would never love Elspeth—but somehow sight of her had roused in him a late and furious passion for his own blood. She owned it, clean, strong, untainted—she alone could keep alive the strain. Coming eighteen now—she must be suitably married by the time she was twenty. Yet he was far too wise to tell her so, even to let her know his wish.

Possibly Fate relents toward those who accept manfully her chastenings. Certainly, here, she began shuffling the cards beautifully. With properties such as an electric August afternoon, riders, man and woman, moving swiftly to the point where their ways would cross, a vivid flash, a rolling crash overhead. Elspeth had sat in saddle almost from her cradle, notwithstanding she did not ride like a centaur. Rather lightly, lithely, with something of clinging grace. Then, too, she had a magnetic control over animals. Racing home ahead of the storm, at a stretching run, with Dreadnaught, her airedale, keeping emulously a yard ahead, she came full tilt to the cross-track, just as a man shot from the mouth of it, and next breath lay half senseless in the main road. His horse, swerving from the flash, had thrown him heavily. Elspeth went yards beyond him before she could check. Heedless of storm and rain she knelt beside him, silent yet trying to ease his posture. Her touch stirred him—he opened his eyes, tried to scramble up—and fell back groaning. Lithe fingers upon his forehead, she said clearly: I'm standing by to help—as soon as I find out how."

The storm went as quickly as it had come. A man with a broken arm, a wrenched knee, is hard to handle, but somehow Elspeth had managed it. He sat safe in her saddle, the knee bound in the stirrup with her scarf. She was up behind, her arms either side of him, guiding Bay Bolton—who seemed to understand. Thus the sound hand of the stranger could clasp the broken bone, easing its hurt so a little color had come back into his white face. Elspeth had spoken hardly a dozen words. She did not need to speak—her bare touch was enough.

At her: Go home! Quick!" Dreadnaught had vanished—so Warely gates stood open—help was there in plenty. It was not until he was being carried into the big gray house that the stranger said: I am Reese Mackay," promptly fainting at the last letter.

Elspeth faced her grandfather, to say: I brought him here—because he seemed to belong——"

I think he does," the General interrupted.

Elspeth might know nothing of Reese Mackay—but her lawful guardian was happily much wiser. So when she told him a week later: I am going to marry Weese," he said urbanely: As you please about that. But just as a matter of family gossip, I'd like to know when he fell in love with you?"

He says—there in the road—as he opened his eyes," Elspeth answered, her eyes shining even brighter.

I see!" said Foxy Grandpa. Another case of the rose washed in dew—only it chances to have been rain water."

But General, it's quite as deadly," Reese called through the half-open door—to which the General answered oracularly: So mote it be.'

Wheat Market Easier On Selling By Traders

CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 15.—(Canadian Press.)— The wheat market displayed an easier undertone at the start to-day, chiefly because of selling on the part of local traders and commission houses. Buying power, however, was only moderate during the early trading and prices sagged gradually. After opening 1 cent lower to 1-4 cent higher wheat eased off all around. Continued unfavorable weather over the belt gave firmness to corn and oats, corn starting unchanged to 1-2 cent up and holding near to the initial range. Provisions reflected the downturn in hog values.

Advance At New York Meets With Resistance

NEW YORK, September 15. — Canadian Press. — Speculators for advances encountered stiffer resistance to their operations in to-day's market, but they maintained control of the price movement during a good part of the session.

General Motors and Mack Trucks were again taken in large blocs at advancing prices, the former touching 159.

Copper shares registered improvement under the leadership of American Smelting. A 3 point gain in Atlantic Refining was one of the features of the oil group. The outstanding development in the rail list was the brisk demand for "Nickle Plate" common which soared seven points to a new record high at 159½.

Toronto Market Stronger G. and W. New Features

TORONTO, Sept. 15 (Canadian Press). — Gooderham and Worts New and Industrial Alcohol were the active leaders in the trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange today. The former closed at noon 1 point higher at 34, while the latter eased off 1-2 to 23 1-2. The market was generally stronger.

Canada Steamships was an active issue, the Common closing 1-4 up at 29, and the Preferred 1 1-2 points higher at 88 1-4. Armold Common advanced 1 to 21, and Brazilian firmed 3-4 to 116. Smelters was off 1 3-8 to 247 1-4. Eastern Theatres gained 1 to 29. Steel Common lost 1 1-2 to 107 1-2, and City Dairy 1 1-8 to 78 7-8. EIGHT MEN KILLED IN WATER TUNNEL

Explosion of Two Cases of Dynamite Causes Fatalities.

KANSAS CITY, Kans., Sept. 15. —An explosion early to-day in a water tunnel being constructed under the Missouri river here, is believed to have resulted in the death of eight workmen who were in the tunnel at the time.

Charles S. Foreman, engineer in charge of the construction, penetrated a thousand feet back from the mouth of the tunnel, through debris and smoke, and reported that he could hear no sounds from the point of the explosion. The crews of eight men went to work at 11 o'clock last night. They had two cases of dynamite, both of which are believed to have exploded.

The tunnel is a unit of Kansas city's new water system, and will be used to bring water to the city from the plant located in North Kansas City.

AFTERNOON RAIN HAS BAD EFFECT ON ATTENDANCE

But Arrival of Midway Delights Those at Fair Grounds.

STOCK JUDGING.

Young Farmers Engaged in Competition—Flowers Being Judged.

The heavy rains that fell this forenoon had an adverse effect on the attendance at the Industrial Exhibition.

The younger generation and not a few members of the older, were partially consoled by the arrival of the Midway, the non-appearance of which yesterday was a source of mortification to those who patronized the Fair. Circumstances over which those in change had no control, effectually prevented the arrival of the Midway at the expected time. The heavy rains in the Province of Quebec, where the Midway was showing last week, spoiled the roads for the passage of the heavy waggons, the wheels of which sank axle-deep in the mud. It was found impossible to make the journey to the railway station for transportation to Peterborough in time to reach here for the Fair opening. Immediately the weather and roads became more favorable, the wagons were hurried out, over $200 worth of hay being sacrificed in the hasty exit.

Immediately on the arrival of the wagons, the material was unloaded and the work begun of erecting the booths and mechanical contrivances.

Judging Contest

The young farmers' judging contest was held in the tent of the Dog Show. The competition, in which there were 24 young men, is designed to test their knowledge of the good points of live stock and to increase their desire for better herds and teams. Beef cattle, dairy cattle, sheep, and pigs are brought into the ring, and the competitors are asked to place them and to give reasons for their decision. An expert in live stock acts as umpire, and decides upon the competitor whose judgment seems soundest.

Judging of flowers was in progress in the afternoon.

The Curve Lake Indian Band occupied the band stand and gave a number of selections. Bandmaster David Taylor, in the centre of the stand, leading the musicians and supporting a Union Jack at the same time.

SOAP SUGGESTION.

There is a certain degree of economy in buying soap in quantity, because it hardens as it stands, and hence goes further as it ages.

—Long Distance calls while you hold the line

USERS of Long Distance are finding our new high speed service a remarkable time-saver.

On the majority of calls to distant cities, the Long Distance Operator to whom details of the call are first given, at once endeavours to establish the connection while the calling party holds the line. The result is often only a matter of seconds. A constantly increasing proportion of Long Distance traffic is being handled on this new and speedier basis.

Extensive changes in Long Distance equipment, as well as rearrangement and intensive training of our staff have made this new service an accomplished fact.

Your co-operation in making careful note for future use of distant numbers you may have occasion to call is always helpful. But whether you know the distant number or not, the Long Distance Operator will do her utmost to get the party you want while you hold the line!

"Almost as speedy as a local call" is the verdict of many who have used this new and speedier Long Distance Service

BUGGY SMASHED OCCUPANTS HURT

Car Runs Into Buggy Stopped on Seymour Road.

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 15 — On Friday evening a very serious accident was narrowly averted on Sebastopol Stret when Mr. Marshall West of Seymour West collided with a buggy driven by Mr. and Mrs. Albert Bonney. Mr. and Mrs. Bonney were driving to town and had stopped to talk to Mr. Robert Innis when Mr. West in his car ran into the buggy, completely demolishing it nd throwing Mr. and Mrs. Bonney to the ground. No bones were broken but both were badly bruised and shaken up. Mr. Innis had his foot and shoulder badly hurt but is resting comfortably. Mr. Bonney's horse escaped without injury. After medical examination, the injured were able to be taken to their homes.

Mrs. William Hume had a narrow escape from serious injury, when she fell through a trap door to the cellar on Friday evening. Mrs. Hume is badly bruised but is resting as well as can be expected.

Mr. James Russell, who had his hand badly mangled some time ago while loading machinery at the station, is progressing favorably.

A Presentation

A very interesting event took place on Friday evening, when the members of the choir of St. John's United Church made a presentation to Miss Helen Wood, in view of her approaching marriage. Miss Wood has been a valued member of the choir and as a talented singer, has long charmed her audiences, and the choir will miss her as a prominent worker.

The Sunday School room was gaily decorated with searmers of gay colors, and a large arch, with a huge white bell as central decoration, was over a small table on which stood a miniature bride.

Games and contests were played, Mrs. A. L. Malcolmn winning the prize of a pair of cut glass salt cellars, and Miss Irene Stephens and Miss Cherrie Turner winning the other prizes. All wore bright paper caps and had a merry time.

After the games, Miss Wood was called to the platform and presented with a silver casserole on behalf of the choir. Miss Wood was greatly taken by surprise and in a few well-chosen remarks, expressed thanks for the gift, and said it was with much regret she was leaving her work in the choir, which was always a pleasure to her.

After a delicious lunch was served, the choir all joined together in singing, "For She's a Jolly Good Fellow."

On Saturday afternoon, Mrs. F. W. Wood gave a trousseautea for her daughter, Miss Helen D. Wood whose marriage takes place on Thursday to Mr. William Witthun of Windsor.

LAST PUBLIC WORKOUT IS HELD BY THE HEAVYWEIGHT CHAMPION

Next Two Sparring Bouts Will Be Newspapermen Only.

O'NEILL IMPRESSED.

Terrific Drive To Conclude Training For Match With Tunney.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J., Sept. 14. — With nine days separating him from the fight in which he will defend his title, Jack Dempsey satisfied a crowd of about 2,000 yesterday afternoon with a fast, snappy eight-round drill in his last workout before the public.

To-day and to-morrow he will work only before the newspaper men. Dempsey said Monday that he would work out for the boxing writers on Friday, but revised this plan and said he would rest on Friday. Then he will pitch into a final intensive training grind in which he will bar even newspaper men from his camp.

The final drive will be at a terrific pace from the present indications. Dempsey has been saving his big sparring partners against the day which is almost at hand. Big Bill Tate and Charley Anderson, negro heavyweights, have been enjoying what amounts to a vacation from work, but now are viewing with obvious alarm the closing period of training in which they will serve as buffers when the champion takes all restraint from his punches. For fast work Dempsey will have Tommy Loughran, Philadelphia light-heavyweight; Martin Burke, light-heavyweight, of New Orleans, and Mike Arnold, a light-heavyweight from Fort Worth, Texas. They, too, appear to be in for stormy sessions.

Devotes Drill to Speed.

Yesterday Dempsey's workout consisted of six rounds of boxing against four sparring partners and two rounds of bag-punching. Working principally for speed, he satisfied everybody in this respect, and on the few occasions when he cut loose in punching outbursts the crowd and critics alike were impressed.

The boxing opened with two rounds against Loughran, and for the third day the Philadelphian put the champion through his best boxing drill. How good Dempsey appears and acts right now is illustrated in a remark from Loughran after the workout.

"How can you fight or box a fellow like that when you're in there with him?" said Tommy. "You've got to think and try to protect yourself and fight at the same time, and it can't be done. Dempsey was off a little in his distance and timing, but he was snapping his punches in well and hitting harder than he has ever hit me before."

In the second round, Dempsey apparently was studying some ring tactics. He stepped back and at long range became the target for numerous left jabs and right crosses to the face. On his toes all the time, Dempsey threw his head this way and that, dodged or ducked or suddenly leaped in with a left hook or right cross which generally missed the mark. Finally Dempsey saw his chance and whipped a left hook to the head, which sent Loughran back to the ropes in a neutral corner. A following right was poised, but Dempsey didn't let it go.

Burke Roughly Treated.

The champion was rougher against Burke in a two-round exhibition and as a consequence the New Orleans boxer left the ring with blood streaming from his nose and mouth. The sight of the blood seemed to have its effect on Dempsey and the old instinct appeared to be aroused. Mr. Burke, therefore, experienced the two toughest rounds he has encountered.

A round with Mike Arnold, Fort Worth boxer, and another with Herman Auerbach, welterweight, son of Al Auerbach, the discoverer and first manager of Dempsey, closed the champion's drill. In these two rounds Dempsey went along with comparative ease.

The crowd and critics agreed Dempsey was off in distance, or so it appeared, particularly against Loughran. It is possible that Dempsey reverted to a programme of studying his punches and his rival. Dempsey has made this an integral part of his training on alternate days, and may account for his not being so furious and vicious as Monday.

At times, though, Dempsey displayed some of his viciousness and it was tough on the sparring partners. Marty Burke ended the first round of his two-round session with the champion, with his lips bruised.

"He hit the old nose one there that would liked to have knocked it off," he said.

Gus Wilson expressed complete satisfaction with Dempsey's form, and with respect to the approaching fight said:

"Dempsey has such an overwhelming will power that he can overcome any obstacle he encounters in the ring."

Loughran had more success against Dempsey in two rounds yesterday than he did Monday, but not quite as much as in their first workout Saturday. The Philadelphian countered repeatedly against the rushes of the champion, with accurate left jabs and right crosses or uppercuts as Dempsey came tearing in.

Dempsey Crowds Loughran.

After the first few exchanges of the opening round, Loughran threw Dempsey off balance with a left hook to the jaw and a right cross to the face, but was immediately called upon to protect himself as the champion rushed in smartly and pounded the body with lefts and rights. At close quarters it was noticeable that Loughran did not handle Dempsey easily, as he did last Saturday. The Philadelphian was too busy trying to stop or break some of the wicked jolts. Dempsey brought the blood from Loughran's lips in this first round.

Ike O'Neil, who trained Jess Willard at Toledo seven years ago, was a spectator and was deeply impressed with the champion's workout.

"Dempsey's in great shape right now," said O'Neill. "I've bet $1,000 against $500 on Dempsey to win simply on my knowledge of him. But after seeing him yesterday afternoon I'm going to press my bet and press it good. He looks great and he must be all right, particularly in the legs. Nobody could step around in his toes all the time through a workout like that and not be all right in the legs."

Johnny Dundee, undefeated world's featherweight champion, came back to the titleholder's camp yesterday after a visit to the camp of Gene Tunney, but all he would say was that he was impressed with Dempsey's form and boxing.

CLERKS WIN FROM MILL TEAM IN SOFTBALL CHAMPIONSHIP GAME

Losers Suffer Worst Defeat of the Season—Score of 25 To 6.

AT CAMPBELLFORD.

Comb Storey For Twenty-three Hits and Two Walks.

CAMPBELLFORD, September 15. —The Clerks won the championship of the Softball Association and the big silver cup donated by the Campbellford Cloth Company, by handing the Mill team their worst defeat of the season at the Agricultural grounds last night. The score was 25 to 6.

The mill defence collapsed in the final game and the champions had things pretty much their own way.

They combed Storie for twenty solid hits and two walks, while his team mates cashed in with eight errors. The two-time champions were in a fighting mood and nothing could stop them.

They started off with a pair in the first inning, had three in the second scoring eight runs, and collected five more in the seventh and there wasn't an inning they failed to cross the home plate at least once.

Their attack was consistent and every member of the team had a hand in the slaughter

The Clerks played great ball in the field. Cook and Blake in the outfield smothered every attempt of the Mill in that direction, and 7 homers and his infield took care of everything in their territory in fine style.

It was the Clerks best effort in some time. Thomas pitched the best game he has shown against the hard hitting mill, only three men facing him in the first four innings; he had one bad inning (the sixth) when the mill collected five of their eight hits for five runs. The mill also went out in order in the eighth and ninth. The mill boys never quit trying till the last man was out, but it wasn't their day, and they couldn't do anything right.

Cochrane supplied the fielding feature when he raced over back of several to pick up a fast grass cutter and threw out his man at first.

Bennett was the most consistent for the mill, both at bat and defensively; the catcher was on his toes all the time and collected a pair of singles.

Rev. Mr. Clark, secretary of the association in presenting the cup to "Jimmie" Gay, the Clerk's manager, congratulated the champions on their splendid victory, and also the mill on their efforts during the series. He eulogized the activities of the association in promoting clean, healthful sport for so many athletes, and the size of the crowds at practically all the games was proof of the interest the townspeople were taking in the contests.

To win the championship was the incentive of every team, and the handsome silver cup was an added incentive for players to do their best at all times.

CHAMPION WINS SECOND VICTORY

Tennis Star Comes First in Second Play For Title.

LIVELY TUSSLE.

FOREST HILLS, N.Y., Sept. 15 (Canadian Press) — Exhibiting the most erartic brand of tennis he has shown since becoming National Champion six years ago, William T. Tilden, limped to his second victory yesterday in the title tournament at the West Side Club.

"Big Bill," still favoring his strained knee, had as much difficulty overcoming one of his young proteges, Neil Sullivan of Bethlehem, Pa., as he did Monday is disposing of John Van Ryn, Princeton youth. The titleholder was given a lively tussle before he gained control sufficiently to pull out the match at 4-6, 6-4, 6-2, 6-1.

With Tilden still off form and his bid for a seventh championship apparently fading, the other fifteen tournament survivors reached the third round in a series of hard fought matches that produced numerous upsets.

REDS GAIN FIRST PLACE IN LEAGUE HALF GAME LEAD

Twelve Hits Off McGraw Give Cincinnati Their Winning Runs.

ST. LOUIS IDLE.

World Champions Play Shutout Game With New York, Winning 5 To 0.

NEW YORK, Sept. 15 (Canadian Press) — Cincinnati defeated the Robins 5 to 1, yesterday, at Brooklyn and moved into the league leadership while St. Louis was idle. Carl Mays won his nineteenth game of the season after volunteering his services to Manager Hendricks. The Reds eased into first place with a half-game margin over the Cardinals.

Twelve hits off McGraw, the Robins' reliance, gave the Reds their tallies. Brooklyn could do little against the underslung delivery of Mays, hitting for but five scattered safeties.

Cincinnati's offensive centred about Walker, Roush and Critz, with Critz' fielding a feature.

The world's champions played championship ball today at the Polo Grounds, shutting out New York 5 to 0. Ray Kremer made it his eighteenth win of the season allowing no hits until the seventh inning when Frisch beat out a slow one to Grantham.

The victory gained McKechnie's team ground in the pennant race due to the idleness of St. Louis. It was their third win from the Giants in four games played in the series.

Hugh McQuillan, opening ceremonies for New York, took a fancy to the Pirate bats which landed on him and on Kent Greenfield, who relieved him in the first inning for five hits and four runs. Waner's homer in the second concluded the scoring for the day.

The Phillies took the final game they will play with the Chicago Cubs this season by a score of 5 to 4.

"Hack" Wilson, star outfielder and leading ome run hitter of the National League, (sustained a possible fracture of the mastoid bone when Carlson hit him behind the left ear with a pitched ball in the sixth inning.

SOMERVILLE OUT.

SHORT HILLS, N.J., Sept. 15.—(Canadian Press)—The magic clubs of Bobby Jones paced America's foremost amateurs successfully through the qualification test for the national amateur championship to a dramatic finish on the sand-cupped links of Baltusrol yesterday.

Don Carrick, Toronto, Ont.—86—167.

J. B. Mickles, Montreal—87—171.

"CAT BURGLARS."

LONDON, Sept. 15. — Several daring burglaries in the West End suggest the work of a steeplejack or agile chimney sweep. In one invasion, the burglars scaled a high wall and climbed a drain pipe along the side of the building. In another, a burglar climbed the side of a brick building, after the style of a "human fly."

Prince Enters Cabaret Great Scurrying Results

PARIS, Sept. 15 (United News). — The unexpected entrance of the Prince of Wales into a cabaret on the Rue Edward VII., last night while Tommy Lyman, chief fun maker was absent brought consternation to the management.

Waiters, pages, and even the proprietor of the cabaret rushed to the boulevards and sought Lyman, who speeded back to his work.

He presented his apologies to the Prince, who accepted them laughingly.

Princess Astrid To Wed Belgian Prince, New Rumor

COPENHAGEN, Sept. 15 (United Press).—The engagement of Princess Astrid of Sweden to Crown Prince Leopold of Belgium is expected to be announced September 20, according to reports from Stockholm.

Prince Leopold and Queen Elizabeth of Belgium recently visited Princess Astrid, travelling to Stockholm incognito, and it is reported they will again visit there this week-end.

Rumors of the imminent engagement of the Prince of Wales and Princess Astrid have reached London intermittently for several months.

A long time the English press seemed convinced that the heir would marry the Swedish Princess, and there were many stories about her, emphasizing her house-wifely qualities and simple rearing.

Kipling's New Book Shows His Dislike For Americans

LONDON, Sept. 15.—(United Press.)—Rudyard Kipling has evinced a dislike of the United States in a new book of war inspired voices called "Debits and Credits."

One of the voices, "The Vineyard,' 'decries the American delay in entering the war after the Allies long had trod the winepress of the wrath of God. Kipling then depicts the Americans as grabbing all possible spoils of war which the Allies, according to Kipling, did not begrudge:

"Till he showed us for our good.
Deaf to mirth and blind to scorn
How we might have best withstood
Burdens that he had not borne."

MEIGHEN'S MINISTERS

W. R. Motherwell, Hon. C. A. Dunning, Hon. G. H. King, and Hon. Charles Stewart

Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, Speaker of the last two parliaments, was re-elected in his constituency of Gaspe, Quebec. In Queen's, P.E.I., Hon. J. E. Sinclair, formerly minister without portfolio in the King Government, who was defeated in the general election last October, was successful yesterday. Hon. James Murdock, former Minister of Labor under Premier King, met defeat in High Park, Toronto.

Returns from the Maritimes recorded the defeat for William Duff in Queens-Lunenburg, Nova Scotia. Mr. Duff was deputy-speaker during the life of the last Parliament. Another candidate who was much in the public eye and who went down to defeat was A. J. Doucet in the constituency of Kent, N.B. On the stump Mr. Doucet, who was a member of the Parliamentary committee which investigated the Department of Customs and Excise during the last session, made statements in regard to alleged "joy sails" on the steamer Margaret by members of the former Liberal government.

The election of Henri Bourassa, Independent, in Labelle, Quebec, was early conceded. One of the most prominent members of the Conservative party to suffer defeat in Manitoba was the Hon. Robert Rogers. This province returned no Conservatives. In the last House the Conservatives had six Manitoba seats. In British Columbia Hon. H. H. Stevens, who made charges which precipitated the customs investigation and one of the most bitter debates in the annals of the Canadian Parliament, was returned. Mr. Stevens is Minister of Customs.

Of the two women who contested ridings, one was elected. Miss Agnes MacPhail, Progressive, who has represented Southeast Grey for five years in the House of Commons, was returned once more by the electors of that constituency. In East Toronto Miss Kathleen Bennett, Liberal, was defeated by Hon. E. B. Ryckman, Minister of Public Works. In Algoma East G. B. Nicholson, a promiennt member of the Conservative party and one of its most active Parliamentary debaters during the last session, met with defeat at the hands of the Hon. Beniah Bowman, formerly a Minister of the Ontario Legislature.

CONGRATULATE LIBERALS.

TORONTO, Sept. 15. —"I congratulate the King party on its return to power," sair Sir Henry Drayton, M.P. for West York, and Acting Premier at Ottawa during the absence of Mr. Meighen. "May they this time give something with it for Canada."

Sir Henry said the personal defeat of Mr. Meighen was particularly regrettable. His courage in sticking to his first constituency had been characteristic, though not appreciated. Quebec had remained solid, he said, and this again was a regrettable feature. He thought the vote did not record the thought of Quebec on the real economic and fiscal questions before the country.

LEADERS REVIEW FIELD.

OTTAWA, Sept. 15.—(Canadian Press.)—The rival political leaders are reviewing the field for he next move. Neither so far has made any public announcement.

Premier Meighen was at his office this morning but declined to make any statement. Expectations in political circles are that he will summon his cabinet and make preparations for placing his resignation in the hands of the Governor-General. This would be followed by the summoning of Mr. Mackenzie King to form a government. There is already talk in the air of a Liberal-Progressive coalition government. During his previous term as premier, Mr. King made a number of endeavors to secure the admission of Progressives to his cabinet. In the early part of last session, the admission of Robert Forke, at that time Progressive leader, and a couple of other Progressives, was mooted. But the proposal failed to materialize. It is now thought that Mr. King, when he is called to form an administration, will endeavour to secure Progressive members for his cabinet. When in the west during the recent campaign, both Mr. Mackenzie King and Mr. Forke spoke on the same platform.

As results stood at noon today Mr. Mackenzie King falls short of a clear Liberal majority. To secure a majority of one, 124 members are needed when the appointment of the Speaker is considered. At noon today, Mr. King had 118 straight Liberal seats, but in the normal course of things, a Liberal-Progressive Cabinet would carry with it the eighteen Progressive and Liberal-Progressive candidates elected yesterday or a total of 136. This, after the election of the Speaker, would give such a government a technical majority of 25 apart from the U.F.A. members elected in Alberta. The U.F.A. members, while in the Progressive group last session, have asserted an Independent attitude. One of the surprises in the campaign was the decline in Conservative strength in Ontario and the Prairie Provinces. In Ontario the Conservative representation dropped from 68 to 53.

When he again forms a Government, all the members of it accepting a paid office including Mr. King himself, will have to seek re-election.

On October 19, Mr. King is due in London for the Imperial Conference. Some months ago the Canadian Government accepted the invitation, but recent developments have left the situation much in the air. Important questions are likely to arise at the conference, and there is a feeling that the Prime Minister should be there in person. At the same time there is questioning whether he will be able to form his government and transact the necessary public business in the interval.

In all probability, Parliament will be summoned to meet in November.

THEATRE

AT THE CAPITOL.

"ELLA CINDERS" IS COMING.

Fireside humor and pathos are exemplified by the comic strip of the home newspaper becomes a living, moving thing upon the screen in the picturization of "Ella Cinders", Colleen Moore's latest vehicle for First National, which begins an engagement at the Capitol Theatre tomorrow.

The picture, made by John McCormick, responsible for the highly successful screen version of 'Irene,' deals with the exploits of the once winner and victor of a small town movie contest promoted by swindlers, with a trip to Hollywood, all expenses paid, as the grand prize. With the conclusion of the contest, the glib schemers vanish from the scene, their pockets bulging with their proportionate percentage of money derived from entry fees, while the heroine is left to shift for herself in a city overrun with beauties.

Miss Moore, who is always delightful in a Cinderella theme, can be expected to play her part in a drama of such background. She again has the services of Lloyd Hughes as her leading man and is surrounded by players of proven capabilities.

Alfred E. Green, her mentor in many past screen successes, directed Miss Moore is this new offering.

AT THE REGENT

IS WESTERN WITH EUROPEAN SLANT

"The Cowboy and the Countess" Has All Action of Arizona and Color of the Old World

"The Cowboy and the Countess," the Fox Films production starring Buck Jones, which comes to the Regent Theatre tomorrow is something decidedly different in the way of Westerns. In it are combined the romance of the West and the glamour of the Old World with all the action possible woven in to hold it together.

Jerry Whipple, the youthful owner of the Boot Jack Ranch, heads a troupe of cowboys on a Eureopan tour—incidentally following Elsa Verlaine, a beautiful young Belgravian, whose life he has saved.

Financially the trip is a huge success, but for a time it looks as though Jerry will have to go home without even seeing the lovely Elsa Verlaine. Then her maid brings the news that she is being forced into marriage with the Duke de Milos, who Jerry thoroughly dislikes, and from then on the story moves with lightning like rapidity.

After many thrilling adventures, including a spectacular fight with Borzarri, a notorious bandit, Jerry and his cowboys come out victorious.

It is a picture filled with thrills and real action from start to finish and one that will hold everyone tense with excitement. Buck Jones is supported by a particularly good cast which includes Helena D'Algy, Diana Miller and Harvey Clark.

The story is an original one by Maxine Alton and Adele Buffington, adapted to the screen by Charles Darnton. R. William Neill directed the production.

AT THE GRAND

GEORGE WHITE'S 'SCANDALS

All that one looks for in musical revue—beautiful settings, costumes, an excellent cast, comedy of all varieties ranging from the clever quip to buffoonery, high-class dancing and agreeable singing—will be found in the sixth annual edition of George's White's "Scandals" which will be on view at the Grand on Tuesday next.

The comedy scenes are by George White and William K. Wells and Bud De Sylva and Ballard Macdonald have supplied the lyrics. George Gershwin, who is in the forefront of composers of the lighter form of music is responsible for a captivating score. All of the gorgeous costumes, stage decorations and curtains were designed by Erte, the well known designer of Paris and executed by Max Weldy of the French capital. Three special cars are necessary to transport the scenery and effects of the revue and it is the management's guarantee that same production in its entirety that was seen during the long runs of the Revue in New York, Chicago, Boston and Philadelphia will be on display in the local presentation.

A special orchestra under the personal direction of Baldy Wetzel is carried by the company and therefore a smooth performance is assured.

In a cast of over 100 well known players in the lighter form of entertainment appear the names of Jeane White, sister of the producer, George White. She is famous on both sides of the Atlantic for her beauty, style and grace and appeared before the King and Queen of England by their command last Fall in special dancing numbers.

The Hunzas, a tribe inhabiting the mountainous region of central Asia, were great admirers of Lord Kitchener, and on hearing of his death they erected a shrine to his memory.

The most amazing race of human beings is undoubtedly the El Molo, a tribe inhabiting the desert wastes bordering Lake Rudolf, in Kenya Colony, Africa. This tribe represents the only known specimens of semi-amphibious people and it is a curious fact that any tribesman dies if he is kept without water for about three hours. As a rule they drink every hour during the day, for even an hour and a half without water causes cracking and bleeding of the lips.

MEIGHEN LOSES IN HOME RIDING

Former Law Partner of Premier Victorious Liberal Candidate.

SECOND DEFEAT.

WINNIPEG, September 15. — Premier Meighen has himself gone down to defeat in his own constituency of Portage la Prairie, Manitoba. Portage la Prairie is the constituency which first sent him as a young man to the Dominion Parliament. In the general elections of five years ago he met defeat there and found a seat in Ontario. Portage la Prairie again elected him a year ago; now it defeats him once more. By one of the ironies of politics Mr. Meighen is defeated by E. A. McPherson, an old friend and former law partner.

American by Birth.

Ewan Alexander McPherson has been a resident of Manitoba since he was one year old. He was born in Worth County, Missouri, U.S.A., on Jan. 25, 1887, and came to Canada with his parents the following year. They settled in the Portage la Prairie district and his son was educated in the Portage la Prairie schools and studied law at Winnipeg beginning his practice in Portage la Prairie and at one time was a law partner with Hon. Arthur Meighen.

Mr. McPherson supported Mr. Meighen in the Union Government campaign of 1917. He made his first try in political life in 1910 when he was defeated for the Manitoba Legislature by the Hon. Hugh Armstrong. He was elected a supporter of Premier Norris in 1914, and again in 1915 but was defeated by Major Fawcett Taylor at the Manitoba election of 1921. Major Taylor is now Provincial Conservative Leader in Manitoba.

Scotch by Descent.

Mr. McPherson comes of Scotch stock, although born in the United States. His mother was a Wallace. He is a quiet unassuming man and is extremely popular, having held many public offices in Portage. He was married in 1904 to Margaret Finn, the daughter of a Methodist minister in Portage, and has three sons and one daughter. He is a member of the United Church. Mr. McPherson is considered of Cabinet rank.

RE-OPENS CASE IN LOS ANGELES

District Attorney Starts New Investigation on Large Scale.

NEW WITNESSES.

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Sept. 15 (Canadian Press) — District Attorney Asa Keyes today reopened the Aimee Semple McPherson kidnapping investigation on a scale indicating he might call the principal witnesses in the previous inquiries as well as those identified with new charges that the story of the evangelist's disappearance last May was a hoax.

Mrs. Lorraine Wiseman-Sielaff, a seamstress, who declared she received money from Mrs. McPherson to "frame" certain things in connection with the kidnapping story, was scheduled for further questioning today. Mrs. McPherson yesterday admitted employing Mrs. Sielaff in an effort to obtain evidence to disprove reports that she occupied a cottage at Carmel, California, with a man identified as Kenneth G. Ormiston, former Angelus Temple radio operator.

Mrs. Seilaff is credited with starting the present investigation with her statement that she was the mysterious "Miss X" who stayed at the Carmel cottage with Ormiston for ten days shortly after the evangelist disappeared.

As the official investigation gained headway the Times today published a purported confession by Miss Bernice Morris, secretary of the late R. E. McKinlay, blind Long Beach attorney, that she had conferred with Mrs. McPherson about the plan started by her former employer to produce the mythical kidnappers.

Loser Shows Spirit Which Featured Fight

An episode occurred last night which showed the sporting spirit which characterized the local campaign:

As the Liberals were having their triumphal march up George street, the defeated candidate, J. J. Duffus, who was leading the procession, noticed E. A. Peck, the member-elect, standing on the sidewalk. Mr Duffus immediately left the ranks of the procession and went over and congratulated Mr. Peck on his election.

FARMER STARTS TO GET REVENGE

Demented By Financial Reverses He Leaves Home With Shotgun.

DEATH LIST FOUND.

WINNIPEG, Sept. 15 (Canadian Press).—Leaving a list of men slated "for death," Ross Little, a farmer of the Roblin district, northwest of Winnipeg, left his home armed with a shotgun Sunday, and yesterday Provincial Police are scouring the countryside.

One man has been shot, and now is in the Dauphin Hospital in a serious condition. He is James Munroe, aged 70, a neighbor of Little's. Six other men were on the "death list" found in Little's home yesterday morning. Police declared that Little is demented, following financial worries, and has sought revenge for fancied wrongs.

Little visited the home of Munroe late Sunday night, and as Munroe opened the door, the demented man commenced firing. Munroe was struck in the arm, and attacked with the butt-end of the gun. The aged man succeeded in knocking his assailant off the steps, and closed the door. Little continued to fire through the door, according to the police report received here, and when Munroe secured his gun, the two men exchanged several shots. Little escaped uninjured. As he left the farm he shot one of the farmer's dogs.

Munroe had his arm badly shattered, and is suffering from shock.

The Provincial Police have no trace of the crazed man, but a wide search is being conducted through the district.

RETURN OF LIBERAL STRONGHOLDS TO PARTY COLUMN MAIN FEATURE OF ELECTION RESULT IN ONTARIO

Party Map Shows Blocks of Constituencies Voting Alike.

LIBERAL GAINS.

Largest Representation in House Since Before 1911 Election.

TORONTO, Sept. 15 (Canadian Press).—With the victory conceded by a small majority of M. N. Taylor, Liberal, in the Riding of Norfolk-Elgin, hitherto placed in the doubtful column, the representation from Ontario in the next House of Commons will be as follows:

Liberals 25; Conservatives 53; Progressives 2, Liberal-Progressives 2. These figures indicate thirteen Liberal gains from Conservatives, one Progressive gain from Conservatives, and one Liberal-Progressive gain from Conservatives.

The feature of the election contest in Ontario was the swing to Liberalism in several Western Ontario constituencies evidenced by the return to the Liberal column of seats which in former days were considered safe Liberal strongholds. This was particularly true in Oxford, Grey, Bruce, Huron, Perth, Lambton, and Kent Counties while Elgin, formerly considered a Conservative stronghold, returned two Liberals. Liberal gains were also made in the northern and eastern parts of the Province while the central and southern sections remained solidly Conservative. A glance at the map of Ontario would demonstrate that the two major parties elected their members in blocks of several constituencies each.

Ontario has never had so many Liberal members as in the new House since the Reciprocity election of 1911, when Sir Wilfrid Laurier was swept from power and his Ontario representation diminished from 36 to 13. In the wartime election of 1917 his following was practically wiped out. In 1921 the contest was featured by the entry of Progressives as a political force in the province, and in that election the new party captured 24 seats as compared with the Liberals 21, while the Conservatives carried 37 seats. In the election last October the Liberals took only 12 seats out of the 82.

IN POLICE COURT.

Peter Pattes alias J. D. Patiry, who is wanted in Orlando, Florida, in connection with a serious charge, appeared on a technical charge of vagrancy. J. A. O'Brien appeared for the accused and pleaded not guilty on his behalf.

Chief of Police Samuel Newhall asked for a week's remand, whereupon Mr O'Brien asked what arrangements had been made for bail. The Chief replied by asking that bail be set at $5000 cash, which drew a vehement protest from Mr. O'Brien, who declared "these letters and telegrams in the Chief's procession might have been sent by the Ku Klux Klan for all he knew." His client he said, had been living openly in Toronto for years, and as yet there had been no formal application for extradition.

Magistrate O. A. Langley consented to bail, fixing the amount at $4,000 cash.

Chief Newhall told the Examiner that the accused had been in Toronto for the past two years, having previously jumped bail in the United States. He came to Peterboro on a holiday and was picked up through the vigilance of the local force, from descriptions which had been posted up some time ago.

He denied that he was the man who was wanted. His fingerprints and measurements were taken, and 24 hours later he confessed his identity. Frank Karel, Sheriff, Orange County, Orlando, is leaving to-day for Peterboro.

Padua was, not long ago, the scene of an amazing feat of endurance in which Signor Bancia played the piano for forty consecutive hours, during which he played 250 compositions from memory, without taking a particle of solid food.

Gold Plated Radio Sets Are Demanded By Public

NEW YORK, Sept. 15 (United Press).—Radio is reaching the gold-plated age. Hundreds of visitors to the Radio World's Fair at Madison Square Garden are willing to pay prices for sets with a gold-plated finish, according to exhibitors. One exhibitor began with nickle-plated sets but the public soon demanded those finished in gold plate.

FERGUSON SAYS NINE VACANCIES WILL BE FILLED

Provincial Leader Declines To Say Whether Election Will Be General.

REVERSE CAUSES.

Better Organization of Liberals and Conservative Over-Confidence Blamed.

TORONTO, Sept. 15 (Canadian Press)—Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, the Prime Minister of Ontario, stated today that he would not face the Ontario Legislature again with nine seats vacant in the province, but he would not state whether a provincial general election would be held before the next session of the Legislature or whether by-elections would be conducted to fill the nine vacant seats in the house. Previous to the federal election campaign there were seven vacant seats caused by resignations and two were added when Beniah Bowman, Progressive member from Manitoulin and J. W. Freeborn, Progressive member for Middlesex East, resigned to run for federal honors yesterday.

Commenting on the results of the Dominion election, Premier Ferguson attributed the Conservative reverses in Ontario to three causes. He said that the Liberals had a larger and better organization than the Conservatives; that the Conservatives were over confident, and that the affair concerning the Hon. H. H. Stevens, arising at the last minute, left no opportunity for an explanation.

According to the local chief of police the woman gave birth to a child in Toronto last Thursday night, returned here yesterday, and visited the home of a neighbor where she is alleged to have burned the child. The chief of police found the charred remains and took them to the morgue in Toronto.

CARS COLLIDE.

One Driver Hurt in Smash on Hunter Street East.

Two cars came to a sudden meeting at the corner of Rogers and Hunter streets this afternoon with the result that both were damaged, and one driver hurt. A heavy car from out of town was trying to make the hill east on Hunter street, and reached the corner at the same time as a light car, loaded with corn, which was proceeding south on Rogers street. The smaller car was overturned and the corn scattered all over the street. The back axle was broken and the top and windshield shattered. Some damage was done to the front of the other car.

The injured driver, Frank Leahy, was taken to Dr. McNulty's office. Afteran examination he was removed to the hospital.

WEDDING BELLS.

PALMER—RICHMOND.

A quiet but very pretty wedding took place at 2.30 Saturday afternoon, Sept. 11, 1926, at 127 Westminster Avenue, Toronto, when Rev. W. E. Baker united in the holy bonds of matrimony Lena Maye Simmons Richmond, formerly of Peterborough to Harold E. Palmer, of Tillsonburg. The young couple were unattended.

After the ceremony the young people returned to the bride's home, where a very dainty repast was served to immediate relatives and friends. Mr. and Mrs. Palmer will make their home in Toronto.

The bride has many friends in Peterborough and vicinity.

COLLINGWOOD—GREER.

Wesley United church was the scene of a charming wedding on Wednesday, Sept. 8th, at 3 o'clock, when Rev. Burnside Russell conducted the ceremony by which Ethel Maude, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. Greer, 23 Hughson street north, became the wife of Mr. John George Collingwood, son of Mr. Harry Collingwood, of Hatlepool, England. Summer flowers and ferns decorated the church for the occasion. Mr. T. A. Partridge played the bridal music and Miss Catherine McLelland sang, while the register was being signed, 'Until.' The bride, given in marriage by her father, was gowned in white georgette, trimmed with silver, and her embroidered net veil was worn in coronet style, arranged with orange blossoms. Her shower bouquet was of ophelia roses, lilies of the valley, maiden-hair and baby's breath. Her sisters, Misses Mabel and Myra Greer, attended her, wearing ribbon-trimmed frocks of sunset and orchid colored georgette, respectively, and carrying sunset roses and baby's breath. Their picture hats were of black velvet. Mr. R W Graham was best man, and the ushers were Messrs Victor Morrow, George Drewett and R Greer, jun. A reception for fifty guests was held at the residence of the bride's parents at the conclusion of the church ceremony, when Mrs. Greer received, wearing a flat crepe gown of sand and brown, with feathered hat to match, and corsage bouquet of pink roses. Mrs. Harry Collingwood, Peterborough, the groom's sister, was gowned in peach-colored brocade, with hat to match. The house decorations were carried out in pink and white flowers and white ribbons. Later in the afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Collingwood left by motor on their honeymoon, which will be spent in Peterborough and the lake district. The bride's going-away costume was a frock of golden-brown flat crepe, coat of rosewood color, and smart hat to match. On their return they will reside at 208 East avenue north.

The groom's gift to the bride was a cheque; to the bridesmaids, silver cake dishes; to the best man a gold penknife; to the ushers, tie pins, and to the singer, a gold pencil.

The guests present at the wedding from out-of-town included: Miss Allison, Brantford; Mr and Mrsfl Harry Collingwood, Peterborough; Miss L. Smith and Mr. Bert Larmour, Windsor, and Mr. and Mrs. Runciman, Toronto.—Hamilton Spectator.

FOUR ALLIES OF FRANCE SUCCEED IN SECURING ELECTION TO SEATS ON LEAGUE OF NATIONS COUNCIL

Poland, Rumania, Belgium and Czecho-Slovakia Chosen.

IRELAND BEATEN.

Other Five Seats Go To China, Holland, Chile, Colombia and Salvador.

GENEVA, Sept. 16 (Canadian Press). — France's political influence in continental Europe, coupled with the personal popularity of Foreign Minister Benes of Czecho-Slovakia, resulted to-day in the election of four countries who are practically France's allies to non-permanent seats in the Council of the League of Nations. These states are: Poland, Roumania, Czecho-Slovakia and Belgium.

Other states chosen were: Colombia, Chile, Salvador, Holland and China. The Irish Free State lost its battle to represent the British Dominions in the Council, receiving only 10 votes. Colombia, the highest winner, received 46 out of a total of 49.

Not only will France have four allies in the Council, but Poland, whose demand for a permanent seat was one of the chief causes of the League's failure to admit Germany to membership last March, is declared eligible for re-election at the end of the three-year period given her to-day.

On election evening I expressed my deep appreciation of the able assistance of my supporters in the recent election.

To them and to all others who supported me, and who were not then present, I desire to extend my earnest thanks.

The success which was achieved was due to the splendid organization of devoted workers who gave so much of their time to the cause.

Defeated Candidate Uses Revolver To Drive Off Mob

MONTREAL, Sept. 16—One defeated Conservative candidate in the Province of Quebec had to use a gun on election night to threaten gangs who rushed upon the house when the result of the election became known. H. Beique, running in Chambly-Vercheres, lost by some 1,500 votes after a tense campaign and through the evening an unfriendly crowd of two hundred gathered around his home with sticks and built bonfires, endangering the structure. What looked like a rush was halted when the defeated candidate fired a revolver in the air twice. Later a squad of friends and police surrounded his house and protected it until morning.

There were disturbances in some Montreal constituencies, crowds creating disorder and mixing in fights.

The election night outbreaks followed a campaign close of fever heat in some places. Eggs and other missiles figured at the closing meetings and the Minister of Justice, Hon. E. L. Patenaude, at one place was struck by a tomato, and at another was unableto speak after an attempt of an hour and a half, during which wild disorder prevailed.

MIDWAY BRINGS NEW FEATURES

Some Old Favorites Are Included in List of Attractions.

WATER CIRCUS

The Midway contains many of the favorites of last year, with some added attractions. The shows are fourteen in number with a circus side show consisting of ten features that attracted large numbers of interested spectators.

This circus show covers a wide variety of attractions, from Charleston dancing to all kinds of snakes, harmless and venomous. A Hawaiian show provides music and dancing; one of the performers plays a steel guitar, seldom seen or heard around this neighborhood. A glass house causes "reflection" that create laughter, and sometimes surprize. Jigg's Bungalow is described as affording a treat to those who like to be seasick.

The Virginia Minstrels, a colored aggregation, who established themselves in popular favor last year, are again on the Fair Grounds. An illusion show occupies a prominent place among the attractions.

There are numerous mechanical riding contrivances including two Ferris Wheels, an "Over the Jump" apparatus, a Caterpillar, a Merry-Mix-Up, and a Hey-Dey, which is something new in Exhibition amusement.

Last, but not least, is the water-circus, the stellar attraction of which is the feat of Captain Fred Ivey, who dives from a ladder 105 high, somersaulting in the air, and landing in a bath 5 1-2 feet deep.

Miss Rose Love credited with being the world's lady champion fancy diver, is also billed to appear. In keeping with the usual custom at the water circus, a clown makes frequent appearance to the delight of he children.

In addition to the shows, there are over fifty booths, palmists' tents, games of skill and the usual large number of refreshment stalls.

RESULT OF VOTE IN THE DOMINION GREAT SURPRISE

Victory For Mackenzie King Not Expected in Great Britain.

ATTACK ANSWERED.

Led To Believe That Deadlock Would Be the Result.

LONDON, Sept. 16 (United Press)—Newspapers here are accepting the victory of Mackenzie King in their headlines and through posters and proclaiming the defeat of Premier Meighen. The news caused great surprise, because few predicted a Liberal victory, as most correspondents in Canada and others in touch with Canadian affairs here were under the impression that a deadlock was the most likely result and, failing that, Meighen would win.

The Daily Mail, through its correspondent, Ward Price, was one of the few which thought the leadership of Mr. Meighen might involve his party in defeat. It has been a severe critic of Meighen and also of the bitter personalities in the campaign. It is replied to by Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express today.

The editorial says: "The statement of a London newspaper that the contest is openly one for spoils and offices, is grievously unjust and is lacking in a shrewd appreciation of the facts. Canada is not bereft of statesmen nor are her people bankrupt of political wisdom. The race that can produce men like Sir John Macdonald, Sir Wilfred Laurier and Sir Robert Borden does not descend in one generation to a tribe of mercenary office-grabbers. There are many distinguished and developed public servants in the Canadian parliament, whose sole purpose is to serve the people."

JUDGE PRAISES FLOWER EXHIBIT AT EXHIBITION

H. G. Moore Completed Labors Late Yesterday Afternoon.

SUGGESTED CHANGES

Manufacturers' Building Interesting Feature to Visitors at Exhibition.

The exhibition grounds last night showed surprisingly little effect from the heavy rains that fell during the day. In fact the grounds seemed to be in a better condition as a result of the showers. The sandy nature of the soil accounts for the fact that the grounds do not, like those of many other fairs, become a quagmire after rainfall.

Judging of the flower exhibits was concluded late in the afternoon. The flower tent was well filled with exhibits, which the judge, H. J. Moore, of Toronto, declared of a very high order. Some of the lower blooms of the gladioli were "over-ripe," as a gardener put it to-day, and had been cut off. The lynx eyes of the judge detected the marks of the operation and deducted points for mutiliation in these cases.

Mr Moore, who said some of the blooms were among the best he had seen this year, suggested that competitors adhere strictly to the number of blooms specified by the rules; he thought it was unfair for a candidate to bring forward three blooms, when others, strictly following the conditions specified, only showed half a dozen.

Mr. Moore also commented favorably, on a competitor who displayed over thirty varieties in as many different little pots. The judge though this made him easier in apportioning credit. It was easier, he said, to judge when the varieties were separated than when they were all bunched together.

On a rainy day the indoor attractions usually claim most attention, and the Manufacturers' Building was the Mecca of most of the visitors.

The exhibit from the Dominion Government Experimental Farm at Ottawa, aroused a great deal of favorable comment. The first feature of it that catches the eye is a Davis Bulletin Model 2 which has a series of shifting placards carrying information and advice to the farmer as "Alsike Clover is the best Legume for Low Land," "Plowing and planting of Hillsides should never be done Up and Down, but always Across the Slopes," "For most soils a dressing of 100 pounds of Muriate of Potash and 200 pounds of Superphosphate an acre usually gives a Profitable Response in crop yields." The difference in appearance of paying cows and "boarders" is well exemplified in a number of fine illuminated colored views, and several pictures are displayed of light and draught horses of a type dear to the heart of every progressive farmer. There are also exhibited sample bottles and jars of bran, silo corn, oats and chicken mash, and a bundle of alfalfa of fine quality. Tiny models, made exactly to scale, exemplify the ideal in silos, range hoppers, mash hoppers, fattening crates, grit hoppers and trap nests. The right methods of feeding a herd to secure the maximum flow of milk, and of feeding poultry to assure winter eggs, are described on large boards. A fine model of a poultry house suitable for 15 hens, was attentively studied by a group of young agriculturists. Not strictly related to the subject of profitable agriculture, but of great interest to the country dweller nevertheless, are several views which show what may be done towards making the farm home as attractive outwardly as it is usually comfortable in the interior.

Local firms represented in the Manufacturers' Building are the Grafton Company, with a display of Men's furnishings, the Bell Telephone Company, the moving announcements of which instantly catch the eye, the Quaker Oats Company, exhibiting most of their food-tuffs at a stall which is ornamented by a moving wheel which is studded with colored lights; the McDonald Timber Company showing interior doors and window frames; Grant and Thorpe, with electric washing machines, heaters and stoves; Heintzman and Company, with new model Orthophones, grand and upright grand pianos and a new type of apartment size player piano; the Brinton Carpet Company which includes among its wares the Seraphi-Wilton Carpet, made from specially selected yarn, the DeLaval Company with cream separators and milkers and the DeLaval oil for farmers' equipment; the Peterboro Lumber Company, with examples of Gyproc fire-proof wall board, the Canadian Packing Company, on the stall of which Rose Brand Lard figures

No Scotsmen On Jury Stipulated By Woman

LONDON, Eng., Sept. 16.—(Canadian Press).—A woman indicted for theft at the London sessions demanded to know whether any of the jurors were Scottish. "I will not have anybody Scottish, I don't mind what they swear," she declared.

The chairman: "Do any of the jurors plead Scottish?"

A juror: "I am Irish, my lord. Does she object me?"

Defendant: "Your face is all right. I like you."

Another member of the jury said he had lived many years in Scotland, although he was not born there.

The chairman: "Oh, that's all right."

The defendant then allowed the jury to be sworn without further objection.

LIBERAL BLOC REMAINS INTACT

Returns Show Same Number as in the Last Federal House.

IN SASKATCHEWAN.

REGINA, Sask., Sept. 16.—(Canadian Press.) — The Liberal bloc of sixteen members which represented Saskatchewan in the last Federal House remains intact as a result of Tuesday's appeal to the country. In Kindersley the only seat that is still in the doubtful column, J. A. Dodd, Lib., enjoys a lead of 328 over the former Progressive member, A. M. Carmichael, with 91 polls out of 148 compiled to date. The election of W. R. Fansher, running as a Progressive in Last Mountain, was definitely conceded. The complete return gave Fansher a majority of 24 over W. A. McFarlane, Liberal. There is a possibility that a recount will be called for by Mr. McFarlane.

Running with the joint endorsation of the Liberal and Progressive parties, John Millar, in Qu'Appelle and John Evans, Rosetown, are leading their Conservative opponents by substantial majorities. Although the returns are far from complete, the election of both fusion candidates is assured.

The two Progresives elected, Milton Campbell Mackenzie, and Fansher, Last Mountain, voted with the Conservatives in several important divisions during the closing session of the last Parliament.

Regina and Saskatoon are the only two seats that have reported complete returns. In the Saskatchewan capital, Hon. Chas. A. Dunning, obtained a majority of 835, while Dr. A. H. Young, in Saskatoon, overwhelmed his opponent with a margin of 2,140.

Liberal candidates were successful in the three ridings where three-cornered contests were staged. Every member is now being directed to the collection of the missing polls in the various constituencies, but final returns in many of the Saskatchewan ridings will not be known for a day or two. Due to the vastness of the territory covered and the great distances separating polls, returns have been particularly slow from Maple Creek, Melfort, Kindersley and the Battleford.

In each of these constituencies the majorities of the Liberal candidates cannot be materially affected by the outstanding polls.

Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, who gained a clear-cut victory in Prince Albert, returns to Parliament with the support of his two Saskatchewan lieutenants, Hon. W. R. Motherwell, former Minister of Agriculture, and Hon. C. A. Dunning, former Minister of Railways and Canals.

In the 1925 election Saskatchewan returned 15 Liberals and 6 Progressives. Not since 1917, when the Union government was in power, has the province sent a Conservative to the Federal House.

BRITISH NEWSPAPERS COMMENT ON CANADIAN ELECTION RESULT VIEWS ON MATTER VARY GREATLY

London Standard Says the Result is Censure of Byng.

FUTURE OF MEIGHEN.

Verdict Against Unfair Political Tactics, Says London Star.

LONDON, Sept. 16 (Canadian Press).—The Evening Standard, owned by Lord Beaverbrook, regards the result of the Canadian general election as a sharp censure of Lord Byng, the Governor-General of the Dominion. It recalls that it pointed out at the time of the occurrence that Lord Byng had made a great constitutional mistake in refusing Premier Mackenzie King dissolution and a short time later granting the same to the new Premier, Right Hon. Arthur Meighen.

"By taking such action Lord Byng not only did an injury to his own reputation," The Standard says, "but an injury to Premier Meighen's electoral prospects following the dissolution. The liability of such an error is inevitable when a soldier is sent to fill a politician's place.

"During the war we heard much indignation expressed with regard to politicians filling soldiers' jobs. The reverse process, of which we have an example here, is at least as dangerous."

Lauds Mr. Bennett.

The Standard thinks that, although a seat in Parliament should be speedily found for Mr. Meighen, the strongest figure, by far, for the Conservative leadership is Hon. R. B. Bennett, M.P.-elect for West Calgary. The paper lauds Mr. Bennett for his lucidity and great verbal felicity, and says he is worth at least $5,000,000.

The Star, the evening edition of The Daily News (Liberal), says Lord Byng's action in refusing dissolution to Mr. King and granting it to Mr. Meighen created a bad impression, "though doubtless he acted for the best."

Protectionists "Found Out."

The Star says the result of the election is a verdict against unfair political tactics. It deprecates the course of Hon. E. L. Patenaude, Minister of Justice, throughout the election campaign, also the "insincerity" of the Conservatives on tariff matters. With regard to the latter, The Star adds that it was typical of the protectionist policy, "which The Star is glad Canada has found out."

Morning Post's Views.

Liberal complaints concerning Lord Byng "cut no ice" in the contest, The Morning Post thinks. "Both leaders," the paper says, "vied with each other in professing loyalty and devotion to the Crown and the British Empire, leaving the politicians free to range over the whole series of questions chiefly interesting Canada or its constituent Provinces.

"The Conservatives made an unfortunate play with the Customs scandals, where more was said than could be proved and the death of the Minister who had been the target caused still further reaction. The issue of free trade versus protection did not really arise, but it was one of merely increasing or maintaining protection, where the Liberals no doubt scored heavily with the agricultural vote.

"We gather that the Canadian electorate was determined as far as it could to end the unstable political equilibrium, no doubt considering that the best chance of obtaining stable government lay in plumping for the Liberals. What Canada wants is political quiet to go ahead with the agricultural and industrial development lying before it. These are better than barren controversies over constitutional issues, and if

FRESH AIR GIRL IS PRIZE BABY

Winner of C.N.E. Prize Kept Outdoors for Long Time.

DIET WATCHED

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 16. — (Canadian Press).—Hamilton, Ont., carried off the Grand Prix of Babydom when Kathleen Small was chosen out of a galaxy of between five and six hundred beauties.

Many enquiries were made with regard to the formula used by the champion's mother. Her answer was: "I keep her out in the fresh air as much as possible, even in zero weather. I am careful about what she eats. She has meat juice, but no meat. She has a sleep twice during the day and sleeps well at night. I take her to a clinic about once a week. Yes, I'm afraid I did rock her," the young mother confessed, a bit of a laugh in her voice. But Kathleen never had a "comfort."

Most of the entrants were dressed with hygienic and charming simplicity, though here and there might be noted an ultra-fashionable ensemble. There was, for instance, a diminutive maid with silk brown curls whose mother sought to enhance daughter's charms by frocking her in sky blue taffeta with over-dress of blue silk net and rosettes of pink. Another pretty brunette looked more than a trifle warm in black and yellow.

Wigs were commonly worn by women in Egypt some 3,000 years ago.

TO GARNER ALL WESTERN CROPS

Western Farmers Getting Work Done Despite Shortage of Harvesters.

15,000 MEN SHORT.

MONTREAL, Sept. 16.—(Canadian Press.)— Assurance that despite the shortage of harvesters in the west all harvest would be gathered in, was expressed here to-day by Major L. R. Edwards, Winnipeg, western superintendent of the Employment Service of Canada under the Federal Government, who is in Montreal attending the annual meeting of the fourteenth annual convention of employment services of the United States and Canada now in session here. As to the actual extent of the shortage of harvesters, Major Edwards stated: "We could have taken 15,000 more than we had."

The railroads, however, he added, had, by giving a cut rate on trains coming from the south, enabled five thousand or more men to come across the border from the United States. By releasing thousands of their employees the public utility services in the west had also contributed largely to the success of threshing operations in the prairie provinces. He expected a bumper crop this year.

MISCELLANEOUS SHOWER.

W. F. B. Class of St. John's Church Honors Bride-To-Be.

A very pleasant social evening was held on Wednesday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Vollans, Bolivar Street, when the members of St. John's W.F.B.C. and their friends, numbering between forty and fifty, gathered to present a miscellaneous shower to Miss Elsie Worrall, on the occasion of her marriage, which takes place next week to Mr. J. Collis. The bride-elect was ushered into the dining-room to the strains of Lohengrin's Wedding March, played by Miss Lily Bacon. A huge wedding cake was prepared, containing the gifts, which were numerous and beautiful, testifying to the high esteem in which the young couple are held by their many friends. Miss Worrall and Mr. Collis thanked their friends in a few well-chosen words for their kindness. The remainder of the evening was spent in games, singing and dancing, which were enjoyed by the younger members, music being supplied by Miss Lillian Groombridge and Miss Freda Shurety. Refreshments were served about 11.30, after which a very enjoyable evening was brought to a close.

SCOUT TOY SHOP BEING PLANNED

Boys Will Collect Broken and Discarded Toys and Repair Them.

FOR NEEDY FAMILIES.

The Boy Scout troops of this city are planning to fit up a store with benches and make a workshop out it for the purpose of repairing toys. The broken tops will be collected from the citizens who will given them to the Scouts and then they will be repaired and distributed by service clubs and other societies doing Christmas work.

The number of Scout toy shops this Christmas will be considerably increased all over Canada, and the reports received on these shops last year were very enthusiastic. The boys are delighted in the work and many Scouts profit by coming in contact with the hard conditions of poor families.

An empty store in a down-town block is generally secured with very little trouble, and for toy collecting purposes the city is usually divided into districts. The requests to call for toys are listed and when sufficient have been received Scouts are usually sent out in cars provided by the Rotary or Kiwanis club.

On receipt att the shop the toys are distributed to certain departments for the carpenters, the mechanical experts, the painters, etc. The repairs are done chiefly by the senior Boy Scouts. The Girl Guides usually render valuable asistance in the doll department, where they launder the clothes and if necessary make dolls' clothing.

Cities like Ottawa, Calgary, Chatham and Halifax have carried on this work in the last few years with great success and it is hoped this year the Peterborough boys will receive the co-operation of the citizens as the other Scout troops have.

GRAFTON & CO.'S SPLENDID EXHIBIT

Attractive New Styles in Men's and Boys' Clothing and Furnishings.

Being manufacturers, one naturally looks for Graftons exhibit in the Manufacturers' Building, and sure enough, right at the left of the entrance we find their splendid exhibit of the newest garments for men, for the fall and winter season. A pleasing impression of attractiveness is given by a survey of the new styles and fabrics, which is evident in both furnishings and the coats and suits. Coats have a very comfortable, dressy appearance and the shades featured are grays and dark blues.

Suits calculated to make the wearer feel well dressed are in gray tweeds and blues in new tones, with some navys given due prominence.

Furnishings are displayed in profusion, and are rich in material and shades.

Taken Itogether, Grafton's have done things in their usual thorough way in staging the exhibit and it is one that is entirely worthy of the big store.

The background tells in unmistakable lettering that the space is occupied by Peterboro's mammoth clothing establishment, Grafton and Company, Limited. (Advt)

TWO MEN KILLED IN AUTO WRECK

Found Dead in Car Which Had Crashed Into Pole.

NO WITNESSES.

FOREST, Ont., Sept. 16.—J. J. Galpin, traveller for the Perrin Biscuit Company of London, and Hubert O'Heron, of Simcoe, a mechanic at the Forest canning factory, were killed in a motor accident here about 9 o'clock yesterday evening.

The men were travelling in a light coupe from Forest to Ravenswood. At the Faucett school corner the car went into the ditch and struck a telephone pole. Nobody witnessed the accident. J. J. Maylor, of Forest, came along in his car soon after and found the wreck. Both men were dead. The bodies were brought here. Mr. O'Heron was employed here temporarily by the Dominion Canners, Ltd. It is understood that he has a wife and seven children in Simcoe. Dr. Hubbard, coroner, has not yet decided if an inquest will be necessary.

COMING AGAIN

This letter received by Mayor Holloway from a Schenectady tourist speaks for itself:

Mayor Dr. Holloway,
Peterboro, Ont.

My dear Mayor:

Beg to advise you that my wife and ten year old son and myself spent three days at your public camping grounds (Fair Grounds) during the week ending September 4th. We did this all the way from the time that we left Schenectady and to say that we enjoyed the hospitality of your town would be putting it mildly, and I would like to emphasize the fact that particular thanks should go to the caretaker of the Fair Grounds who seemed to be one of the most kindly and considerate men that we met on our trip, as it seemed to be a pleasure for him to try and do something for strangers. I might mention that he came around at least four times and wanted to know if there was anything that he could do and one evening when it looked like rain he gave us permission to use one of the buildings should we find it necessary.

It is needless to state that should we make another tour next year that Peterboro will be one of the principal cities that we will be glad to stop at and renew acquaintances.

Thanking you and your subordinates.

PILES DISAPPEAR

No Cutting or Salves Needed

External treatments seldom cure Piles.

Nor do surgical operations.

The cause is inside—bad circulation.

The blood is stagnant, the veins flabby.

The bowel walls are weak, the parts almost dead.

To quickly and safely rid yourself of piles you must free the circulation — send a fresh current through stagnant pools. Internal treatment is the one safe method. Ointments and cutting won't do it.

J. S. Leondhardt, M.D., a specialist, set at work some years ago to find a real internal remedy for piles. He succeeded. He named his prescription HEM-ROID, and tried it in 1000 cases before he was satisfied. Now HEM-ROID is sold by druggists everywhere under guarantee. It is a harmless tablet, easy to take, and can always be found at McDermid & Jury, who will gladly refund the purchase price to any dissatisfied customer.

Probably the only woman in the world operating a glass factory is Mrs. Graydon-Stannus, whose business of making artistic glassware has increased to such an extent that she has found it necessary to double the capacity of her factory near London.

NEW CHEVROLET AND OAKLAND CARS.

Latest Models Win Unstinted Praise From Hundreds of Visitors at the Peterborough Exhibition.

In their exhibit at the Peterboro Exhibition, Messrs. Howson and Lillico are showing new models of Chevrolet and Oakland automobiles, and unstinted praise from hundreds of visitors every day is the result.

Both these cars are priced within reach of the man of moderate means and both will give their owners all the comfort and many of the qualities heretofore only found in much more expensive machines.

Two striking features of this exhibit are a new Chevrolet sport touring and sport roadster. Finished in grey duco, trimmed with red, and upholstered in leather, both these cars embody the very last word in automobile beauty, fuel economy, power and comfort.

Oakland Improvements.

Distinguishing the new Oakland, which is being presented under the name of the Greater Oakland, is the immense number of improvements. These are so many, totalling seventy-seven, that only a few of them may be enumerated here. Following the present-day trend towards the sport type in all open models, the Oakland touring has been replaced by a sport phaeton; a completely equipped five-passenger open body. The new line also includes a sport roadster, a sedan, a four-door sedan, a landau sedan, and a landau coupe. Though retaining the Oakland characteristics, the 1927 season models show more symmetrical lines. The bodies of all the models are also marked by the double beading. Duotone colorings are also a feature of the Greater Oakland. The closed bodies have the one-piece metal back panel. Making this curve to the roof adds to the graceful appearance of each of the closed type models. The bodies of all the new Greater Oaklands are by Fisher. Many mechanical improvements will be noted in the 1927 season Oaklands, both as regards the chassis and the engine. The engine refinements and improvements enhance the Oakland's already notable qualities of stamina and performance. The chassis improvements include rubber-silencing contrivances. The new cars also have heavily-crowned fenders, wider running boards and the newer type of side shields.

One of the more notable general improvements in the 1927 Oaklands is the guide, tilt-ray, double-filament, depressible beam headlights. These are so designed that the driver can depress the light beam to a point which prevents glare to an approaching car and yet does not reduce the light's intensity. This, being operated by a foot device, consisting of a small foot pedal, just to the left of the clutch pedal, means that at no time does the driver have to take a hand from the steering wheel in order to govern the lighting control. Special attention has been paid to the matter of equipment and refinements in both the sports and closed models.

Chevrolet Best Yet.

Declared to be the "smoothest Chevrolet" yet produced, the series of models announced for the 1927 season are also marked by a number of new features and mechanical refinements. There are several factors contributing to the smooth-running qualities of the new engine, these including a new camshaft, light-weight pistons of the skeleton type, enclosed valve lifter and rocker-arm assembly, and mounting of the engine at three points. Freedom from vibration, even at high speeds, is an important feature of the new line made by Chevrolet. The one-piece windshield which acts as a cowl ventilator when partially closed, is standard for the closed cars and they also have Ternstedt window regulators. The wind-shields of the touring and roadster models are of the full-vision design. They are also fitted with deep comfortable cushions. Fine upholstery is a feature of all the models.

By providing springs especially designed for balloon tires, greater riding comfort is afforded. The mechanical improvements include a dry disc clutch and increased braking surface, an air cleanser, a new oil pump designed to give more positive lubrication and a steering lock made broad and smooth enough to allow of a complete turn in the width of the average street. This latter is also something that makes for rapid parking qualities.

Gasoline consumption of from thirty to thirty-five miles to the gallon is not at all unusual.

Among new features also reported are: A new cross member, strengthening the motor support at the transmission housing, thus still further reducing vibration and at the same time adding great ruggedness to frame and chassis; a redesigned cam shaft with cams scientifically rounded to eliminate noise; gas and spark controls mounted with horn button on top of the steering column, affording not only easier control in driving, but also giving a more artistic appearance; an improved universal joint with trunnions operating in separate bushings to give longer wear and to afford easier access; a new battery and battery support, and a more sturdy tie-rod between the front fenders which permits a more rigid support of the headlights and their better focusing. —(Advt.).

Easy to Gain With Yeast and Iron

New Combination of Yeast with Vegetable Iron Quick Way to Build Up Weight

This new combination of yeast vitamines with vegetable iron, renews the action of sluggish blood cells, drives out dangerous body poisons, increases energy and endurance and supplies the system with vitamines that build up weight.

For years yeast has been known as a rich vitamine food; but not until we perfected "ironized yeast" — which comes in concentrated tablet form, was it possible to take yeast and iron in the right proportions to build up weight.

Vegetable "Iron" when combined with yeast is quite easy to digest, therefore better for the system. And "yeast" when ironized, becomes just twice as beneficial as ordinary fresh or cake yeast.

Ironized Yeast Tablets are composed of concentrated food elements, therefore, they are pleasant to take and free from drug-like effects. If you are under weight, do not enjoy good health, lacking in energy and force, "ironized yeast" tablets will pick you right up, and if they fail, you get your money back.

Sold by druggists at $1.00 for a large 60-tablet package or sent direct from laboratory on receipt of price. Ironized Yeast Co., Fort Erie, Ontario, Canada.

LET US PUT IT OVER.

There are two more days left for the Peterboro Industrial Exhibition, and the people of the city and district are urged to see that Friday and Saturday are record-breakers from the attendance standpoint.

The Exhibition management has been unlucky in several respects, inasmuch as the election interfered materially with Tuesday's attendance and the wet weather that followed was a much more serious blow.

However, much can be done with the loyal support and co-operation of the public to counteract the ill-fortune of the first part of the week, and large attendances tomorrow and Saturday will accomplish a great deal.

It is a splendid Exhibition this year, offering much to see and to hear, and with good weather for the rest of the week a great success can still be scored.

Let us put it over by giving the Exhibition two unprecedented crowds tomorrow and Saturday.

TO BE OR NOT TO BE?

In an editorial in these columns yesterday—one that, incidentally, had been intended for publication the previous day—it was intimated that an early announcement of a Provincial election might be expected.

The results of Tuesday's election in this Province has considerably altered the situation.

The gains made by Liberal candidates in Ontario are not exactly the sort of thing that will cause Mr. Ferguson to be too precipitate about going to the country.

In fact, attempts to secure a definite statement from the Premier have succeeded only in obtaining an intimation that either there will be a general election or that by-elections will be held in the nine constituencies that are at present without representation.

It is admitted that these seats could not be left vacant through another session.

The delay of the Government in failing to provide representation for seven of these riding in the last session of the Legislature was inexcusable, and the situation cannot be allowed to continue.

TUESDAY'S VOTE.

A check-up of the vote recorded in West Peterboro on Tuesday is interesting in the light it throws upon the strength of the two parties in the various sections of the riding.

The figures show that Mr. Peck had a substantial majority in each one of the city wards, with the north ward claiming the honour of being the urban Conservative stronghold.

That ward, in fact, gave the winning candidate a margin of 646, every polling subdivision showing a big Peck majority.

The south ward was the next strongest from a Conservative viewpoint, giving the winner a lead of 522.

The Peck majorities in the other wards were as follows: West, 350; centre, 210, and east, 181.

In the rural polls North Monaghan made the largest contribution to the Peck victory, 350, South Monaghan added 55 and Smith 146, a much better Conservative showing in that township than usual. The village of Lakefield also did better for Mr. Peck than in 1925, giving him 158 majority.

Mr. Duffus' major support was furnished by the townships of Douro, Ennismore and Otonabee, the three giving him a total majority of nearly 700, made up of 243 in Otonabee, 227 in Douro (incomplete) and 221 in Ennismore.

MR. MEIGHEN'S LEADERSHIP.

The consensus of opinion seems to be that the defeat of Right Honourable Arthur Meighen on Tuesday carried with it the loss of his position as leader of the Conservative party.

Twice Premier without a vote of the people, he has been twice defeated by the country in a general election.

Further than that, the solid Liberal bloc in Quebec shows that the Conservative party cannot hope to improve its position in that Province so long as Mr. Meighen remains at its head.

This is a matter that may be of concern eventually to others besides those of the Conservative allegiance.

There is among the great bulk of the elected members from the Prairie Provinces a desire to see Canada rapidly reach a free trade basis.

It is quite possible that the pressure of Western influence in that direction will have to be counteracted by the industrial East, and under the present political alignment, which finds one industrial Province under one banner and the other giving a majority to a second party, leaves the East in a weak position strategically to make a stand against what may prove to be a common danger.

Under such conditions the leadership of Mr. Meighen is impossible, and it is believed that he will recognize that fact and act accordingly.

WOMEN IMMIGRANTS.

A writer in one of the English reviews advises women to go with the boys to the newer British countries. "There are thousands of unmarried men in Canada. Some of them are good housekeepers, but if a man is to farm properly, he has little time for cooking, and if he does not cook properly his health suffers. A woman in the shack makes all the difference between success and failure."

According to the census of 1921, the male population of Canada was 4,529,945 and the female population 4,258,528. We do not like those words made and female, but they are necessary in order to include children. The excess of males over females is 271,407. But it must be remembered that the difference is mainly west of Ontario. In this Province there are 1,481,890 males and 1,451,772 females, an excess of a little more than 30,000. In Quebec the female population is slightly more than the male. In the Maritime Provinces there is a small majority for the males. In the Western Provinces the figures are as follows:

	Male.	Female.
Manitoba	320,567	281,551
Saskatchewan	413,700	343,810
Alberta	324,208	264,246
British Columbia	293,409	231,173

The crying need for women therefore is in the West, and evidently the English writer is thinking of farming life on the Prairies. Of course, we are not so ungallant as to refuse a welcome to women here, but we must not be selfish as we think of our poor wifeless brothers in the West.—London Advertiser.

ATTEMPTING THE IMPOSSIBLE.

The country has heard a great deal of late about the farmer. From the Progressive point of view he is in need of special legislation, as well as direct help from the public treasury, if he is to prosper. People who are not farmers, but whose sympathies for the hard-working husbandman are warm and genuine, have been perplexed in seeking the truth in the matter, both as to what may be wrong and what the practicable remedy may be.

In the United States, and particularly in the grain-growing western States, a similar agitation has been under way for several years. Over there they have a political group which is identical in class personnel and purpose with our own Progressives. And the on-looking American people of the cities and towns are just as confused as we are on this side of the line concerning the nature of the trouble and its cure. In this situation The Nation's Business has given up many of its pages to a frank discussion of the farmer's case, from the point of view of the Progressives and also that of the people who do not see eye to eye with them.

Former Governor McKelvie, editor of The Nebraska Farmer, appears in the September issue of The Nation's Business as a supporter of the Progressive contention. He talks very frankly about the motives of "self-seeking politicians" in trying "to do the impossible for the farmer." On the one hand he points out, "this had led to many a vain hope by the farmer, and, on the other, it has reflected the futility of applying political remedies to economic ills." Coming from a partisan, and himself a farmer, such an admission as to methods should be given due weight. It happens to present a true picture of the situation on this side of the line as well. The ex-Governor goes on to say that "the best thing of all that can be done is to see that the farmer does not get the worst of the deal by giving other branches of effort an unfair advantage."

He is there alluding to protection. It must at once occur to the mind of an impartial observer that both United States and Canadian farm products are not by any means overlooked in the tariff. The American scale of duties in that regard is practically prohibitive. The Canadian scale is much lower; yet it is essentially protective in aim. It does not entirely exclude American farm products from the Canadian market. But the point which seems to stand out clearly is that, whatever may be wrong with the industry of farming, it cannot be cured by a further advance in duties. Ex-Governor McKelvie also admits that freight rates are reasonable—although he might very well have explained that they are 30 per cent. higher than in Canada.

It is the summing up of ex-Governor McKelvie which goes to the pith of the whole matter. "I am not," he says, "one of those who believe that unless the long arm of the Government intervenes, the farmer is headed for the bow-wows." Then he adds:

> "He is on the up grade now, and the signs point to a recurrence of exactly what has happened in the past—that in the long run agriculture reaches and passes the level of well-being that is attained by any other line of endeavor. I would exercise every effort to see that the farmer gets a square deal, and I would then admonish him to apply to his business the rules of economic procedure that in their effect are as immutable as time itself."

That is common sense. The farmer may have his troubles; but who hasn't? On the whole, he is doing better than are his brothers in business. Not more than one in seven makes a success of commerce or industry, whereas the percentage of failures on the farm is very low indeed. The designing politician is responsible for a great deal of the discontent which obtains in the Western Provinces. He has disseminated the notion that something may be done by legislation to make matters better; but he is wrong, and opposed to him are the laws which ex-Governor McKelvie says are "as immutable as time itself."—Ottawa Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Peterboro should rally to the support of the Exhibition in the face of the weather conditions.

It is fairly evident, as The Globe puts it, that the people of Canada do not want Mr. Meighen as Prime Minister.

That new face in the Labour group is that of H. B. Adshead, Labour member for Calgary East. He might write and tell Jimmy Simpson how he did it.

The Margaret took Mr. Doucet on a cruise up Salt Creek.

West Peterboro, at least, showed no change of heart toward the candidate it elected last October.

Messrs. Doucet and Nicholson have doubtless discovered that it is always a good policy to be sure of your facts before launching a verbal attack.

No landslide ever seems to cause the slightest disturbance so far as Toronto is concerned. It goes on electing Conservatives no matter what the rest of the country may do.

200,000,000 TONS OF WATER USED FOR U. S. MILK SUPPLY

CHICAGO.—(United Press).—More than 200,000,000 tons of water are consumed each year by dairy cows in the United States in order to supply the nation's milk needs, according to the Evaporated Milk Association.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Sept. 16 (Canadian Press).—There was some demand from foreign buyers for Manitoba Spring wheat on the Montreal market yesterday, but owing to the high premiums asked by the Canadian Pool for old crop grades on spot no new busines was accomplished. No. 1 Northern was quoted at 25c per bushel over the Winnipeg October option, No. 2 at 18c over, and No. 3 at 12 1-2c over, c.i.f. Montreal. The trade in car lots of coarse grains was quiet, but the tone of the market was steady.

The demand for ocean grain room from the Port of Montreal was much quieter than it has been of late, and the volume of business was small. As the available room is now well booked up to the middle of October, the undertone to the market remains strong and the rates to the Continent have scored another advance with Hamburg quoted at 22c per 100 pounds for heavy grain, and Antwerp and Rotterdam at 21c per 100 pounds, while as high as 4s. per quarter has been paid to some United Kingdom ports.

There was a fair enquiry for Spring and Winter wheat grades of flour and prices were steady.

The millfeed market was fairly active, and the undertone to the market was firm. The demand for rolled oats was steady and a fair business was done.

Prices for all grades of fresh and storage eggs were well maintained under a good demand. The receipts were 1,285 cases.

A moderate amount of business was transacted in butter and prices ruled steady. The receipts were 1,621 packages.

The feature of the cheese trade was the stronger feeling that developed and prices were advanced 1-8c per pound. A sale of several thousand boxes of Western No. 1 white and colored was made at 17 1-2 to 14 5-8c per pound. The receipts were 7,916 boxes.

The movement of beans continues to be somewhat limited and the market was quiet, but prices were unchanged, with car lots of choice white hand-picked quoted at $2.25 per bushel, and smaller quantities at $2.35 to $2.45 per bushel.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Sept. 16 (Canadian Press).—All grains averaged lower yesterday on the board of trade, bull leaders acting timidly in the face of rather bullish news. The reason for this hesitancy on the part of friends of higher prices was said to be the weakened technical position of the wheat market and the easier tone in corn. Wheat at the finish showed a net loss of 1-8 to 7-8, corn was off 1 1-4 to 1 3-4; oats 1-8 to 1-4 down and provisions unchanged to 30 cents lower.

Strength in the Winnipeg market in the late trading brought about a partial recovery in wheat values here in the last hour. Buying against bids helped to take the slack out of the market, local shorts becoming fair buyers toward the end.

It was pointed out that recent advances in wheat were a result of short covering rather than investment buying and there were reports that Europe is buying Russian wheat. Continued delay to the crop movement in the Canadian provinces was discounted by the bears, who believe this wheat will ultimately come into competition with the surplus of the southern hemisphere.

Export business was reported as relatively slow, although one house was said to have sold 25,000 bushels of wheat to exporters.

Corn broke sharply around midday under scattered selling and lack of buying induced largely by a report that the crop in Illinios, Iowa, Ohio, and Indiana is aparently closer to maturity than has generally been supposed, but rallied somewhat on the late upturn in wheat.

Selling of oats was largely of a local character, while commission houses were only fair buyers.

Provisions were dull and weak in line with lower values in grains and hogs.

Darrow added that he had never taken a great deal of exercise, but had retained his health in spite of it, or perhaps—his eyes twinkled—"because of it."

Lyrics Of Life

(By Douglas Malloch.)

YOUR WEDDING DAY

Your dad will smile a lot today,
And sigh a little now and then
Your mother brush a tear away,
And think of other days again.
There isn't anyone, I guess,
Who wishes you the happiness
They wish you now, and, knowing why,
Forgive them if they chance to sigh.

They rocked your cradle long ago,
They helped you form your earliest word,
The name you called them, and, I know,
The sweetest one they ever heard.
Your earliest step they helped you take,
They taught your infant hands to make
A hundred things, through good and ill
They guarded you as parents will.

And yet they will not sigh for long;
A happiness, another one,
Will flood their loving hearts with a song:
They keep a daughter, gain a son.
Whatever way your steps may wend,
Daughters are daughters to the end,
Fathers and mothers still the same,
For all you change is just a name.

DR FRANK CRANE'S DAILY EDITORIAL.

DANGER FROM TWO GOOD FOODS

(By Dr. Frank Crane.)

A doctor has recently declared that the health of modern civilized people is threatened by the perfection of their food.

Since man's advent upon the planet for thousands of years he has been compelled to hustle in order to get something to eat. In fact that has been his chief occupation, as it is still with the case of the horse and the ox.

Most of his foods were of an imperfect nature. Fruits and grains contained a good deal of waste matter and meats were eaten sparingly.

Consequently his digestive apparatus was adapted to a great deal of fodder, or waste matter.

And now comes the modern era with all sorts of refined foods. The bran is sifted from the flour, and others foods are canned with the waste eliminated. The consequence is that man is afflicted with food in a too concentrated form.

One of the types of food of a most condensed kind is that of sugar, or candy. Those who eat too many sweets are subject to all kinds of complaints.

The tendency to use condensed foods becomes stronger and stronger, and one becomes more and more disinclined to leafy vegetables and other forms of food containing much fodder. The result is the impairment of health.

It has even fancifully been proposed to prepare all foods in the form of a pill, and one might take a pill and a drink of water in lieu of eating a meal.

Theoretically this would be ideal. Practically it will not work. The system needs not only the requisite amount of carbohydrates, proteins and fats, together with water, but it also needs those foods which produce vitamines. It needs also what we call "roughness" in feeding cattle; that is, the intestines must be supplied with a certain amount of bulk. The concentrated foods do not supply this. Hence man is afflicted with constipation and many other ills.

Altogether it looks as if the increase in the perfection of foods is not a blessing.

One reason why a horse usually has good health is that he has to walk around generally in order to get anything to eat. A man sits still and his food is brought him, with disastrous consequences.

IRISH FREE STATE HAS LAUNCHED CANDIDACY FOR SEAT IN COUNCIL ELECTION WILL BE HELD TO-DAY

Asks Support of Dominions To Send Irish Delegation To Assembly.

NINE SEATS OPEN.

Three Places To Be Distributed Among Latin-American Countries.

GENEVA, Sept. 16 (Canadian Press).—The atmosphere of excitement attending a political convention was reproduced in Geneva last night, with the exception that nations, not individuals, were the candidates.

So exciting was the canvassing for the nine non-permanent seats in the Council of the League of Nations, that the league leaders abandoned their original plans to hold the election yesterday and postponed it until today to permit the aspirants further time to line up their partisans.

The Irish Free State looms large in the campaign, for Ireland's candidacy for a league council seat was officially launched yesterday. The Free State has asked for the support of all the dominions, declaring that in the judgment of the Irish delegation dominion interests would best be served by the presence of the Free State in the council.

Thirteen candidates have appeared for the nine places, three of which must, under the council re-organization scheme, formally approved by the assembly yesterday, be distributed among the countries of Latin-America. Election eve forecasts make Holland, Belgium, Poland, China and Rumania practically certain of success. Chile, Colombia and Salvador will go before the assembly as the choice of the Latin-American caucus, but Uruguay, dissatisfied apparently with the designation of Salvador instead of herself, will probably push her claim on the floor of the assembly.

These selections leave only one of the nine seats open to the field, with the Irish Free State, Portugal, Finland and Persia, using al diplomatic energies to rally enough votes to secure election.

Announcing in the assembly that he had been instructed to register the newly-concluded Chinese-Austrian treaty with the league secretariat, Mr. Cha, head of the Chinese delegation, said that China was to be congratulated in having negotiated treaties of equality and reciprocity with both Germany and Austria. He declared that all the Powers should revamp their out-of-date treaties with China; Chinese public opinion was rallying on this issue; he hoped the Peking Tariff Conference would succeed in reaching a satisfactory solution because China as a sovereign state should exercise the right of fixing her own tariff and because the present imposed low tariff was causing financial and political chaos.

NO SEAT FOR IRELAND.

GENEVA, Switzerland, September 16. Canadian Press — Nine non-permanent members of the League of Nations Council were elected by the Assembly to-day. They are Poland, Belgium, Rumania, Holland Chile, Colombia, Salvador, China and Czecho-Slovakia.

MEN PREFER GIRLS IN BLACK

Like Them Expensively Clothed, is Conclusion After Show.

APPLAUSE TELLS

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 16. — (Canadian Press).—Men evidently like feminity in black, and from the applause given the girls in the fashion show staged by the Canadian Manufacturers' Association at the Exhibition they like them expensively clothed. All the girls whose clothes cost in excess of fifty dollars received more applause than those who had kept below the fifty-dollar mark.

There were money prizes starting at $35 for the winner, and graduating down to $12.50 in each of the three classes. All clothes were Canadian-made. The first class was home-made clothes; second, ready-mades, fifty dollars and under, and the third class in excess of $50. All estimates included everything the girl had on.

Miss Marjorie Sanderson of this city came first in the home-made class. Her outfit of pearl grey ensemble of flannel had touches of orchid and was very attractive, and she wore an orchid hat and grey shoes and stockings. Her outfit was the lowest exhibited and cost but $25.72

In contrast was Miss Amy Gard, who entered in the over $50 class. Her very smart outfit was a black frock with sleeves of nude crepe and black felt hat, and a coat of grey lamb and platinum fox coat about $675.

Youngest Grandmother Claim Under Dispute

HALIFAX, N.S., Sept. 16.—(Canadian Press).—The claim of being 'the youngest grandmother," made by a Ship Harbor woman, of 38, is disputed by someone writing to the local press from North Sydney: 'I can do one better than this. My youngest child who is uncle to my grandchild is five years.

SILVER JUBILEE

Father James Downey Celebrates Twenty-five Years in Priesthood.

DOWNEYVILLE, Sept. 16.—Mr. and Mrs. Charles Downey of here and Mr. and Mrs. William Lehane of Lindsay have returned from Anchorville, Mich., where they attended the silver jubilee of their cousin, Rev. Father James Downey, who has been twenty-five years in the priesthood. Father Downey's father was a resident of Downeyville.

The ceremonies were attended by two bishops, four monsignors, and one hundred and ten priests, also seventeen members of the Downey family. The Michigan Catholic, published in Detroit, Mich., says the following:

"Father James Downey, pastor of St. Mary's Church, Anchorville, Mich., celebrated the silver jubilee of his ordination into the priesthood at a high mass last Tuesday morning, August 31. The services marking the close of a quarter of a century of service in the couse of Christ were attended by Bishop Gallagher, several of the monsignori, many priests from this and the London Diocese, and parishioners and friends. Rev. Dennis Hayes, pastor of St. Peter's Church, Mount Clemens, delivered the principal discourse, taking for his text 'The Lord hath sworn and He will not repent, thou art a priest for ever according to the order of Melchisedech.' Father Hays' address was followed by short talk by Bishop Gallagher, who praised the work of Father Downey and eulogized him for his zeal. 'Father Downey,' said the bishop, 'has been interested in more than the work of his own parish. Besides taking care of his own flock and doing it extremely well, he has taken an active part in every movement for the good of this diocese. He has aided in every work in which his help was asked and the loyalty he has shown has marked him among his fellow priests.'

"Bishop Gallagher then went on to say that Father Downey's health has been impaired by the zeal with which he worked. One example of his spirit, he declared is seen in the leadership of St. Mary's parish. Among the parishes of the diocese in the annual collection of Peter's Pence, St. Mary's parish under Father Downey's tutelage, the bishop said, contributed four times the amount proportionate to other parishes considering its size.

"His Lordship ended his remarks with the wish that Father Downey might enjoy improved health, that he might be spared to continue his valuable work, and that the day might come when the faithful might again assemble in his honor to celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of his ordination. In his address Father Hayes, late head of Sacred Heart Seminary, gave an exposition of the priests' calling. He dwelt upon its sublimity, power and importance. Developing his theme, the speaker said, 'All men ar created to know God, to know and to serve Him. The vocation of the priest whose every action, every thought, and every endeavorin life is to fervently express these great truths is therefore the greatest vocation of all.' The priest, Father Hayes declared, has for his lot a work far beyond the work of the vast majority of men. He has been called by the Master for the work of the Master. 'It is for him,' Father Hayes concluded forcefully, 'to know better, to love more ardently and to serve more faithfully the Eternal High Priest, Jesus Christ.'

"The clergy assisting Father Downey at the Mass of jubilee and thanksgiving were Rev. Charles Koenig, New Baltimore, deacon; Rev. Walter Hardy Algenac, subdeacon; Rev. E. J. Taylor, North East Detroit, arch priest; Rev. Victor Renaud, Mount Clements, master of ceremonies; Rev. Gerald Owens, Detroit, thurifier; Rev. Dunne, Detroit, and Rev. Earuist De Puydt, Brighton, were deacons of honor to Bishop Gallagher. Present in the sanctuary were Bishop J. C. Plagens and Monsignori John S. Nies, etroit; Patrick J. Dunnigan, Flint; M. J. Brady, London; and John T. Aylward, Sarnia.

"A reception was held on Tuesday evening at the Hotel Holnorst, Anchorville, in honor of Father Downey. Many former parishioners from the Detroit section paid their respects and a purse was presented to the revenrend gentleman."

Many of the old parishioners of Downeyville will remember Father Downey and some two years ago he said Mass in the Downeyville Church and delivered an eloquent sermon. The people of Downeyville join in wishing Father Downey many more years to continue his good work in the service of God.

BRITISH NEWSPAPERS

Mr. King's Government turns its back on one and faces the other it will be carrying out the wishes of the Canadian people."

Looks For Good Policy.

The Daily Mail is of the opinion that the new Government, whether it be called "Liberal" or "Coalition," seems assured of a good working majority and may remain in power long enough to frame and carry into effect a consistent scheme of policy. The paper continues: "This would benefit Canada, which has suffered too much in recent years from the instability and incoherence of the party situation.

"The Liberal victory was due to various causes, which cannot be too closely analyzed by observers at a distance. Personalities and charges of maladministration were bandied about freely, and it would seem that the Conservatives lost more than they gained in their virulent campaign. Nor did they make any headway in Quebec, which remained, as usual, solidly Liberal."

Touching on the constitutional issue, The Daily Mail thinks that few Canadians believe any Imperial Cabinet would attempt to abridge the rights of self-government. "Even fewer," it states, "are in favor of entering a political union with the United States, yet it must not be forgotten that this sentiment is exposed to a strain of increasing severity, for, economically and financially, the American influence is growing in the Dominion."

Significant, Says Herald.

The Daily Herald, the Labor organ, describes the defeat of the Conservatives as "dramatic, and of a significance clear beyond peradventure," the main decisive factor being the Governor-General's constitutional powers. "Although Lord Byng's motives were not questioned," the paper states, "the Canadian people declared that the Governor-General must no longer regard himself free to accept or reject the advice of the Premier, and must, whatever his private opinion, under all circumstances, accept and act under it. It marks one more step under which the Dominions are freeing themselves of every vestige of political control by the Imperial Government or its representative."

The Herald adds that the Canadian Labor movement in politics is still in its infancy, "but it is a virile and growing infant. Two seats in the last Parliament have now become four."

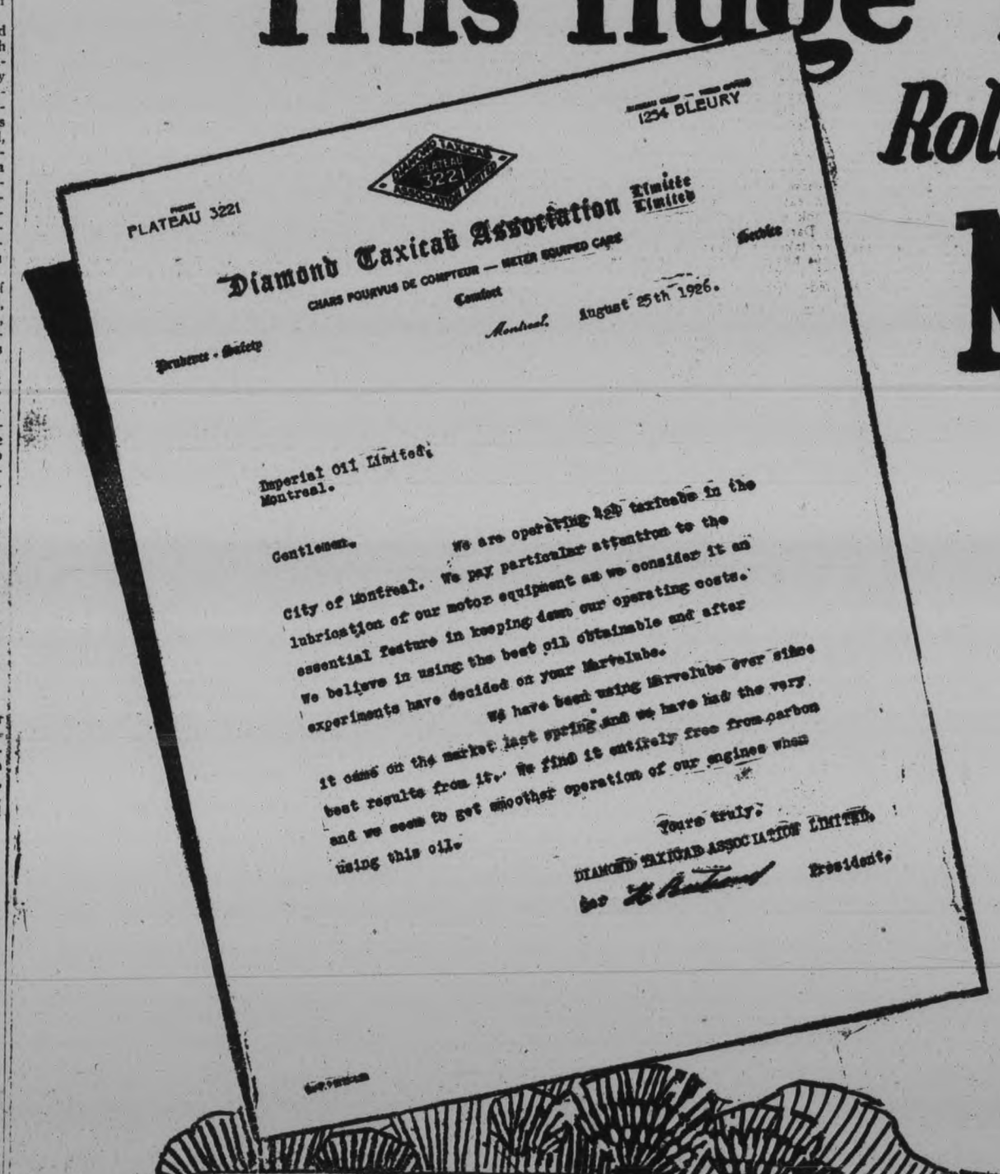
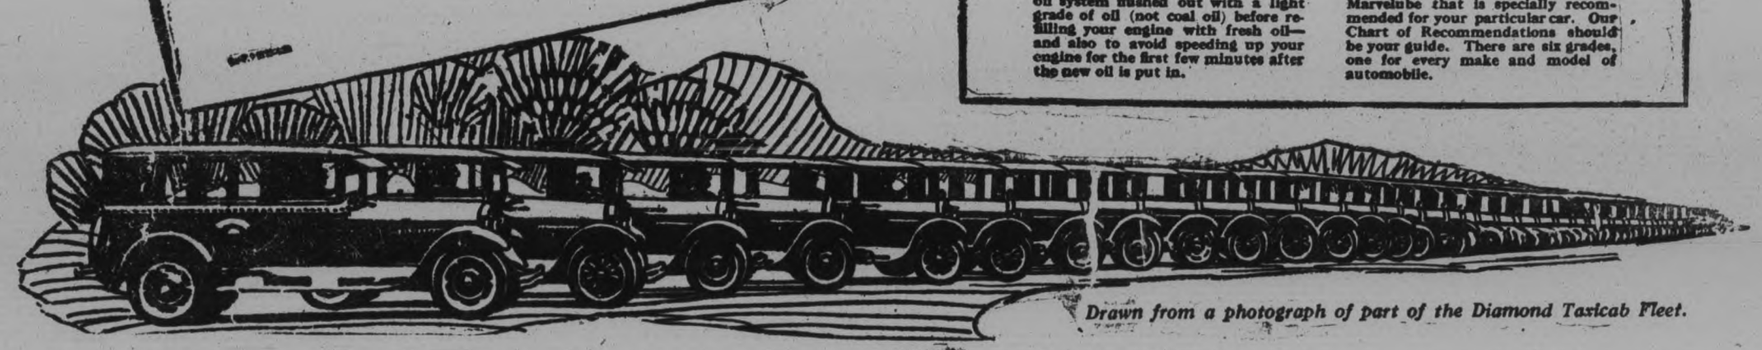
MOTOR OIL





Drawn from a photograph of part of the Diamond Taxicab Fleet.

THE Diamond Taxicab Association's fleet represents a huge investment. Their choice of "the best oil obtainable" is, therefore, a matter of imperative importance.

The average daily mileage of each of their 424 taxicabs is 100 miles—or 42,400 miles per day. In the four months they have been using Marvelube the fleet has travelled approximately 5,000,000 miles—with "the very best results." They find Marvelube "entirely free from carbon" and that it gives "smoother operation."

Taxicab service puts unusually severe demands on any lubricating oil. No individual motorist can put Marvelube to such a gruelling test. But any motorist can get the same degree of satisfaction and economy from Marvelube as the Diamond Taxicab Association.

You can safely follow the motor oil selection of this organization, which is so fully qualified to judge lubricating oils and so vitally concerned in using the best as a matter of cold business practice.

Good Engineering Practice

All automotive engineers agree that it is important to always have the oil system flushed out with a light grade of oil (not coal oil) before refilling your engine with fresh oil—and also to avoid speeding up your engine for the first few minutes after the new oil is put in.

Another important point is to always secure the exact grade of Marvelube that is specially recommended for your particular car. Our Chart of Recommendations should be your guide. There are six grades, one for every make and model of automobile.

We have purchased a CARLOAD of MARVELUBE MOTOR OIL, and our GASOLINE AND OIL SERVICE will be glad to serve you by the pint, quart, gallon or in bulk. DRIVE RIGHT UP.

GOLDEN WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. James C. O'Leary Celebrate Fifty Years Married Last Thursday.

KING'S WHARF, Sept. 16. — On Thursday, Sept. 2, 1926, was the occasion of a very happy event when Mr. and Mrs. James C. O'Leary, of King's Wharf, celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of their wedding.

They were married on Sept. 2, 1876, in Downeyville by the late Rev. Father Coyle. It was the occasion for the assembling together of all the members of the family with their families. The bride and groom, with their children and grandchildren, gathered at St. Luke's Church, Downeyville, where mass was said at 9 o'clock by Rev. Father Galvin. Friends and relatives from the surrounding districts gathered at their home, where a sumptuous dinner was served at 6 o'clock. The members of the family present were: John O'Leary, Lindsay; Mrs. William Perdue (Mary), Peterboro; Mrs. Michael Harrington (Stella), King's Wharf; Mrs. John Guiry (Katie), King's Wharf; Joseph O'Leary and Miss Florence, at home. Mrs. James Cadigan, of Ennismore, was also there, who acted as bridesmaid at the wedding fifty years ago. Mrs. Cadigan is a sister of Mrs. O'Leary. The groomsman, Mr. Austin O'Leary, of Los Angeles, Cal., who was unable to be present, is still hale and hearty. There were also present 22 grandchildren, and also an old resident of Downeyville, Mr. John C. O'Leary, a brother of Mr. James C. O'Leary, who was also a guest at the wedding fifty years ago. During the dinner Rev. Father Galwin, of Downeyville, acted as chairman and congratulated the worthy couple. Mr. and Mrs. O'Leary were presented with a well-filled purse by Mrs. Perdue, while Jno. O'Leary read the address. Mr. and Mrs. O'Leary have been residents of King's Wharf here for over forty years, and all wish them many more years of wedded life.

RIVERA'S OPPONENT.

Blasco Ibanez, Spanish writer and opponent of the Primo de Rivera regime, who in a telegram to President Ninchitch of the League of Nations assembly from Mentone, France, Monday, said: "As soon as the dictatorship is overthrown by the efforts of the Spanish people the first aim of the new Spain will be to resume its place in Geneva and contribute to the league's work of peace." Ibanez said he made this declaration at a moment when "Spanish opinion is throttled by censorship and unable to express its adhesion to the league."

SYNOPSIS

Don Juan's disillusioned father warns him: "Destroy women or they will destroy you; take their love scornfully —and forget!" This advice has made Juan the greatest lover of all time. But his cynicism is suddenly checked in Rome by the disarming innocense of Madonna-like Adriana Varanese. Loving her madly, he vows to live a clean life. The affair is dangerous because infamous Lucretia Borgia loves Juan, while Donati, her kinsman, covets Adriana. Lucretia spies upon Juan and Adriana, and sets her fearful vengeance in motion against them.

CHAPTER VI—Continued

And Lucretia Borgia also watched, her mouth crueller even than it had ever been in all the vicious days and nights of her merciless life. Watched, and planned the vengeance that was soon to be hers.

By nightfall terror stalked through the narrow streets of Rome and over all its seven hills. People huddled in doorways, whispering together.

"The Borgias have attacked the Orsini," they told each other. There had been three arrests—two men and one woman. They had been strangled at once, in the grim depths of San Angelo, the great prison conveniently situated on the Tiber, so that dead bodies could be thrown into it and carried away to oblivion.

Some of those who clung together in the doorways or went skulking through the shadowy streets knew that they were fairly safe, so long as they did nothing to offend the Borgias; their own insignificance was a protection—and yet, no one ever knew how long that would be so.

Others there were who realized that if they remained in Rome their days were numbered. And so it happened that heavily cloaked, stealthily moving figures slipped from the shadow of one building to that of another, making their way always toward the outskirts of the city, intent on leaving it perhaps only until the Borgias should fall from power, perhaps forever.

There were women whose velvet gowns dragged heavily on the rough paving stones, whose jewels gleamed when for an instant their cloaks fell back from their shoulders. There were men, stern-faced, hands on their sword hilts, who scanned every step of the way before they took it.

And sometimes, too, there were sinister figures who followed them, and suddenly there would be fighting in the narrow, darkened streets, and after a few brief moments the stone paving would be red with blood, and one or two bodies might mar, the failure or success of another noble family's attempt to outwit the Borgias.

None of them suspected that this new outbreak of ruthless persecution was caused by the fact that a slim, lovely girl had unwittingly come between Lucretia Borgia and the man she loved.

The Duke della Varanese knew it. His household, gathered behind the barred doors of the palace, in the great entrance hall, waited only his command to take to flight. Some there were who would be safe enough in Rome, if they concealed the fact that they had been in his employ—even so small a thing as that was reason enough for meeting death. Some would make their way out of the city, like moles creeping through the earth, and seek refuge elsewhere.

Varanese had laid his plans carefully long before, knowing that the time would come when he and Adriana would no longer be safe in Rome. They would leave the city on foot, stealing through the streets to the place where horses would be awaiting them. Then would begin the headlong flight southward to Naples. But not even there would they dare to rest; they would go on to France, and remain there as exiles.

He looked about the lofty hall, a place almost sacred to him, because always it had been the home of his family. He did not dare to hope that he would ever see it again. Adriana might come back; she would live to see the day, he hoped, when the Borgias were no longer in power. But he was too old; this night would give him his last glimpse of his home.

Adriana knelt weeeping at his side her rosary clasped in her trembling hands. She wept at leaving her home, and from terror over the impending flight, but she wept even more at the thought of leaving Juan.

Had it not been for her father, she would have chosen to remain in the city, daring death itself to be near the man she loved. When she thought of slipping away through the darkness, never to see him again, the pain was intolerable. Yet she could not ask her father to stay, knowing that to do so meant certain death for him.

The servants were huddled close about her and her father, talking wildly, the women weeping, holding their children close. Would it be better to go or to stay, they asked each other. There had been other outbreaks like this one, and they had come through safely—perhaps this time, too, nothing would happen. And yet—perhaps—who could tell but what this time would be the fatal one?

Adriana, lifting frightened eyes to her father, noticed one of the men retainers who stood a little apart from the others. He had been in her father's employ but a short time; she had hardly noticed him until now.

He was smiling a little, a sinister smile that frightened her. The terror of the others seemed to amuse him greatly. Adriana tugged at her father's sleeve, wanting to warn him, not knowing what to say.

He had been talking to one of his men, giving some last orders. He turned to her at once.

"Come!" he exclaimed, lifting her to her feet. "If we are not out of Rome before the hour they will kill me as they killed the prince. We must hurry."

"But—but—oh, let us wait!" she cried, her eyes on the man who stood smiling. She dreaded having the bars drawn back and the great doors swung open. "Let us wait until tomorrow—I beg of you, let us wait."

Varanese patted her shoulder consolingly.

"Do not be frightened," he urged. "'Tis no more dangerous to go now than at any other time. Come, my daughter!"

Reluctantly, clinging to him, Adriana let him lead her toward the outer doors. She clenched her hands as the bars were drawn back; she wanted to throw herself against the doors and prevent their being opened. But her father cut short her remonstrances—of course she was frightened at the prospect of their flight, but all would soon be well, he told her.

And she, with nothing but the sinister smile of a paid retainer as reason for this new fear, could say nothing.

The great bronze doors were opened, letting in the warm spring night.

And Adriana, crying out in terror, turned, and saw the man who had smiled, nodding to one of the men who stood closest to Cesare Borgia.

CHAPTER VII

Someone must have betrayed him, one of the servants, perhaps, although his plans had been known to so few that that seemed hardly possible.

How the secret had leaked out mattered not at all, however. The end was near at hand now. Cesare Borgia was smiling, and in his eyes was the expression that comes into a cat's as it watches the mouse on which it will presently spring.

PLEASED WITH CANADA

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Thomas Like Scenery and Hospitality.

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 16. — (Canadian Press).—On their way home from a tour of the West, Rt. Hon. J. H. Thomas, Mrs. Thomas and their daughter, of London, England, expressed their delight in scenic Canada and in the hospitality of Canadians. Hon. Mr. Thomas was the former Colonial Secretary in the British Labor Government.

Miss Peggy Thomas in an interview, said that she noticed that Canadian children dress with more uniformity than was the case overseas. "You could plant a Canadian boy in London and you would know him immediately by his clothes." She thought the same distinction might be made with garments of older girls, but not to the same degree.

One of the outstanding features of Canadian homes noticed by the Thomas family as a whole was the open, unfenced lawns and gardens. "It denotes Canadian democracy such as nothing else could," said Mrs. Thomas. "It shows a quiet pride in well-kept lawns and gardens and a feeling that good things should be shared."

Choose Your "B" Batteries Correctly

THE life of your "B" batteries depends on their size in relation to your set and on how long you listen in each day. Here are the simple rules which tell the right size "B" battery to use.

On 1 to 3 tubes — Use Eveready No. 772.

On 4 or more tubes — Use the Heavy Duty "B" battery No. 770.

On all but single tube sets — Use a "C" battery.

When these rules are followed, the No. 772 will last for almost a year, and the No. 770 for about eight months, when listening at the year round average of two hours a day.

NOTE: An Eveready "C" Battery not only increases the life of the "B" batteries, but adds a quality of reproduction unobtainable without it.

ELECTRICITY TO SALVAGE IRON FROM SCRAP HEAPS

Millions of tons of iron now rusting in trash heaps throughout the country can be reclaimed by electricity, asserts Charles P. Perin New York mining engineer.

"Large tanks of iron solvent, ferrous chloride, for example, could be maintained in convenient places, into which these wastes could be dumped," he says. "Then the iron could be recovered by electrolysis." In other words, if our villages and towns saw that iron junk was dumped into such tanks, they would find a considerable addition to their treasuries every year.

Considering that twenty million tons of iron and steel are destroyed by rust every year in the United States, the suggestion, says Popular Science Monthly for October, seems to be one of no mean value, especiall since Mr. Perin points out also that electricity can be made to produce iron that will rust less rapidly.

FAIR DIRECTORS ENTERTAINED BY KIWANIS CLUB

Co-operation Between Two Bodies Expressed By Speakers.

J. G. KENT SPEAKS.

Manager of Toronto Exhibition Discusses Success at Fairs.

The directors of the Peterborough Industrial Exhibition were the guests of the Kiwanians at the luncheon held in St. James' Church tent on the grounds at noon. John G. Kent, manager of the Toronto Exhibition, was the principal speaker.

Kiwanian Charles Cook welcomed the directors to the luncheon and expressed the co-operation of the club with the board in the great work they were doing for Peterborough and district.

Roland Denne, president of the Exhibition, introduced the speaker and took the opportunity to thank the citizens for their co-operation with the board in putting the great fair across. He said that all the directors worked without remuneration except the secretary who got $200 and the superintendent who receives $100. If we had money we could make this fair as good as Toronto but the Government has cut our grant from $2000 to $1500 and after this year we are cut out as the Peterborough exhibition is put in "B" class. He concluded by saying that the board was going to work to try and get in "A" class for that is wher they should be.

John G. Kent

The Exhibition board was congratulated by the speaker for the fine show they were putting on and especially the nice clean appearance of the tents which impressed him most as he entered the grounds.

"Toronto Exhibition was very successful this past year in spite of rain and the attendance went over the peak. It is not the crowd you get; it is the way you put the exhibits before the public which gives returns afterwards," said the speaker.

He was also glad to know that Peterborough was to have a Made in Canada Exhibition. "For it is one way to boost made in Canada things. At an exhibition it is not just what you sell at the booth but it is what you sell afterwards."

Toronto Exhibition today is at a point where it can pay for the building done but it had 40 years of hard struggling before it came to be in that position. That exhibition is there for the whole of Canada although sometimes Toronto is referred to unjustly as "Hog town" for he is always hearing complaints about the way the board uses the citizens of Toronto. In conclusion Mr. Kent hoped for better weather for the concluding days of the Fair.

Kiwanian Art Reynolds thanked Mr. Kent, who is a member of the "Down Town" Kiwanis Club in Toronto, for his address and said that the local club was ready to assist the exhibition board in every way possible so that the fair would be a success.

Miss Roderick, the lady who sings before the grandstand, sang a solo.

Those present at the head table were President Denne, Vice President R. H. Turner, Vice President T. McIndoo, John G. Kent, Mayor Holloway, ex-Mayor J. J. Turner, E. A. Peck, M.P., J. J. Duffus and President John Craig of the Kiwanis Club.

Detestable Animal Says Shaw Of Man

LONDON, Sept. 16 (United Press).—Man is a "detestable animal," according to George Bernard Shaw, the septugenerean, Socialist, playwright and critic. Shaw has announced the summary of a forthcoming lecture in which he will support this association. He explained that modern science was permitting men to approach the "lighthouse ideal" of isolation, instancing the housewife, who, instead of shopping, is able to sit at home and telephone for her groceries. Proof of man's detestation of man is contained in the scowls which greet a new-comer in small compartments of railway cars, according to Shaw.

Men must have wives and children, Shaw admitted, and hence he said the family, instead of the individual, was becoming a solitary, misanthropic unit.

RAIN DELAYS HARVEST WORK

Much Grain Still in Fields With the Value Reduced.

SEEDING HELD UP.

TORONTO, Sept. 16 (Canadian Press).—The rain which fell in Ontario yesterday and to-day set the farmers back at least a week in their harvesting operations, in the opinion of the Hon. John S. Martin, Minister of Agriculture, who stated to-day that the downpour was not needed and was most discouraging to the farmers of the Province.

"Ontario will lose heavily this year from bad weather," he said. "At the present time there is still plenty of grain in the fields. Soaked as it is, it will prove of poor quality. Threshing has been delayed all over the country, and practically no fall seeding has been done yet. This time last year a good half of it was in," the Minister declared.

ELECTION SOON SAYS FERGUSON

Will Not Say Whether It Will Be General or By-Election.

GENERAL FAVORED.

TORONTO, Sept. 16 (Canadian Press).—"There will be an election of some kind," stated Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, Premier of Ontario, to-day, when asked to amplify his declaration of yesterday that he would not face the Legislature again with nine vacant seats in the Assembly.

Political observers at the Parliament Buildings are of the opinion that ultimate decision will result in the holding of a general election early in November rather than by-elections to fill vacancies in the House.

One member of the Cabinet remarked to-day that the return of the Liberal party in the Federal elections on Tuesday last had no bearing on the Provincial situation, and that the Government was looking towards an appeal to the Province with confidence.

WEDDING BELLS.

BRAUND—DOTY.

A very happy event took place at the home of Mr and Mrs. C. F. Doty, Dundas street, on Monday, Sept. 6th, it being the marriage of their youngest daughter, Mary Margaret, to Dr. Stanley Braund of Milton, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Braund, Peterboro The pretty home, which lent itself to the occasion, was artistically decorated with summer flowers, the ceremony being performed before a bank of flowers over which hung a beautiful wedding bell. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. H. McBain of St. John's United church, in the presence of relatives and a few intimate friends of the contracting parties.

The bride was given away by her father. She wore a simple bridal creation of sunni georgette figured with gold lace, and black picture hat, and carried an exquisite bouquet of butterfly roses and lily of the valley. The bride was attended by Miss Pauline Bowden of Toronto, who wore a French gown of apple green georgette, and carried a bouquet of Ophelia roses and fern. Miss Elinor Thornton was a winsome little flower girl in a pretty silk frock, carrying a basket of old-fashioned flowers

The groom was supported by Atheling Belyea of Montreal, and Miss Dorothy Sorby of Guelph played the wedding march.

A buffet luncheon was served, following the brief reception, when Rev. J. H. McBain proposed most pleasantly the health of the bride, and was responded to in good style by the groom.

The bride travelled in a chin red gown and channel coat trimmed with badger fur, small hat and shoes to match. The happy couple will reside in Milton after an extended motor trip.—Oakville News.

KING EXPECTED AT CONFERENCE

Not Anticipated in England That He Will Ask Postponement.

MISFORTUNE.

LONDON, Sept. 16 (Canadian Press Cable).—There is no anticipation here at present that a request will be made by Ottawa for a change in the date of the opening of the Imperial Conference, arranged for October 19.

The Daily News, Liberal, says that in circles in Canada not altogether friendly to Mackenzie King, it was remarked in the early days of the Dominion election campaign, when the Liberal leader was still smarting under Lord Byng's refusal of dissolution, that if Mr. King were returned to power he would not attend the Imperial Conference.

"This report has gained some currency in England," adds the News, "but the quality of Mr. King's statesmanship makes it difficult to lend it credence. It would be a misfortune if he decided not to come to London."

LIBERAL VICTORY IS ENCOURAGING

Manchester Guardian Says Constitutional Issue Must Have Counted.

SCANDAL OVERPLAYED

LONDON, Sept. 16.—(Canadian Press Cable.) — The Manchester Guardian, Liberal, describes the Liberal triumph in the Canadian election as remarkably encouraging, all the more because its decisive character was unexpected.

"During the election campaign," says the Guardian, "it was remarked that the electorate was not interested in the constitutional question raised by Lord Byng's refusal of dissolution to Mr. King, but the Liberal victory would be almost unintelligible if it were not assumed that the National feeling of the electors was aroused seriously as a result of the Governor-General's use of his prerogative.

"The customs scandal," the paper continues, "was recklessly exploited by the Conservatives and evidently was overplayed.

"Mr. King will attend the Imperial Conference not only secure in the knowledge of his own power, but carrying the additional authority of a Dominion Premier tried and confirmed by an electoral contest in which the dominant issue, framed by himself, was directly concerned with the problem of Dominion status and nature of Imperial connection."

The Guardian thinks that the election shows the hostility to the United States which has been running strongly in Canada since the war is being reduced.

RESIGNATION OF GOVERNMENT AND FORMATION OF NEW ONE EXPECTED WITHIN SHORT TIME

Most of Former Ministers Expected To Be In King Cabinet.

NOVEMBER SESSION.

Meighen Confers With Supporters, But Declines To Make Statement.

OTTAWA, Sept. 16 (Canadian Press)—Resignation of the Meighen administration and the formation of another government by Mr. Mackenzie King is expected within a short time. Premier Meighen has made no public pronouncement, but there is every likelihood that this will be the course of events.

In the formation of his Government, Mr. King's task should not tober 29, and the writs, with the siderably facilitated by the fact that all his old ministers who stood for re-election were returned. With the possible exception of one or two changes, they will, in all probability, be found again in the new government. From Nova Scotia, Paul Hatfield and Col. Ralston are mentioned in political circles as possibilities, although a seat would have to be found for Col. Ralston. James Malcolm of North Perth, Ontario, is suggested as the likely Minister of Trade and Commerce. Hon. P. J. Veniot is mentioned from New Brunswick, and Robert Forke, former Progressive leader from Manitoba. These names, additions to those in the last King government, are merely suggested, however, as possibilities.

Under the proclamation issued announcing the general elections, parliament is to meet again on November 17 Usually, the date of proclamation is merely a technicality. Rarely do the members meet on the day proclaimed. But, in official circles, calculations are that the actual date of meeting may not be far removed from the date of the proclamation. The date when writs can be returned and members be gazetted is the governing factor. Last year the elections were on October 29, and the writs, with the exception of a very few, were all in about December 11. Then, the party standing was so close that a few members either way were sufficient to turn the scale. On the present occasion, the standing is not so close but bye-elections, following the formation of the new government, will be an added difficulty.

NO STATEMENT.

OTTAWA, September 16. Canadian Press. — Premier Meighen declined to make any statement at the conclusion of a conference with ministers of his Cabinet.

The Prime Minister intimated that there might be some announcement later in the day.

MINISTERS CONFER.

OTTAWA, Sept. 16. — Canadian Press. — Half a dozen members of the government conferred with Premier Meighen in his office this morning. No formal meeting of the Cabinet was convened. Those present at the conference with the Prime Minister were Sir Henry Drayton, Sir George Perley, Hon. E. B. Ryckman, Hon. Donald Sutherland and Hon. Raymond Morand. The other members of the cabinet are on their way to Ottawa to discuss the situation with Mr. Meighen.

LIBERALS SILENT.

OTTAWA, September 16. Canadian Press. — The Liberal headquarters here are maintaining a strict silence There has not been any official announcement since election night and it is quite apparent that some intimation is expected almost hourly from the Conservative side.

The rumor persists that Right Hon Arthur Meighen has written to the Right Hon. Mackenzie King offering to surrender office at the latter's convenience, but from the Liberal organization nothing can be learned.

"Siamese Twin" Cucumbers Grown In Local Garden

S. H. Best, 469 Stewart street, brought The Examiner what he called a "Siamese twin" cucumber to-day. Two perfectly formed cucumbers are joined together for their entire length by a very thin ridge. They grow on one stem, which also shows that it is really a union of two.

The strange cucumbers were grown by Mr. Best in the garden at his residence.

GASOLINE FROM WATER GAS.

From the chemical laboratory comes the promise of an important new source of gasoline in the future. This source is water gas, which forms a part of most city illuminating gas, and is obtained by passing steam over hot coke.

As the results of experiments in the Kaiser Wilhelm Research Institute for Coal Products in Germany, Professor Franz Fischer reports in Popular Science Monthly that by using a catalyst, or substance which accelerates chemical reaction, not only gasoline but wood alcohol, vaseline and other related products can be obtained from water gas.

Lakeshore Weak To-day Featuring Mine Market

TORONTO, Sept. 16 (Canadian Press).—The weakness of Lake Shore, which registered a net decline of 65 cents to 13.65 per share, and an easier tendency in Noranda, which closed 25 cents off to 18.25, featured the Mining Market on the Standard Exchange to-day. Nipissing also sold off 25 cents to 6.15. Trading was active but the lower price trend was evident.

In the gold stocks McIntyre eased ten cents to 24.90, Teck Hughes nine to 4.55, Vipond three to 1.73, Hollinger five to 19.20, and Gold Hill one to 43, while Wright Hargreaves firmed four to 8.70, Argo one to 26, and Baldwin one-half to 4½.

In the silvers, Beaver was off two to 82, Kelly two to 1.59, and Bourlamaque two to 1.15. Amulet dropped two to 1.32.

Trading Active To-day With Mixed Tendency

TORONTO, Sept. 16 (Canadian Press).—In heavy trading Goodeerham and Worts registered a one point advance on the Toronto Stock Exchange to-day, the noon close being 35. Industrial Alcohol closed unchanged at 23 1-8, while Massey Harris Common eased three-eighths to 68. Trading was moderately active.

Noranda continued its decline, dropping 35 cents per share to 18.12. Brazilian firmed one-quarter to 116, Smelters one-half to 247, Steamships Preferred one-half to 88½, and Imperial Oil one-eighth to 36 7-8, while Abitibi lost one point to 96¼, International Nickel one-half to 36 3-4, and International Petrol three-eighths to 33 3-4. Kirkland Lake was off three cents to 1.11, Lake Shore 30 to 13.95, and Hollinger 25 to 19.00. Banks were active, Commerce being off one to 221, Dominion unchanged to 210, Imperial up one to 206, Montreal one higher to 270, and Royal unchanged at 252½.

Prices Move Up Again As Call Money Rate Drops

NEW YORK, Sept. 16.—(Canadian Press.)— The lowering of the call money rate from 5 to 4 1-2 per cent. early this afternoon checked the reactionary price tendency in the stock market and signalled the beginning of a new forward movement in many issues. Early selling was accompanied by the usual weekly rumors of an increase in the New York or Philadelphia federal re-discount rates.

General Motors regained leadership of the markct by advancing abov. 153, which, if allowance is made for the recent fifty per cent. stock dividend, is a new record high price for the stock. Dupont, which has large General Motors holdings, touched a new high record at 315. The buying of these issues was based on the expectation of another liberal cash disbursement on Monday.

Wheat Prices Go Up As Threshing Is Delayed

CHICAGO, Sept. 16 (Canadian Press).—Wheat prices took sharp upturns here to-day soon after the start. Higher quotations at Winnipeg and reports of continued unfavorable weather in the Canadian North-West which will delay threshing and the movement of grain, brought about a scramble among wheat traders to buy. The buying, which was led by a prominent commission house, quickly became general. Starting unchanged to ½c higher, wheat values continued to gain ground. Corn moved into higher levels in sympathy with wheat. After starting 1-8c off to ½c up, corn later underwent a general rise. Oats were weak and provisions ruled firm in line with strength in hog values.

U.S. LOW TARIFF SUPPORTERS SEE GOOD IN RESULT

Say Win For Protectionists in Canada Would Strengthen U.S. Tariff.

HOPE FOR CUT.

High Duty Paper Says Question Will Come Up Again.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 16 (Canadian Press).—Comment on the outcome of the Canadian elections among Democrats and among those Western Republicans who want the United States tariff revised and rates lowered, is that the prospective return of former Premier Mackenzie King to power, and the failure of the high tariff advocates in Canada to win, are favorable to the cause of lower tariffs in this country.

They take the view that the victory of high tariff advocates and the imposition of higher duties in Canada, would have been a re-enforcement to the policy of the high tariff supporters in this country and would have furnished them arguments to increase the rates here, or at least not to lower them.

The Washington Post, which is pro-administrative and a high tariff advocate, says editorially the tariff issue will again appear in Canada and "the battle will not end until one side or the other obtains a decisive triumph."

SKILLED SURGERY

Two Women Healed of Injuries Believed Fatal at First.

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 16.—(Canadian Press)—One of the most remarkable examples of modern surgery and medical skill on record was instanced when, at Toronto General Hospital, Mrs. George Strobel, 55, and her daughter, Nora Jones, 25, were discharged from that institution, after recovery from injuries so serious and extensive that it was not believed that either could possibly recover when they were admitted on the morning of August 11.

With skulls fractured—that of Miss Jones in three places the arms of both broken—those of Miss Jones in three places below the elbow, and many abrasions and lacerations, no hope was held out for the recovery of either. Special day and night nurses were placed with them, and the fight for their lives began. Operations were performed and skill and care finally won out, although Miss Jones lay for three weeks unconscious.

YOUR JEWEL COLOR FLOWER

By Mildred Marshall

(Copyright, McClure Syndicate.)

The turquoise, today's talismanic stone, was believed by the ancients to bring great good fortune on this date to all who were in love. It was also believed to bring happiness to all young people who wore it.

The diamond is today's natal gem.

Its brilliance is said to drive away, for those who were born on some anniversary of this day, all fears and doubts and vain regrets. It will bring courage to face the future and illuminate the pathway obscured by doubt.

Rose color is the hue prescribed for wear today. It is especially advocated for those seeking social preferment.

Today's flower is the aster, the symbol of youth and hope.

HER OWN WAY
A GIRL of TODAY

JUDY'S DILEMMA

"Do you really think, John, that I would play with you?" I questioned.

Instantly he stepped away with a sigh, as he whispered, "Forgive me, dear. You know in my heart that I do not think it.

"I know you are not playing with me. I know that you have done nothing more than you would treat any other man, but you see, my dear girl, I have never thought of myself, as 'other men are.' You have awakened in me something that whispers that even I might possibly find a happiness that other men enjoy.

"Don't foster that idea, Judy, it would hurt me so to lose it, for now I am determined instead of hiding myself away from everyone and nursing that feeling of hurt and self, I am going to try and overcome it all.

"I have been thinking this afternoon, and now since I have seen you, the idea has become stronger, that perhaps it is not even best for me to make that African expedition. It will only take me away from people again, you know."

I grew a little frightened. Things were rushing along much faster than I had expected, although I had not said anything about the African expedition, I had already begun to influence John against it.

I had unconsciously done the thing that Mr. Symington accused me of trying to do.

He was right, he knew that when John got a taste of the companionship of women friends, his influence over him would be gone. He would no longer be necessary. His ambitions would be quashed.

The man had imputed to me the same self interest in John that he himself had.

It was pitiful to see how the poor man hung on my words. How breathless he waited for my answer to his implied question. I knew that if I made the slightest confirmation of his tentative question, the African expedition would be off.

I had to think fast! Which would be best for him? I knew in my heart that I wanted him to stay, but I must put myself aside.

"Of course," I said lightly, "it is not for me to advise you, but looking at it dispassionately as a rank outsider it seems that as you are interested in anthropology, it would be a splendid thing for you with your wealth to help along the cause of science and incidentally make a name for yourself. By the time you returned, you will have forgotten all about your petty personal troubles."

HOROSCOPE

'The Stars Incline, but do not Compel.

FOR THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 16, 1926.

This should be a day of rare good fortune, according to astrology which reads many aspects as favorable to the plans of dwellers on the planet Earth.

It is a day stimulating to all literary or journalistic efforts and should be employed wisely by all who do creative work.

Newspapers and magazines are to profit greatly from the planetary rule of the coming months which will bring much of importance for all who chronicle current history.

Financial matters are well directed today which should be profitable, for business conditions are most promising.

The stars appear to indicate great activity in all constructive work. Many public buildings will be receted and many miles of roads improved in the next few months.

Engineers are to perform remarkable feats in bridge-building and in eliminating obstructions in city streets, it is prognosticated.

In the types of men who belong to this period of the world there are to be two that contrast strongly, the extremely masculine and the opposite.

This rule is especially helpful to men of force physically and mentally, and should be helpful to big enterprises.

There is a fairly good rule today for merchants and manufacturers, although they will not benefit so much as workers in steel and iron or heads of big corporations engaged in directing smelters or steel works.

Machinery, clothing and food trades probably will have a period of unusual activity and profit.

Changes in fashion are to bring profit to certain importers and dealers, for elaborate modes are to be introduced with slow success.

Scientific investigation into occult matters will be carried on, it is foretold, with big results.

CONDITION —Extreme paleness.

DIAGNOSIS—You need more exercise in the open air, and possibly your diet is at fault.

TREATMENT—Here is a purely local remedy that will give you more color—temporarily. Fill two basins, one with hot and the other with cold water. Dip a cloth in the hot water, and hold it, as warm as you can bear it against your cheek. Renew several times, then apply the cold water or ice wrapped in a cloth. This will bring up your circulation and give you color. The only way to produce a lasting bloom is by leading a healthy outdoor life, and making your physical condition perfect.

A Fashion Model's Diary

By Grace Thorncli

SHE DESCRIBES A SMART FALL SPORTS COAT.

Today I had such an interesting time at lunch, with Mona, a moneyed friend who thinks nothing of flitting over to Paris several times a year, if the notion happens to strike her.

Mona adores clothes, and it is usually the quest of clothes which takes her across the ocean, though once she went to get a divorce.

Anyway, she has the best-looking clothes of almost anyone I know, and I depend upon her for my first-hand news of Paris, for she is a very observant person.

"If you ever want a job, you would have no trouble getting one as fashion adviser, or shopping expert, or something responsible in the line of clothes," I have often told Mona. "You have very keen observation and what is called 'fashion sense,' and I can't see what more would be needed."

Mona seems delighted at the idea, though I don't think she feels the need of settling down to a confining job just at the present.

Today I asked her to tell me the small items about Paris fashions that one can't always read up on, and she gave a quick survey of the smartness or perfectly tailored black broadcloth suits with the correct accessories, of the vogue for navy blue, sometimes combined with light blue, and perhaps worn with navy blue shoes, of the newer small flat pocketbooks and such.

We had just gotten this far with the recital when Mona suddenly looked up, and said:

"See the young girl just coming in to lunch?"

I looked and saw a stunning young thing in a soft wooly coat of bold plaid in black, gray and white, made with a cape at the back, and collar and cuffs of natural lynx.

"That," Mona informed me, "was one of the smartest sports and travel coats shown in the last opening I saw in Paris. She must have just come back. I wanted to get it myself, as a steamer coat for the boat and to wear in the country this Fall."

"You still approve of capes, then?" I asked.

The Cape Is Exploited in Black, White and Gray Plaid.

"I like them immensely on sports things, though I think there is a little danger of their being overdone for street wear," replied the discreet Mona. "I really think the new bloused back is a concession to the cape idea, and a shade newer."

WOMAN'S FEAT CALLED TO MIND

From Wool to Suit in Less Than Week With Hand Machinery.

DONE IN HOME

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 16. — (Canadian Press).—The story of a woman's feat—a woman of the days of 1864—has been told by a correspondent of the local papers, brought to public interest by the fact that a woollen overcoat was "assembled" in such record time at the National Exhibition.

"Emiline Wilkinson, living near the village of Hawlsey, Ont., had a brother who volunteered to enlist in the Northern army. He received notice to report at a certain place in the United States at a certain time. His wardrobe, however, was scanty, and he required a suit of clothes in which to make the journey. The Wilkinsons were a thrifty family and bought nothing which they could make themselves. They had a flock of sheep in which were several black ones. Emiline caught one of the black sheep (possibly two), sheared the sheep, washed the wool, carded the wool, spun the wool, wove the wool into cloth, cut the cloth and made a suit of clothes for her brother. All the work from the first to last was done by her in her home. In one week from the time the sheep was caught, the brother, wearing the suit of clothes, was on his way to the United States. When we knew the family the spinning wheel and the loom were in the house and in use. Her achievement gave proof, if proof were needed, that then, as now, the wives and daughters of Canadian farmers were the most capable and resourceful women of our land."

More than 400 pairs of silk stockings and 126 pairs of shoes and slippers were included in the wardrobe of a wealthy woman who died in London the other day.

FASHIONS

By HEDDA HOYT

(Written for the United Press.)

NEW YORK, Sept, 16.—(United Press.)—"Shoe the horse and shoe the mare but let the little colt go bare" is a theoery that doesn't work nowadays. Children's clothing often costs as much as their mother's. This fact is brought home with emphasis as the Fall school term opens for then it is that girls require not only warm comfortable garments but fashionable ones for the various school occasions.

For the school room there are numerous combinations of materials from which to make a selection. There are velveteen jumper frocks and frocks combining velveteen jumpers with pleated plaid wool skirts or with matching pleated flannel skirts. These models can be purchased for around $18 in most shops.

Covert, jersey or flannel may be used instead of velveteen for the jumper of the pleated plaid skirt. Two-piece frocks made entirely of jersey cloth are also desirable this year and this frock may be carried out in a single plain color or with the jumper of contrasting color to the skirt. In the later case, the bodice usually uses the brighter color with the skirt being of a darker contrasting color. Thus Chanel red jumpers with navy skirts, green jumpers with brown skirts, etc., carry out the two-toned mode.

Tweed tailored suits for campus or travel wear are among the Fall favorites for misses. Most of these suits are double-breasted and some use narrow lapel collars and narrow cuffs of fur. Checked or plaid woolen top coats lined in kasha make warm wraps for chilly days. If a warmer wrap is desired, reversible coats with fur on one side and kasha or heavier woolen fabric on the opposite side are lovely. One model wrap of this type combined leopard fur with a lining of henna-hued kasha.

Satins and crepes are agreed upon as the most probable mediums for the afternoon frock of the junior Miss. Satin perhaps is a bit more youthful than crepe. The bloused back is a youthful silhouette for the young girl and we see many simple frocks with long sleeves, boyish necklines, slender skirts and rear blouse. Tiered skirts, of course, adorn numerous youthful afternoon frocks.

For evening occasions the little chiffon dress with slender bodice and tiered skirt continues to be the most popular type for girls in their teens. Taffetas similarly made are also youthful and recent taffetas are changeable in shadings.

To-Morrow Beckons

For healthy boys and girls who will be ready for to-morrow's responsibilities, there is nothing better than the morning dish of Quaker Oats and milk.

Physicians and school authorities agree that the child's success in school and afterwards depends on his physical development during the early growth years.

During this period he must get simple foods that provide the elements for growth, especially protein, the all-important tissue-building material.

Quaker Oats with milk provides 23% of a child's daily requirements of protein. It also supplies the essential vitamines and minerals, and a tender coating of bran.

SOLUTION OF YESTERDAY'S CROSSWORD PUZZLE.

Daily Short Story

TWO OF US

"Now Sis, if you like that little bungalow we looked at in Glen Cove, I'm strong for taking it. You know, you need some real country air to sleep in since you're in a stuffy office all day—"

"But Polly, there will be lots more housekeeping and work for you in a place like that than in our tiny apartment."

"I should just love it. And even if a lot of the furniture is moth eaten we can soon brighten it up. And I do think it's a bargain."

"It's a very good way of spending the small amount of money we have and we will at least have a home of our own," the elder sister said happily, and hugged little Polly. "You're a duck to take such good care of your big sister."

So they signed the deeds and became the owners of a truly charming little bungalow of timber and stucco with its furniture thrown in. There was one big airy living-room, a nice bedroom, a tiny kitchen and bath. When Polly and Elsie stepped over the threshold with their few personal belongings and stood in the bungalow that was really their own, they almost wept on each other's necks, so glad were they to have a home to do exactly as they liked with and make cozy.

It was the housekeeping Polly's sense of domestic virtue that was the direct means by which she found her way into the world of business.

When she had decided that the rug in the bedroom should come up and be well beaten she got down on her knees with her tools to pull out the tacks and discovered heaps of manuscripts used as padding.

Polly had a queer feeling of something big happening in her housewifely day. For on the manuscripts, so as not to be overlooked, the writer had scribbled, "These stories are the property of whoever buys the bungalow. They're welcome. I've shopped them all over the country and, as you see, there are hundreds of printed return slips to help pad out the old rug. Jerry Westlake."

Polly burst out laughing, but a sharp little twinge of pity also gripped her heart. Jerry Westlake was the man from whom they had got the house but they had not come in personal contact with him, the transaction being done entirely through an agent.

The brainy side of Polly getting temporary mastery over the domestic, she stayed on the floor and read any number of the short stories. If they had been complete piffle Polly would not have wasted her time on them, but they were not. The plots were fine, the writing poor and the characters badly drawn. It was no wonder the editors had been unable to use them.

Polly worked hard. During the long days alone in the bungalow she had plenty of time for concentration and while her first effort did not meet with acceptance, her second did. It was comparatively easy after that. Polly might never have developed writing ability had she not penetrated immediately into the heart of Jerry's very fine plots. They had stirred her imagination and her brain.

She signed the stories "Two Of Us," and it was not until the first one was published that she told Elsie all about it. Then Polly wrote a letter to Jerry Westlake and wrapped a magazine with the story to post to him.

"Dear Mr. Westlake," wrote Polly, "if you have any more plots as good as the ones under the rug, please send them along by first mail. Several of the ones found have been accepted and I send along the first published as well as half the check. I could not possibly have written stories without the exciting plots, and hope you will continue collaborating with me." The letter was signed, "Two of Us, this half being Polly Palmer."

Next day Polly answered a ring at the door.

The man on the step grinned. "I'm the other half, Jerry Westlake."

"Oh," exclaimed Polly, "how lovely."

And as they two shook hands Polly ushered him into the bungalow that for so long had been his own home.

"What a difference a woman's taste makes," said Jerry and not without a shade of longing. "But what a peach you are with stories. I never thought of my old plot as working out so thrillingly. I've got heaps more.

"If we start talking plots now," laughed Polly, strangely very happy, "I won't have the supper ready for Sis, so I'll just set the table for three—you will stay, won't you?"

"I certainly will," said Jerry and they progressed so swiftly into the heart of harmony that when Elsie arrived home she found a strange man in the kitchen with Polly and round his big frame was an apron. He was very intent on making popovers while Polly, flushed and bright eyed, simmered a chicken and prepared a dainty salad for three.

Polly flew into Elsie's arms with a breathlessness that told Elsie much more than words could have done, and she smiled happily. All of a sudden she knew that Polly had met the man to whom her faithful heart would cling for the rest of her life and Elsie was glad with a gladness that did not at first make her realize that now she could say the word to Donald Gray that he had been waiting for so long.

"The two halves of Two Of Us have met," said Polly, introducing Jerry, "and we seem to hit it off well—together."

UNCLE WIGGILY

Todays' Bedtime Story

By Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE TIRED ANT

Copyright, 1926, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.
(By Howard R. Garis.)

Uncle Wiggily was hunting for an adventure. The old gentleman rabbit had no gun with him, for he did not shoot when he was hunting. You can't get adventures that way.

Nor did he have a camera to take pictures, though nowadays hunters often tramp through jungles and in deep forests just to hunt for pictures, instead of shooting birds and beasts.

No, Uncle Wiggily had neither gun nor camera. He just had with him his bright eyes, and his long ears that could hear many faint sounds. And, with these the bunny uncle was seeking an adventure.

What's an adventure?" some of Uncle Wiggily's forty 'leven little bunny rabbits would often ask, when he started off in search of one.

An adventure," he would say, is something that happens to you."

Teacher kept me in after school for whispering," laughed Baby Bunty, the orphan child, who was visiting the other bunnies. Was that an adventure?"

It was, but not a jolly one," answered Uncle Wiggily.

So here he was, hopping through the fields and through the woods, looking for an adventure, which he hoped to discover, or find, before it was time to hop back home for tea.

But all the adventures seemed to be hiding. Perhaps they had gone to bed and pulled the covers up over their heads, though it was a bit early to go to sleep.

Dear me!" murmured Uncle Wiggily, peering this way and that way. I wish I could find an adventure!"

Ahem!" coughed a voice in the bushes. I don't suppose you would call helping a tired ant lady an adventure; would you?"

I might," said Uncle Wiggily, cautious like and judicial. But who are you, where is the ant lady and what makes her tired?"

I am Mrs. Hopper, the toad lady," was the answer. Mrs. Crawl, the ant lady, is just down the path a short skip, and she is tired because she has to pick up every single grain of a bag of sugar she dropped a little while ago. I would be glad to help her myself, but my husband has a wart on his nose and I am hurrying home from the drug store with some medicine for him. I heard you sighing for an adventure, so I thought I would speak of the tired ant lady. But perhaps she isn't."

Here he was, looking for an adventure.

Isn't what?" asked Uncle Wiggily.

An adventure," answered the lady toad.

I'll go see," offered the bunny. Hurry home now, and cure your husband's wart."

When Uncle Wiggily had hopped down the path a little way he saw a little red ant lady, very busy, indeed, crawling to and fro between a pile of white granulated sugar and her house, which was just a hole in the ground.

Oh, dear!" sighed Mrs. Crawl, as she picked up another grain of sugar and started down the hole with it. I am so tired!"

That is too bad," said Uncle Wiggily, bending down low the better to talk to the ant. What happened?"

I was carrying this bag of sugar home from the store," replied Mrs. Crawl, when it slipped and fell and the bag broke. I can only carry a grain at a time, but if my fifty-seven thousand little boys and girls were here they would help me."

Fifty-seven thousand boys and girls!" cried Uncle Wiggily. That is a goodly number. I only have forty 'leven. But where are all your children?"

At school," answered Mrs. Crawl. Oh, dear! I am so tired!"

Then you sit down and take a rest," invited Uncle Wiggily. I will put this sugar in your house in no time!" So while the tired ant lady rested, Uncle Wiggily, with a spray from a pine tree, which was like a brush, got all the sugar grains into a neat heap. Then he made a funnel out of a bit of birch bark, and into the funnel he poured pawful after pawful of sugar, letting it dribble down into the ant's house, until all the sweet stuff was picked up and stored away.

Oh, thank you, so much!" said the ant lady, no longer tired. I wish I or some of my fifty-seven thousand children could do you a favor."

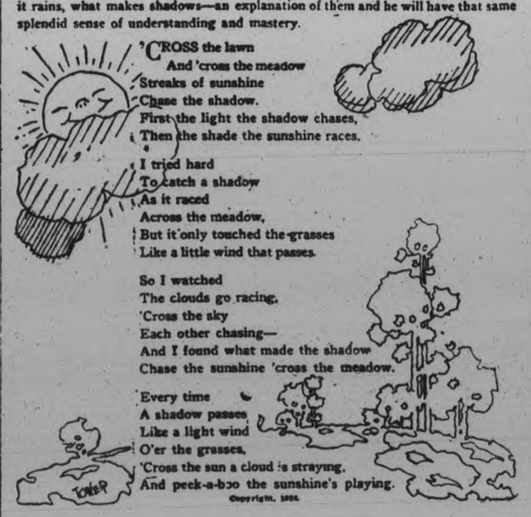
And they did. For a little later that day, when Uncle Wiggily was asleep in the woods, along came the Fox to nibble him. But the fifty-seven thousand little ant children came out of school just then, and they crawled all over that Fox, tickling him so on his nose and chin, that the bad chap quivered and shivered all over and ran away.

So this teaches us that there may be some good even in spilled sugar, and if the little lamb will go to school with the gold fish when he hears the cow ring her bell, I'll tell you next about how Uncle Wiggily fooled the fox.

Sunshine and Shadows

By SHIRLEY RODMAN WILLIAMS

THE possession of knowledge is a joy in itself. Education is a pleasure not alone for what it may bring us, but also in the sense we have of knowing and understanding things. A child gets a real thrill out of the mechanical accomplishment of mastering his letters. He likes to hear a story over and over because he understands all about that story and he is proud to be able to anticipate what is coming. It gives him a sense of accomplishment. You have much the same pleasure when in reading a book you find a passage quoted with which you are familiar—it's a joy to recognize it. The more a child learns of nature the more pleasure he's able to get from it. What makes thunder and lightning, why it rains, what makes shadows—an explanation of them and he will have that same splendid sense of understanding and mastery.



'CROSS the lawn
And 'cross the meadow
Streaks of sunshine
Chase the shadow.
First the light the shadow chases,
Then the shade the sunshine races.

I tried hard
To catch a shadow
As it raced
Across the meadow,
But it only touched the grasses
Like a little wind that passes.

So I watched
The clouds go racing,
'Cross the sky
Each other chasing—
And I found what made the shadow
Chase the sunshine 'cross the meadow.

Every time
A shadow passes
Like a light wind
O'er the grasses,
'Cross the sun a cloud is straying.
And peek-a-boo the sunshine's playing.

British Island Dominion Displays Wares at C.N.E.

SPLENDID EXHIBIT

Products Worth $200,000 Shown in Effort to Get Business.

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 16.—Canadian Press).—"If you cannot buy in Canada, will you trade with us?"

This was the slogan of the delegation of six sent by the New Zealand Government with an exhibit valued at $200,000, as a "gesture of friendship" to the Canadian nation. The exhibit from the British Island Dominion at the Canadian National Exhibition was the first of its kind from New Zealand, to which Dominion Canada sends products, mainly autos and parts, valued at $20,000,000, annually, while the imports to Canada from that remote country do not exceed $3,000,000 a year. The New Zealand exhibit did not contain any showing of two of its chief export products—meat and dairy produce, of which $150,000,000 represented the yearly value of export to Great Britain—but the statistical position New Zealand occupies in the export trade of the world was emphasized by comparative graphical representation.

The court attractively displayed the industries of the country, with interesting trophies of Maori arts and crafts, and products of Western Samoa, so successfully administered by that Government under mandate from the League of Nations. The thermal regions where underneath a very thin crust the earth seems to be always boiling; specimens of deep sea denizens, weighing in the case of the swordfish up to 1,000 pounds; charts on the New Zealand method of feeding babies, under which they claim the infantile death rate has been reduced to 3 per thousand births in the main cities, compared with 20 per thousand in the main centres of North America; cinema films of travel in New Zealand; in fact, a ready reference to life and activity in all phases there were all given in this interesting display.

The exhibit opened up new avenues of trade and tourist business and was widely commended. The British Industries Federation in London cabled to the New Zealand Court at the Canadian National congratulating it on its display.

ADVANCE SEAT SALE EXCEEDS MILLION FOR DEMPSEY BOUT

Country's Notables Among Those Who Have Made Reservations.

CARNIVAL SPIRIT

Promoters Believe Gate Will Run Over Dempsey-Carpentier Fight.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 16.—The big fight continues to put the Sesquicentennial on the map and plans go glibly on for the "battle of a century and a half" as the Dempsey-Tunney cahmpionship encounter of Sept. 23 is aptly termed.

To say that Tex Rickard is tickled pink with the way the advance sale is going is puting it mildly, and that is the sure indication of the success of any big bit of promotion such as this. Bubling with enthusiasm and chewing the inevitable cigar, Tex took the train for New York with bank receipts for over $1,370,000 tucked away in his wallet, representing the biggest advance sale that any fight has ever had at this stage of the period.

So many reservations have been received from the heads of big banks and trust companies that Rickard declares the ringside seats will look like a national bankers' convention. Almost every big banking house in the coluntry from J. P. Morgan & Co. down has made reservations, and the same is true of the heads of great industries.

Dawes to Be Spectator.

Men high in the Government, including Vice President Dawes and Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, will be at the ringside when Dempsey and Tunney start the fireworks, and the gathering will be the most notable that has ever witnessed a championship battle in this country.

Samuel Vauclain, head of the Baldwin Locomotive Works and one of Philadelphia's big figures, is the leading individual purchaser of tickets so far, his total running to $27,000 for distribution among the officials of his great industry.

Elbert H. Gary, head of the United States Steel Company; Eugene G. Grace of the Bethlehem Steel Company, E. T. Stotesbury of J. P. Morgan and Co., and Samuel T. Bodine, Chairman of the Board of United Gas Improvement Company, are among the many prominent men who have taken ringside consignments.

Mr. Bodine is said to be among the Philadelphians who have never attended a big fight before. When he ordered his tickets yesterday from Tex Rickard the gas magnate remarked:

"Be sure to ge me near the ring, as my eyes aren ot so good and I don't want to miss anything."

Percy Rockefeller, Vincent Astor, George M. Pynchon and a host of other notables from New York will be at the ring side. Many New York clubs have put in requisitions for big blocks of seats, the biggest reservation being 700 tickets for the Racquet Club.

Record Gate Possible.

With so many assurances that the fight has been taken up not only by the general public but by captains of finance and industry all over the country, there is little wonder that Tex Rickard left his suite in the Bellevue Stratford wearing his cane and a satisfied smile. If the gate continues to grow it will run above the record for the Dempsey-Carpentier matinee in 1921 at Boyl's Thirty Acres, which was $1,600,000.

Not only the promoters but all Philadelphia seems to be pleased at the widespread interest in the fight and the way it is carrying the flag of the sesquicentennial to far corners of the country, not to say the world.

Tokio wants the story by cable; so does Sydney, Melbourne, Buenos Aires and other less known ports of call. The Ocean Times will broadcast it to 100 liners or more at sea, "play by play."

Philadelphia officials are plainly delighted with the brotherly action of the New York Boxing Commission in making it possible for the Quaker City to acquire such a pugilistic plum, especially when in the throes of a sesquicentennial—described as being at least 50 per cent more difficult than any other kind.

"We can never thank the New York officials enough for handing us this fight on a silver platter," said one of William Penn's representatives today. "If there was anything we needed just at this time it was a nice big championship fight, and the New Yorkers showed a wonderful spirit of brotherly love in handing it over. If there is anything we can ever do for the New York Commissioners you can bet we will do it, and this includes season tickets to the sesquicentennial."

Carnival Spirit Pervades.

An interlude of calm will come in this usually staid old city, now bedecked with flags andcolored lights, a brilliant stage for the fight of a century and a half. Never before has a heavyweight championship been fought out in such a gala setting. The fight fans will ride through carnival streets and there will be a carnival spirit about the whole thing.

It took Philadelphia quite a while to wake up to what had come to her on the burly arms of Dempsey and Tunney, but now with their big men leading the way, the native sons and daughters are galloping to the fray. Even in the quiet old bystreets, with their marble-trimmed brick houses, are heard murmurs of "Dempsey and Tunney."

The Philadelphia housewives are running true to form with their slogan "May the best-looking man win," referring to none other than the intellectual stalwart of Stroudsburg and Greenwich Village. The men usually hold a different opinion, when not directly at their own firesides.

On Monday the Sunday calm will have vanished and the hammers will pound and saws will buzz on the construction of the 22,000 extra seat stand. This wil be a day and night job for 200 carpenters and 200 laborers, and it is expected to be practically complete in a week's time. The first instalment of 9,000 ringside chairs also will arrive and the drilling of 1,500 ushers will begin under Tex Rickard's direction.

NEW YORK WINS FIRST OF SERIES FROM CLEVELAND

Yanks Drive Indians' Pitching Ace From Mound in Seventh.

LACKED CONTROL

Paschal's Single to Centre Puts Across the Winning Runs.

NEW YORK, Sept. 16.—(Canadian Press).—New York breathed an icy blast yesterday on Cleveland's hopes of winning six straight from the Yankees and going into first place, by taking the first of the series at Cleveland, 6 to 4.

The Yankees drove Uhle, Cleveland pitching ace, from the mound in the seventh. Uhle, previously had beaten New York five straight this year. Until that inning, Uhle had held New York to three hits and had struck out seven men, including Ruth once. Uhle, however, lacked his usual control, and in the seventh New York bunched four hits, got a pass, and Pinch Hitter Reuther was hit by a pitched ball. It was a single to centre by Pinch Hitter Paschal that put across the tieing and winning runs.

Cleveland drove Jones from the box in the fifth, but Shawkey, who replaced him, was a puzzle.

Detroit and Washington split even in their double-header at Detroit, the home team winning the first game, 2 to 1, and Washington the second, 9 to 5. Two errors in the seventh inning enabled Detroit to win the opener. Four Detroit pitchers were hit freely in the afterpiece.

Chicago socked out thirteen hits, seven of them for extra bases, and easily defeated Boston, 5 to 1, in the first game of the Chicago series. The visitors gathered only four hits off Thomas, one being a triple in the ninth inning when Mostil slid in the mud going after Rigney's fly. This was followed by a sacrifice fly, which saved the visitors from a shut-out.

These were the only games scheduled yesterday.

TORONTO LOSES DOUBLE-HEADER TO SYRACUSE

Cancelled Seven-Run Lead for First—Two for Second.

BUFFALO POSTPONED

Newark Defeats Reading at Home in Second International Game.

NEW YORK, Sept. 16 (Canadian Press)—Syracuse twice came from behind yesterday to defeat Toronto, the new International League champions, the home team cancelling a seven-run lead to take the first game, 10 to 9, and wiping out a two-run advantage to capture the second, 4 to 3. The winning runs in the twin bills were knocked in by Pinch Hitter Urban, with a single off Walter Stewart, and by regular Hurst, with a home run, with two on, off Jim Faulkner. Harry Layne, of the Stars, finished first in the battle with his twin brother, Herman, of Toronto, Harry getting three safeties, including a home run, while Herman got nothing at all.

In the only other International contest, played yesterday, Newark entertained Reading by defeating the visitors, 8 to 2.

Rain caused postponement of the Rochester-Buffalo fracas.

CINCINNATI HUMBLES BROOKLYN RETAINS LEAD NATIONAL LEAGUE

Victory Gives Reds Full Five-Game Series From Robins.

PUZZLES BROOKS

Pirates Now Three Games Behind League Leading Browns.

NEW YORK, Sept. 16 (Canadian Press).—Playing in fine form, the Reds humbled Brooklyn and retained the top notch in the National League yesterday, 7 to 2. The victory gave Cincinnati a clean sweep in the five-game series.

Eppa Rixey, southpaw, who blanked the Robins Monday, was a puzzle for Brooklyn again yesterday. He allowed seven scattered hits. Petty, matching his left arm against Rixey, conceded only two more, but his mates played raggedly, five errors being chalked against them.

Butler and Deberry made mistakes in the first inning, encouraging Hendrick's men to score twice. In the third inning Critz, who has been in fine fettle during the series, tripled with two runners on.

Brooklyn was let in for a tally in the fourth when Herman hit over the right field wall for a homer. Another Robin run came in the last half of the ninth, Herman scoring on Butler's fly to Walker after he had singled and taken third on Cox's one-bagger.

Cincinnati scored another in the sixth and added a victorious touch in the eighth with two more. Clabaugh went to left field for Brooklyn and immediately muffed a long one off Zitzmann's bat, putting the batter on third. Cincinnati worked a squeeze play, with Roush beating out a grounder and Walker scoring. Roush stole second and scored on Pipp's single.

Yesterday's win was the seventh straight for Cincinnati. It concluded the Reds' appearances against the Robins for the season, which has seen Brooklyn bow eighteen times and win only four times from Hendricks' men.

Pittsburgh saw her pennant chances grow more dim as her traditional rivals, the New York Giants, took a 6 to 5 game from her. Though the Pirates won the series, three games to two, the loss placed them three and a half games behind Cincinnati, leading the League, and three games below St. Louis.

New York started off with a vengeance in the second inning with a double by Tyson, Jackson's walk and Florence's single. But the Buccaneers went into a two-run lead in the next frame. Smith singled, Brickell walked and then Waner smashed a triple into deep right centre and went home on Cuyler's clout.

The Giants crawled up one more point with their second run scored in the same inning. The Pirates scored again in the fourth on singles by Traynor and Smith, but New York went after Bush that inning for three hits and victory. Morrison was sent in to save the day but the New Yorkers finished their threat, putting over four tallies before he could get under way.

Scott held the visitors scoreless for the rest of the way. It was the Pittsburghers' farewell appearance at the Polo Grounds.

The St. Louis Cardinals opened their six-game series with the Phillies yesterday by winning, 9 to 2. The Cards cinched the game by heavy hitting in the fourth and eighth innings, in each of which they scored four runs. Shortstop Tommy Thevenow delivered two timely singles that drove in three runs, and he also scored a pair of his own. Haines was hit hard but was invincible with men on base.

The Boston Braves practically blasted any pennant hopes of the Chicago Cubs by taking a double-header, 1 to 0 and 3 to 1. Joe Genewich pitched airtight ball in the opener, allowing but four scattered hits, three of which were gathered by Jimmy Cooney, Chicago shortstop, while Foster Edwards, former Dartmouth pitching ace, went the distance in the second. He held the visitors to six hits.

JONES' CROWN THREATENED IN SEMI-FINALS

Three Former Titleholders Fall in Rounds at Baltusrol.

N. A. CHAMPIONSHIP

Younger and Daring Challengers Make Sweeping Attack Against Favorites.

SHORT HILLS, N. J., Sept. 16 (Canadian Press)—Over the hills of Baltusrol thirty-two gladiators of the links grappled for the National Amateur championship yesterday in two heart-breaking rounds of golf, which felled three former title holders, and threatened to dethrone mighty Bobby Jones.

It was a gripping struggle which found great stars fighting back gamely against a sweeping attack by young and daring challengers. But when the struggle was over for the day, the ranks of the favorites showed only a few gaps, with Jones, the defending king, Watts Gunn, his Atlanta chum, Francis Ouimet of Boston, George Von Elm of Los Angeles, and Chick Evans, of Chicago among those to gain the round before the semi-finals.

Surviving with them the gruelling test, which marked the first attempt in recent years of he U.S.G.A. to bring off two rounds of match play in a single day, were two young aspirants from the middle west, Eddie Held, of St. Louis and George Dawson of Chicago.

Out of twenty-four nerve-wrecking matches yesterday, ten carried the galleries in breathless suspense to the home green, five to the seventh and three to the sixteenth Bobby himself was among the warriors who found themselves on the verge of defeat, and only by holing a birdie four on the eighteenth was he able to beat back the determined thrust of a Jones from the north—Richard A. Jr. of New York City.

Safely past the New York Jones at one-up, the two-time champion romped through a second round match with William Reekie of Montclair, N.J., to score the only decisive triumph of the round at five and four.

Sensational putting saved the former champion, Ouimet. After dropping two long ones to save his first round match against Roy M. Moe of Portland, Oregon, one up, the be-spectacled, Hubman soared to such brilliant heights on the greens against Eustace Storey of England that consistently sound golf could not save the former British Walker Cup player. Ouimet at no point was able to relax in his brilliant playing, however, for Storey clung to his task tenaciously before going down, 2 and 1.

Jack Dempsey fought his first professional fight at the age of nineteen at Montrose, Colo. He knocked out a husky young blacksmith in three rounds and was rewarded with twenty-five dollars for his victory.

BASEBALL DOPE PROVES USELESS

Giants and Pirates Were Only Teams Considered in Race.

DARK HORSES

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, Sept. 16 — (United Press).—Baseball, more than any other major sports, fails to run true to form and this rapidly closing season is a fresh and good example.

After visting the major league training camps last spring, critics were divided in their choice between the New York Giants and the Pittsburgh Pirates.

The Giants, it was doped out, were an improved ball club under a manager who would drive them tothe very limit and get out of them every bit of baseball they had.

But McGraw rode his Giants so hard that the players lost their spirit and the Giants may finsh clear out of the money.

The Pirates, it seemed, were a great young ball club, strong in every position and with the inspiration and experience of one's world championship campaign.

But internal dissension developed in the club and ended in the release of Capt. Max Carey, Eddie Moore, Babe Adams and Carson Bigbee and the fining of several other players.

The Cincinnati Reds looked at but like a first division possibility with strong pitching but no hitting and a weak infield. But the Reds came through with a spirit that overcame weaknesses.

The St. Louis Cardinals seemed to be no stronger than a dark horse, with great possibilities and few certainties, but they were charged with having the handicap of a jinx, a terrible summer town and undependable pitching.

In the American League, the results are equally convincing. It looked in the spring like a cinch battle between the champion Senators and the Philadelphia Athletics.

No one gave a tumble to the New York Yankees and the Cleveland Indians. With the possible exception of the Boston Red Sox they looked like the worst teams in the league.

And they will finish one-two!

NEW GERMAN 'STRATOPLANE' WITH CREW IN ARMORED SUITS DESIGNED FOR GREAT SPEED

Removal of Restrictions on Civilian Flying Increases Activities.

RESEARCH WORK

Germany Laying Plans for Becoming Supreme in Air.

By GUNTNHER TONN
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

BERLIN (United Press).—Since the abolition of restrictions on civilian aircraft, imposed by the treaty of Versailles, new vigor has been injected into Germany's aerial activities. Baffled in its dreams of world dominance and colonial expansion, the fatherland now hopes to realize its great remaining ambition—the conquest of the air.

The years since Versailles have not been altogether lost. There are, in fact, many experts who insist that these years of trial have been of immeasurable value to the German air industry. The restrictions, it is asserted, compelled the designers to make the most of what was allowed them and within these narrow limits establish new principles with other nations, working on a more generous scale, never discovered.

Moreover, research work has been carried on steadily through all these years and there are now laboratories in Germany, said to be in possession of knowledge not even visualized in other countries. In addition, it may be supposed that while the actual building of aircraft was subject to restrictions, there was no effective ban on designing larger craft and that long before the limitations were lifted, carefully worked-out drawings reposed in the safes of the airplane and airship builders.

Thus well equipped, Germany is launching her career as conqueror of the air. Construction of a super-Zeppelin for the transatlantic route is well under way a Friedrichshafen, and plans for a Far Eastern route via the North Pole, maintained with smaller dirigibles, are fast maturing.

It is, however, in the domain of swift airplanes that Germany hopes to rise to unchallenged supremacy. Plans have been drafted for a plane that will cover the distance Berlin-New York in ten hours. Flying at an altitude of ten miles, with resistance reduced to a minimum and out of reach of sudden squalls and air pockets this plane is intended by its designers to regain at one swoop all the ground lost by Germany under the air restrictions of the peace treaty.

Constructed of special metal, equipped with Diesel engines, its propellors driving the plane at the rate of 350 miles an hour through the thin atmosphere its pilots, diver-like, swathed in airtight suits and helmets, the new "strateplane" will soon emerge from the German laboratories and yards to challenge the air supremacy of France.

FASCIST HEADS LEAVE RIVIERA

Say They Are Needed at Their Homes in Italy.

SITUATION CRITICAL.

NICE, France, Sept. 16.—(Canadian Press.)—Prominent Fascisti whose headquarters are on the Riviera have been leaving for Italy the last two days, although it is stated that no orders, official or unofficial, have been received from Rome. It is asserted that the reason for their departure is the need of their presence in the Fascist groups of their native towns, but anti-Fascists on the Riviera are spreading rumors that all Fascisti have are being called back to Italy

It is declared by the Fascisti in general that they are needed here at the present time, as the opposing groups are making the French Riviera their working headquarters. Outwardly the Riviera is calm, but, inasmuch as 40 per cent. of the inhabitants are of Italian extraction, the situation is becoming critical from the French standpoint.

Both Fascisti and the local police are aware of the existence in Nice of a strong anti-Fascist society, including Italians and French, who have a perfect system of espionage of daily Italian events. Habitues of certain cafes in Nice, it is reported, knew of the attempt against Mussolini's life hours before the news was received through the regular channels.

PICKING PIMPLE CAUSE OF DEATH

Waterloo Girl's Death Comes From Abscess on Her Face.

KITCHENER, Ont., Sept. 16.—Geraldine Hoffman, nineteen-year-old daughter of Mrs. Laura Hoffman, William Street, Waterloo, died in St. Mary's Hospital here yesterday from poisoning believed to have been caused from picking a pimple on her face.

The late Miss Hoffman first noticed the abscess on her face while on a vacation with her mother in Lockport, N.Y., and upon consulting a physician in that city, she was advised that she could return home to Waterloo. She was removed to St. Mary's Hospital on Tuesday and her condition became gradually worse, resulting in her death yesterday. She is survived only by her mother.

HISTORIC CASTLE BADLY DAMAGED

Aberdeen Home of Lady Cathcart Partly Destroyed By Fire.

LONDON, Sept. 16 (United Press).—Historic Cluny Castle, near Aberdeen, Scotland, was partly destroyed by fire to-day. The loss was estimated at $350,000. This palatial Scottish residence was the home of Lady Emily Elizabeth Cathcart, widow of Captain Reginald Cathcart.

Assisted by members of her house party and by servants, the hostess rushed valuable pictures, furniture, and other family treasures to the lawn. The house party found refuge in nearby cottages.

Two wings of the castle and the richly decorated private chapel were destroyed. The fire was believed to have been caused by a defective flue. After six hours' work, firemen extinguished the blaze, which was the thirty-fourth fire to damage big country houses since January 1st, 1925. Seven of these country house fires were estimated to-day to have caused an aggregate loss of $2,137,500.

OSLERS BEHIND SAVED BY RAIN

Kingston Leading 7-0 in Second When Game Stops.

POOR SUPPORT.

KINGSTON, Sept. 16.—Oslers of Toronto were saved from an almost certain beating here yesterday by rain. They were opposing Kingston in the O.B.A.A. Senior playoffs and were trailing by 7 to 0 in the second inning when rain intervened and the game was called. Kingston will meet Oslers in Toronto on Saturday. Yesterday's game has been postponed. The date has not yet been set, but the game will probably be played next Wednesday.

Joe Spring faced the Kingston batters yesterday, and he was touched for five hits in the 1 2-3 innings of the game He ,however, was the victim of poor support, Oslers making three errors behind him. Cairns was on the mound for Kingston, and the local pitcher gave promise of repeating his feat of a year ago when he trimmed the Toronto champions. Kingston score five runs in the first inning and two in the second. The game was called with Kingston at bat and two men out.

Batsman strikes at ball as runner starts to steal second. It is the third strike. He misses the ball but it hits his person, deflecting it to grandstand, runner reaching third and batsman second. What about it?

* * *

The batsman is out the moment he misses a third strike and the pitched ball comes into contact with his person. Such a happening makes the ball dead and therefore no bases can be run.

The runner originally on first, who started to steal with the pitch and reached third on the play, should be sent back to first.

The batsman who ran to second, being out the moment the third strike hits his person, should of course be removed from the bases.

'MAN OF STEEL' RULES SOVIET

Stalin is Assumed Name of Power Behind Scenes in Russia.

LENIN HIS IDOL

LONDON (United Press)—Behind the kaleidoscope of Soviet politics, which recently has sent some well known figures tumbling, stands a new power in the person of Stalin, the name he took which means the "Man of Steel". He is the Russian countepart of an American political boss, the head of the machine, the power behind the principal actors of the Soviet drama to-day, according to reports reaching England.

He sent Trotosky into exile and called him back again. He liquidated Djerjinsky, the head of the ferocious Cheka, the secret police, who recently died under mysterious circumstances. He sent ... ll down from power and was behind the dismissal of Kameneff from his place as chief of the Commissariat of Trade. His name is Josef Djugashvili but he calls himself Stalin.

He's a big man ... d dour. He is a blustering, rough and impetuous leader, who wins through discipline. Lenin was his first idol and still is his example. But Stalin is a practical man of politics, who does not let fine theories stand in his way. He recognizes facts when he sees them, yielding here and pushing forward there according to the facts. In his hands, Soviet Russia probably is on the edge of many changes, which will make it fit more smoothly into the society of other nations, for Stalin is neither a bigot nor a fanatic. He does not beat his hand against stone walls.

He has made himself deliberately a man of greatest mystery. For years he boasted that he had never given out an interview for newspapermen, nor allowed any newspaper stories to be published about him if he could prevent them. He is the most difficult man in all Moscow to meet and now he is the most important. But Stalin is the despair of newspaper correspondents.

He has been a revolutionist since 1905, when he took active part in bloody fighting in the Caucasus, for which he was arrested by the Czar's police and exiled to Siberia. But he came back with Lenin and worked for several years quietly and smoothly, in the second rank of the leaders. He has only recently come forward to the front of the Soviet directors. His work until now has been almost unseen and wonderfully successful.

It was his task, when the Soviet union was formed, to placate the so-called "outer nationalities," the states surrounding the fringes of central Russia which were declared free and independent of the Soviets but which had, above all else, to be kept within the Soviet circle. By cajolery, by adept leadership, by wise concessions and softness where softness was needed, he kept all the surrounding states except his native state of Georgia loyal to the Soviets. He used no force. The people chose to be loyal.

The Stalin was promoted to become secretary of the Communist Party, which controls the Soviet Government, and there again his fine diplomacy, good judgment and political sense won for him a conspicuous success. He is gathering the fruits of it now, for his secretaryship gave him control of the Soviet political machine, the "steam roller" which he has now steered over the earlier leaders.

SUNDAY HARD DAY

Women in Fruit Belt Have Too Many Visitors During Summer.

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 16.—(Canadian Press).—Writing to a local paper a woman tells of one of the country-dweller's woes: "We live in the heart of the fruit belt, with its many attractions and good roads. The home of this district are thronged with visitors from blossom time until frost. This is our very busy season, but still the housewives are tired and worn every Sunday in the heat, trying to entertain and make supplies stretch out for carloads of people. One good lady said she has had from 7 to 37 every Sunday for the last eight weeks. Another picked fruit all week and cleaned her house and baked in the evenings to prepare for Sunday's traffic. Another said her husband and children go from Morning Sunday school to back of their farm or to the lake for rest and quietness, and there are hundreds of like cases, to say nothing of sometimes incurring financial embarrassment. As for our Sunday observance. Over 7,000 cars representing about 28,000 people passed our doors last Sunday afternoon."

THEATRE AT THE REGENT

BUCK JONES IN HIS LATEST PICTURE

"The Cowboy and the Countess" Full of Action, Color and Thrills

"The Cowboy and the Countess," a highly original story of a troupe of cowboys on an exhibition tour of Europe with Buck Jones starring in the title role will be shown at the Regent Theatre, beginning today.

Besides having a very original plot, the story is full of action and thrills and moves along swiftly, smoothly and naturally. The scenic effects are wonderful, particularly those showing the gorgeous backgrounds in Belgravia.

The plot of the story is woven around the love affair between Jerry Whipple of the Boot Jack Ranch and Elsa Verlaine, who traces her ancestry centuries back into the nobility of Belgravia. Jerry meets Elsa while she is touring the United States with her father, and after saving her life promptly falls in love with her.

When she returns to her own country he follows at the head of a band of cowboys billed to give exhibitions of riding and roping in all of the big cities of Europe. The trip proves highly successful financially. The experiences of the cowboys are such as to bring forth gales of laughter, even while they thrill with their dare-devil stunts on horseback.

The end is as unexpected as it is thrilling, for a series of unforseen events come up to complicate an already complicated situation for Jerry But he solves his problems in the most satisfactory manner.

With Buck Jones in the picture are Helena D'Algy, Diana Miller, and Harvey Clark. R. William Neill, who has many productions of the better type to his credit directed the production.

FIRES FOUR SHOTS INTO RACE CROWD

No Person Seriously Hurt By Bullets in Crowded Grandstand.

MARLBOROUGH, Md., Sept. 16.—(United Press.)—Only a miracle, it is said, accounted for the escape from serious injury of many race fans here when Lawrence D. Pritchett of Timonium, Md., fired four shots into the crowded grandstands at a man who evidently had been talking to Mrs. Pritchett. One bullet struck a colored woman in the ankle. The firing, which occurred yesterday afternoon, caused a panic in the stands, during which many women fainted.

The death occurred of Mrs. A. M. McClelland, who passed away in the 74th year of her age at the home of her daughter, Mrs. F. McPhun, 64 Dawlish Avenue, Toronto, on Saturday, after an illness of many months. Mrs. McClelland was the widow of the late Rev. Dr. A. M. McClelland, a graduate of Toronto University and Knox College. Her maiden name was Elizabeth Gow Baillie, daughter of James Baillie, of Aylmer, Quebec. Mrs. McClelland was closely identfied with the missionary work of the church, and in the earlier days of the Women's Missionary Society organized many societies in the Provinces of Ontario and Manitoba. In war time she was an untiring, assiduous worker in the Women's Patriotic League. Just a few months ago on account of ill health she resigned her position which she had held for many years on the board of the Children's Aid Society. She was an active member of Deer Park Church and is survived by three sons, and one daughter, Alex. B. McClelland, Donald McK. McClelland, Mrs. F. McPhun and Dr. James McClelland, all of Toronto; nine grandchildren and two brothers, Rev. Dr. J. K. Baillie, of Pasadena, California, and James Baillie, of Aylmer, Quebec. Rev. Dr. Rose of Murray Street Baptist Church will officiate. Interment will take place in Lakefield Cemetery. Funeral private.

IN MEMORIAM

TAYLOR.—In loving memory of my dear father, William (Daddy) Taylor, who passed away September 16th, 1925.

Now the labourer's task is o'er,
Now the battle-day is past;
Now upon the farther shore,
Lands the voyager at last.
Father, in Thy gracious keeping
Leave we now Thy servant sleeping.

FLOODS BREAK LEVEE IN IOWA

Much Farm Land Under Water—Gap Becomes Wider.

MILLION DAMAGE.

CHICAGO, Sept. 16 (Canadian Press).—Continued floods in the Middle West, which have caused more than a million dollars damage, were marked by the breaking of a levee on the Skunk River near Wever, Iowa, to-day. Much farm land soon was under water as farmers and prisoners from Fort Madison Penitentiary worked feverishly to check the flow. The four-foot gap widened to seven feet within an hour.

Farmer, His Wife and Two Children Burned to Death.

SNOW ON PRAIRIES.

Seven Degrees of Frost Reported From Edmonton District.

WINNIPEG, Sept. 17 (Canadian Press).—A toll of four deaths and damage to ungarnered crops, the extent of which will not be determined for some time, were left in the wake of snow, rain and hail storms which have swept Western Canada during the past 48 hours.

Family Wiped O

F. Willing, a farmer ...e Rama district of Saskatchewan, his wife and two children, were killed early yesterday when a lightning bolt struck their home during the height of one of the worst electrical storms experienced in that district. The farmhouse was in a mass of flames when neighbors reached the scene. They were unable to check the fire and the frail dwelling burned to the ground. The bodies of the four victims, charred almost beyond recognition, were later recovered from the ruins.

The unusual weather disturbances brought the first touch of winter to Alberta, parts of Eastern British Columbia and Western Saskatchewan. In several sections of Alberta the snowfall reached midwinter proportions, the maximum snowfall being reported from Edmonton, where it reached a depth of one foot. In other parts of the Province, the mantle of snow varies from one to six inches. A sharp drop in temperature, with seven degrees of frost in the Edmonton district, accompanied the snowfall.

Whole West Drenched.

Practically the whole of the Prairie Provinces have been drenched by rains during the past two days and grave concern is felt over the continued delay of harvesting operations. The grain is reported to be sprouting in the stooks in those localities where intermittent rains have prevented threshing for a period of ten days to three weeks. Some reduction in grade values is also feared.

Forecasts offer no immediate hope of relief from the unfavorable conditions and predictions are that the cold wave will move into Saskatchewan and Manitoba.

The unseasonable weather has brought about a sharp advance in grain quotations. During the past week the price of wheat advanced 8½ cents on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange.

WU PURSUED.

Cantonese Armies Are Driving Marshall's Troops Further North.

PEKIN, China, September 17. — The Cantonese Red armies have begun the pursuit of Marshal Wu Pei-Fu and his troops, whom they thrust from Hankow a few days ago after a fortnight's siege. Large numbers of the Cantonese are moving northward from Hankow toward the border of Honan province where Wu has been endeavoring to re-organize his forces with the expectation of reinforcements from Shantung ...ovince, and promised aid of ...n Chuan-Fang, dictator of Eastern China.

The Cantonese left a strong force to continue the siege of Wu-Chang, sister city of Hanow, which continues in the hands of the Northern troops of Wu Pei-Fu, despite weeks of fighting.

FINE RESPONSE FOR FAIR SPACE

Many Local and Outside Firms Will Have Booths at Armouries.

MADE-IN-CANADA.

The chairman of the committee of Booths, ex-Mayor J.J. Turner who is arranging for the exhibits to be shown at the Kiwanis Fair held in the armouries during the week of October 11th, reports a ... gratifying response from those to whom he has extended invitations to exhibit at the Fair, not only in Peterboro, but from outside firms as well.

Among the Peterboro firms who have already reserved ... he mentions Richard Hall and Son, who will require three booths, the Heintzman Company has reserved two, the Canadian Woollens also want two; the Imperial Oil Company expects to put on quite a large display and will probably require several booths. The Gillespie Garage have also reserved ample space, and among those who have reserved single booths are J. J. Turner and S... s, the Examiner, Sanitary Ice Co, and others.

As stated above, negotiations are also under way with many firms outside the city, who will specify their requirements within the next few days.

A... a feat of endurance an Australian, Tom Burrows, once swung a pair of Indian clubs for two days and two nights without a moment's cessation.

FAIR ATTENDANCE JUMPS HIGHER WITH IMPROVEMENT OF WEATHER

Grounds Take on Old Familar Appearance—Packed Grandstands.

FORESTRY PICTURES

Department of Games' and Fisheries' Exhibit Proves Big Attraction.

With the improvement in the weather yesterday the figures of the attendance took an upward jump.

The improvement continued throughout the day and at night the grounds had the familiar Fair appearance.

The view of the well-lighted Exhibition seen from the approach on George street is particularly fine., the heraldic signs of five Canadian provinces, Ontario, Quebec, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Manitoba placed around the gates, gleaming in the dazzling light.

Passing up the main roadway, leading from George street, the visitor finds himself under an archway of brilliantly colored lights terminating at the magnificent electrically lighted Union Jack, which can be seen long before the entrance is reached.

The Midway presented the usual bizarre spectacle of varied lights, brightly colored stalls, palmists in picturesque attire, and many games of skill and chance.

A lucky competitor at one of the wheels, who took three ventures, was successful on each occasion and carried off triumphantly three baskets of fruit for the modest expenditure of thirty cents.

The exhibit of the Department of Game and Fisheries of the Provincial Government illustrative of the wild life of the province, was a never failing source of interest to the large number of visitors that thronged the tent yesterday. The antics of three small bears, two of which entertained the onlookers by an ursine version of scrapping a la Tunney-Dempsey, created much merriment. The third member of the trio slept uncomfortably within the "ring,' while the battle raged around him, and the rival champions occasionally rolled over his recumbent form. The bout continued until one of the contestants took to flight and climbed up the small stump in the centre of the cage.

In the next cage a solitary lynx looking for all the world like an over grown cat, reclined peacefully, and viewed the fracas in the adjoining apartment, with a very remote interest.

Two badgers occupied the succeeding cage, one of them thrusting his snout incessantly into the straw in search of edibles, the other being fast asleep, until repeatedly prodded into wakefulness by the attendant. A pair of young fishers romped around their prison, occasionally spitting venomously at each other and engaging in climbing exercises of the little tree limb placed beside them. Two red foxes blinked at the onlookers, three racoons seemed to be anxious to cut loose from the cage that confined them, and two beavers belied their reputation for industry by slumbering lazily in front of the little pool provided for their delectation.

Three large charts conveyed vividly to the mind the annual revenue produced by the fisheries, and the fur industry of the country There was an abundance of literature, including copies of the Game and Fisheries laws of the province, and a booklet containing innume...l: "Don't" for the h...tc., trapper and fisherman.

The advantages to farmers of improving their woodlots and reforesting waste portions of their holdings, are forcibly brought out by the illustrations and specimens that are contained in the tent of the Orono Nursery of the Ontario Forestry Branch. Pictures are shown which reinforce the arguments contained in the numerous booklets issued gratis at the tent, to the effect that on most farms there are a few acres which might profitably be devoted to the planting of trees, such as steep hillsides, sandy or gravelly areas, swamp land and fields cut off by streams or railroads. Expert foresters are on duty to plain how unprofitable areas may be set out with trees at little trouble and expense in such a manner as to add value to the property and supply quantities of timber and fuel. The Forestry Branch, in so far as the means at its disposal will permit, will assist in the growing of forest plantations by giving advice as to the choice of species and mixtures, the selection of suitable areas, their preparation, methods of planting and care after planting. The Forestry Branch supplies free of charge sufficient trees to plant two acres of waste land. Carton on view in the tent show tiny trees grown from seeds, and samples of seeds of the different kinds of coniferous trees are available for inspection.

Local firms exhibiting in the main building are Richard Hall and Son, with a display of hosiery, Brass and Company, with ladies' wear, the Canadian Pacific and Canadian National Telegraphs, the Aladdin Lamp Company, J. W. Watson with radio outfits. J A. McNabb displayed ladies' winter coats in a stall, the wall decorations of which were by Trebilcock Brothers. The Singer Company showed examples of the ubiquitous sewing machine. The Empire Milking Machine Company had some of their machines on view. In the stall occupied by the Roy Studio were observed photos of Ray Allen, the hero of the Balsam Lake tragedy, some local views and photographic reproductions of old time silhouettes.

At the stand of Barries Limited, a model of an Arctic ship sailing an ice bound sea added a touch of atmosphere to the exhibition of fur coats on display.

Fur coats are also in evidence at the stall of Wm. Lech and Sons, in the Manufacturers' Building.

COBOURG, Sept. 17.—Three men were arrested by Provincial Constable Fewtrell and brought to Cobourg, charged with theft. Youngsters Find New Way Of Admission To The Ex.

The vigilance of Tom Brown was the means of nipping in the bud, an impression among a group of would-be enterprising youths that paying for admission was a totally unnecessary preliminary to entering the Exhibition Grounds. The expedient adopted was to place a cycle alongside the wall, mount it, and get over the fence.

Mr. Brown, on discovering the dodge, had the boys intercepted and temporarily confiscated the bicycles. Three very penitent youths begged to be spared the ignominy of Police Court proceedings, and two of them each paid a dollar and the third paid seventy-five cents to retrieve their bicycles from the secretary's office.

BABY DROWNED IN SHALLOW TUB

Child 18 Months Old Falls Into Water in Shed at Home.

MOTHER UPSTAIRS!

Gerald Fraser, eighteen months old son of Mr. and Mrs. George Fraser, 11 Brown Street, was drowned in a tub of water at the rear of his parents' home last night. The tub contained only a few inches of water.

The mother of the child was working in the upper part of the house at the time, and had left the child with his sister Lois, 6, and his brother Harry 8. The sister went to the rear of the house and it is thought either left the door open or unlatched. The child apparently followed her, walking down one step in to the kitchen, then down another step into the woodshed, and by some means fell into the tub. The sister pulled the child out and carried him into the house, notifying the mother of what had occurred. Dr. T. G. Loudon was called in but life was extinct.

Dr. T. W. H. Young, the coroner, stated that it was clearly a case of accidental death.

COUNTRY WATCHES DESPAIRINGLY FOR SETTLEMENT OF COAL STRIKE INDUSTRY IS AFFECTED IN ENGLAND

Wait Hopefully For Cabinet To Form Negotiations Between Factors.

PRICES ARE HIGHER.

Reports Show Increase in Freight Rates of American Coal.

LONDON, Sept. 17 (Canadian Press).—With the retail price of coal in London approximately $20 a ton, and coke about $15, the public is watching, although somewhat despairingly, for some result of the Cabinet meeting which discussed on Wednesday the deadlock between the miners and the mine owners. Premier Baldwin, who had just returned from a holiday on the continent, presided.

Hope of a settlement of the dispute between the miners and the mine owners, which has now lasted 20 weeks, has been so long deferred that few persons seem to have confidence in predictions made in some quarters of early government action to force the two sides to the controversy to solve the problem. No one apparently expects important developments this week.

Effect on Industry.

Meantime the newspapers daily are printing alarming figures showing the tragic effect of the stoppage of national industries. It is contended that the loss in public reevnue is likely to involve an increase in the already burdensome taxation, early in 1927.

Among other results of the strike has been a sharp rise in shipping rates, owing to the demand for foreign coal. The rate on coal from America rose considerably Wednesday, and had a marked influence on other freight markets, notably on the grain trade from South America.

Is Optimistic.

OTTAWA, Sept. 17. — Bright prospects for Great Britain within the next two or three years are seen by Philip H. Kerr, C.H., private secretary to David Lloyd George during the Liberal leader's tenure as British Premier, and now editor of the Round Table and other English publications, on his fourth visit to this Dominion. Mr. Kerr is at present here in connection with the Rhodes Scholarship Trust.

Discussing on Wednesday night the trouble between the British miners and operators, he expressed the opinion that in the end, the tie-up will benefit the Old Country. "It is going to demonstrate to the extreme capitalist and socialist element that co-operation has got to be ensured, and that by this means only can there be favorable business conditions resulting in advantage to all parties," he said.

Trade Revival.

Mr Kerr was also of the opinion that things were bettering themselves in other directions in Britain. He thought that if the general strike and miners' tie-up had not intervened, there would have been a considerable trade revival in the Old Country this year, and he looked for this progress to follow immediately the present labor trouble was settled.

Calls Meeting.

LONDON, Sept. 17 (Canadian Press).—Premier Baldwin has summoned the representatives of both miners and mine owners to Downing Street this morning as the first step in resuming his efforts to end the coal strike.

The Cabinet yesterday reviewed Chancellor Churchill's unsuccessful struggle to end the deadlock during the Premier's vacation. The Chancellor's work was fully endorsed, and it was understood that Mr. Churchill's policy — that of settlement by district agreements—ratified by a national agreement—will be continued by the Government.

BLOCKADE CLAIMS TO BE DISCUSSED

Loss To U. S. Shippers and Cost of British Service Among Items.

LONDON, September 17. — The British government hopes to get a "fifty-fifty" settlement of the war claims which Captain F. L. Hill, head of the United States naval mission, who arrived here on Wednesday night, will present to the admiralty and other British government departments.

The war claims will raise the question of the United States war time "shippers blockade," and will bring before a round table conference, the date of which has not yet been fixed, the matter of services and supplies extended by the United States navy to the British Admiralty, and services rendered to the United States navy by the British

The British government will meet the United States claims with various counter claims whether the British bills for reconditioning United States at the time of the war will equal the great sums which the United States emissary is expected to ask in behalf of the shippers who suffered from the blockade is a subject on which little official comment can be obtained.

BALDWIN TRIES TO END STRIKE

Holds Conferences With Leaders in Another Effort.

LONDON, Sept. 17.—(Canadian Press.) —Premier Baldwin to-day began another attempt to end the deadlock growing out of the coal miners' strike. He had an hour's interview with Evan Williams, president of the Mining Association, after which he called in A. J. Cook, general secretary of the Miners' Federation, and other union officials.

THEY FIT WELL.

The yoke idea is very popular in lingerie, some of the most attractive night gowns have yokes of georgette crepe, fitted and outlined with lace or French flowers.

PILL-SLAVE FREED FROM CONSTIPATION

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN brought natural relief in a few weeks

A remarkable, convincing tribute is paid Kellogg's ALL-BRAN in this letter from Mr. F. C. Aminsen:

"I suffered with chronic constipation for many years and was compelled to use pills every night, but since I got your Kellogg's ALL-BRAN it works fine. I would not be without it. I was so deathly sick of taking pills every night. Now it is so different. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN works so naturally and is pleasant to take."

F. C. AMINSEN
(Address on request)

You can get permanent relief from constipation with Kellogg's ALL-BRAN if eaten regularly. Two tablespoonfuls daily — or in chronic cases, with every meal. Doctors recommend it because it is ALL BRAN. It does a job only ALL-BRAN can do. Part-bran products may not do any good at all.

Eat Kellogg's ALL-BRAN with milk or cream. Use it in cooking. Try the recipes given on the package. Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is made by Kellogg in London, Canada. Served by the leading hotels and restaurants. Sold by grocers.

SHE WAS WEAK, THIN AND NERVOUS

One of the greatest strength givers and producers of good healthy flesh in the world is Cod Liver Extract—it's full of vitamines.

Nothing like the wonderful vitalizing vitamines extracted from the livers of the common codfish to help convalescing people to quickly get strong and well—everybody knows that.

So nowadays medical men who keep up with the times are ordering a tablet containing the vitamines that give to frail folks vigor, strength and weight—a tablet that is known as McCoy's Cod Liver Extract Tablet—and it surely has proved a blessing to thousands of people who have been sapped off their natural strength after any severe illness.

Skinny men and women take them to speedily put on plenty of good healthy solid flesh and for this purpose they are so extremely good that thin men and women often take on 5 five pounds in 30 days. As a matter of fact your druggist is authorized to return your money if you don't take on five pounds in 30 days.

Great for weak, skinny, backward and run-down children too, and gives them a hearty appetite.

Be sure and ask for McCoy's, the original and genuine Cod Liver Extract Tablet. McDermid and Jury, James Lynch and Bond's Drug Store, and druggists everywhere have a big demand for them, and millions are sold monthly all over North and South America. They are sugar-coated and as easy to take as candy. 60 Tablets—60 cents.

WEDDING BELLS.

McCOOEY—McNULTY.

A very pretty wedding took place on Tuesday morning, August 31, at St. Paul's Church, Norwood, when Myrtle Margaret McNulty became the bride of Patrick V. McCooey. The ceremony was performed by Rev. N. J. McNulty of Owen Sound.

During the signing of the register a solo was rendered artistically by Mrs. N. C. Porter, the bride's former music teacher.

The bride was attired in old rose flat crepe with silver trimming and picture hat. She carried a bouquet of Ophelia roses. The bridesmaid was Miss Mary T. Cavanagh, who wore a coral canton crepe gown with gold trimming. She also wore a picture hat and carried Ophelia roses. The groom was supported by Mr. Neil P. McNulty.

Mr. and Mrs. McCooey left for their home in Walkerville, Ont., followed by the good wishes of many friends.

CONDON—DWYER.

DOURO, Sept. 17.—St. Joseph's church, Douro, was the scene of a pretty autumn wedding on Tuesday morning, September 7, when Kathleen Mary, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jeremiah Dwyer, was united in marriage to Alphonsus Condon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Barth Condon.

Rev. Father McCarney performed the ceremony, assisted by Rev. Father McNully of Owen Sound, cousin of the groom. The pastor, Rev. Father McGuire was also in the Sanctuary.

The bride, who entered the church on the arm of her father, was attired in a gown of blonde flat crepe with sand tricotine coat, hat of sand silk and velvet, and blonde shoes and stockings. She was attended by her sister, Miss Aileen Dwyer, who wore a gown of pink crepe rayon silk, black velvet hat, and sand wrap.

The groomsman was Raymond Condon, brother of the groom. The groom's gift to the bride was a cabinet of flat silverware, to the bridesmaid an onyx ring and to the groomsman a pair of green gold cuff links.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, the rooms being prettily decorated. About fifty immediate friends were present for the wedding dinner. Rev. Fathers McNulty and McCarney made happy little speeches in proposing a toast to the bride and groom. Mr. and Mrs. Condon being the first couple married by Rev. Father McCarney, he promised them a spiritual remembrance.

Many splendid gifts were received by the young people. They will make their home on the groom's farm in the fourth concession.

Among those from a distance who were present were: Mrs. Wilfred Burke of Kirkfield, the groom's sister; Mrs. Alberta O'Grady and daughters, Lillian and Beatrice; Miss Jennie Doris, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Doherty and family, Mr. Daniel Mahoney, Mrs. Edward Sullivan and family, all of Peterboro and Misses Mary and Anna McNulty of Norwood.

FOSTER—DENIKE

NORHAM, Sept. 17. — A very pretty wedding was solemnized at high noon on Wednesday, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Denike, Percy Township, when their eldest daughter, Eva Gladys became the bride of Sherman Theodore Foster, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Alfred Foster of Hillier, Prince Edward County.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. F. Everson, minister in Trinity United Church, Norham.

To the strains of the Wedding March played by Mrs. Ivan Denike, the bride becomingly gowned in white flat crepe with shoes and stockings to match and wearing an embroidered bridal veil aranged with orange blossoms and carrying a sheaf of white asters entered the drawing room on the arm of her father.

The bride was attended by Miss Madeline L. Foster, of Hillier, sister of the groom. The bridesmaid wore peach colored flat crepe and carried a bouquet of pink asters. The bridegroom was supported by his brother, Norman J. Foster, of Detroit.

The drawing room was tastefully decorated with ferns, gladiolus and asters.

The wedding ceremony was followed by the baptism of five infants, children of the friends present, Miriam Jean and Theada Madeline McFaul, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Corey Cronk McFaul, of Wellington; Martin Lewis Foster, son of Mr. and Mrs. Eric Foster of Codrington, and William Harold and Evelyn Ruth, son and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Denike.

After the service the guests repaired to the dining room where a sumptuous dinner was partaken of. The waiters were Mrs. B. Dingman Miss Madge Cliffe and Miss Della Diamond, special friends of the bride.

Other guests present were Mr. and Mrs. William Alfred Foster, of Hillier. Mr. and Mrs. King Terry and Miss Iona Terry, of Wellington; Walter Foster, Hillier, and Mrs. J. F. Everson.

Going away, the bride wore a suit of navy blue tricolette and a hat of wine-colored felt with shoes and stockings to match.

The happy couple left amid showers of good wishes and confetti on a motor trip to Toronto, Port Arthur and other points. Upon their return they will reside near Hillier, where the groom is a prosperous farmer.

The bride was the recipient of many valuable and useful presents on the day of her marriage and previously had been given a miscellaneous shower by a number of her many young friends.

THE LAST OPPORTUNITY.

In sporting parlance, the "breaks" have been against the Peterboro Industrial Exhibition.

Beginning with the late arrival of the giant midway, it has been a week that would have discouraged anybody but the lion-hearted Exhibition directors, inasmuch as the interference of election day was followed by bad weather.

Tonight and tomorrow, the last opportunity is offered the citizens to make up for the earlier disappointments, and liberal patronage will do much to remedy the situation.

The people of Peterboro and of the surrounding district are loyal to the Exhibition, and The Examiner is confident that they will rally to its support tomorrow and establish a new record for a single day's attendance.

Never was the Exhibition more worthy of patronage than it is this year, and only the bad weather conditions have prevented an attendance mark above all previous totals.

AN O. T. A. ELECTION?

The Federal election out of the way, the people of Ontario are asking two questions:

(1) Will the Ferguson Government go to the country in November?

(2) Will the main issue be Government control?

No definite answer to either of these questions is as yet forthcoming, although The Toronto Telegram, usually well informed on such matters, intimates that there will be a Provincial election during the week of November 8th.

There is some reason for believing that when the official announcement is made it will be accompanied by a statement that the Ferguson Government proposes to face the electors with a policy of Government control.

Should such be the case the campaign that would follow would probably prove one of the liveliest in the history of the Province, with party allegiance thrown to the winds in many instances and the electorate flung into wet and dry camps.

ANOTHER EQUAL RIGHTS QUESTION.

A rather interesting point has come up in Hamilton, namely whether a woman ought to be allowed to drive a taxicab, says The Ottawa Journal. The Hamilton Police Commissioners think not. When a woman made an application last week for a license to drive a taxi, the Commissioners unanimously turned the application down. Police Magistrate Jelfs, one of the Commissioners, admitted that this is a woman's age and that members of the gentler sex are displacing men in a good many occupations, but he did not approve of a woman trying to drive a taxi.

We are inclined to think that this is a mistaken view. If there were strict examinations as to qualifications for driving a taxi, it would be quite right that neither a woman nor a man who could not pass the tests should be refused a license. But we don't see why there should not be equality in the matter.

Civilization has pretty nearly universally accepted the principle that women are entitled to the franchise, in other words that they should be conceded to be as well qualified as men to deal with all the important affairs of the world, and there does not seem any particularly good reason why this principle should not be admitted in all respects in the matter of earning a livelihood.

In the matter of physique and muscle, a man is of course better qualified to drive a motor car than a woman, but in the matter of common sense and quickness of mind it is quite possible that the balance in any individual case may lie the other way. The only thing that can decide this in any particular case is the passing of an appropriate examination. We imagine this should be the only test that should be applied in the case of people desiring to be motor car drivers, whether they are men or women.

MR. KING'S OPPORTUNITY.

If there was one point on which the people were agreed during the election campaign it was the necessity of Canada securing stable government and attaining a period of political calm that would give this country a chance to get under way toward the prosperity that should be hers.

That consummation has undoubtedly been reached.

Mr. King is in a position to command the support of a large majority in the House, and the manoeuvring and barter and compromise of recent sessions of Parliament should be seen no more.

In the realization of that condition even Conservatives, disappointed as they may be at the misfortunes of their own party, doubtless are finding relief.

The situation in Parliament in recent months was such as to disgust the people of this country, and it is a matter for general congratulation that an end has been put to the deadlock.

Mr. King has a rare opportunity.

He should be able, in view of the strength of his following, to give Canada good government, and from him good government will be expected.

And he can start right by a Cabinet alignment that will impress the people with the capability and honesty of purpose of its members.

Before him he has the mistake made by Mr. Meighen to serve as a warning.

The chance was his to name a Cabinet that would have appealed to the country as made up of men of weight, ability and character.

Some of his Ministers, of course, could be so described, but for others even the most enthusiastic Conservative would hesitate to make that claim.

Particularly were his Maritime selections open to criticism; Hon. Mr. Black because his advanced years made him a weak choice for the all-important railway portfolio, and Hon. Mr. Jones because of his connection with the potato scandal that was still fresh in the memory of the Maritime electors.

Had Mr. Meighen's Cabinet-making been done with a view to national service, rather than along political lines, his appeal to the people might have had much greater success.

Mr. King should not make the same mistake.

He should give Canada a Cabinet of big men, even if it is necessary to go outside of the ranks of his elected supporters to find the material.

Political services, of course, demand consideration from a leader, but Mr. Meighen's fate shows that there is danger in going too far along that road.

A Cabinet of sound, substantial statesman-like members would send Mr. King's new Government off to a flying start, and the people are going to be disappointed if such a Ministry does not materialize.

At the same time, too, from the Premier-that-is-to-be all sections of Canada are looking for a prompt fulfillment of his promise that the customs probe shall be continued and wrong-doers punished no matter whether they be political friends or political foes.

That pledge was given solemnly and explicitly, and it doubtless served to win the support of many electors who were hesitating as to how their ballots should be cast.

If Mr. King unhesitatingly honours that pledge and begins his new term of office with a strong Cabinet, he will be building the foundations for a successful regime.

Few leaders have had a better opportunity; if he fails the people will know where to put the blame.

NO MORE SNORING.

One cannot read the proceedings of the American Chemical Society, in session recently at Philadelphia, without having the suspicion that we are soon to live in a new world. The chemists are duplicating the performances of nature so effectively, in giving us the odors of flowers, the flavors of fruits and spices and so on, that we must not be surprised they have now reduced all disease to a matter of chemical action, and propose to find cures in appropriate reagents. Their latest propositions are to make our foods by synthesis, instead of waiting for the slow process of 'cereal growth, and to enable us to do without sleep by supplying the needful drug to the blood.

The caprices of fashion have played havoc with many industries of late—notably the makers of decorative combs, hairpins and hair nets—and now the manufacturers of beds and boudoir furnishings are menaced by the chemists. Incidentally, if synthetic foods come into vogue, the farmer will be put out of business.

It is difficult indeed to visualize and contemplate a world in which men and women will not need to sleep. Instead of going to bed, as they have been doing since the dawn of time, the chemists tell us all they need to do is to swallow one or two pellets of the particular chemical which sleep creates in the human system, and then go about their business with recuperated energy. The economic possibilities of such a change are beyond computation. But the thing may not happen. These wise fellows, who toss atoms and electrons about in retorts and test tubes, have not yet identified the particular drug which will meet the physical requirements of sleep. They suspect its character, and are already chasing it in their laboratories; but they haven't got it lassooed yet. Experience warns us, nevertheless, that when they get after anything in dead earnest they generally run it down.

There is one bright aspect of the matter. If the chemists succeed in making sleep unnecessary, there will be no more snoring.—Ottawa Journal.

LOCARNO PACT IN EFFECT.

With formal ratification at Geneva yesterday of the pact for peace in Europe which was entered into at Locarno, the five nations whom it immediately affects have acknowledged their responsibilities to new agreements, which gives reasonable hope for a better condition of things on that continent than has yet prevailed. A policy of arbitration of all disputes between them, with the League of Nations as mediator and judge, has been adopted, and resort to war has been definitely renounced. The treaty is now in effect, and the only obstacle which remains to its immediate and smooth operation is the presence of French troops in the occupational areas of the Rhineland. Germany desires these troops withdrawn, claiming that French occupation is not in keeping with the new understanding. Will France comply, is the question? It was Poincare, the present French Premier, who sent them there, and Poincare, of all Frenchmen, is the most distrustful of Germany. But the mutual guarantees safeguarding the frontiers of the two nations would appear adequate to all requirements, and it is likely that before the present session of the League ends negotiations now in progress will provide for complete freedom of all the Rhine areas from foreign occupation.

With the fear of each other's motives and intentions, which has prevented free intercourse between these nations, removed, the benefit of the treaty should immediately be felt. Larger knowledge will beget friendship, and confidence will take the place of suspicion. A new sentiment should thus prevail and should prove a surer foundation of peace than formal agreements or diplomatic harmony.

It is not impossible that there may yet be something in the nature of a struggle for the non-permanent seats in the Council created by the reorganization of that body. The Irish Free State has entered a claim, in defiance of the general understanding that Great Britain represents the Empire States in that body. It will be unfortunate if that claim is urged. It will complicate matters for the League, and it will provoke the belief that hostility to Britain is at the bottom of the demand. Sir George Foster's position regarding representation by the British Dominions in the League Council is a much happier one than that of the Irish Free State, and is in keeping with the dignity of these States. Canada, he says, is not making a claim for a seat, but he asks the Assembly to recognize the fact that she considers she has the same right as fifty other nations in the League to eventual representation on the Council.—The Globe.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Sept. 17 (Canadian Press).—Owing to the advance in prices at Winnipeg for all lines of grain, Montreal exporters were unable to work any business with English importers yesterday. The majority of the bids received were out of line. A stronger feeling developed in the local market for cash oats and prices were marked up 2 1-2c to 4c per bushel.

In sympathy with the strength displayed in wheat of late and the fact that Ontario millers are not receiving sufficient good quality wheat to grind into flour, on account of the unfavorable weather that has prevailed in the wheat belt, a firmer tone developed in the local market for winter wheat grades of flour and prices were advanced 10 cents per barrel. Car lots of choice grades were quoted at $6.30 to $6.40.

The movement of Spring wheat flour for local account was fair and prices were firm. The export was quiet.

Prices for all grades of millfeed were firmly maintained under a good demand. The undertone to the market for standard grades of rolled oats was firm and prices were advanced 10 cents per bag.

A fairly active business was transacted in fresh and storage eggs and prices ruled steady. The receipts were 1,043 cases.

Winter stocks of potatoes made their appearance yesterday and a moderate trade was done in car lots of New Brunswick Cobblers at $1.30 per bag of 90 pounds, ex-track.

The butter market continued active and firm. The receipts were 3,898 packages.

The demand for cheese was firm and values were a shade stronger. The receipts were 7,826 boxes.

The market for beans was steady, but the demand was still somewhat limited and business was quiet with car lots of choice hand-picked selling a $2.25 per bushel, and broken lots at $2.35 to $2.45 per bushel.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Sept. 17 (Canadian Press).—The grain market was generally higher yesterday. Wheat scored sharp gains on continued reports of unfavorable weather conditions over the Canadian northwest and the pronounced strength in the Winnipeg market. Buying was good on the breaks, but heavy profit-taking sales and selling against offers brought about a reaction from the best figures of the day. The day was strong with wheat showing a new gain of 1 1-8 to 1 1-2 cents; corn finished 3-8 to 1 1-8 higher; oats advanced 5-8 to 1 1-2, and provisions varied from 10 cents up to 15 cents down. Trading in wheat was light at times and the market was easily influenced. Initial firmness which resulted from the better tone of values at Winnipeg, was further augmented as the session progressed on continued messages from the Canadian Northwest, which said that a big short interest in the October delivery of wheat was likely if the wet weather lasted much longer.

Wet weather over part of the corn belt, coupled with the strength in wheat caused corn values to reach higher price levels. The forecast was for unsettled weather over the greater part of the belt with lower temperatures.

Oats showed pronounced strength with other grains, there being a good class of buying with outside trade showing a tendency to broaden.

Provisions were firmer with hogs and grain.

ELECTION QUIET AND VOTE SMALL

Apsley People Show Little Interest—Heavy Frost on Tuesday.

CAR STRIPPED.

APSLEY, Sept. 17.—Never has a Parliamentary election been so quiet locally as on Tuesday last, at some polling stations not a third of the electors marking the ballot, while in Apsley itself only about 60 per cent. voted. A great many people did not even know that an election was being held. Those in the village got the results during the evening from Mr. Spence, who received them over the radio.

The huckleberry season is nearly over, and the crop on the plains ten miles east of Apsley has yielded almost phenomenally. To show how plentiful the berries are, two local men are reported as having picked thirty-two ten-quart pails between them in four and a half hours one day last week. There were many buyers on the plains from places as far distant as Kingston, and prices dropped from a dollar a pail at the beginning of the season to as low as forty cents a pail. Blackberries too are quite plentiful, but the heavy frost on Tuesday morning will likely spoil what is left. All standing water was covered with ice nearly a quarter of an inch thick, and all garden stuff was withered.

On Thursday last a car owner was the victim of a dastardly trick. He was travelling to Bancroft through the rain when his coils got wet, with the result that he had to park his car on the road near Murphy's Corners in Hastings County, and walk home. He returned next morning for the car, when he found every wheel stripped of tires and tubes, and even the coils changed for old ones that were useless. He had taken his tools with him the night before, or no doubt they would have been stolen also. No clue to the thieves has been discovered.

It takes years to get a good reputation and only a few minutes to get a bad reputation.

FADS OF THE FAMOUS

WASHINGTON LUIZ.

Washington Luiz, President-elect of Brazil, will inaugurate his administration on November 15th of this year not only with a sound platform but also with one great hobby, "good highways."

While governor of the state of Sao Paulo, Luiz was responsible for the development of the present good highway system which links every leading city of the state with the city of Sao Paulo and with Santos, the world's greatest coffee port.

Luiz will inaugurate his administration in November well aware of the fact that the question of more good highways is a grave problem which his administration will have to deal with, but he has announced definitely that what he calls the principal item of his program, and what others call his great hobby, will be put though, and his name will go down in Brazilian history as the "Yankee" Brazilian road builder.

Lyrics Of Life

(By Douglas Malloch.)

PLEASING EVERYBODY

The good Lord sends us sun and rain,
And some folks like it, some complain.
The farmer wants the growin' wheat,
The city fellah hates the heat.
Fair weather pleases lots of fellahs,
But not the man who makes umbrellas.

The good Lord sends us rain and sun,
Don't try to please not everyone;
And, if he Thinks it's rain we need,
The rain we git, to sprout the seed.
Folks kick about the wintry season,
And yet the good Lord has some reason.

I knew a fellah once named Brown
Who ran for everything in town.
He wanted office, used to run,
But always lost and never won.
And Brown could never understand it,
The reason why he couldn't land it.

I know he didn't have a foe
In that whole village, high nor low,
Because he never did express
Himself on anything, I guess.
He went to church, but drank his toddy,
And tried to please just everybody.

And guess what happened in the end?
At last he didn't have a friend.
When parties split, or town divides,
Folks like a fellah who takes sides.
Even the Lord, in His high station,
Don't try to please the whole creation.

DR FRANK CRANE'S DAILY EDITORIAL.

DO GENTLEMEN REALLY PREFER BLONDES?

(By Dr. Frank Crane.)

Anita Loos' book has brought the preference of gentlemen for blondes into discussion all over the country.

Someone turned the matter around when he described a large butter-and-egg man going into a New York hotel and saying to the manicure girl, "Hello, Cutie, you look pretty good to me. May I take you out to lunch?" "Well," she said, "you see, blondes prefer gentlemen."

A writer in The London Daily Mail seriously challenges the statement about gentlemen and blondes. He says that as a matter of fact brunettes have the advantage.

An English doctor some time ago collected statistics to the effect that from among nearly one thousand women 78 per cent of the dark-haired ones were married and only 68 per cent of the fair were wives.

The old English word "fair" meant beautiful, and it is interesting to observe that of a number of celebrated "fair" women many were actually dark.

Byron liked dark women, and so did Thomas Moore.

Although the Greeks and Romans admired fair-haired women, most of the notable belles of modern times have been brunettes.

The writer in The Mail declares that Lady Venetia Stanley, who married Sir Kenelm Digby, had brown hair and eyebrows, that the Gunnings of the eighteenth century were dark blondes and that Lady Hamilton was a brunette; also that Mrs. Overall, known as the greatest beauty of England in her time, was dark.

Baudelaire so admired dark women that he fell in love with a mulatto.

All of Thackeray's heroines were brunettes.

Brunettes have greater vitality than blondes. And the number of fair people in Europe is stated to be rapidly diminishing.

Altogether history does not seem to bear out the statement that "gentlemen prefer blondes."

SYNOPSIS

Don Juan's disillusioned father warns him: "Destroy women or they will destroy you; take their love scornfully—and forget!" This advice has made Juan the greatest lover of all time. But his cynicism is suddenly checked by the disarming innocence of Madonna-like Adriana Varanese. Loving her madly, he vows to lead a clean life. The affair is dangerous because infamous Lucretia Borgia loves Juan, while Donati, her kinsman, covets Adriana. The Borgias institute a reign of terror in Rome against the lovers—and capture Adriana and her father, Duke Varanese.

CHAPTER VII—Continued

Donati was not smiling. He was looking at Adriana, and lust coarsened his face, making him even more repulsive than he was ordinarily. From time to time he licked his thick lips with his tongue, and his hands clenched and unclenched restlessly, as if they itched to touch her delicate body.

Adriana shuddered as his glance crept over her like some slimy, unclean thing. She clung to her father, cold with fear. The torches borne by some of the Borgia retainers threw an ominous red glare over the armed men, and flickered over the stone walls of the Varanese palace. On either side of the steps great steel rings had been let into the stones, one hanging from the mouth of each of the two huge dragons wrought of metal that were fastened to the stonework.

Ordinarily arriving guests had their horses tethered to these rings, and torches were thrust into the dragons' heads, to light the guests' arrival. Tonight purposely no torches had been so placed, and one of the Borgia henchmen, tiring of the weight of his torch, thrust it through the dragon's head nearest him.

To Varanese that act was symbolical. It was as if the Borgias had already taken over his palace and added his fortune to their own. Would they take also the lovely, slender girl who clung to him in terror? What would be her fate?

He knew that he himself was facing certain death. Cesare Borgia was a relentless enemy, and there were many old scores between them that would now be settled. For himself Varanese did not greatly mind dying. Life had not been kind to him. It had given him the treasures of the world, but it had taken his young wife from him when Adriana was born. And since then the girl's happiness had been the only thing that mattered to him.

The thought of leaving her alone in the hands of the Borgias was intolerable. Yet only a miracle could save him from death, and her from a far worse fate.

Yet he faced Cesare Borgia proudly. No fate, however bitter, could make him flinch before this complacent, sneering enemy. Cesare came slowly forward, Donati at his elbow, his eyes still on Adriana. He liked her fear of him; forcing her to accede to his wishes would be pleasant indeed.

Cesare spoke curtly, his words cutting the air like sharp, small knives.

"You are under arrest," he said to Varanese. "And as a friend of the Orsini you already know your fate."

Adriana cried out in terror; her father, his eyes still looking straight into Cesare's, patted her reassuringly on the shoulder.

Cesare made as if to turn away, then, turning back, looked at the girl thoughtfully, then cast a side-long glance at Donati, as if a new idea had just then come into his mind.

"There is this chance of a pardon for you," he said slowly. "My kinsman," the Count Donati, desires your daughter in marriage. Give her to him and become our loyal follower."

"No—no!" cried Adriana, sick with horror at the mere thought of such a thing.

Her father went white to the lips.

Cesare's eyes narrowed, and for a moment his sneering smile was lost, as his face tightened and grew grim. Then he smiled again, and at sight of it a little serving maid who cowered behind Adriana crossed herself and muttered a prayer. For Cesare Borgia's smile boded evil for those who called it forth.

Donati's hand flew to the hilt of his sword. Cesare turned to his soldiers and gave an order curtly, an order that was hardly needed, so plain was it that the Borgia retainers had expected it all along. They leaped forward, the red torchlight playing over the metal of their accoutrements with a sinister glare. They seized the Duke, though Adriana clung to him, crying out wildly in protest. Roughly they shoved her aside, and dragged Varanese down into the courtyard.

Suddenly realizing what this meant, she ran after him, crying "I will! I will!" She was frantic with fear for him; in that moment no sacrifice that could be paid with her own body meant anything to her, if it could buy his safety.

She sped to his side and threw her arms about his neck. Cesare watched her smiling. Donati watched also complacently. For a moment he feared that the girl would escape him, although Cesare had promised him that he should have her, as soon as the Duke was dead. He preferred taking her this way, however; with a girl of her type it was more satisfactory.

Cesare nodded to him, malice and amusement flickering in his eyes. Donati nodded back, admitting that his powerful cousin had been right in laying the plans that were being carried out. They watched without comment as Adriana, clinging to her father, sobbed out the words that she knew sounded the death knell for her own happiness.

"I will do it," she was saying, pressing her pale cheek to his. "I will marry him!"

"That I cannot permit," Varanese told her, trying to loosen the grasp of her slender arms. "Never while I live—"

"What chance have we?" she cried. "If I refuse it means death for you—and a worse fate for me. This is the only thing to do—it must be done!"

Varanese's face changed suddenly; he looked like a very old man, one whose heart's blood had suddenly been sapped. Yet there was something valiant about him as he turned courageously to face Cesare, who sat looking down at him mockingly.

"My cousin's proposal for your daughter's hand is—accepted?" Cesare asked, and Varanese, his face hard with hatred, bowed his head.

"We'll risk no trickery, despite your realization of my cousin's great love for your daughter, and of—of hers for him," Cesare continued smoothly. "You will come with us now to the Vatican and sign the agreement."

Varanese's head went up defiantly. He would have leaped forward and dragged Cesare from his horse, to strangle him with bare hands, had he not known that by so doing he would make matters far worse for Adriana. Hopelessly he bowed his head, and followed Cesare and Donati from the courtyard.

Left alone, Adriana stood beating her hands helplessly together, not knowing what she was doing.

U. S. FINANCIER MURDERED BY MEXICAN REBELS

Fail to Receive Ransom Demanded, Bandits Kill Jacob Rosenthal.

TRACKED BY TROOPS

Officials Had Planned to Trap Outlaws When Paying Ransom.

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 17 (Canadian Press) — Jacob Rosenthal, a U. S. citizen, was murdered by his bandit captors on Wednesday night when the troops closed in upon them.

Having failed to receive the $10,000 ransom demanded and being hampered in their flight by the weak old man, the criminals killed him rather than let him be rescued alive by the Federal troops with whom they were engaged in a running fight.

The tragedy occurred in a wild country less than forty miles from Mexico City. The Federal troops had tracked down the gang and killed two of the bandits when the pursuit was halted by the recovery of the body of the captive. Later, the pursuit was resumed after the bandits, who are believed to be only a small group.

Officials admitted in Mexico City, after news of the murder had reached here that ransom had been demanded and that it was planned to trap the bandits by pretending to send the money. Soldiers were posted to capture the bandits when they appeared but the ruse failed. It is possible that the criminals angered by this attempt viciously killed Rosenthal rather than allow him to be rescued.

The body of the dead man was found in the jungle bearing many stab wounds. It was taken to Cuernavaca by his son-in-law, Ruff and Mr. and Mrs. Dahler. The body will be brought to Mexico City to await the arrival of his wife, who is now on her way here from New York.

The troops have been ordered to redouble their efforts to exterminate the bandits. The United States officials are convinced that the Mexican government made every effort possible to rescue Rosenthal and capture the outlaws.

Under the leadership of Jack Hendricks, the Cincinnati Reds are now seeking their first National League pennant since 1919. After finishing in first place that year they defeated the Chicago White Sox in the world series. Since then they have finished in second place twice, but have not been able to push their way to the top.

LIBERALS GAIN ANOTHER SEAT

Reports State King's Support in Saskatchewan Is Now Seventeen.

LARGE MAJORITIES.

REGINA, Sask., Sept. 17 (Canadian Press). — With J. A. Dowd, Liberal, elected in the Kindersley constituency, according to reports received yesterday morning, Saskatchewan's straight Liberal support to Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King in the Ottawa Parliament is now seventeen.

Since the polls closed on Tuesday evening the Kindersley seat has been in doubt. Yesterday morning Mr. Dowd stated over the long distance telephone that with all polls heard from, he has a majority over A. M. Carmichi, Progressive, and the late member, of five. Official figures will not be available until Friday of next week, and Mr. Dowd is of the opinion that at that time he would be found to have a larger majority.

The Mackenzie seat is now definitely conceded to Milton Campbell. Yesterday morning's reports show that with 20 polls to hear from, Mr. Campbell had a majority of over 500. Mr. MacMillan, the Liberal candidate, yesterday stated the 20 polls yet to hear from would not benefit him to any great extent.

In the Rosetown constituency, John Evans, Liberal-Progressive, has a majority of 1,500 over W. Asseltine, Conservative. Eighty-five out of 135 polls have reported.

C. R. McIntosh, Liberal in the North Battleford constituency, expects a majority of over 3,600 when all the polls have reported. Yesterday morning he had still 60 polls to hear from, and at present has a majority of over 2,500.

Right Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King will have over 4,000 of a majority when the Prince Albert polls are all received. At present, with 19 polls to come, he has over 3,500 of a lead on J. G. Diefenbaker, his Conservative opponent. His agent stated yesterday morning that the final figures will give the leader of the Liberal party over 4,000 majority.

A. F. Totzke, Liberal, will probably take the deposit of L. S. Wilson, Conservative. In the Humboldt constituency, Mr. Totzke has to yet hear from 35 polls, but has a majority of over 3,000 at the present time.

John Millar, Liberal-Progressive, in the Qu'Appelle constituency, has the comfortable lead of 1,465 over W. W. Lynd, Conservative. There are yet seven polls to hear from in this seat.

With all polls heard from, J. F. Johnston, Liberal, in Long Lake constituency, has a majority of 1,483 over Wm. Pound, the Conservative candidate.

Dr. Donnelly, Liberal in the Willow Bunch constituency, will be the medium through which two other deposits will reach the Dominion Treasurer. He has to hear yet from 80 polls, all of which he believes will be in his favor. At the moment his figure is 5,900, with 1,847 for A. Marcotte, his Conservative opponent and 1,927 for W. Emery, the Progressive candidate.

In the Melville constituency, Hon. W. R. Motherwell, Minister of Agriculture in the King Government, has a majority of 4,044 over J. A. M. Patrick, his Conservative opponent.

Three polls have yet to report.

Malcolm MacLean, Liberal in the Melfort constituency, has a majority of 2,337 over H. E. Keown, the Conservative candidate. Twenty-five polls have yet to report, but most of them will add to Mr. MacLean's majority.

FALLS ON DYNAMITE KILLS WORKMAN

Man Working at Blasting Terribly Mutilated By Explosion.

KENORA, Sept. 17.—Shockingly mutilated, Gus Erickson expired in a few minutes after falling on a stick of dynamite that he was carrying for blasting purposes. Erickson, a man of 29 years, was employed with Hans Westin, contractor in the construction of sewers between the houses of William Boychuck and Milford Marchant on Third Street, and the work required rock blasting, for which Erickson was reported to be fully capable. It is thought that he slipped, or that the detonators exploded.

LEAGUE COUNCIL STARTS SESSION WITH HOMAGE

Accepts Bust of Woodrow Wilson as Founder of League.

PLEA FOR CONCORD.

Dr. Benes, Czech Premier, First To Address Meeting.

GENEVA, Sept. 17 — The new Council of the League of Nations, enlarged yesterday to 14 members by election in the Assembly, and having present Dr. Gustav Stresemann as the representative of the German Republic, began its proceedings with an act of homage to Woodrow Wilson as founder of the League.

This homage took the form of accepting in advance a bust of the ex-President which will be presented to the League by Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Caldwell of New York.

States Are Chosen

The States chosen for the non-permanent seats in the Council are Poland, Rumania, Czechoslovakia, Belgium, Colombia, Chile, Salvador, Holland and China. Though the Irish Free State had announced its candidacy for a seat to represent the British Dominions in the Council, it received only ten votes. Colombia received 46 out of a total of 49.

Dr. Bene's plea for concord, sincerity and collaboration in the furtherance of the high aims of the League was followed with tense interest by the crowded Council Chamber. After extending a warm welcome to Germany, whose adhesion, he said, meant so much to the future destiny of Europe, Dr. Benes declared that there were no plans, no entrenched camps, no opposing factions in the Council, but only men whose pulse must ever beat to the fulfilment of the high aim of putting into practice the fundamental principles of the Covenant of the League.

Armenian National Home

The Council decided to push forward the project for the establishment of an Armenian national home. It adopted a resolution that the Council would promote the settlement of the Armenian refugees in Erivan when the necessary $7,000,000 was subscribed by Armenian organizations and charities generally, and would devote the League organization to helping the project of a national home.

Dr. Stresemann laid aside his right to preside over the Council, and thereby created tn atmosphere of accommodation and good-feeling.

The proceedings were carried out with despatch. Dr. Stresemann, smoking a huge cigar, sat between Signor Scialcia of Italy and Senor Villegas of Chile. M. Briand, the French Foreign Minister, beaming contentedly, sat on the right of Premer Benes, while Sir Austen Chamberlain, smilingly puffing a cigaret, was next to Viscount Ishii.

Lord Grey's Views

LONDON, Sept. 17 — The entry of Germany into the League of Nations is the greatest single step toward European peace since the foundation of the League, according to Lord Grey of Fallodon, who as Sir Edward Grey, was British Foreign Secretary when the Great War broke out, in a speech today at the opening of the Liberal bazaar at Alnwick. He added that the entry of Russia into the League would do something of great importance, and that the door for its entry was open as soon as the Government of Russia had passed through the transition stage and was willing to accept the obligations of the League Covenant and work for peace, not trouble.

"The Locarno pact and the entry of Germany into the League," he continued, "have made it more remote and more improbable — I would like even to say impossible — that there should be any war between the three countries, Britain, Germany and France, than it ever has been in their lifetime. There is a certain danger of a setback if there is too much uncritical gush about it."

The duty of the British and French Governments, continued Lord Grey, is to transform mistrust in Germany gradually into confidence, and the duty of the German Government is to remove the misgivings felt in the allied countries.

FOR GARDEN PARTIES.

The very large leghorn hat is often trimmed with a single flower or with a bow or velvet ribbon or pink, blue or orchid tones.

DARKER HOSIERY.

Gun metal hosiery, which gives the effect of a sheer black stocking, is more popular now with the dark suit or frock than the nude shade.

Former Minister of Custom buried beside parents. ABOVE are shown scenes at the funeral of the late Hon. George Henry Boivin, former Minister of Customs in the King Government, who died after a brief illness recently in Philadelphia and was buried in Granby, Quebec, his home town. From 8,000 to 10,000 persons paid tribute to the memory of him who had lived among them in the community and had seen him rise at the early age of 44 to the distinction of a Minister of the Crown. TOP photograph shows the cortege before leaving the Boivin home on Main street. It passed through a half mile of thoroughfare lined by the entire population of Granby, whose numbers were augmented by hundreds of others from out of town. BRITAIN AND JAPAN PROPOSE TO START CHINESE AIR ROUTE

Joint Development of Vast Field is Under Discussion.

SUBSIDY OFFERED

Japan Has Double Propose, It is Thought—Ready for War.

By KEITH JONES
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

LONDON, Sept. 17.—(United Press).—Japan's bid for the command of commercial air routes in Asia starting with an initial subsidy of $5,000,000 is interesting British aircraft manufacturers. It is realized here that China offers a potential field for air routes second to none in the world.

With an area of more than four million square miles and a population of four hundred and fifty millions China has less than 17,000 miles of railway track. Its roads are not many and most extremely unsuitable for motor transport traffic. On the other hand vast treeless tracks of the Chinese Empire are ideally suited to aviation.

Japan has the geographical advantage in launching plans for development of China's potential air routes, but the British feel that they have the advantage of experience in the construction of practicable passenger airplanes and the operation of airways. The experience gained in the operation of the London-Paris, London-Ostend and London-Colgone air routes and the further experience that will be gained in 1927 in connection with the operation of the Cairo to Karachi air route to be opened next spring, places Britain, it is claimed, in possession of technical information indispensible to the Japanese in the inauguration of the proposed development of Chinese airways.

It is rumored in consequence, that it is not improbable that the next few months will see the formation in England of an air mission made up from representatives of British aircraft manufacturers who will go to Tokio and lay before the Japanese Government plans for the joint development of the Chinese field. It is likely that in a general way the mission will propose to give Japan the benefit of their experience in laying out of air routes, the development of the ground organization necessary to maintaining the routes as well as the training of pilots, exacting in return a contract with the Japanese that they will equip their routes largely with British built aircraft.

It is realized here, however, that the Japanese development of Chinese airways is a double-barreled plan aiming further than the simple development of commercial airways. The conversion of a twelve-seater commercial airplane having a speed of 110 to 120 miles an hour to a day or night bomber carrying a pair of thousand pound bombs is not such a difficult feat, and Japan is at present bent upon building up a military air service equal to that of the United States, Great Britain or France. If at the same time that she is building up paying commercial lines in China, she is also training pilots and ground personnel, and accumulating a fleet or aircraft that could quickly be made available for war purposes. Japan, according to British interpretation will be doing herself a good turn.

It is interesting to note in this respect that Englishmen in close touch with Japan's officialdom scout the suggestion of the possibility of a Japanese American war for at least a century to come. Japan they say, has not the least disposition to [illegible] military strength [illegible] Western Power. But on the other hand she has right at her [illegible] Chinese whose government is in a chaotic state and whose people are openly hostile to Japan, while a further menace is presented by Russia.

Whether the British will succeed in their mission or whether Japan will decide that it will be better for her to make her own aircraft and develop a new industry within her own borders can only be shown by subsequent events.

"A YEAR WITHOUT A SUMMER" FOLLOWING EXTRA LONG WINTER PREDICTED BY AMERICAN SAVANT

Frosts in July and August and Snow Storms in June.

RADIO WEATHER.

Fans Will Be Able To Plan Dates To Dodge Static.

WELLESLEY HILLS, Mass., Sept 17 — A winter which will begin early in the fall and end late in the spring, which will bring "extremely deep snows," and which will be in fact "one of the severest ever known on the North American Continent," is on the way.

Should there be before the first of the year, a great volcanic eruption anywhere on the surface of the globe the Northeastern United States may expect in addition a general snow-storm about the middle of next June, a killing frost the latter part of that month, an ice-building freeze the night of July 4th and another equally intense early in August.

There will be in short, in 1927, a recurrence of the "year without a Summer," that made 1816 a year of memory.

But of even more immediate interest perhaps than these dire predictions is another forecast that emanated yesterday from the Thirteenth Annual National Business Conference at Babson Park, when scientists and engineers discussed the weather in general and solar radiation in particular.

The time is possibly coming when radio fans, equipped with a forecast of the "radio weather" for weeks in advance, will be able to select with scientific surety the nights for "listening-in," when they will be certain to hear to the best advantage, and likewise plan quiet evenings with their books for dates far distant, when the static is certain to be terrible.

It all depends, both the weather and conditions of radio reception the speakers declared, on the sun

Herbert Janvrin Browne of Washington, D.C., is author of the alarming prognostications concerning the coming year. They were contained in Mr. Browne's paper: "1927—A Year without a Summer?"

The prediction concerning radio was offered by Greenlief W. Pickard of Boston, consulting engineer, and radio inventor of note.

PLAN TO ELECTRIFY HOLY LAND BY MEDITERRANEAN WATERWAY

Engineers Propose to Pump Water Over Ridge to Sheer Drop.

LIFT IS SMALL

Less Than One-Third of Power Needed to Run Pumps.

By JOHN O'BRIEN
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

PARIS (United Press). — French and British engineers have completed a project which it is hoped will be put into execution very soon for the electrification of Palestine by causing the waters of the eastern Mediterranean to flow over a 250-foot ridge bordering the coast, thence through a canal cut out of solid rock, whence the waters would hurl themselves down in an almost sheer drop into Lake Tiberius and the Dead Sea, more than one thousand feet under the level of the Mediterranean.

It is estimated that the electric energy capable of being thus developed would be sufficient for Palestine, Syria, Asiatic Turkey and Egypt. The total cost is placed at about $75,000,000. Able scientists have calculated the net energy at 426,000 H.P.

"Palestine is the classic land of miracles," said Edouard Imbeaux, the French expert, chief author of the plan, to the correspondent of the United Press. "I firmly believe modern science will accomplish miracles there in its turn."

M. Imbeaux has sent to the Academy of Sciences a long, detailed statement of the geographic and other conditions favoring the plan for the electrification of Palestine. He emphasized that between the Mediterranean and the enormous depression in which are situated the valley of the Jordan, Lake Tiberius and the Dead Sea, there is only a low ridge less than two miles wide. He proposes therefore:

1. Construction of a maritime canal from Haiffa with twelve locks gradually rising to the summit of the ridge near the Zerin peak, the Jizreel of the Bible.

2. Piercing of the peak, a distance of about 3,300 yards and construction of an artificial river on the other slope of the ridge leading to the commencement of the denression.

3. Construction of a plant which would receive the falling torrent about twelve hundred feet below just above Lake Tiberius. Another plant would be constructed further south, permitting a further drop of nearly four hundred feet into the Dead Sea.

"We have calculated," continued M. Imbeaux, "that the gross energy derived would be 617,000 H.P., but 190,000 H.P. would be needed for the lifting of the waters of the sea up to the peak, leaving a net product of 426,000 H.P., or 240,000 kilowatts, sufficient for all Palestine's railroads, industry and agriculture. This enormous influx of water into the valley would be amply taken care of by evaporation. Irrigation, which is one of the crying needs of Palestine, would take care of the rest."

M. Imbeaux has been studying every angle of the problem for three years. He has been in communication with the British Government, which has a mandate over Palestine, and believes that the execution of the project is matter of a short time. Referring to the fact that Niagara Falls develop electrical energy which serves a radius of twelve hundred miles, he said:

"If you draw a circle of six hundred miles with the region in Palestine to which I am referring as a centre you will find that you will enclose Syria, all Turkey-in-Asia, reaching to the Black Sea, and Egypt. We have in mind an extension of our plan which would bring into its sphere all that territory. We aim at an immense development of cotton and silk growing, fruit culture and general agricultural progress which should make Palestine what it was in ancient times.

There is really no material obstacle. The work on our preliminary scheme would take about three years. Labor is cheap. The Jews have shown at Tel-Aviv that they are capable of tremendous tasks."

MORAL RECTITUDE SUBJECT OF PAPER

Warsaw Women's Institute Hears Splendid Talk at Meeting.

WARSAW, Sept. 17.—The Warsaw Women's Institute held its regular monthly meeting on Thursday afternoon. A good number of ladies were present. Mrs. Herrington brought beautiful decorations of asters and gladioli. The main business was to settle on giving ten dollars in prizes to the School Fair, and that the ladies would sell hot dogs near the grounds, also pie, beans and tea.

The address of the afternoon was by Mrs. Grover, of Toronto. Her subject was "Moral Rectitude." She said in part:

"One great reason for my sympathy with the Women's Institutes is because they have to do with women, right in their own homes, and that is where woman's brightest star shines. Though her path may seem to be beset with many difficulties and she may feel she is more of a slave than a queen, it is because she does not realize the importance of her seemingly obscure but important work.

"Home is really the training ground of character, and no other institution or organization has the same opportunity for this great work. If the home could function properly and perfectly, other influences would not much matter. If love of honor, love of virtue and self-control were properly instilled into the character of the children, they would go forth armed completely against all the shafts of so-called evil, and our nation would so on be rid of many troubles.

"It would seem to me that the education of young people for the responsibilities of parenthood is sadly neglected, and that this condition should be remedied. Would not this be suitable work for the Women's Institutes to undertake? Young people become parents without considering that a young life will look to them for guidance, as well as for physical care, and many times the dear little ones, when asking for bread, are given a stone, simply because parents have had no training nor preparation for their wonderful work, and there is none more wonderful nor more important than the moulding and training of the character of the child. Many times parents are so taken up with other matters, the mother with household work, cleaning and preparing meals, mending clothing, and perhaps her own pleasures, and the father struggling to earn enough to supply the family needs, that very little time is given to the training and enjoyment of the young lives so eager for all that is good and worth while.

"There seems to be such a lack of dignity and reserves in the conduct and speech of grown-up people now that it is not to be wondered at that the children have not a proper sense of the dignity of life. Boys and girls playing together should not be allowed to maul each other the way they do; there should be some sense of respect for each other. That they should associate and play together seems right and proper, but there should be certain restraint and limits imposed. Then the matter of girls dressing as boys do and imitating their manners and habits, seems such a pity as what is suitable for a boy may not be suitable for a girl. Girls should lead the way in loveliness of thought, conduct and appearance. I am inclined to think that decency and modesty are stronger qualities in boys than in girls, until obliterated or destroyed by the conduct of the girls. Some one has said that 'chastity is the cement of the nation,' and it does seem that, without it, our nation will perish. If we allow an ungoverned and unrestrained nation to grow up, we are laying up a terrible condition of affairs.

"These days seem rather difficult for parents, as there are so many influences outside the home. The very fact of children going to school means that influence of teachers and playmates. Then there are literature, books, magazines, newspapers, pictures and plays, but if love of honor, love of virtue and self-control have taken proper hold of the children they must discern what is undesirable.

"We must not spend our time condemning any one, but let us rather try to find out the dark spots and do our best to correct them. The fault is with the custodians of the young, not with the young people themselves. As Christians, no matter to what so-called denomination we belong, our duty to God and to our fellow-man is precisely the same, and we must suffer the little children to come unto us and forbid them not, for if such is the Kingdom of Heaven. Jesus said, 'The works I do, ye can do, because I go unto My Father,' and he cared for the children.

"Remember, the character of our nation is the character of the boys and girls rent out from our homes. If purity of thought and action is instilled into the children's minds, there could not be this ghastly coming into human experience, so many little creatures without lawful sanction and with a stigma attached to them for life. While the sin of immorality, so-called, may not be worse than any other sins, its consequences are so ghastly that surely it should be weeded out of Christian communities.

"Without chastity there seems very little beauty in life. Self-control is too often lacking in children. Obedience is necessary, but not sufficient. But because we try to instill self-control we must not expose our children to too great temptations. Young people need the restraining presence of older persons. The habit of going off alone, especially motoring and to dances, should not be allowed. Surely depriving young people of pleasure which may lead to misery is wisdom, not unkindness, and we are told we must be wise as serpents and harmless as doves.

"This is a pleasure-loving age, and parents must be alert to deal intelligently with this condition. Allow as much liberty as possible in things which are open and above board, encourage a love of music, flowers, games and dancing in moderation and with decency. Let the young people have their fun at home as much as possible, no matter if the furniture does get smashed a little and the house upset.

"Now that woman has become emancipated from a great deal of injustice she must be careful not to mistake liberty for license. She must remember her God-given right to guide the destiny of man; the quieter part may be hers, but none the less wonderfully powerful. Human nature is wonderfully autocratic and loves to tyyrannize when given unlimited power. Women must guard against this tendency. Teach our girls modesty and a high sense of their responsibility; let them realize that happiness does not consist in amusement, but in joyous happy service and work. Some parents seem to think that having a good time is the aim and object of life, so far as their children are concerned. The good time should not mean selfish amusement, but really a good time. Do not separate goodness from the ordinary conduct of life. Goodness means joy and happiness, while evil spells misery, for it is opposed to truth.

"This coming together of neighboring communities seems to me such a good thing. Church limitations are set aside and we work together in love and sympathy. Try and keep all discord well weeded out, so as to let in the sunshine of earnest pure endeavor. Keep our ideals high and we shall attain to them in some measure.

"I shall hope to meet you all again next summer at my home."

Then followed a short discussion on the training of children.

After the meeting was closed tea and cake were served and a pleasant social time was spent.

Native Intelligence Is Enough To Raise Family; No Extra Training Required, Says Expert's Report

MONTREAL, Que., Sept. 17—(Canadian Press).—"Given a native intelligence a person without training can bring up a family with consummate skill," is a sentence in one of the reports given at the Triennial Conference of the Canadian Federation of Women.

Mrs. H. D. Young, convener of the education committee, in her report said that while every encouragement should be given to women fitted by nature for scholarship and research along traditional lines, courses should also be established to give opportunities of research along feminine lines. "Soon the housekeeper will scorn such advice as 'How to keep house with a can-opener.'"

As it is computed that women spend eighty per cent. of the money of the nation, family budgetting is largely their affair. A woman's education should include training for her week as purchasing agent. A leak in the purchasing department is what sinks many a family."

Citing the fact that the University of British Columbia has a course leading to the degree of B.Sc. in Nursing, the first of its kind in Canada, Mrs. Young deplored the fact that so far there is no home economics course there. "Women have agitated for it but the university is young, and has a very large student body," she continued. "The governors will start on no new thing until more money is forthcoming. The Provincial Parent-Teachers' Association has undertaken to raise $50,000, to endow a chair of home economics and will begin a drive in September."

MEIGHEN READY TO QUIT WHEN KING PREPARED

Cabinet Will Be Prepared To Resign Early Next Week.

DRAYTON LEADER.

West York Member Mentioned To Succeed Meighen in Party.

OTTAWA, Ont., Sept. 17. — It will be at least the first of the week before Right Hon. Arthur Meighen tenders to the Governor-General the resignation of his Government. There can be no full meeting of the Cabinet before Monday, when Hon. R. B. Bennett will arrive from Calgary and Hon. H. H. Stevens from Vancouver. Until these members of the Government are in Ottawa no action will be taken.

Mr. Meighen will be ready to place his resignation in the hands of the Governor-General early in the week, but he will be prepared to carry on the Government until such time as Right Hon. William Lyon Mackenzie King, the Liberal leader, is content to relieve him of the task. Following a meeting of the Cabinet, Mr. Meighen will write Mr. King advising him that he will recommend to the Governor-General that he be asked to form a Government.

In view of the general expectation that Mr. Meighen will retire from the leadership of the Conservative party, there is considerable speculation in Ottawa as to his successor. Opinion in the capital favors Sir Henry Drayton, who was acting Prime Minister during the election campaign. Sir Henry is exceedingly popular in Ontario, and it is thought by his friends that he would be acceptable to the party throughout the country.

The question of leadership probably will be decided at a meeting of the Conservative memberes of Parliament to be called within the next few weeks.

Ministers Confer.

Mr. Meighen conferred yesterday with Sir George Perley, Sir Henry Drayton, Hon. E. B. Ryckman, Hon. Donald Sutherland and Hon. Raymond Morand. These are the only members of the Government in Ottawa.

Mr. Mackenzie King is devoting himself at the present time to the selection of a Liberal Cabinet. His principal difficulty lies in choosing of Ministers from the Maritimes and Ontario. Those close to Liberal headquarters suggest the names of Paul Hatfield and Colonel Ralston from Nova Scotia. It is assumed that Hon. P. J. Veniot will be the representative of New Brunswick. From Ontario, W. D. Euler and James Malcolm are considered to be likely appointees. Another Ontario man whose name is mentioned in Ottawa is Wellington Hay, former leader of the Liberal party in the Province, who was returned from the constituency of North Perth.

It is thought here that Mr. King will include in his Cabinet Robert Forke, former Progressive leader, who was elected as a Liberal-Pro- in the constituency of Brandon.

...rliament will not be convened before the middle of November. Under proclamations which brought on the general election the opening of the next session was set for November 17, and while merely a formality it is likely that the opening will not be far from that date.

SEARCH WOODS FOR TWO MEN

Find the Boat on Shore and Tracks Where They Landed.

GONE THREE DAYS.

SUDBURY, Ont., Sept. 17 (Canadian Press). — Between Killarney and Fraser Bay, on the north shore of Georgian Bay, an organized search party is to-day endeavoring to locate two men, John Simms and Mr. Masson, who on Monday afternoon set out in a 45-foot motor boat for Bay Finn, where Masson was to act as a scrutineer at the polls. They have not been seen since they left Little Current, but their motor boat has been discovered abandoned.

Yesterday, when the prolonged absence of the men created anxiety, C. L. Simms, T. C. Simms and John Smith of Little Current went to Bay Finn, fifteen miles distant by water, in search of the pair. On their arrival they were informed that neither Masson nor John Simms had been seen, and, patrolling the shore, they located the motor boat used by the men stranded on the beach. The footprints of the two men showed where they had left the launch, but no other tracks could be discerned on the rockbound shore.

The theory is held that Masson and Simms mistook Fraser Bay for Bay Finn and stranded their boat in landing. The propeller was entangled in weeds.

Simms is 65 years of age, and has a daughter living at Sault Ste. Marie. Masson, a man of about 45 years, has been a book-keeper at various lumber camps in this vicinity.

Peanut Rolling Takes Place On George Street To-day

Supporter Of Meigh en Pays Off His Election Bet

One of the tragic aftermaths of any election campaign, which of stern necessity calls for a losing, as well as for a winning side, occurred on George Street today, when one of the city's merchants was compelled to implement an election bet by rolling a peanut for a distance of about seventy-five yards along the city's main thoroughfare. However, he did it with a very good grace, spurred on by the applauding comments of an audience which, strangely enough, appeared to be composed of members of an opposite political camp to the one to which the main actor evidently belongs.

A "gentleman's bet" was made between Jack McNabb and Thomas McAuley some time prior to the election, and at noon today, with a placard inscribed with the words, "I Voted for Meighen," pinned to his coat-tail, Mr. McNabb rolled a peanut from the entrance of his George Street store, down to the corner of Simcoe and George Streets. If Premier King had been defeated, Mr. McAuly would have accomplished a like stunt, from his store to the Bank of Toronto corner on George Street.

Filled with commendable belief in his party and their cause, Mr. McNabb also bet Mr. McAuley the sum of five dollars that the latter would roll the peanut, and further more, wagered a dollar, or, as he said, "the price of a real good cigar," on the outcome. So, besides rolling the peanut, a feat which he accomplished with one peanut and one toothpick, indicating what to some minds might suggest that Mr. McNabb has spent the interval of time since election night in practising with the peanut and the toothpick, he presented Mr. McAuley with the sum of six dollars, doing it all with a debonnair demeanor that gave the affair quite a triumphant flourish.

MINOR INJURIES IN ACCIDENTS

Motor and Horse Vehicles Crash Without Much Damage.

BOY BREAKS LEG.

Two accidents occurred in the south end of the city last night, the participants in them escaping with nothing worse than a shaking up.

The first accident occurred at 7.10 when a car proceeding south on George Street, driven by D. White, ran into a horse and buggy travelling in the same direction. The occupant of the buggy, James Ruth, was thrown out, but did not sustain injury. The horse was injured, losing a great deal of skin, but the wounds were not serious. The occupant of the automobile told the police that he was blinded by the lights of a car coming north, and he was unable to see the horse and buggy until he struck it.

The second accident took place at the corner of Princess and Aylmer Streets, when a Royal Mail wagon and an automobile crashed.

The mail wagon was overturned; the horse broke the harness and started off down the street, to be finally caught by Mr. Sage, an employee of Cooney and Jopling.

Charles Saunders, who was driving the horse, was thrown on to the street but escaped injury.

While playing with some other boys at the Exhibition midway last night, Allen Harper tripped and fell, sustaining a fractured arm. He was taken to the hospital by Inspector J. F. Reid, but was not detained.

BIOGRAPHIC TEXT FOR SCHOOL HISTORY

What inspiration, what leaders are to be found in the giants of statecraft, what intellectual annals of Canadian progress."

WIFE OF FARMER MOST IMPORTANT

Leading Institution on Farm, Says Hon. Duncan Marshall.

TORONTO, Sept. 17 (Canadian Press).—Governments were a long time recognizing the fact that the farmer's wife was the most important institution about the farm, according to Hon. Duncan Marshall, who spoke in the Alberta section of the Women's Institute wing, Women's Building, Canadian National Exhibition. "By the condition of the farm homes in a country you can measure the success of its agriculture," declared the speaker, "but you will never make agriculture what it should be until you have farm homes where boys and girls will be glad to return."

MONTREAL, Sept. 17 (Canadian Press).—When the new Minister of Immigration is appointed, it is felt by local women's organizations that he would do well to secure a copy of the recent survey made by the Montreal Women's Club of the valuable immigration work being done in Montreal by the railway companies, steamship companies, Red Cross, Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire, Young Women's Christian Association, Travellers' Aid, chaplains and port workers of the various churches.
